THE ST. GEORGE CALAMITY

MRS. HIGGINS' NAME ADDED TO THE DEATH ROLL.

Brakeman Angels Still Alive but Very Low—The Other Wounded Doing Well—Scenes of Sorrow and Suffering.

ST. GEORGE, Feb. 28.—The little town of St. George, on its hill-slope facing the south, has been in a fever of excitement last night and to-day. From 7 o'clock till midnight the whole town almost worked hard and unceasingly in extricating the dead and wounded from the wrecked railway train. The scenes were something to wring sympathetic anguish from the heart. The shrieks of women and the groans and shouts of men in agony went up from the wreckage with which they were covered. One by one, bleeding and mangled, the unfortunate people who still lived were rescued and the dead were carried away and laid in the station house. The Cummings House, the largest hotel in town, was given over for the service of the wounded people. Private residences took those that could not get a place at the hotel. All night long till daybreak this morning the excitement was intense, and to-day it was unabated.

Looking southward down the slope the seven tall columns of stone on which the bridge rests can be seen a quarter of a mile distant. The unspanned space in the bridge, through which the ill-fated coach dropped, can also be seen, and there are the wrecking trains at both ends of the bridge with the engines puffing and blowing and crowds of people sixty feet below gazing upward at the wreck. People came from all over the district to see it. The road for a quarter of a mile on each side of the bridge is lined with vehicles, and busses run constantly from Harrisburg and St. George.

There is no doubt as to the cause of the disaster. The train was whirling along eastward and was within less than a hundred yards from the bridge when the tire of the back driving wheel on the right side threw out a segment about eleven inches long. The tire ran off, leaped over the coupling rods and sped away down the embankment, through a fence and out into an open field, where it now lies.

The wheel, stripped of its tire, fell about two inches, and the great strain pulled the pins from the coupling rods. On the bridge flew the train, the back part of the engine, tender and smoker jumping from side to side cutting great gashes in the wooden ties. The ties were stripped from the girders, the iron needle beams brushed away like a cob-web and the dining car, having no support, fell through between the girders. The engine, tender and smoker crossed the bridge in safety owing to the grip of the engine truck, which never left the rails. The first passenger coach jumped the track and fell somersaulting through the air, and the Pullman, next to it, remained standing on the verge of the gap, obeying equally the retrograde force of the dining car and the onward force of the rest of the train. Its couplings at each end were sundered and it remained standing on the wreck.

The latest death was that of Mrs. Higgins, which occurred at 6.30 o'clock this morning. The following is the list of the dead:

A. W. Francis, Mayor of Woodstock and editor of The Woodstock Times.
Thos. McLean, stove and tinware dealer, Detroit.
Captain (Miss) Moore, Salvation Army, Brantford.
Dr. Swan, Brantford, a well-known physician through Ontario.
E. R. Baines, store department Grand Trunk Railway, London.
W. H. Wemp, immigration agent, London.
Geo. Leggat, Mitchell.
John Peers, councillor Woodstock.
Chas. Crump, colored waiter in dining car, Windsor.
Mrs. C. W. Higgins, Toronto.

The following is a list of the wounded and the nature of their injuries:

D. W. Karn, organ manufacturer, Woodstock—scalded on the right hip, flesh wounds on the head and face and slight body bruises.
Daniel Peacock, Reeve of Woodstock—right ankle injured and large scalp wound.
Mrs. Jennings, Paris—leg broken.
Dr. H. Le [illegible], Cleveland, traveler for Scott & Bowne, 132 Fifth avenue, New York—thigh dislocated and ribs broken.
Jas. Dwyer, Detroit—head and body bruises.
R. W. [illegible], Woodstock—flesh wounds on head and injured internally.
David Cooper, waiter in dining car, Suspension Bridge—badly scalded on head and body.
Conductor Reville, London—serious cut on the head.
Andrew McLaughlin, Windsor—hurt about head and back.
Wm. Benedict, Saranac, Mich.—wrist hurt and arm scalded, and serious internal hurts.
Stephen Budden, Dorchester, Ont.—badly cut about the face and skull fractured.
Mrs. Budden, Dorchester, Ont.—shoulder dislocated and skull fractured.
Miss Mary J. Chaffee, Pontiac, Mich.—scalp wound and side bruises.
Geo. Forbes, New York—scalp wound and scalded.
Miss Andrews, Belleville—ear nearly torn off and ankle fractured.
J. R. Marshall, Regina, N.W.T.—back and legs bruised.
Mrs. Marshall, Regina, N.W.T.—severe scalp wound.
John McKinley, Detroit,—scalp wounds and body bruises.
Fred Hancock, news agent, London—back hurt and head cut.
Geo. Margetts, dining car conductor, Niagara Falls—scalded badly about head and arms.
Mrs. Evans, matron of the Children's Home, Hamilton—cheek and arms cut, badly scalded.
Mrs. A. L. Sendell, Detroit—scalp wounds and bruises.

Eight occupants of the ill-starred train escaped unscathed. They were:

T. S. L. Lewis, Chatham, traveler for the Crompton Corset Co.
J. C. Gilroy, traveler for Wyld, Grasett & Darling, Toronto.
Mr. De Lisle, traveler for the Ontario Barbed Wire Works, Toronto.
Councillor Potts, Woodstock.
David Price, commercial traveler, Belleville.
G. C. Eden, town clerk of Woodstock.
Baggageman Plummer.
Engineer William Blackwell.

At 9 o'clock this morning Dr. Ridley and Dr. MacKelcan left Hamilton on behalf of the Grand Trunk Railway for the wreck and were joined at Harrisburg by Dr. Digby of Brantford. They made re-examinations of the patients and during the day Messrs. Karn and Peacock of Woodstock were removed home, and in the evening Mrs. Evans of Hamilton was taken home. All of the dead bodies were sent home by this evening, except those of Charles Crump and Geo. Leggat.

These railway officials were at the scene of the accident all day: Messrs. Joseph Hobson, chief engineer of the Great Western Division; Samuel Barker, general manager of the Northern and Northwestern Railway; Wm. Pope, of Solicitor Bell's office, Belleville, and Chas. Stiff, superintendent of the Southern Division of the Grand Trunk. Relays of men were put to work and the wreckage was rapidly cleared away and the track put in order. Loads of timber came from Hamilton and Komoka with bridge carpenters to repair the break. Three wooden trestles will be erected to support the broken span. The work has progressed well so far and by to-morrow the line will be open again. Until the repairs are made the trains will run by Paris and Brantford.

HEARD ABOVE THE CRASH.

Some Sad Features of the Accident—Two Wedding Journeys Interrupted.

ST. GEORGE, Ont., Feb. 28.—Mr. Karn sat opposite Dr. Swan of Woodstock, who was killed. They were both in the first-class coach. Mr. Karn says that the coach turned over three times in making the descent.

Dr. Swan only lingered a short time after being taken from the wreck. His lungs were crushed.

Mrs. Higgins, wife of Mr. C. W. Higgins, of the Rossin House billiard room, had been away from home for some months. For some weeks past she was visiting in Detroit and would have come home several days ago had she not been detained by the kindness of her friends. Mr. Higgins came up to St. George, reaching here about 2 o'clock this morning. He saw his wife and spoke to her and she was not too far sunk to recognize him. Mr. Higgins is completely broken in spirit.

Little May Jennings received a bad fracture of the skull. Dr. Ridley says, however, that she will get over it all right.

Mr. Joe Richardson, the well known railway man, came down from Detroit on Wednesday. He intended coming through but stopped off at London on business. He does not regret it.

Dr. McLurg of Woodstock took charge of moving Messrs. Karn and Peacock.

Geo. Forbes, the well known sport of Woodstock, is among the wounded. He is doing very well and will soon be about.

Mrs. Sendell of Detroit fell out of the end of the Pullman car, which was left standing on the bridge. She fell to the ground sixty feet below, and strange to say was not badly injured.

George Margetts, dining car conductor, has been several times a member of the Wimbledon team. Once while at practice a man stepped in front of the target just as he fired. The bullet passed through the man's left lung and made a bull's-eye on the target. The wound inflicted was not fatal.

Two newly married couples, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Budden, were in the wreck. The former were married in Dorchester on Wednesday and were on their way to St. Catharines, and the latter were married in Chesterfield and were going east on their wedding trip. All four are doing well.

Mrs. Marshall, whose maiden name was Nancy Henderson, had been married but a few hours before the occurrence. Her husband, Mr. J. R. Marshall, had just come down from Regina to marry the young lady. She wrote to a friend in Toronto the early part of this week detailing her wedding tour and the places she intended to visit. She had not got very many miles from her home when all her calculations were rudely upset.

The Grand Trunk officials acted with great promptitude in summoning medical aid. In two hours after the accident these doctors were in attendance: Drs. E. C. Kitchen, E. E. Kitchen, Addison, Patten, St. George; Vart, Sinclair and Dutton, Paris; Digby and Howard, Brantford; McKay and McLurg, Woodstock; and Ridley, Wilverton, Wallace, White, Shaw, Leslie and Ormstead, Hamilton, 19 in all.

Mr. James Sutherland, M. P., of Woodstock leaves the Capital to-day to attend the funeral of his townsmen.

The body of Miss Moore, the Salvation Army captain, which was sent to Brantford, was viewed there by the Salvationists and no one identified her. The body was sent to Ingersoll, where it is said she belongs.

Among those who came up to the scene of the accident from Toronto were Hon. Chas. Drury and Messrs. Rayside, M. L. A. for Glengarry and Caldwell, M. L. A. for North Lanark.

THE DETROIT VICTIMS.

Mr. McLean a Former Resident of Port Hope—Mrs. McKinley's Plight.

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—Among the killed at the St. George railway accident is Thomas G. McLean of Detroit, of the firm of McLean & Beecher, Peninsular Furnace agents. He came to Detroit seven years ago from Port Hope, Ont., and was employed as foreman for James F. [illegible]. Two years ago he commenced business for himself in connection with Mr. Beecher. Some little while after this Mr. McLean's wife died, leaving three children, who were sent to live with relatives at Port Hope. Mr. McLean was 36 years of age.

John McKinley, whose name appears in the list of injured, lives at 147 Seventh-street, Detroit. He is a piano polisher by trade, but has been out of employment for some time. Work was offered him in Boston, and he left yesterday for that place. Last night his wife received a telegram from St. George, simply stating her husband was hurt. She would go to him if she had means to do so, but her husband took all the money they had except 30 cents, to pay his fare to Boston.

Brakeman Angels Very Low.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Brakeman Angels is still alive but very low.

THE INQUEST.

A Broken Tire on the Drive Wheel of the Locomotive—Dangerous Switches.

ST. GEORGE, Feb. 28.—Coroner Webster empanelled a jury last night with William Snowball as foreman, but owing to Mrs. Higgins' death this morning a second panel was summoned with D. Cone as foreman. There was a large attendance in Mechanics' Hall, where the inquest was held, and intense interest was manifested in the proceedings.

James Stewart, general inspector of the Traffic Department, stated: The train is called No. 54 express, is made up at Windsor and runs to Suspension Bridge. Wm. Blackwell of London had charge of the engine and Henry Angels was fireman. Dan Revell was the conductor. There are two brakemen, one baggageman, parlor car conductor, dining car conductor, three waiters and three cooks on this train. Examination is made at London and Harrisburg by car inspectors of the car wheels and trucks and also the engine wheels. No interim examination is made except by the engineer himself. The trains passing at Princeton were exactly on time. It is the duty of the conductor and his men to inspect the train at every station and also to keep a lookout when in motion.

Thomas Paquette stated he was employed as brakeman on the train. It leaves Windsor at 1.40 p.m. The driver is not the same that left Windsor. The engine was changed at London, nothing being wrong there. The first notice I had of the accident was the jumping of the cars when we reached the bridge. I was in the smoking car at the time. It did not leave the bed of the track. No one was injured in this car. I know the brakes were on by the motion of the cars. I cannot tell our speed. It is my duty to see that the brakes are all right. I got off the car at the north side and went down to the passenger coach and helped get the passengers out. The train was all right at Paris, do not think the train was off the track before it reached the bridge. Steam was shut off before reaching the bridge. The brakes were put on after the engine was reversed.

John Plummer, baggageman of Windsor, testified: The first impression I had of the accident was I consider striking the west end switch. We struck it very hard. I noticed it swayed the car I was in. My impression was that something was wrong. Something struck the car where I stood before we reached the bridge. The air pipe broke beneath the car I was in. When I looked we were off the track. I applied the air brake from the inside of the car before reaching the bridge. In trying the brake I found it did not work, but hung on to it until we got over the bridge. It was no defect in the bridge. Under my own car, just previous to that, there was something wrong. The distance between the west end switch and the station is 200 yards at least. The car dropped down about the station and was dragged along on the ties. The station is about 200 feet from the bridge. We can stop the train inside of 100 feet. It is down grade to St. George. I regard this switch as a very dangerous switch, because coming down grade we strike it heavy. There is a curve there. We did not leave the track there. Have no idea how fast we were going. I suppose our usual time, about 30 or 40 miles an hour.

John R. Rousseaux of Hamilton, G.T.R. detective, stated he was on the train, was sitting in the smoking car. After we passed St. George station, just by the little shanty, I noticed the tire of the "drive" wheel was thrown over the fence at the bottom of the embankment. At the same time I heard a report. I thought it was the uncoupling of the air brake. It might have been 50 or 100 feet from the bridge. I found I could not get out. The smoker and engine went over all right, the smoker drew the ties up. Noticed nothing until I saw the tire go off.

Chas. Stiff, superintendent of the Southern Division, said: I believe the accident was caused by a tire of the driving wheel breaking on the south side, that caused the connecting rods to break, the track to spread, the cars to get off the track, the needle beams of the bridge to be all crowded together, allowing the cars to fall between the girders, and this breaking took place before the train reached the bridge. I have traced the tire from the field in which it now lies to the point where it left the track about 50 yards west of the bridge. I think the tire became loose about 100 yards west of that. There are marks on the ties from the distance I mentioned, about 150 yards west of the bridge. The engine driver would notice the difference of the running at once of the train; that, I think, would be about 150 yards west of the bridge. At the speed he was running it would have taken the driver about 500 yards to stop the train. The time cards show that they would run about 44 or 45 miles an hour. The train has to run about 45 miles all the way through. I don't know how long the engine has been in use. The tires occasionally get broken. I do not know how long the tire was in use, I should say it had not been out of the shop long. We found the missing piece of tire which is now at the station and I cannot see any defect in it. It is apparently a new fracture. The switch I examined to-day, it is close to the station. There is one further up about 400 yards. There is no curve at the station switch. I have no theory of the cause of the break. An engine running over a very rough road might do it. The tire is steel; as far as my knowledge goes it seems to be perfect. I cannot say how far from the bridge the tire was found. I cannot see any possible connection the switches had with the accident.

Joseph Hobson, Chief Engineer of G.W.R. division, stated: My duty is to see that the track, bridges, fence, etc., are kept in good condition. The track is broken at both ends of the switch. Do not consider that a break in the track. I passed over that part of the road last Tuesday. I looked at the switches; they were all right. I never notice any concussion at these switches. I have examined the one nearest the bridge. The train makes a little more noise going over the switch. Am positive the switch near the bridge had nothing to do with the accident.

William Blackwell of London, engineer, said: I was in charge of the train; left London at 4.30, took charge at London; stopped at Ingersoll, Woodstock, Princetown, Paris and Diamond Crossing. I examined engine at London. My duty is to examine engine before leaving London, not the duty of anyone but myself. I did this yesterday afternoon. Was satisfied that she was fit for the journey. This is not my regular train, the regular engineer was off. At Woodstock we took water and oiled there. With the hammer we tried the crank pins and keys to see whether they were sound at London, did not use the hammer after that.

I first noticed that something was wrong about midway between the two switches of the siding. I noticed something give way under where I was standing. I was in the cab. I do not know what it was, I noticed splinters thrown up and the tire was thrown off, I think between the two sidings. I did not do anything, did not reverse the engine, did not put on the air brakes, could not do so; did not blow whistle, it was impossible to stay in the cab. I shut the engine off as soon as I heard the crash. I saw I could not do anything. I ran to the rear of the engine, the fireman jumped off. I could not stop the train, if I did reverse, in that distance; would have no power to stop the train in a short distance. The trailing wheel, the tire and the left driving wheel were off at the other side of the accident on the bridge. I would apply the air brakes, reverse the engine and give all the power I could to stop a train if necessary, but could not in this case do anything. Could stop the train in about 400 or 500 yards. I often run over this road. Did not notice any jar or concussion at the curve.

I don't know how long the engine was in service. I started on the road in 1873 on freight and passenger trains, was never permanent passenger engineer. I picked up a piece of the tire midway between the two switches, the large rim and the piece produced makes the tire complete. I did not use the hammer on the wheels at any time on this trip. I examined the repair register and all was clear.

Arthur A. Smith of Toronto, Assistant Mechanical Superintendent, stated he had charge of the engine and men in the locomotive department under Mr. Wallis. Mr. Walton of London would have charge of this engine. It would be the duty of the engineer to see that it was all right. I saw the piece of tire produced at midnight on Feb. 27. It was not rusted. I consider that the tire is a fair average steel tire. Can detect a longitudinal mark down the tire which I can't account for, unless it has been caused by the heating of the tire when it broke on the rail and ties. I can't say whether it was a former defect or not, but in its present state I could not swear that that was a perfect tire at the time of the accident, the crack might have been there for two weeks. The defect is on the inside of the tire. I did not examine the other part of the tire to see if the tire was cracked. It could not be seen by any possibility at all and percussion would not reveal that defect under any circumstances, if defect there were. It could not be detected by any means while on the wheel. I should say that the tire would be from six to nine months turned since last turning. I should call that of the first quality of steel. The tires are about from 2½ to 2¾ inches thick, the one produced is 1⅝ inches thick at the thinnest point. The crack running the length of the tire would not produce the breaking crosswise. It would be safe to run a tire of 1¼ inches thick of soft steel and an eighth inch thicker of hard steel. The reason the tires are put on so thick is that they can be turned down. Could not say whether the steel produced is hard or soft. The inquest was adjourned till 10.30 Friday morning.

A BIG BILL FOR THE TRUNK.

The Damage and Damages Will Run Many Thousands.

ST. GEORGE, Feb. 28.—Some of the leading local officials of the Grand Trunk were here during the day. Of course they would not give any opinion as to the amount of the damages, but it is the general belief that they will be heavy. The damage to rolling stock consists of the destruction of a dining car, a Pullman, a first-class coach, some injury to a smoker and a bad shaking up to the engine. The damage to the bridge is not very great. The whole structure is all right with the exception of one span and this can be easily repaired.

The damage to rolling stock is heavy, but it will probably not equal the amount to be paid in damages. There are ten people killed, one at London, Angels, the brakeman, likely to die, and there are twenty-eight wounded.

It is not likely that less than $100,000 will cover the whole bill.

Too Accommodating.

NEWS FROM THE OLD WORLD.

English Impressions as to the Fisheries—A New Wimbledon Secured.

LONDON, March 1.—An impression seems to be abroad that the British and Canadian authorities are comparing notes with a view to a probable desire on the part of President Harrison's Cabinet to resume negotiations on the fisheries dispute. Mr. Chamberlain on Wednesday had a long interview in the Colonial Office with Lord Knutsford. The Standard states that Sir Charles Tupper was hurriedly recalled to Canada in order to be present to personally negotiate a new treaty promptly after Mr. Harrison assumes the Presidency. Sir Charles declared, however, before leaving that his visit to Canada had no political importance.

Much satisfaction is expressed at the National Rifle Association's choice of Brookwood, Surrey, for the new Wimbledon. Brookwood is 28 miles from London, and combines the many advantages which the Canadians found at Wimbledon. This summer's meeting will be held at Wimbledon.

The cables respecting the Canadian Pacific Bill before the Dominion Parliament aroused many wild assertions, and caused shares to fall sharply.

The Standard doubts whether the company can raise more money here without an enquiry into its affairs. The Times rather discredits the rumors that the company intends to borrow money in order to build fresh extensions. The Financial News says the bill is decidedly disquieting. The Chronicle, however, asserts that the fall in shares is due to a misunderstanding of the company's intended operation, which is purely an economical one to replace the existing 5 per cent. securities as they expire by 4 per cent. debenture stock.

CONFIDENCE IN WEBSTER.

Mr. Healy Will Move in the Imperial House that it Has Been Forfeited.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Healy asked whether attention had been called to the fact that as far back as November Attorney-General Webster had received a statement from Pigott to the effect that he could not bear a cross-examination before the commission. [Parnellite cheers.] Having regard for this, he asked, did the Government retain confidence in Attorney-General Webster?

Mr. Smith asked that due notice of the question be given if Mr. Healy's reference was to Sir Richard Webster's discharge of his duties as Attorney-General.

Mr. Healy gave notice of a motion that in the opinion of the House the Attorney-General had forfeited confidence. [Laughter and cheers.]

Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, resuming the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, charged the Irish Executive with increasing the rigors of repression in Ireland during the recess.

Mr. Chamberlain appealed to the Opposition to place the discussion on a broad and sound basis by informing the House fully what was its scheme to content Ireland and bring about a union of hearts and interests. [Cheers.]

As a result two cablegrams from Irish and French-Canadian legislators were to-day sent. That from the Irish members read:

The undersigned members of the Canadian Parliament of Irish nationality send you hearty congratulations on the exposure of the plot by which The Times sought to connect you and the Irish cause of which you are the representative with the crimes to which the forged letters had reference.

TORONTO, March 1.—The estimates for public institutions were up in the Local House yesterday afternoon and quite a breeze was raised by a comparison which the Provincial Treasurer instituted between the expenditure on public institutions of the United States and those of Ontario, when Opposition members were subjecting the figures to criticism. The House in committee passed Mr. Fraser's bill to amend the Ontario Shops' Regulations Act.

Rev. Dr. Stone, chairman of the Toronto West District Methodist Church, has received the report and findings of the Committee of Investigation in the case of Rev. T. W. Jeffery. Most of the charges are reported not to have been sustained, but the committee consider that some remarks made by Mr. Jeffery from the pulpit were highly improper. The charges of taking liquor were not sustained. The committee recommend that the chairman of the district seriously admonish Mr. Jeffery for the remarks referred to. In accordance with the resolution of the official meeting of the Queen-street Methodist Church adopted on Friday night, Mr. Jeffery will be engaged as a supply for that church for the balance of this conference year.

A Peculiar Collision.

BRAMPTON, Feb. 28.—Last night as a G.T.R. freight train was crossing the C.P.R. track a freight train of the latter road crashed into it, cutting its way through, never stopping, not a wheel of the C.P.R. train leaving the track. The engineer and fireman jumped and saved their lives. A brakeman ran forward, setting the brakes and reaching the engine brought the train to a stand after running 2½ miles past the scene of the accident. No one was hurt, but a great deal of damage to property of the G.T.R. was done. A car of coaline and one of sugar were literally smashed into matchwood.

CREATING AN OFFICE.

Mr. Mowat and his colleagues always have an eye towards opportunities for creating new offices or otherwise increasing their patronage. Patronage with them means power, and in the appointment of officers as in the administration of laws they are careful not to do anything that would be "injurious to the Mowat Government," but to strengthen their position even at the expense of the people.

A case in point is the creation of an office for a second registrar in the city of Toronto. The city had not asked for the the change, and no demand from the public was made upon the Government for it. But a place is wanted for a friend of the party and the new office must be created. This is in keeping with the action of this same Government in dividing the Sheriealty of York. In that case a new office was made and was filled by the appointment of Mr. Mowat's son, and some other favored one will fall into the new position.

The new office, however, will not only result in finding a place for a good supporter of Mr. Mowat. It will take from the city a portion of the revenue of the registry office, and thus while Mr. Mowat befriends a partisan he will do so at the expense of the people. The Ontario Government seems to feel itself above the people and to hold the opinion that it exists solely for the benefit of its members and party friends. Although the sum it received from the Dominion has been increased, and although it annually disposes of the property of the Province, its extravagant habits and the number of those pressing for recognition of party services seems to be such that new offices to be supported by the people have to be created.

ANOTHER ADDITION.

There is a feeling in Ontario that the number of members in the Ontario Legislature is quite large enough and that the expense connected with that body and Government is larger than is necessary in the interest of the people. Yet the Government proposes to add another to the number of members, as it has added to the number of ministers. There was no objection to a Department of Agriculture being established, but that could have been done without imposing an additional burden upon the people. A re-arrangement of the portfolios held by the lawyers in the Cabinet would have made room for one representative of the farming community without increasing the expense. So with the representation of Nipissing. The people of that district are unrepresented and it is not probable that objection would be raised to giving them representation in the Legislature. But it is not necessary in order to do that to increase the number of members? Toronto has three members—or rather Toronto elects two members and one is named by the Liberals and is by a legal enactment said to represent that constituency. But this member represents a majority in no constituency and by the unjust arrangement the true voice of the electors of Toronto is partially nullified. If no other arrangement was feasible, the Government would simply have been doing justice if it abolished this third Toronto Act and gave it to Nipissing. The Government, however, obtains an unfair party advantage by the present arrangement of Toronto's representation, and as party advantage is what they keep in view no one, we suppose, should be surprised when they refuse to do Toronto justice and add to the expense of the legislation.

THE SECOND IN HISTORY.

A TIE ON A DIVISION IN THE DOMINION HOUSE.

Mr. Brown's Anti-Cruelty to Animals Act Escapes the Six Months' Hoist by the Speaker's Casting Vote.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—There was a tie vote in the House this afternoon, the second in the history of the Dominion Parliament. Mr. Adam Brown's anti-cruelty to animals bill was the subject matter on which the division took place. There had been two previous votes on the bill, one in its favor and one against, and each time the majority was but one.

Yesterday the Committee of the Whole rose without reporting anything about the bill. This afternoon Mr. Brown moved to "re-committee" the bill, naming next Monday as the day. Col. Tisdale, who champions the opponents of the measure, at once moved that the bill be considered in committee of the whole six months from now. No one seemed to want to talk any more on the bill and the division bells were at once rung.

The vote was taken first on Col. Tisdale's amendment for a six months' hoist and after the Clerk counted and recounted the vote he declared it a tie, 91 to 91. This is a very heavy vote in a House of 215. There were no "pairs," this is another unusual occurrence. The vote was entirely devoid of politics, the parties being split up in all shapes. Nearly all the French members but Mr. Boisvert (Con.) and Mr. Laurier voted against Col. Tisdale. Sir Hector and Sir Adolphe voted for the amendment. The vote at best is merely a complimentary one and when the bill gets into committee again it is altogether likely that it will be slaughtered.

There was great clapping of hands and stamping when the vote was announced. The Speaker voted against the amendment, as he explained, "for the purpose of keeping the bill before the House."

Then the yeas and nays were called on the main motion to refer it to the Committee of the Whole on Monday next, and this was carried by 96 to 92.

The only other tie vote in the House of Commons since Confederation was on May 6, 1870, on the third reading of an interest bill. An amendment had been moved for a three months' hoist and the House divided, 56 to 56. Hon. James Cockburn was Speaker, and he voted for the amendment. At that time the House had 181 members. There are now 215.

The Postmaster-General to-day introduced his amendments to the Postal Act, and the bill was read a first time. The bill makes several important changes and amendments in the postal law, the principal ones being:

All steamboats plying on the inland waters of Canada will be compelled to carry Her Majesty's mails, on terms to be stipulated by the Postmaster-General, at so much per pound or ton. Subsidies will be abolished to inland steamboats, and they will be dealt with similarly to railways which carry mails. The stealing of decoy letters will be treated as a felony, just the same as stealing an ordinary letter.

Stringent regulations are to be adopted concerning the transmission of obscene and immoral literature and photographs through the mails.

The rate for carrying registered letters is to be increased, but the amount of the increase is not stated. The Postmaster-General said it was intended to make the registration fee equal to the American and English rate, which is 10 cents besides the usual stamp. He also said that greater security was to be given to the transmission of valuable letters, and the desire was to induce the public to take the fullest advantage of this additional security. Incidentally this clause was severely criticised by the Opposition.

The weight of letters to be carried for 3 cents is increased from ½ ounce to 1 ounce.

The most radical change made is the increase of drop letters from 1 cent to 2 cents. Mr. Haggart said this also applied to post offices where there was no free delivery. Letters posted in Toronto for delivery in that city will pay 2c. instead of 1c. This clause will meet with a lively opposition on both sides it is expected.

No other papers or journals but dailies or weeklies will be transmitted free to subscribers. All other periodicals, semi-monthlies, monthlies, etc., will pay 1c. per pound.

The Postmaster-General is empowered to make arrangements with foreign countries as to a parcel post. A better definition is to be given as to dead letters. Insufficiently stamped letters will be forwarded to their destination and a double penalty will be imposed on their delivery. For instance, a letter which only has a 2 cent stamp will pay 6 cents at the office of delivery. Better regulations are made of offices where a customs branch is attached.

No mention is made of a reduced postage on ordinary letters to 2 cents, but it is believed that will be the next reform.

The amendments proposed above were finally adopted at a meeting of Council to-day. The bill will no doubt encounter a heavy opposition on its second reading.

The Pacific Defences.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—In the Senate this afternoon Mr. Macdonald of British Columbia asked the Government for information concerning the defences of the province, and whether the Imperial or Dominion Governments intended to commence the erection of batteries at Esquimalt. Senator Macdonald said he hoped he would not be considered an alarmist in asking the question, but in view of current events in Europe it was well to consider these matters. The necessities for some means of defence on our Pacific coasts had been fully acknowledged by both the Imperial and Dominion Governments.

Mr. Abbott, the Government Leader, said that a large number of Imperial dispatches and orders-in-council in relation to these defences had been received by the Militia Department and the correspondence was still proceeding. These despatches were in the main of a confidential nature. It had not yet been decided definitely whether the erection of batteries near Esquimalt will be proceeded with this year. Negotiations between the Imperial and Dominion Governments respecting the preparation of armaments were also of a confidential nature, but they were proceeding satisfactorily.

Mr. McInnes of British Columbia drew attention to other points on the Pacific Coast that should not be overlooked if fortifications were to be established. He mentioned the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway in particular, which, of all places in the Province, ought to be protected. Nanaimo, the great coaling station, should not be overlooked either.

Supposed to Be in Canada.

New York, Feb. 28.—Artie B. Cleveland, president and organizer of the A. B. Cleveland Company (limited), wholesale dealers in seeds at No. 47 Cortlandt-street, with branches at Cape Vincent, N. Y., Picton, Ont., and London, Eng., has been missing three weeks. The matter has been kept quiet. He went away ostensibly on business, it is said, and is believed to be either in Canada or England. It is reported that Cleveland appropriated to his own use money and notes of the company, having obtained on notes discounted at various banks about $26,000. It is also reported that he discounted some of the company's receivables. As near as can be ascertained he collected about $40,000 of the company's money. Officers of the company deny, however, that the amount is anywhere near so large. Cleveland is also said to have obtained loans from friends of sums varying from $5000 to $60,000. The total that he secured is placed as high as $150,000. Speculations in stocks which were attended with heavy losses are said to have caused Cleveland's trouble. He is said to have hypothecated his shares in the company. The company is said to be but slightly affected by Cleveland's acts.

No Occasion for Thanks.

On one occasion when Tom Ochiltree returned home from congress there was very little travel upon the railroad, and he was the only person of consequence on the train. When it stopped at his town there was an unusual crowd around the depot, and, naturally enough, he thought it had assembled to welcome him. So he stepped out on the platform and began:

"Gentlemen, I thank you for this hearty demonstration"——

"Demonstration! thunder," said one of the crowd. "John Dills has just committed suicide in the depot."—Washington Critic.

Saccharin as a Food Substance.

The extensive use of saccharin in certain food substances in Paris—in champagne, for instance—has caused the counsel of hygiene to institute a series of inquiries into its effects upon the animal economy. The commission, which has recently reported, was unanimous in considering saccharin a medicament rather than an aliment or food proper; and they thought the employment of the substance in alimentation should be prohibited. The commission intimated, however, that they considered it might advantageously be used as a substitute for sugar in certain diabetic conditions of the human body.—Herald of Health.

A Chicken with Four Wings.

C. C. Brown, of Duluth, Minn., unearthed a genuine freak in the shape of a mammoth cochin rooster, which has four distinct wings, two in their natural places and one at the knee joint of each leg. The bird weighs about sixteen pounds, is alive and well, and uses all four wings when flying. An offer of $230, made by a Chicago party, was refused, and the bird will be exhibited throughout the country.—Chicago Herald.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND
QUEENS WA

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of old Sevres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

An entertainment will be held in the Town Hall, Keene, on Wednesday evening, March 13th, under the auspices of Keene Lodge, I. O. G. T. The programme will consist of songs, choruses, readings, recitations, dialogues, tableaux, etc., and a good time is expected.

Will be at the Central Exhibition.

Mr. Jos. Daly is bound to be to the fore in equine stock. His latest move is to have his ten-month-old Phil Ryedyk colt broke to harness and driven single. He was halter broke when eight days old, and responded to the line like a veteran. The youngster is quite handy and we may look forward to a sensational yearling "record" at the Central fair this fall if the enterprising directors will offer anything like an inducement to start him.—Lindsay Post.

Lent in St. John's Church.

Important addresses are to be delivered in St. John's Church on every Wednesday evening through Lent by distinguished preachers from Toronto and elsewhere, including Rev. Canon Du Moulin, of St. James, Rev. P. J. Lewis, of Grace Church Toronto; Rev. Prof. Roper, Rev. R. J. Moore, of St. George's, Toronto, and others. Next Wednesday (Ash-Wednesday), Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook, will begin the series by an address on "St. Paul as an Example of Christian Consecration."

Coming to Peterborough.

Mr. John Hore, long general agent for Lindsay and Victoria county for the Singer Sewing Machine Co., says the Warder, has been promoted to the superintendency of the company's business in Victoria, Durham, Northumberland and Peterborough, with headquarters in Peterborough town. This promotion is deserved, for no better or more painstaking officer than Mr. Hore could be found. Mr. and Mrs. Hore remove at an early date to Peterborough to reside. Their departure is much regretted, for aside from Mr. Hore's business popularity, Mr. and Mrs. Hore are deservedly well liked in private life, as well as in church and social relations. Peterborough gains a worthy citizen; but Lindsay will now and again be favored with a visit from Mr. Hore. He will at an early date appoint a local agent for this district, and will push the business with as great vigor as ever.

Success Attends the W. C. T. U.

Between seventy and eighty ladies and gentlemen attended the social given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the spacious parlors of Mr. G. J. Early last evening. A good programme was rendered, games and other amusements were indulged in, a social spirit pervaded the gathering and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Early in their efforts to make the entertainment a success were untiring, and they have the satisfaction of knowing that last evening's social was the most successful that has been held this season under the W. C. T. U's. auspices. Rev. A. C. Wilson, of Mark-st. Church, Ashburnham, occupied the chair and opened the programme with a short and appropriate address, and then called on Mr. Fuller, who delighted the gathering with his music on the mouth organ. Miss Henderson next gave a good reading and was followed by an instrumental duet (violin and organ) by Misses. Shalopki and Moyne which was well executed and greatly appreciated. Miss Lonsley contributed a fine recitation and Mr. Fuller gave another mouth organ solo. Rev. M. L. Pearson then made a brief but happy address and was followed by Miss Turner with a vocal solo. Refreshments were then served, the young gentlemen doing the honors as waiters under the directorship of Messrs. H. Wyatt and Doxie. After refreshments Miss German gave a fine recitation, Misses. Shalopki and Moyne delighted the gathering with another instrumental duet, Mr. Turner recited and Miss Lumsden gave an instrumental solo. "God Save the Queen" closed the entertainment, the proceeds of which netted a very handsome sum to the W. C. T. U. treasury.

Got to move along, therefore the price is no object. Good Groceries within the reach of all, at M. R. KIDD's. d32tf

AN ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

The Students of the Business College Welcome Mr. J. J. Rooney.

The Literary Society of the Peterborough Business College held their weekly entertainment on Wednesday evening. The following programme was rendered on the occasion:—

Chorus	Glee Club
Reading	Mr. Baptist
Duet	Misses Salisbury and Davidson
Reading	Mr. Hogg
Reading	Mr. Dinsdale

THE ADDRESS.

During the entertainment Mr. J. K. Hunter read an address of welcome to Mr. Rooney, who has entered as partner into the college and has assumed charge of one of the departments:—

To J. J. Rooney, Esq:

DEAR SIR,—We, the teachers and students of the Peterborough Business College, desire to welcome you, as one of the instructors in this institution, and although we do so thus formally, our welcome is none the less sincere.

Some of us have had the pleasure of your acquaintance, and we have all heard of your great success and ability as an instructor.

We believe the success of this college which has been so remarkable under the management of our genial and able principal, Mr. Geo. S. Bean, will be materially increased by your services.

The success of this college means our gain as pupils, and we, therefore, learned with pleasure that you would take charge of an important department, and we have great pleasure in unitedly welcoming you to this college.

Signed on behalf of the college,
Jas. K. Hunter, M. M. Moffat,
J. C. Anderson, Fannie Salisbury,
Dean Udey, Mary Scott.
Peterborough, Feb. 27th, 1889.

THE REPLY.

MR. ROONEY made an appropriate reply in which he said that not expecting any such expression of their kind wishes for him, he could not find words adequately to express his sincere thanks for the very flattering address with which the students were pleased to present him. He trusted the success which had attended his labors in the past would be continued in the sphere of life upon which he had entered. He was aware the Peterborough Business College had always been a success, and particularly so since the advent of Mr. Bean's management, and he hoped, now that the staff had been increased, even greater success would be achieved. He said it was often stated that business colleges are practically very little use. To this Mr. Rooney said that if he had had reason to believe this he would never have entered one. But in every other sphere of life special preparation was necessary. The professional man had to undergo a long course of training, the mechanic had had to serve a term of apprenticeship, and why the business man did not require some special preparation, he could not see. The Business College was the only school which made a specialty of this kind of work, and he believed it was now thought by all enlightened people that the Business College was a necessity.

The prime aim of the present Principal of the Peterborough Business College had always been to give the students the most thorough training possible, and allow no one to leave the college without a thorough mastery of all the work. He said he would heartily second his partner in his efforts. In conclusion, he said, the Peterborough Business College had a grand work to accomplish and it was the determination of the present proprietors to make it second to no other in the Dominion.

Licensed Business.

All parties who carry on business for which they require a license should make their appearance at the town buildings and pay their licenses, as now is the proper time.

Forrestry.

A full attendance of the members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. F., is requested at the regular meeting this (Friday) evening. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of Court Little John and visiting brethren. 1d57

The Paddlers' Debate.

The Otonabee Canoe Club meets to-night, when the subject for debate will be, "Resolved, that the Dominion Government should be censured for not disallowing the Jesuits' Estate Bill." It is expected that the discussion will be interesting and spirited and all members should be present.

Convinced.

The tea drinkers who have been buying our teas lately are now convinced that better value is not to be had and are showing their appreciation by buying in larger quantities, caddies, half chests, and chests. The quality at 25c. per lb. is still the favorite. This week we are receiving another large lot, together with a fresh supply of groceries, etc. All will be sold cheap for cash at R. H. Green's grocery, corner of Hunter and Aylmer-sts. The cheap sale of apples and potatoes at 50c. per bag is still going on. All goods delivered free of charge.

Pieces from Popular Poets.

An interesting meeting of the Collegiate Institute Literary Society was held in the Institute building on Thursday afternoon. The programme consisted of readings and short quotations from popular poets, principally Shakespeare, Scott and Tennyson. The first reading was by Miss L. Yokome, and the next by C. Collins. Then followed the quotations from poets, sixteen pupils each giving an extract as called upon. This was followed by a reading by Miss L. G. Davidson. The critic of the proceedings was Mr. J. H. Long, the Principal.

Crossley and Hunter.

The members of the committee are requested to meet in the Y.M.C.A. rooms on Saturday evening at 8.30 p.m. All the ministers of the churches who unite in the services with two laymen from their congregation to form the committee. Mr. Crossley wishes to meet the members of the choir who are willing to help in the singing during the meetings on Saturday night in the George st. church at 8.30 o'clock. The choir will receive tickets on Saturday evening which will entitle them to a place in the choir and entrance by a private door.

For one Month.

We must all live, or rather while we live we must eat and drink. Consequently there is always a demand for groceries. This demand will be filled by the enterprising dealers who are alive to the wants of the public and who undertake to satisfy their needs. Elliott & Tierney, grocers, take stock on first of April. The stock is large and contains a splendid assortment. For the next month a large reduction will be made in prices to clear off as far as possible before taking stock. Housekeepers should refer to the advertisement of the firm and learn that there is a great advantage in buying at once. Of the quality nothing need be said. That is guaranteed, and a guarantee from Elliott & Tierney is invariably satisfactory.

Why People Wonder.

How is it W. J. Morrow sells his Teas and all other lines so cheap—well, he buys in large quantities owing to his extensive trade turns over his goods quickly as he is not so anxious for large profits as other houses are and does the largest trade of any Grocery House in town. Something new, our 5 lb. Japan for $1.00. See our ad. in another column.

Lost a Foot.

A man by the name of Hanyside, of Port Hope, who was foreman in the car works in that town, met with an accident on the No. 4 express at Berkley-st. crossing in Toronto this morning. He attempted to jump from the train at this crossing and slipped and fell and the train passed over his foot.

Starting Business for Himself.

Mr. John Fanning who was for several years employed as clerk in the dry goods house of Mr. Thos. Kelly, has launched out in business for himself in the town of Port Hope. Mr. Fanning has a host of friends in Peterborough who will wish him every success in his business venture.

Supper and Ball.

A social ball and supper will be given by the 'Prentice Boys, Lodge No. 7, on the evening of Tuesday, March 19th. Prof. Sherwood's orchestra will furnish the music and everything that will tend to make the event enjoyable will be done. Tickets have been placed at one dollar a couple. 1d57

Meant Well, but Went Wrong.

A young man who had the best of intentions of going to Lakefield last evening on "special business" but who, unfortunately for himself, is not well acquainted with the rural districts, got a little astray en route to our prospering suburb. He asked a friend the best road to Lakefield and was advised to take the river road, but instead of taking the advice tendered, the young man when he crossed at Nassau, instead of following the river road took the one leading almost due east and, after driving until he thought Lakefield should have appeared long ago, he got out and waking up a farmer enquired how near he was to Lakefield. The yeoman, with a smile on his face, remarked that he did not know how near he was to Lakefield, but he was only about two miles from Warsaw. Lakefield was not reached nor the "special business" transacted.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS.

A Review of Methodist Church Work in Blairton Circuit.

CHURCH WORK.—Rev. W. B. Seccombe writes to the Christian Guardian:—This mission comprises eight preaching places. Years ago, when the iron mines were in full operation, Blairton was a flourishing little town, with several hundred inhabitants. But as soon as these mines ceased to be operated the people found themselves without employment, and were compelled to go elsewhere. To-day it is almost depopulated. During its balmy days a neat and commodious parsonage was erected, which, until the last four months, has been the home of the minister appointed to the mission. Since the last Conference it became evident that we should leave the old parsonage and remove eight miles west, to Havelock, a little town with about six hundred inhabitants, a place that is growing rapidly, being a divisional point on the C.P.R. Here we find ourselves in the midst of a kind-hearted and energetic people. On the 30th ult. we were favored with a visit from Dr. Burwash, in the intrest of University Federation. Our church was crowded, and the congregation listened with rapt attention to the earnest and eloquent words of the learned Chancellor. At the close of the address a collection was taken up in behalf of the Educational Society, and $120 in subscriptions for Federation, which is $20 more than was appointed to the Mission. At present we are in the midst of a very blessed revival of religion. Special services have been conducted for the past four weeks, with very encouraging results. Already about sixty, including several children from the Sabbath school, have given themselves to God. To God be all the praise. Our colleague, Bro. Osterhout, has rendered very efficient service during these meetings. He is a young man of sterling qualities, fully consecrated to the work of the ministry, and a general favorite with our people. Our Sabbath school, under the able management of W. H. Johnston, the superintendent, is in a very flourishing condition. Altogether we have great reason to thank God and take courage.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

FROM HASTINGS.

The Norwood High School District—A Child Nearly Choked.

HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT.—At a meeting held at the Town Hall, Westwood, on Feb. 18th, it was moved by Mr. F. Birdsall, and seconded by Mr. Robert Harrison, that this meeting recommend that the County Council grant an annual sum to the Norwood High School, but that it is decidedly opposed to the Township of Asphodel being made part of the Norwood High School district. The motion was carried by a vote of 47 for, to 37 against, quite a number not voting at all. The meeting was largely attended and quite an interest was manifested in the proceedings.

SWALLOWED A CENT.—Last Sunday morning a three year old child of Mr. Miller, a section man at Birdsall station, picked up a cent and placed it in its mouth. The coin slipped down and lodged below the palate. Every effort was made by the affrighted parents to relieve the child, and after hours of labor and anxiety they managed to force the copper still further down, but about midway in the gullet it resisted further attempts, and Dr. Coughlin was sent for, but before he arrived it had passed down into the stomach.—Star.

REVIEWS.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The March St. Nicholas contains the beginning of a story by Joel Chandler Harris, called Daddy Jake, the Runaway, which tells of child-life in the South in slavery times, and Kemble's pictures make it exceedingly life-like. The frontispiece of the number is a dainty maiden in ebony satin,—Under the Mistletoe,—an original engraving of remarkable beauty by Frank French. There is a fairy tale called The Sun's Sisters, a Lappish story freely rendered by Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, with strong humorous illustrations by O. Herford. A very timely and novel article by Mrs. Burton Harrison recalls the reputation of Washington as an Athlete, a character in which he should certainly be popular with the rising generation, and an article by W. Lewis Fraser, devoted to the Storm-bound Sparrows, which suffered so severely in the New York blizzard just about a year ago. Another cold weather story tells of life near Hudson's Bay,—When the Brigade came in. It is written by Sarah J. Prichard. Julian Ralph notes what did not happen when He Wrote to the Rats, in which W. H. Drake's pictures render valuable assistance. Sailor Boy Dromios shows how an English and an American boy exchanged identities, enabling the American lad to assist in the bombardment of Alexandria. Toboggan parties cannot fail to be abashed by W. H. Gilder's sketch of sliding down a mountain in Siberia, entitled Downhill with a Vengeance; it is illustrated with spirited drawings by Henry Sandham. Of continued articles, there are Mrs. Catherwood's Bells of Ste. Anne, Edmund Alton's Routine of the Republic, this installment being devoted to the social formalities of the White House, the Bunny Stories, and the Brownies, who build a snow man. Altogether, it is a number of great variety, value and interest.

The Old Arm Chair.

He (making a call)—That is a very beautiful chair you are sitting in, Miss Hautton.

An Innocent Joke.

Charles Theodore Russell was examining a witness in a Cambridge court. The question was about the size of certain hoof prints left by a horse in sandy soil.

"How large were the prints?" asked the learned counsel. "Were they as large as my hand?" holding up his hand for the witness to see.

"Oh, no," said the witness honestly. "It was just an ordinary hoof."

"THE COURT SHIRT."

This shirt is manufactured in London, England, and is not surpassed by any other in the world. No American shirts equal those of this line in shapeliness, fit or liberality of material; and they possess peculiar points of construction at shoulders and neck which render them of unequalled ease to the wearer. Every particular of finish and construction—stitching, stays, buttons—is of the best, and the garments are confidently offered as SUPERIOR to the best shown in the Canadian or American markets.

We have also the newest collar called "THE TOP ROYAL," and other novelties in furnishings of which—more later on.

FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

Then there had been an unfortunate affair with one, D'Arcy was his name, if I mistake not, who did not happen to mention, when his regiment marched into Blankhampton, that his little wife had gone abroad for the winter. Of course it was very pleasant for a man deprived of his wife for the time to be philandering after one of the prettiest girls in the town; but it was a little unfortunate that Mrs. Antrobus announced the engagement in a semi-official manner, when there was all the time that insurmountable obstacle in the background.

And then there was Lord Charterhouse—the "Mr. Winks" of the Black Horse—who had gone for Polly, too—gone, ay, that was it; indeed, one over head and ears, gone and beyond all sense and honor, and yet he had taken himself away from Blankhampton without a word of warning, and had married his cousin, Lady Nell Temple, after all.

Assuredly the love affairs of the delightful Polly had not so far been taken at that flood which leads to matrimonial fame and fortune, and from one cause or another the good people of Blankhampton took a sort of proprietary interest therein: they wanted to see the end of Polly.

Was this indeed to be the end of all her dreams and hopes and wishes? Was this to be the end of her great expectations?

It was hard, very hard. Three times she had deemed herself within an ace of being "my lady" for the rest of her life; three times had gay and gallant men of noble birth laid themselves down at her feet and—apparently—worshiped her. And this was to be the end!

She had borne with dignity and a certain suspicion of contempt the airs of her younger sister, To-To, who had married a well to do but briefless barrister of humble origin some time before, and she had made up her mind that when she should be Lady Charterhouse To-To's husband, Mr. Herrick Brentham, should have but little intercourse with her or hers. But, alas, alas! Lord Charterhouse had failed her, and had effectually cut off forever Mr. Herrick Brentham's chance of being on his visiting list—for the Lady Charterhouse of today would as soon have thought of asking her husband's troopers to dinner as of asking him.

There had been a certain awkwardness in the minds of both Lord Charterhouse and the Antrobus family as to the best course to pursue when the noble bride and groom returned from their honeymoon to take up their quarters at the Golden Swan. More than once "Mr. Winks" had hinted to his wife that he was sick and tired of the service, and would be best pleased if he turned his back upon it. More than once he really thought he should send in his papers.

But Lady Charterhouse was the same breezy, strong willed girl that she had been as Lady Nell Temple, and but little heed did she give to her lord and master's hints and deprecating efforts to get out of going back to Blankhampton. She had always had a strong fancy for trying what life in the service was like, and she had no idea of being, as she put it, "completely done out of it because Charterhouse chooses to have a fit of laziness."

It was very awkward for "Mr. Winks." He knew that he had behaved shamefully bad to Polly from first to last. He told himself—now that he was safely married to some one else—that fond as he was of Nell, and convenient as his marriage had been for family reasons, Polly was the one woman in the world who would have suited him personally down to the ground. He told himself that he had been a scoundrel, for he had made Polly fond of him, and so—from some sense of shame, or some feeling of delicacy—he never said a single word about her to his wife; but when he found that his feeble efforts to get out of the difficulty of meeting her by leaving the service had proved unavailing, he went back to Blankhampton and let matters take their own course.

On the other hand, Mrs. Antrobus simply did not know what to do. She never for one moment suspected that Lord Charterhouse had scrupulously avoided mentioning the name of Antrobus to his wife, and she felt that it was incumbent upon her to call upon Lady Charterhouse as soon as possible after her arrival in Blankhampton; but unfortunately Polly, with that desperate courage which even a sheep will show on certain occasions, absolutely and without any circumlocution whatever refused to go with her.

"But, Polly, we have been so intimate," she expostulated; "and what will it look like? What will people think?"

"I don't care what people think, mother," Polly replied; "it can be nobody's business but ours whether we choose to go or not. Any way, I am not going."

"But, Polly, dear"—— Mrs. Antrobus began, when Polly interrupted:

"I will not go, mother. Pray say no more about it."

"But it will look so odd," Mrs. Antrobus persisted. "We were so intimate."

"Well, mother, I don't wish to prevent you and my father from calling on Lady Charterhouse if you wish; only don't ask me to go. I could not do it. It would be most painful to me."

"You shouldn't have refused him then, my dear," remarked Mrs. Antrobus, airily, for with her it was a constant habit always to make the best of things, always to wear a mask if she wore one at all; and in this instance, as in many another, she spoke of Lord Charterhouse to Polly just as she insinuated certain things concerning him to the world.

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. McCausland & Son, Toronto, supply by far the largest quantity in Canada.

BANISHED TO SIBERIA.

TERRIBLE SUFFERINGS ENDURED BY A PAIR OF EXILES.

Two of the most interesting politicals whom we met in Irkutsk were Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cherniavski, who were banished to Siberia by administrative process in 1878. I became very well acquainted with them, and for Mrs. Cherniavski especially I came to feel the profoundest pity and regard.

Few women, even in Russia, have had before the age of 35 so tragic and heart breaking a life, and still fewer have maintained through hardships, sickness and bereavement such cheerfulness and courage.

She was arrested in Odessa in the early part of 1878, at the age of about 26, and after a long term of imprisonment was sent by administrative process to the province of Tobolsk.

I need not recount the hardships and miseries that she, a cultivated and refined woman, endured on the road and in the roadside etapes between Kiev and the small town in the Siberian province of Tobolsk, where she and her husband had been assigned a residence.

BABY DEAD IN HER ARMS.

They reached their destination at last; a child was there born to them and they lived there in something like comfort until March, 1881, when Alexander III came to the throne and Mr. Cherniavski was required to take the oath of allegiance.

He refused to do so and they were sent farther eastward to the town of Krasnoyarsk. A second refusal to take the oath of allegiance resulted in their being sent to Irkutsk.

By this time winter had set in, and they were traveling in an open tarantas with a delicate baby 13 months of age. It was with the greatest difficulty that Mrs. Cherniavski could keep her baby warm, and at the last station before reaching Irkutsk she removed the heavy wrappings in which she had enveloped it and found it dead.

With the shock of this discovery she became delirious, and wept, sang pathetic little nursery songs to her dead child, rocked it in her arms and prayed and cursed God by turns.

In the court yard of the Irkutsk forwarding prison, in a temperature of 30 degs. below zero, Mr. Cherniavski stood for half an hour waiting for the party to be formally received, with his wife raving in delirium beside him and his dead child in his arms.

Mrs. Cherniavski lay at the prison hospital at Irkutsk until she recovered her reason, and to some extent her strength, and then she and her husband were sent 2,000 miles farther to the northeastward under guard of gendarmes, and colonized in a Yakut settlement known as the Bataruski coloos, situated in the "taiga" or primeval wilderness of Yakutsk, 165 miles from the nearest town.

There, suffering almost every conceivable hardship and privation, they lived until 1884, when the minister of the interior allowed them to return to a more civilized part of Siberia.

NOT ALLOWED A PICTURE.

Mrs. Cherniavski, when I made her acquaintance, was a pale, delicate, hollow-cheeked woman, whose health had been completely wrecked by years of imprisonment, banishment and grief.

She had had two children, and had lost them both in exile under circumstances that made the bereavement almost intolerable; for seven years she had been separated by a distance of many thousand miles from all of her kindred; and the future seemed to hold for her absolutely nothing except the love of the husband whose exile she could still share, but whose interests she could do so little in her broken state of health to promote.

She had not been able to step outside the house for two months, and it seemed to me when I bade her good-by, that her life of unhappiness and suffering was drawing to a close.

"I felt profoundly sorry for her—while listening to her story my face was wet with tears, almost for the first time since boyhood—and hoping to give her some pleasure and to show her how sincerely I esteemed her and how deeply I sympathized with her, I offered her my photograph, as the only memento I could leave with her.

To my great surprise she sadly but firmly firmly declined it, and said: "Many years ago I had a photograph of a little child that I had lost. It was the only one in existence, and I could not get another.

"The police made a search one night in my house and took away all my letters and photographs. I told them that this particular picture was the only portrait I had of my dead boy.

"The gendarme officer who conducted the search promised me upon his word of honor that it should be returned to me, but I never saw it again. I made a vow then that it should not be possible for the Russian government to hurt me so a second time, and from that day to this I have never had a photograph in my possession."

I do not know whether Mrs. Cherniavski is now living or dead; but if she be still living I trust that these pages may find their way to her and show her that on the other side of the world she is still remembered with affectionate sympathy.—George Kennan in Century.

Typewriter Speed Explained.

"Typewriter contests," said a pretty operator as she clicked away at her machine "are deceptive as to the speed achieved by the operators. You read in the newspapers that 'Mr. McGullum wrote 125 words in one minute.' True, he may have written 125 words in one minute, but they were very short words and words selected with especial reference to the nearness of the letters forming the word on the keyboard of the machine. For instance, I can write 100 'the's' on the machine in a minute, but do not say because of that that I can write 100 words a minute. As a matter of fact, the highest speed on a typewriter is seventy-five words a minute. By that, I mean to take up and write for some time that many words a minute of matter selected from the newspaper, matter that the operator has never seen before. That is the only true test of a typewriter's speed, and very few operators come up to that standard either."—Cincinnati Gazette.

Catching Truants.

The newest service rendered by monkeys to mankind was recently illustrated in London. In one of the school districts there were a great many parents who reported no children in their families, and in order to ascertain the real number of children in the district the school officers resorted to an ingenious measure. Two monkeys were gayly dressed, put in a wagon, and, accompanied by a brass band, were carried through the streets of the district. At once crowds of children made their appearance. The procession was stopped in a park and the school officers began their work distributing candies to the youngsters and writing down their names and addresses. They found out that over sixty parents kept their children home from school, and the monkeys and brass bands brought about 200 boys and girls to school.—London Paper.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1.00 which needs no apology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

THE LAST OF DICK PIGOTT

HE COMMITS SUICIDE IN A HOTEL AT MADRID.

LONDON, March 1.—In the House of Commons to-night Mr. Gladstone resumed the debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech. He said that there were three main issues raised in the amendment under discussion. The House was called upon entirely to disclaim the present administration of the Irish Government. It was asserted that to the system was due the aversion of the people of Great Britain, and finally the House was asked to adopt measures of conciliation. In conclusion Mr. Gladstone said:

"To continue the state of things under which so many representatives of this House are placed under a ban of proscription is impossible. You may deprive of its grace and freedom the act you are asked to do, but avert it you cannot. [Prolonged cheers.] To prevent the consummation of it is utterly beyond your power. It seems to approach at an accelerated rate but, come slower or quicker, it is surely coming; and many of you who have opposed it must already see in the handwriting on the wall signs of the coming doom." [Cheers.]

Mr. Goschen replied and was followed by Mr. Parnell, who was greeted with enthusiastic cheers, all the members of the Opposition rising and waving their hats.

Mr. Morley's amendment was rejected 339 to 260.

Suicide of Pigott.

MADRID, March 1.—An Englishman, supposed to be Richard Pigott, was arrested at the Hotel des Ambassadeurs to-day under the name of Ronald Ponsonby.

MR. HITT'S RESOLUTIONS.

The United States House of Representatives Favor Commercial Union.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Mr. Hitt's Commercial Union resolutions passed the House this morning unanimously. The resolutions are as follows:

"Be it resolved, That whenever it shall be duly certified to the President of the United States that the Government of the Dominion of Canada has declared a desire to establish Commercial Union with the United States, having a uniform revenue system, like internal taxes to be collected, and like import duties to be imposed, on articles brought into either country from other nations, and no duties upon trade between the United States and Canada, he shall appoint three commissioners to meet those who may be likewise designated to represent the Government of Canada, to prepare a plan for the assimilation of the import duties and internal revenue taxes of the two countries, and an equitable division of receipts, in a Commercial Union, and said commissioners shall report to the President, who shall lay the report before Congress."

FIRES OF A DAY.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., March 1.—Fire was discovered in the Prince Edward Island Hospital about 9.45 this morning. The larger portion of the building was badly damaged by fire and water. There were a large number of patients in the hospital at the time but they were all removed without any apparent injury to private dwellings in the vicinity. The fire started in an attic, it is supposed from a defective flue. There was $2500 insurance on the building and $500 on the furniture, but this will hardly cover the loss.

A Farm House Burnt.

OSHAWA, March 1.—Last evening the farm house of Edward Conlin, 5th concession of East Whitby, was destroyed by fire. Mr. Conlin was away at the time and his wife having no assistance the furniture was also burnt. It is not known whether there was any insurance or not.

The Ottawa Tragedy.

OTTAWA, March 1.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Catherine Kelly, supposed to have been murdered here last Saturday, brought in the following verdict: "The deceased, Catherine Kelly, came to her death on the night of Feb. 22, at Mrs. Cooper's house, 2[illegible] Clarence-street, in this city, from the effects of a wound on her head, but whether this wound on the head of the said Catherine Kelly was caused accidentally or otherwise does not clearly appear to the jurors from the evidence." The three prisoners, Mr. and Mrs. Hendrick and Mrs. Cooper, appeared at the police court this morning to answer to the charge of murder preferred against them in a warrant issued yesterday by Magistrate O'Gara. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

NOVA SCOTIA NEWS.

Killed by Falling Down Stairs—Bursaries and Fellowships.

HALIFAX, March 1.—The customs receipts at Halifax for February were $128,000; increase $30,000.

George Fraser, ex-mayor of Halifax, fell down stairs in his own house at Truro a few nights ago and died from the effects.

It is rumored that the Provincial Government intend introducing a bill by which they will spend $6200 a year in bursaries and fellowships to students in the County Academy. Eight bursaries of $200 each are to be offered each year for four years, and one fellowship of $1,600 each year for three years. The limit is to be 25 bursaries and three fellowships. The bursary winners are to enter any Nova Scotia college or Mount Allison in New Brunswick, and holders of fellowships may study abroad for three years. Last year the Provincial Government reduced the grants to school teachers by about $8000, so that this aid to higher education, if adopted, will be practically at the expense of the poor teachers.

THEY COME NOT SINGLY.

ANOTHER RAILWAY TRAGEDY ON THE GRAND TRUNK.

A Freight Train Crashes into a Passenger Car at Paris—Two Persons Instantly Killed—The St. George Disaster.

PARIS, Ont., March 1.—Paris had not yet recovered from the excitement and horror attendant on the fearful catastrophe at St. George on Wednesday, when the town was again startled by the news of another fatal accident. The mixed train running from Brantford to Stratford was standing at the Paris station when the passenger car at the rear was run into by a freight. Two flat cars attached to the mixed train were driven quite through the passenger coach, which was completely wrecked, one flat car being piled on top of the other.

There were at the time three passengers in the coach—Mrs. Law, a widow lady, and her 10-year-old grand-daughter of Drumbo, and Mr. Inglis of Brantford. Mr Yates, a friend who accompanied Mr. Inglis, got off at the station and was walking up and down the platform, when he saw the freight coming at a high speed. He cried out to those in the coach:

"Jump for your lives!"

Mr. Inglis rushed to the door and got off just in time, but the other two were unable to do so and were crushed in the wreck, death probably being instantaneous.

Mrs. Law was a sister of Mrs. Bell, a Paris baker. She came to town yesterday to attend the induction services of Rev. Mr. Cockburn, pastor-elect of Dumfries-street Presbyterian Church here, whom she had known when a boy. She was on her way home and had been on the car but a few minutes when she met her awful death.

The driver of the freight had never been on this road before. His run is on the main line, but since the St. George accident the main line trains go round by Brantford. There is a heavy grade just east of Paris station and at Brantford the driver was told to put on all power in order to clear the grade with his heavy train. The mixed should have left Paris an hour-and-a-half previous, and the freight driver, supposing the road clear, had on a full head of steam.

When he saw the semaphore up he shut off steam and put on the brakes and as soon as he saw the mixed he reversed his engine, but the speed was so great he could not stop.

Coroner Webster was summoned by telephone from St. George, where he had just closed the inquest on the St. George accident. A coroner's jury was soon empanelled and appointed Mr. John Allan as foreman. The jury viewed the bodies, Dr. Sinclair made the examination and the jury adjourned to meet at 9 a.m. to-morrow.

THE ST. GEORGE DISASTER.

Death of Fireman Angles, the Eleventh Victim—The Latest Particulars.

LONDON, Ont., March 1.—Fireman Henry Angles, who was injured in the late accident to the St. Louis express at St. George, died at his home here at 1.30 this morning. Angles had been in two serious accidents before and escaped. He was firing for Engineer Cox when their engine struck an open bridge at Merritton. He jumped and was saved, while Cox was killed. When the Port Stanley excursion train dashed into an oil train at St. Thomas in July, 1887, and many were burnt and killed, Angles was firing for Engineer Donnelly. Angles escaped by jumping but his mate was killed. In Wednesday's disaster the engineer stuck to his post and escaped injury while Angles again jumped, his head striking an abutment of the bridge in his descent.

The death of Angles swells the death roll to eleven.

The Unknown Victim.

ST. GEORGE, March 1.—The interest and excitement was but little abated to-day. Visitors from the surrounding country and towns have been pouring in all day to witness the scene of the wreck. The railway company have 200 men employed repairing the bridge and it is expected by working all night that trains can pass safely over to-morrow.

No one has yet succeeded in identifying the lady taken from the dining car. Her remains had been sent to Brantford as Miss Moore, then sent to Ingersoll as Miss McLeod, where they now remain. There was nothing in her pockets to identify her, and the conductor has no recollection of her. She was about 30 years of age and had dark hair and rather thin features. Her cloak is at the station.

The Injured Doing Well.

ST. GEORGE, March 1.—The medical staff's report on the victims of the bridge accident is on the whole encouraging in every case, although at this early date it is impossible to forecast results with any degree of certainty. Mr. W. Benedict passed a good night. Dr. Lesueur is somewhat easier. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are doing well. Miss Andrews has slightly improved during the night; her case is very serious. Miss McLeod and Miss Chaffee and Mr. and Mrs. Beddoe are doing nicely. Mr. McLaughlin is somewhat better. Mrs. Jennings and daughter are favorable. Conductor Revell and Mr. Doutney are doing well. George Forbes is doing better; in Mr. Hilton improvement is hardly noticeable. W. J. Hyslop is still in a very bad condition. He is a member of the Bricklayers' Union. Mrs. Sendall is doing favorably. The others are all improving as well as can be expected.

The lady reported as Captain Moore in the list of killed is an error. Captain Moore was here yesterday. The deceased lady had a refined appearance, and was apparently married. She had a wedding ring on her hand. No enquiries have been received, and there is nothing so far to identify her. She was taken from the dining car a few minutes after expiring.

The G. T. R. Company are working unceasingly, and will have the bridge repaired in a short time. All postal, express and passenger traffic are done through the regular bus accommodation to Harrisburg.

He Leaves Three Orphan Children.

PORT HOPE, March 1.—The body of the late Mr. Thos. McLean of Detroit, who was killed at St. George on Wednesday night, was brought here to-day. The funeral takes place to-morrow at 4 p.m. from the residence of Mr. James McLean. The deceased, who lost his wife some time ago, leaves three small children, whom he was on his way to Port Hope to see when he was killed.

THE COMPANY EXONERATED.

The Inquest Finished—A Lot of Expert Evidence—The Broken Tire.

ST. GEORGE, March 1.—The inquest was resumed in the Mechanics' Institute at 10.30 this forenoon before Coroner Webster of Paris. Mr. Nelson was the first witness. He a road-master, has supervision of the work and was over that portion of the road the day prior to the accident. He said:

My beat is from Suspension Bridge to Paris on this line; there is a curve between the west switch and the bridge where the accident occurred; there are several other curves more abrupt than this one; there are [illegible] switches; the curve continues to opposite the depot; never heard of this part of the road being particularly dangerous; the road-bed and track is in first-class repair; I don't regard it as more dangerous than any other part of the system; I examined the switches yesterday morning after the mishap; both were in first-class [illegible] had been damaged by the locomotive; [illegible] towards the bridge; the track had spread [illegible] the west switch [illegible] are all right; [illegible] personal examination of the places [illegible] were spread by the accident about [illegible] east of the bridge; I think [illegible] be off the track when entering [illegible] there is no contrivance to keep [illegible] the track; have seen additional [illegible] but don't think it is any additional protection.

To a juryman—Cannot account for the tire breaking; am not an expert; there are guard timbers on either side of the track.

Mr. Nelson (recalled)—Made examinations last night and this morning from the west switch down to the bridge; there is a correction I want to make in my testimony of yesterday; had the switches measured: the distance from bridge to first switch is [illegible] feet; from first switch to the west switch is 971 feet; the total distance is 1283 feet from the bridge to west switch; as to curves, the east end of the curve is 120 feet east of the east switch; the other end of the curve is 380 feet west of the west switch; the radius of the curves is 11,460, that is to say, 900 feet more than two miles; it is an easy curve. Witness put in a plan of the bridge, switches, etc. Don't know of another curve that is so exceptionally easy as the one at this bridge; don't consider guard rails of use to prevent danger; we don't use them on the bridges; there is only one bridge where we have guard rails; the best precaution that can be used is to keep the track in perfect order and we do so. Witness gave the reasons why guard rails had been abolished. It was not a question of cost; it was safer without them; we have two bridges east of us larger than this; am not a mechanic and cannot express any opinion about the tire breaking.

John Plummer, baggageman, was re-called: He had said that it was a dangerous place; in approaching the west switch have noticed a lurch in the baggage car; I am always on my feet sorting letters and papers at this point, and probably feel it more than the passengers; there is one place trainmen consider more dangerous than this, namely, the Dundas grade, where the speed is reduced by order of the company; the speed is not reduced at St. George; the driver of the train was going on his time card rate, 45 miles per hour, when the accident happened; I consider the bridge one of the safest on the road; there are other switches which we strike as hard as this.

Dr. Patton testified with reference to the injuries of a number of those who were killed.

A. H. Smith (recalled): I examined the remainder of the tire this morning; found the other portion of the tire which with this makes a complete tire. It was perfect so far as could be seen beyond the continuance of this mark or slight seam for the distance of ½ inch longitudinally along the interior face of the tire; the seam extends all the way across the face of the piece produced; this seam went about ¼ inch into the remainder of tire; I cannot say that that mark was caused by the breaking of the tire or whether it was the occasion of the break; if it were established that that were an old flaw it might have been the cause of the break; the breaking of the tire was the cause of the accident; the tire has been turned down two or three times, I think twice; about ⅛ of an inch is generally taken off when turned down; could not say that the seam was in when turned down last; from existing circumstances I would say that the flaw existed before the accident; a tire will break sometimes before it has had any wear.

They became dislodged from the rails of the said railway, caused by the breaking of the tire of one of the wheels of the said engine, by reason of which Wm. Wemp et al. received divers mortal wounds, of which the said deceased persons died. We also exonerate the railway company and their employes from any blame in the matter, but would respectfully recommend that the company cause all fast trains to slacken their speed when approaching the St. George station, especially east bound trains.

We would recommend that passenger trains should be slowed in approaching the bridge and go over the same at the rate of about 12 miles an hour.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 2.—The funeral of the late Prof. George Paxton Young yesterday afternoon from the University to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, was one of the most imposing ever seen in Toronto. Private services were held at the Bloor-street residence at 11.30 o'clock, after which the body was conveyed to Convocation Hall, where those who desired could gaze upon his features for the last time from 1 till 2.30 o'clock. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Principal Caven, Rev. Messrs. G. M. Milligan, Dr. Reid and D. J. Macdonnell. Immediately after the service the casket was closed. The University Glee Club volunteered the musical portion of the service.

Lieut.-Col. Herchmer, Superintendent of the Northwest Mounted Police, is in the city. He says the Indians are quiet and contented.

The Private Bills Committee of the Legislature spent yesterday morning considering the bill respecting the water, gas and light of Sault Ste. Marie. A special committee reported the bill providing for the protection of insectivorous birds.

James Howdysides, a section boss on the G.T.R., when stepping from a train at the foot of Trinity yesterday morning, fell and his left leg was crushed under the wheels. He underwent amputation at the hospital.

John Green, arraigned on a charge of beating W. H. Stoneham, of 150 Lisgar-street, out of a horse, harness and buggy, was yesterday committed for trial.

In the Ontario Legislature yesterday motions for returns, by Mr. Morin, for certain information regarding Niagara Falls Park, by Mr. Clancy, for correspondence between the Government and the town council of Raleigh, and by Mr. McLaughlin, for the water assessment rates on public institutions in Toronto were discussed and carried. Mr. Creighton moved for a return of correspondence between the Attorney-General and his subordinates regarding the incarceration of Hannah Boyd, who was arrested in connection with the Bell poisoning case, but after some explanations by the Attorney-General the motion was withdrawn.

These Ontario appointments have been made: Archibald L. Macdonald to be coroner for the County of Glengarry; James R. Brown, solicitor, Picton, to be a notary public; John Shaw Skinner, Kingston, to be a notary public; James Johnston, of the Township of Carrick, to be a notary public; Archibald McGill, of Kingston, to be deputy clerk of the Crown and Pleas, clerk of the County Court and registrar of the Surrogate Court, in the room and stead of John Fraser, deceased. George Manning, of the Township of Fenelon, to be bailiff of the Second Division Court of the County of Victoria. John M. Burke, of Blenheim, to be bailiff of the Fourth Division Court of the County of Kent, in the room of John Little, deceased.

MURDER AT CALGARY.

A Dissolute Woman Killed and Horribly Mutilated—An Inquest Begun.

WINNIPEG, March 1.—A horrible murder was perpetrated at Calgary yesterday. The body of a woman known as Rosalie was discovered in a room over the Turf Club saloon last night, where she had been with Wm. Fisk during the afternoon.

Fisk gave himself up to the police declaring that he knew nothing of the affair but that as suspicion might attach to him he wished to clear himself.

On entering the room the walls were found spattered with blood and the bed smeared.

The body was fearfully mutilated and cut with a blunt instrument.

An inquest was begun to-night.

Jay Gould and Russell Sage have resigned from the directory of the International and Great Northern Railroad.

Dr. Mockridge, who lately resigned from Christ Church Cathedral in Hamilton, has a call from Christ Church at Windsor, N.S.

James Rae, a young married man of Picton, has been sentenced to 40 lashes and 60 days in jail for attempting to outrage a 12-year-old girl.

Two thousand employes at the furnaces of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company of South Pittsburg, Tenn., have struck because of a reduction of 10 per cent. in their wages.

AT CANADA'S CAPITAL.

THE VOTE TAKEN ON MR. LAURIER'S RESOLUTION.

More Deputations—Revenue and Expenditure—Postoffice Savings Bank Statement—The Dominion Debt.

OTTAWA, March 2.—In the House yesterday the discussion was resumed upon Mr. Laurier's resolution in favor of direct negotiations by Canada with the United States, looking to the settlement of the fisheries question on the basis of extended trade relations.

Dr. Macdonald, of Huron, as the mover of the adjournment of the debate on Tuesday last, was the first speaker. He pointed out the three questions involved—the fisheries question, the Reciprocity question and the question of the right of Canada to have a voice in the making her own commercial treaties. While he was endeavoring to show how essential it was to the maintenance of Canada's rights in relation to other countries that Canadians should direct the negotiation of all international arrangements affecting Canada, the Speaker called him to order, the reason given being that he was discussing the question of Canada making her own commercial treaties, which had been decided upon this session by vote of the House. Dr. Macdonald closed with an appeal to the House to act in this matter in a spirit of independence, looking to greater freedom of trade between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Jones of Halifax followed. He asserted that the Government knew no middle course between defiance and servility, and whether their demeanor was characterized by one or the other it was weak always and always led to loss on the part of Canada.

Mr. Kenny followed and asserted that Mr. Jones had dragged into the discussion the dismissal of Collector Ross after that gentleman had requested that his dismissal should not be discussed in the House.

After recess the discussion was continued by Hon. Peter Mitchell. He had no doubt whatever, he said, that Sir Charles Tupper had come out to America bearing the personally-expressed opinions of the British Cabinet on the relations of Canada and the United States in the present case, and that he would reopen negotiations for a new treaty with the United States. In fact, from what the Premier had said, it would seem that negotiations or preliminary official arrangements have already been begun.

Sir John Macdonald denied that he had suggested in any way that negotiations had been begun. All he had said was that he had unofficial information as to the opinions of the incoming administration.

Mr. Casey and Mr. Davis followed in favor of the resolution, the latter making some remarks which called out Sir John Thompson.

He said the record showed that Canada had followed a conciliatory course upon the termination of those clauses and had gone so far as to give free to the United States the fishery privileges about which it was proposed to negotiate. The Opposition said we had put an unwarrantable interpretation on the treaty of 1818, narrow and inhuman. But it was no new interpretation, being precisely the interpretation put upon it by the Provincial Government, backed up by British guns and fleets for seventy years, and Canada's action was in 1885 so far endorsed in Great Britain that United States Minister Phelps was informed by Lord Rosebery that there were no two opinions in England upon the matter.

Concerning the modus vivendi Mr. Davies has charged the Government with wilfully irritating the Government of the United States by suspending or threatening to suspend it, and urged that it should be put into full force again at once, but in considering the termination of the modus vivendi the Government simply acted upon the principle that we should not open the privileges of our coast to them while it was open to us to refuse all privileges to us. The modus vivendi was adopted simply to prevent hostilities arising and imperilling the treaty on its consideration by the United States Senate. If unfortunately any retaliatory measure should be put into force by the United States and non-intercourse should be declared, our Government would be able fearlessly to leave the record to the judgment of the people.

Sir Richard Cartwright followed, rising at 12.15. He declared the policy of the present Government to be characterized by utter carelessness, recklessness, imbecility and folly. The United States had to-day extended an olive branch to us, had shown that they were not actuated by hostility and he called upon the Government to meet them in a generous spirit.

The House divided at 1 o'clock and Mr. Laurier's resolution was lost on the following division:

THE POP-GUN POLICY.

The Opposition in the Commons have inaugurated a pop-gun police. Convinced apparently that the public sentiment is heartily in accord with the broad principles of the National Policy, and that the basis of that fiscal system cannot be successfully disturbed, says the Montreal Gazette, they have begun an attack upon isolated duties which they deem either sectional in their application, or capable of being represented as onerous upon the farming community. The resolution introduced by Dr. Landerkin on Thursday last is a case in point. It proposed to grant a rebate of duty on corn used in feeding cattle for export, on the ground that this concession, already extended to distillers, ought to be enjoyed by farmers. The resolution was not, of course, a serious one. The mover and those who voted with him knew perfectly well the impracticable character of the proposal, to effectively and fairly operate which would necessitate the placing of a Customs official on every farm in the Dominion, the tracing of cattle from their birth to the time of export, and the keeping of a record of the quantity of foreign corn consumed in feeding them. But inasmuch as the distillers are given a rebate of duty on foreign corn used in the manufacture of whiskey, the Opposition thought to make party capital by representing this arrangement as conferring advantages upon distillers denied to agriculturists. The attempt was singularly unsuccessful, for not only did the argument run strongly adverse to the proposition, but three members of the Liberal party recorded their votes with Government in favor of the retention of the duties on corn.

The rebate granted to distillers is only a nominal concession in practice, although it embodies an important principle. The total amount of rebate paid last year was less than four hundred dollars, and for all practical purposes the concession might as well be withheld as continued. To place corn on the free list as Mr. Fisher, of Brome, proposed would have the effect of reducing the cost of producing whiskey, a rather strange result for an avowed prohibitionist to desire, and of lessening the market for Canadian coarse grains. Virtually the whole of the corn now imported, that is to say nine-tenths of it, goes into the distilleries, and the duty exacted bears upon the manufacturers of whiskey and not upon the agricultural community. True, it may be answered that although no corn is imported for the feeding of live stock the farmers and stock raisers are compelled by reason of the duty to pay a higher price either for the Canadian-grown corn, or oats and peas used in place thereof but this argument will hardly be addressed to the agricultural community. It implies that the protective system has enhanced the price of course grains and in that way promoted farmers' interests. We are now growing corn extensively and successfully in many parts of Ontario. Last year the area sown was 225,000 acres, or about two-thirds the area sown with spring wheat, and the quantity of corn reaped was no less than 17,486,000 bushels, giving an average production of 78 bushels per acre. Four years ago the area sown was only 175,000 acres, and the crop did not exceed 12,000,000 bushels. If the Canadian market is not already adequately supplied with the home article there is no doubt that within a few years the deficiency will be made good. The duty on American course grains has done more than promote the production of these in Canada; it has given the farmers a larger home market. The following statement shows the quantity of grain imported from the United States for consumption in the Dominion last year and ten years ago:—

Oats, bushels	2,071,427	19,625
Rye, bushels	110,186	75,267
Wheat, bushels	1,519,695	12,042
Total	7,191,891	2,418,691

It thus appears that the consumption of American grain in Canada last year was 4,773,000 bushels less than in 1878; in other words, the home market for Canadian grown grain was enlarged to this extent. Our farmers are entitled to a continuation of this protection, which has given them a better market than could possibly be secured under a policy of free imports. The price of Canadian oats in Toronto runs all the way from ten to twenty cents a bushel above the price in Buffalo, Chicago and Detroit. Remove the duty, introduce the surplus production of the United States, and the value of the farm product of Canada would at once seriously depreciate to the injury of the whole community. The pop-gun policy of the Opposition has not begun well, and can end only in failure.

CHINESE LUCK STICKS.

CURIOUS SUPERSTITIONS OF ALMOND EYED "JOHN."

Shaking a Bundle of Odd Little Sticks to Tell What the Future Contains—A Professor Who Explains and Gets a Rap at Christians by His Comparisons.

That was the authoritative statement made by "Sheriff" Tom Lee, the wary old leader of the Mott street Celestials.

Tom Lee had been asked about the mysterious demons of the elements to whom every orthodox Chinaman offers daily propitiatory sacrifices.

The sheriff himself shortly after daylight the other morning wended his way to the Joss house at No. 16 Mott street and made numerous offerings, and then shook the "luck sticks."

That isn't what the Celestials call them, but that is the meaning. There are 100 of them, about the size of lead pencils, tapering to a blunt point at either end. Each stick has a number on it. All are held in a little porcelain case.

PROVERBS ON A STICK.

The hopeful Chinaman takes the case in both hands and shakes it vigorously until one of the sticks drops out. This sometimes means a shake of four or five minutes and beads of perspiration stand on the shaven forehead of the son of Cathay before luck comes. And he don't look upon it as chance, either, but as the personal feeling of the gods toward him.

When the stick drops out he seizes it eagerly and goes to the wall where hang a great number of red rice paper circulars. Each bears a number and a proverb from Confucius or some other pig tail philosopher of the olden days.

The inscription on the paper bearing the same number as the stick foretells the luck socially, financially, etc., of the holder until the next anniversary of Pang Yo Wong.

Secretary Huie Kin, of the Presbyterian Chinese mission, who, in addition to a large amount of native intelligence, holds a hard earned college diploma, told a reporter many curious superstitions of the common people in China, most of which their Mott street brethren retain.

"Chinamen," he said, "see the work of a good or evil spirit in almost every occurrence. They also believe that these innumerable gods, mysterious and otherwise, can be influenced or propitiated by various sacrifices or offerings.

"They burn prayer papers and Joss sticks and food almost every day, and scatter rice and do various other things as foolish as your people, who throw salt in the fire when they upset the cellar, to avoid a quarrel."

"Chinamen believe that one god rules the thunder and a different god takes it in charge each year. Their almanac shows which god is on duty in the thunder department, and at the first thunder storm of the season every one offers a sacrifice. If the thunder is very heavy, they say that the thunder god is very cross.

"It is very funny, isn't it?" he continued; "almost as funny as the idea of some of your farmers, who plant their peas and potatoes and kill their pigs in the right time of the moon."

The secretary had scored another good natured point, but he wasn't through.

TOM LEE IS A DISSENTER.

He stated that the Chinese calendar is full of unlucky days, and every Chinaman about to make a journey, or commence any business undertaking, or get married, consults his almanac about the day, and if it is ruled by a bad god he changes his date.

"It is very much like the belief in unlucky Friday of your people," said the bland secretary, "except there it is general and no one hides his belief in it.

"When a man is sick," he continued, "it is because some bad spirit has control of him, or else he has offended the greater gods. So they dose him with stuff to drive out the bad spirit and sacrifice chickens and rice and other things to the good, and if the man has a pretty good constitution he may live through it, and that is more than he does sometimes with your doctors."

Again Mr. Huie Kin's almond eyes twinkled with merriment at his point, and then he said:

"The Chinamen in this city nearly all retain these superstitions. Even when they embrace Christianity the old, fearful superstitious feeling remains, and involuntarily some time they will perform some propitiatory act."

Mr. Huie Kin said that the Chinese are the most superstitious people in the world, as they must naturally be, believing, as they do, that each one of their 3,000 gods take a personal interest in each individual Chinaman, and rewards or punishes him according to his own varying mood or whim.

But Sheriff Tom Lee wouldn't admit this. "Pooh!" he said. "Lots Chinaman no fraid. Him gottee no spookee."—New York Journal.

Hereditary Elopements.

"I am not prepared to say whether marriage in general is a failure, but runaway marriages certainly are in one sense," said an old physician, yesterday. "They are a success in being imitated by several generations that follow. Many years ago an elopement was a matter of great public interest, and was usually accompanied by some thrilling incidents, such as a pursuit by the angry father and possibly a pitched battle between the young men and the girl's male relatives. In this way some of the old time runaway matches were impressed on my mind. You would be surprised if I were to show you the record of the descendants of some of these gay old couples. It seems to be a family trait in many instances, and the mania runs through several generations. I know one gentleman who has never forgiven one of his children for eloping, and yet he ran off with his bride thirty years ago, and there have been three or four similar escapades in the same family. His descendants will keep on running away until the mania wears itself out; it seems hereditary, and the children can no more help running away than they can help looking like their parents."—Louisville Commercial.

Saved by Lying Down.

A Kansas paper relates that a cattle raiser near Severy went out into his feed lot recently on foot. The cattle became infuriated and made a rush at him. He fell flat on the ground and remained perfectly quiet. The mad, bellowing herd came up and tramped round and round, often smelling of his body, but never attempting to injure it. After four hours in this position some men noticed the peculiar action of the herd and went in and rescued him.—Chicago Herald.

Victoria's Will.

Victoria's will was made in 1876, engrossed on vellum, and is now a great bound volume fastened with a lock, with several blank pages left for subsequent codicils. The last was made recently and distributed the jubilee gifts. Some are left to the state and the others are distributed among the members of the royal family.—New York Sun.

A Matter of Habit.

Habitual beating down is one of the very bad habits, easily acquired and difficult to shake off. Recently an Oxford county, Me., man went into a meat market to buy a small piece of liver. "How much?" asked the man. "I will make you a present of that," said the butcher. The man put on his most knowing look, stepped back, rubbed his hands together, looked the butcher square in the eye, and said: "Ain't that rather high?"—Boston Herald.

Scored a Hit.

Mrs. McFlimsey—You know I can't go to the theatre with you to-night. I have positively nothing to wear but that old hat I made over from last winter.

McFlimsey—What of that! Just take it off when we get there and I'll guarantee you more admiration than $50 worth of headgear would evoke!—Puck.

The Empress of Japan.

The London Mode of Fashion says that the Empress of Japan is at the head of a powerful movement for bettering the condition of the women of that country. She has established a college for women at Tokio, under the management of a committee of European and American women. The standard of education is very low, especially in the country districts, and it is hoped that this college will prove a valuable aid in raising the women of Japan to a higher level. In one of the London hospitals there are now three Japanese ladies who are going through their training as nurses, with the intention of returning to their own country when qualified and teaching their countrywomen.—Detroit Free Press.

The Samoan Islands.

Samoa consists of a group of four islands in the Pacific ocean, about as far from the Sandwich Islands as the latter are from San Francisco and about 1,800 miles to the northeast of Australia. The names of the four islands are Upolu, Savan, Apolima and Manono, with a population, in 1887, of 300 foreigners, mostly Americans, Englishmen and Germans, and 35,000 natives, and with an area of 2,650 square miles. These islands are the dominating power in that part of the Pacific ocean and the center of commerce. They are in the line with all American commerce with New Zealand and Australia.—Detroit Free Press.

A Waning Festival.

St. Valentine's day, like other holiday and amusement days in America, appears to be on the decline, and it receives less and less attention from the public as the years go by. There was a time, and not very long ago, when the day was hailed as a harbinger of good feeling, the interchange of soft and tender sentiments between lovers and friends, and pleasant reminiscences generally. Its coming was looked forward to with interest. But now a vast majority of people never think of the day unless attracted to it by some of the unsightly caricatures seen in the shop windows on the public streets.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Young Men at the Top.

Quite a noticeable feature connected with the settlement of Dakota is the number of young men between the ages of 21 and 35 making up her population. They predominate, whether on the farm, in the trades, professions and business undertakings, or in political and official management of territorial and local affairs, and give to every enterprise that push and ambitious effort which has made a national reputation for the people.—Harper's Magazine.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of Sèvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $3,000 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,500 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Skaters and Curlers Attention.

The Altar, Cradle and Tomb.

The vital statistics of the town, as the registration with Town Clerk Macdonald shows, were as follows:—Marriages, 3; births, 25; deaths, 7.

Did not Debate.

The Otonabee Canoe Club did not meet for debate last night, as several of the members had been unavoidably called from town. The debate will take place next Friday night.

A Solitary Drunk.

A drunk was arrested last night and lodged in the cells. At the Police Court this morning he was all alone in his misery and was fined two dollars and costs or ten days in gaol. He was given three days in which to pay the fine.

The Gun Club.

The Peterborough Gun Club had a match yesterday afternoon and the score was as follows:—

H. Calcutt	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	0	1	1	—8.
Judge Weller	0	1	1	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	—8.
H. Bell	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	—9.

The Event of the Season.

The Firemen's carnival is going to be the event of the season, or if it is not it should be. Should the weather prove favorable there will be contingents, probably, from the surrounding towns and the rink will be a brilliant scene. Good music will be in attendance and the prizes will be good ones. The person that doesn't skate will see something worth gazing on if he attends the carnival on Friday, the 8th inst. 1d52

A Dishonest Farmer.

There are a few farmers who come on to the market here who are meanness personified, not to say anything about the dishonest part of the matter. One of these individuals sold a barrel of apples to a grocery man in town a couple of weeks ago, and what was the surprise of the grocer when upon nearing the bottom of the barrel to find that there was eight inches of pea straw laid in the bottom, just to help fill up, you know. Luckily for the dishonest yeoman the gentleman who bought the apples would not know the farmer again if he saw him. Open both ends of the barrel after this.

A Procession of Children.

Yesterday afternoon will be remembered by the children of the George-st. Methodist Church Sunday School as one their big days. They were promised a drive and they had it and enjoyed it immensely, or one thing is sure they seemed to. Shortly after four o'clock the youngsters gathered at the church, where sleighs were waiting for them, into which they bundled, and headed by the Y.M.C.A brass band the procession started down George-st. The children seemed to be highly delighted with the novelty of their Sunday school picnic, and the waving flags and cheering youngsters woke up our quiet community as has not been done since an election campaign. The drive was continued around town until six o'clock when the procession returned to the church, where a tea for the five hundred hungry urchins had been prepared, and needless to say the appetites were keen after the two hours drive. However, all were fed and the children dispersed to their homes elated over their drive and grateful with their pastor, and the congregation who originated the idea. A great many of the sleighs were supplied by the friends from the country, but there were some specimens of vehicles there from town. Mr. Jas. Edgecombe gave the children a barrel of apples which were distributed to the youngsters after the tea.

Got to move along, therefore the price is no object. Good Groceries within the reach of all, at M. R. KIDD's. d35tf

The Bellevillians Buried—The Medal Lost by one Shot.

The Belleville curlers arrived here last evening from Campbellford where they were victorious over two rinks of that village by a majority of three shots. Here, however, they met a different fate. A CLOSE CONTEST.

The Governor-General's Medal will not come to Peterborough this year, although it was only lost by the narrow majority of one shot. The game was played at Ottawa yesterday and was a close and keen contest as the result indicates, but Lindsay laid the winning shot and captured the medal. The curlers came back on the same train with the civic deputation. The result with the rinks were as follows:—

Sunday School Libraries.

Yesterday Messrs. Salisbury Bros. delivered their eighteenth Sunday school library, sold since first of October last. Eighteen Sunday school libraries sold during one winter season is pretty good evidence of their ability to choose the right kind of books.

A New Firm.

The new firm of Lee & Thompson have opened their book and stationery business in the store recently occupied by Mr. Thos. Menzies. The stand is a well known one, and has been refitted and conveniently adapted for their business. Mr. Lee is well and favorably know in Peterborough and the firm start business with most favorable prospects.

Scott vs. Benedict.

This important case is still occupying the attention of Justice Street in Toronto. Yesterday the forenoon was spent in an effort to settle the case. The lawyers and their clients were in consultation for a couple of hours, but an agreement was not come to, and the court resumed each side determined to fight it out. It will probably take some days yet.

A School Entertainment.

An entertainment was held in the school house of S. S. No. 2, North Monaghan, last evening. There was a large attendance, the room being crowded, and the audience included a number from town. Dr. Fife occupied the chair and presided in a happy manner. The room was prettily decorated with festoons of evergreens. The programme was an excellent one and was well carried out. It was made up as follows:—Chorus, "The Royal Proclamation," by the school; recitation, "Baby Bye," Chester Laing; recitation, "A Little Boy's Speech," Walter Eastland; recitation, "Daisy Blossoms," Hannah Goodfellow; recitation, "Young Heedless," Alfred Goodwin; dialogue, "The Blind Man," Laura May and Maggie Goodfellow; recitation, "Sour Apples," Alice Carver; chorus, "Sweetly Sing," by six little girls; recitation, "Grandma's Glasses," Thomas Sarginson; recitation, "A Little Gardiner," Ira Goodfellow; recitation, "Keep Trying," Laura May; recitation, "The Boy and the Owl," Henry Goodwin; recitation, "Little Prue's Opinion," Evelyn Sarginson; reading, James Goodwin; instrumental duet, Misses Fairweather and Ferguson; recitation, "Willie and the Apple Tree," Ernest Sanders; recitation, "White Men and the Indians," Arthur Stenson; recitation, "Help One Another," Emma Goodwin; dialogue, "What are Little Boys Good For," A. Breckenridge and E. Sanders; kindergarten song, the little ones; recitation, "The Quarrel," Bella Milliken; dialogue, "The Unfortunate Scholar," by four girls; recitation, "Baby Pigs," Norman Stenson; vocal solo, Miss Lilly Jackson, who in response to an encore gave "Sabbath Bells"; recitation, "Doggie's Dip," Julia Eastland; dialogue, "Oh, Dear!" three girls; instrumental solo, Miss Fairweather, accompanied by Master Bertie Brooks with the bones, and which was encored; recitation, "High Topped Boots," Torrence Laing; reading, "Who Knows," Ada Collins; reading, "Socrates Snooks," J. Hopkins; recitation, "Jesus Paid the Fare," Miss Mary Fife. Rev. S. J. Shorey gave a brief but very acceptable and appropriate address, "Temperance in the Bible," a responsive dialogue was given by the teacher and the school, and the programme closed with a kindergarten song, "God is Love," by the little ones. All present were delighted with the entertainment, and it was very creditable to the teacher, Miss Becket, and her pupils. Miss Fairweather played the accompaniment for the choruses and kindergarten songs very acceptably. At the conclusion votes of thanks were tendered to Jackson & Co., for the use of the piano; to Miss Fairweather, Miss Ferguson and Master Brooks, and to Miss Becket for the care and trouble she had taken in training the children.

WITH THE MAGNATES.

THE CIVIC DEPUTATION DO A GOOD DEAL OF INTERVIEWING.

Assisted by the Military Men—The Drill Shed—The Customs House and the Dredging of Little Lake—An Interview with Sir John.

The civic deputation which left on Thursday for Ottawa, arrived home this morning. The result of their mission was not altogether fruitless, although nothing definite was promised for a certainty. The councillors had a busy day yesterday in securing interviews, but they were successful in securing the heads of all the departments under which their demands would come and also had an interview with the Premier, Sir John Macdonald.

THE DRILL SHED GRANT.

The first matter which the municipal men proceeded to dispose of was the grant for the new drill shed. In the interests of the procuring of this there was a military deputation also present from the 57th Battalion, consisting of Col. J. Z. Rogers, Major Bell, Major Howard, Capt. Brennan, Capt. Langford and Capt. Dennistoun. The combined deputation were introduced to Sir Adolphe Caron, Minister of Militia, by Mayor Stevenson, M.P., who in his introductory remarks spoke of the battalion and the necessity of the new drill shed. Colonel Rogers, Major Bell, Councillors Rutherford, Cahill and others also addressed the Minister in the interests of the grant. Sir Adolphe said that the Government had adopted a policy of economy and were cutting down expenses in every possible way and, of course, were keeping down the estimates. He expressed himself as favorably impressed with the report of the 57th and thought they deserved a drill shed and promised, if possible, to influence his colleagues to have the grant put in the estimates.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

The deputation were then ushered into the presence of Sir Hector Langevin, Minister of Public Works, who was addressed in reference to the building of the custom house here and also the dredging of the Little Lake. In speaking of the custom house the Minister said it would be attended to as soon as possible and that there was no doubt but that it would be commenced in the near future. The Little Lake dredging he looked upon as being of a local nature and thought that if the town would spend a certain sum the Government might grant a like amount.

A TALK WITH SIR JOHN.

From Sir Hector the Peterborough contingent visited Mr. Page, the Chief Engineer of Railways and Canals, to lay before him the dredging of the Little Lake. Mr. Page referred them to Sir John Macdonald, who is Acting Minister of Railways and Canals during the illness of Mr. Pope.

In the evening the Councillors sought the presence of the Premier and were most graciously received by the great chieftain. The work was laid before him and he asked them to put their request on paper in the form of a memorial and forward it to him and he would give the matter his best consideration. This ended the interviewing and the deputation withdrew, well pleased with the gracious reception they had met with at the hands of Sir John and the Ministers.

Personal.

Dr. E. A. Spilsbury, of Toronto, will be at the Grand Central Hotel, Peterborough, on Saturday, March 9th, for consultation. See card.

Church Anniversary.

A sale of useful and fancy articles will be held in connection with the anniversary services of St. Paul's Church, in the beginning of May, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

An Ennismore Vagrant.

Mr. Wm. Crough, Reeve of Ennismore, brought into town this morning a man by the name of John Boyd, against whom he swore out an information as a vagrant. Police Magistrate Dumble committed him to gaol for two months.

Why People Wonder.

Crossley and Hunter Meetings.

To-morrow morning the Rev. J. E. Hunter will preach in George-st. church at 11 o'clock. At 7 o'clock the two Evangelists will conduct the meeting. The Rev. H. T. Crossley will preach in St. Paul's church at 11 a.m. The pews in the George-st. church will be free during the services. Unsaved persons are earnestly entreated to attend. Members of the choir who have tickets, the pastors and members of the committee will be admitted by the side door. The public will be admitted by the front doors. All the members of the choirs of the churches joining in the services are invited to join the union choir. The Rev. Mr. Crossley wishes to meet all the singers in the George-st. church this evening at 8.30 o'clock. During the week special prayer meetings have been held in several of the churches. There is great expectations among Christian people and there is no doubt but that a great religious revolution is about to be effected in the town. Under the direction of the Rev. M. L. Pearson, a prayer meeting will be held in the George-st. church Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, and a public fellowship meeting at 9.45 a.m. The fellowship meeting will be closed in time for all to attend their own churches.

Death of Mr. W. S. Robinson.

Mr. W. S. Robinson, the well known North Toronto druggist, died at his residence, 722 Yonge-st., yesterday morning at half-past 6 o'clock. The cause of death was paralysis, the deceased gentleman having had a shock about a fortnight ago, from which he never recovered consciousness. Mr. Robinson was 55 years of age at the time of his death, and was one of the oldest residents of the old village of Yorkville. He was born in Grimsby, Lincolnshire, England, and came to Canada about 38 years ago. He was a Past Master of Ashlar Lodge A. F. and A. M., Past Prior K. of Royal Arch-Chapter, a member of the A. O. U. W., and also an Oddfellow. Although never an active politician, Mr. Robinson took great interest in public affairs, being exceedingly well informed on both Dominion and municipal matters. Immensely popular among his neighbors, he could often have held municipal office had he so desired. An affectionate and loving husband, a kind father, and a citizen against whose name no man can say ill, he leaves a wife, two sons, a daughter and legions of friends to mourn his death. —Toronto World. The above gentleman was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Chas. Robinson of this town.

Brevities.

—A regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held on Monday at 4 p.m. in their hall, George-st.

—The grand display of flags in the Sunday school childrens procession yesterday afternoon was made through the kindness of Mr. J. J. Turner, who supplied them on ten minutes notice.

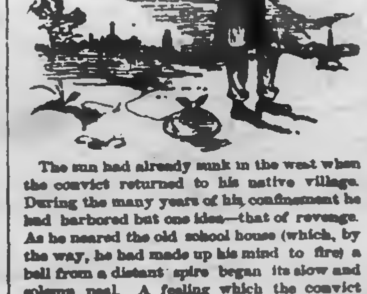
The Power of Music.



The sun had already sunk in the west when the convict returned to his native village. During the many years of his confinement he had barbored but one idea—that of revenge. As he neared the old school house (which, by the way, he had made up his mind to fire) a bell from a distant spire began its slow and solemn peal. A feeling which the convict had not felt in many years filled his breast. He stood rooted to the spot, and tears, hot tears, moistened his cheeks. When the bell had ceased its tolling, he hastily wiped his eyes with the back of his calloused hand, and exclaimed: "My heart is softened; I will not shed blood to-night—I will rob instead!"—Life.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

It is a wise and brave habit, though to be sure it is neither lovable nor true, and Polly turned her soft and pretty eyes upon her with such an agony of reproach in their blue depths that her mother's mind went straightway back to a day, many months before, when Mrs. Trafford had told her of Lord Charterhouse's engagement to his cousin, when she, believing that he was in love with Polly, and that Polly would win him in the end, had kept the knowledge to herself, and had left Polly in the firm belief that his attentions to her pointed to but one end—the end which would take her to the altar in all the shimmer of satin and pearls, and make her "My Lady" forever.

Mrs. Antrobus was possessed of that very useful and convenient kind of heart which takes a good deal of touching, but that one reproachful look of Polly's went straight to it and pierced it through; for she remembered that if she had been open and honest with her favorite daughter, she would probably have been spared all the pain and humiliation which the affair with Lord Charterhouse had caused her.

"I wish you would not say that I refused him, mother," she said, with some dignity; and then she very softly went out of the room and walked upstairs to her bed chamber, where Mrs. Antrobus did not just then dare to follow her.

So Mrs. Antrobus was in a measure obliged to let the matter of calling or not calling upon Lady Charterhouse fall to the ground. She did not wish to go in such a way as to give her any other impression than that Polly had at some time or other refused her husband; she did not like to go without Polly, for that would have been pointed, and moreover, the name of "Miss Mary Antrobus" had its place upon her visiting card immediately below her own.

So, though she thought it over and over, looked at it from this point and that, studied it in every light, and twisted and twined the circumstances of the case in every possible direction, Mrs. Antrobus finally came to the conclusion that she had better leave the call unmade and take her cue from the way in which Lord Charterhouse should see fit to behave when they happened to meet, which, in so limited a circle as Blankhampton society, they were sooner or later sure to do.

However, before a meeting came about, the good people of Blankhampton were almost struck dumb with astonishment by the announcement of Polly Antrobus' engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Mandarin, of Thelston house, Liverpool, and of Shanghai.

CHAPTER VI.

THE AGONY OF "MR. WIBKS."

At the time of To-To Antrobus' marriage to Herrick Bentham, Blankhampton society had been pretty well kept [illegible] by the various reports which emanated from the River house concerning the great event. Such a wonderful marriage had never before taken place within the memory of man, and the stream of grand ideas which was let loose on the world in general by each and every member of the Antrobus family, had been really so gorgeous, so grand, so out of the common, that people began to think there was something in this talk of Russian bridal tours, continental travel, Mediterranean yachting, town houses, saddle horses, riding habits and the like.

But all their grand expectations had resolved themselves into a trip to London to see the pantomimes, and a joint stock wedding present from the Bentham family of a plated tea and coffee service! So now it was no longer the custom of the Antrobuses to speak of Mrs. Herrick Bentham as a young lady who had made a great marriage. Mrs. Antrobus, on the contrary, invariably spoke of her with a tender and gentle pity. "To-To married so very young, poor child—and quite a love match!"

Since Polly's engagement to Mr. Mandarin, of Liverpool and Shanghai, To-To and her spouse had shrunk into very small potatoes indeed. Of a truth, there never was so much money gathered together in one heap before as that which constituted Mr. Mandarin's fortune—that is, if you in any way went by what Mrs. Antrobus had to say about it. And not only was Thelston house the most exquisite museum of art treasures ever gathered together in any private house before, but Polly would have man servants and maid servants as boots and shoes are bought for the outfit or trousseau of a royal princess—by the gross; she would have carriages [illegible] as other people have cups and saucers, and Thelston house was so well furnished with silver plate of every kind and shape that Polly requested her friends in general to be kind enough to make their wedding presents personal and in the shape of jewelry.

And she was to have a house in town, to be near To-To in the season, which some people who knew the sisters well thought slightly unnecessary—judging by the display of affection between them, that is to say.

And then people began to ask, just as Beautiful Jim had done of Mrs. Trafford, what Mr. Mandarin was like. Mrs. Antrobus skillfully fenced the question.

"Oh, a perfect gentleman in every way, and de-vo-ted to Polly. Not tall"—as if for a man to be tall was as great a disadvantage as for a London house to be big—"but very athletic—quite an athlete, in fa-ct. Out every morning by 6 o'clock for a swim, winter and summer; then has a few miles' run on his bicycle before breakfast. He hunts and shoots and belongs to the Yeomanry"—and really, then Mrs. Antrobus was obliged to stop short and look at her hearer as if to say, "What more would you have?"

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. McCausland & Son, Toronto, supply by far the largest quantity in Canada.

CANAL TOLLS.

A Deputation From Various Boards of Trade Ask a Reduction This Season.

OTTAWA, March 1.—A large deputation representing the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Port Arthur and Winnipeg had an hour's interview with Sir John Macdonald, Acting Minister of Railways and Canals, this afternoon, with reference to the reduction of canal tolls for the coming season. About forty gentlemen were on the deputation and there were fifteen speeches made. They pointed out that it was highly desirable and necessary that these tolls should be reduced this year, the same as had been done for the past two seasons. This was necessary to keep the traffic of the St. Lawrence route from being diverted to the Erie route. The speakers were emphatic on this point. The deputation also asked for information concerning the completion of the enlargement of the entire canal system of the Dominion. This information would be invaluable to the vessel owners who contemplated the construction of larger craft in keeping with the extended canals.

The Premier said he could give the deputation a reply with reference to the canal tolls in a very few days. As to the completion of these great artificial waterways he pointed out that the cost would be enormous and that there was a great deal of talk about the public debt expanding at a rapid rate. Besides there was a good deal of difference of opinion of engineers as to the depth of running water along the St. Lawrence route. He would be pleased to receive any information which the deputation had in their possession. The Premier also asked that their exact requests be put in writing.

Mr. Geo. A. Chapman and Capt. S. Sylvester were the Toronto men present. J. B. Fairgrieve, president of the Hamilton Board of Trade, and C. T. Kyles were present from Hamilton; Captain R. Neelon and James Morris from St. Catharines.

The deputation, among whom were several well-known vessel men, asked that Mr. Kirkpatrick's reciprocal wrecking bill be passed. The Premier said that as far as the House of Commons were concerned he believed it would become law, but as for the Senate he was not so sanguine. The sub-committee appointed to consider the measure, after approving several amendments, decided to report it. The amendments so remodel the bill that it is now almost similar to the American Act.

The bustling town of Peterboro was in the Capital in full force today. Several of its prominent citizens had interviews with the Ministers of Militia and Public Works. The deputation consisted of Mayor Stevenson, M.P., Col. Rogers, Major Bell, Captains Denison and Langford, Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Rutherford and Hall. The Peterborians were modest in their requests and want government assistance in repairing the drill hall and the building of an armory, dredging Little Lake, which is badly contaminated and injurious to health, and the erection of a new Custom House. The proposed cost of the drill hall repairs and armory is $5000, of which the town will pay one-half. Peterboro is the headquarters of the gallant 57th Battalion. The ministers made a careful note of the deputation's requirements.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1.00 which needs no apology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Big Timber Suit Settled—Bill Easby's $100 Bill Stolen While He Slept.

TORONTO, March 4.—After ten days' hard fighting a settlement has been arrived at in the big timber suit of Scott v. Benedict. The limits in question are valued at half a million, and the terms of the agreement are practically that the plaintiff and, through Nelson & Co., have the right to redeem the property upon payment to the defendants and the Rathbun Company of $270,000. Each party is to pay their own costs. This settles probably one of the heaviest law suits that has occurred in Ontario for a decade, and which has been before the courts in one form or another during that time.

The World this morning says: "A claim will be set up that the Jesuit grant which has caused so much discussion should be portioned out among the Jesuits of the various provinces of the Dominion for the education of Roman Catholic youth. Ontario is likely to be the first to move in the matter. The position of Roman Catholic Ontario in the matter is simply this: When the Pope dissolved the Order of the Society of Jesus he in his bull declared expressly that the property held by the order in Quebec should be handed over to the ordinaries, that is the bishops, to be held in trust for the educational interests of Canada—not merely of Quebec. It is on this clause that the Ontario claim is based. Of course as soon as the Ontario hierarchy is heard from it will be but a question of time when Manitoba, British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces will have something to say."

W. L. Palmer, a young man of 23 and Emma Wilson, an inmate of a house at 89 Richmond-street west, are in custody charged with having stolen a $100 bill from William Easby who lives in Vanauley-street. It appears that on Saturday Easby drew $200 from a bank and getting too much to drink was drawn into a game of matching in a poolroom, losing $80 at the rate of $2 a clip. Palmer, who had met him before, had induced him to go to 89 Richmond-street west where he "flashed" the big bill and went to sleep. It is alleged that Palmer and the girl took the money from him while he was asleep and drove to Palmer's house, where the money was secreted, and then returned. When Easby discovered his loss he reported the matter to the police, with the result that last night Detective Burrows and Davis arrested Palmer in McGee's dive in York-street and the woman at the Richmond-street house. They found the bill at Palmer's home in Arthur-street.

CHAMPION O'CONNOR.

The Toronto Sculler Defeats Gaudaur at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The 3-mile boat race between Wm. O'Connor of Toronto and Jake Gaudaur of St. Louis for $1000 a side and the championship of America was rowed yesterday afternoon over the Alameda course, an arm of San Francisco bay, about 5 miles from this city. A stiff breeze was blowing and the water was rough. O'Connor won the choice for places and was given the inside course, where the water was much smoother than Gaudaur's course.

The men were sent away at 4 o'clock. O'Connor caught the water first. At the start both rowed 36 strokes per minute. About 300 yards from the starting point Gaudaur lost his stroke owing to rough water, but regained it and made a spurt till the quarter was reached when he again lost the water and gave up the race. O'Connor steered somewhat wildly about the half-mile point but regained a straight course and made the turn, a mile and a half in 9 mins. and 20 secs. On the home stretch he quickened his stroke and made the starting point in 19 mins. and 45 secs., and was declared the winner.

Only a small crowd witnessed the race because of a report that the race was already "fixed." Outside money was offered on O'Connor with odds of 2 to 1 but there were few takers.

THE RAILWAY DISASTERS.

VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY AT PARIS.

Engineer, Conductor and Company Censured—Nearly all the Injured at St. George Reported Out of Danger.

PARIS, March 2.—The inquest on the bodies of Isabella Law and Mary Law, the two victims of Friday night's collision at the station here, was terminated late last night. The main facts elicited were that the driver had never been over this branch of the road, that he had been advised his train might stop coming up this curve unless he gave her full steam, that he was running at a rate of twelve miles an hour and was unable to see the semaphore, which gave the track ahead to the other train, in time to slow up, so swift was his speed and so sharp the curve, and that he might have had a pilot if he had asked for one.

The jury brought in a verdict stating the circumstances and fatal result of the collision and adding their belief that:

The driver, Wm. Mapplebeck, not being acquainted with the grades and peculiarities of the said railway track, being a stranger thereto, should have applied for a pilot at Brantford to instruct him concerning said road, and the conductor, Joseph Reed, in charge of the train should have insisted upon a pilot being supplied, when his engine driver was uncertain as to his knowledge of the track; and we also consider the Grand Trunk Railway Company should adopt more positive regulations for securing this object other than those appearing in the instructions filed in evidence. And the jurors further upon their oaths say from the evidence and examination of that portion of the road from the bridge over the Grand River on the Buffalo and Lake Huron division that the position and location of said semaphore and the arrangements for giving warning to the drivers of trains approaching from the direction of Brantford, both in the deep cut and the curves near Paris station, are not sufficient to protect the traveling public from the danger of collision, and the jurors aforesaid also condemn the practice of placing flat cars in immediate connection with passenger coaches.

THE INJURED AT ST. GEORGE.

Nearly All Out of Danger—The Bridge Repairs Completed.

ST. GEORGE, March 3.—The report of the medical staff to-night on the victims of the late accident is: W. Benedict, doing well; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Miss Chaffee, Mr. and Mrs. Bedden, Mr. McLaughlin, out of danger; Mrs. Jennings and May Jennings, doing favorably; Conductor Revell, very much better; Geo. Margetts, improving slowly; T. L. Doutney, doing favorably; J. McKinley, doing well; George Forbes, out of danger; Robert Hilton, improving; James Hyslop, not much improvement; Mr. Martin, doing favorably; Mrs. Sendall, doing well; Dr. Lequesne, a little more favorable; Miss Andrews, Miss McLeod, resting nicely.

The bridge repairs were completed Saturday in time to allow the Atlantic express to pass over at 2 p.m. This was quickly followed by a special from Detroit with a full complement of passengers bound for Washington to take part in the inauguration festivities.

No identification of the remains of the lady taken from the dining car has yet been made. The railway officials think from her appearance and dress that she is a foreigner.

The Funerals at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, March 2.—To-day the incidents in connection with the sad death of Reeve Francis and Councillors Dr. Swan and Jos. L. Peers, culminated in the consignment of their remains to the "narrow house appointed for all living." The deep sorrow of the whole community, which has flowed out so spontaneously and universally to the families of the deceased found vent to-day in what was without a doubt the most imposing spectacle ever witnessed in this town. Though the walking was about the worst that could be imagined, yet it is estimated that fully 1500 persons were in the cortege. The procession began at Old St. Paul's Church, at the extreme east of the town, where a short service had been held over the remains of Mr. Peers. Proceeding westward it was swelled at New St. Paul's by a large concourse who had attended the service for Mr. Francis. It was next joined at the Methodist Church by those who were at the funeral of Dr. Swan, and slowly proceeded to the cemetery.

A large body of the 22nd Battalion turned out in honor of their deceased surgeon-major and fired a volley over his remains. In the cortege there were representatives of nearly every secret and benevolent society in the town, as well as the town and county councils and officials, and representatives of other municipal bodies. The whole town is heavily draped in mourning and all business operations were suspended for two hours.

Mayor Karn's Condition Critical.

WOODSTOCK, March 3.—Mayor Karn's condition is critical. Messrs. Knight and Pascoch are both doing well and no serious results are anticipated. Mr. Martin's condition is still hopeful but not altogether satisfactory.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL.

Sir Charles Tupper Talks on the Fisheries and Other Questions.

OTTAWA, March 2.—Sir Charles and Lady Tupper arrived at the Capital this afternoon and went directly to the residence of Hon. C. H. Tupper, where they will stay during their visit in Ottawa. Sir Charles is looking well. He said that he was here solely to give evidence in the Onderdonk arbitration and expects to return to England within two months to resume his official duties. "The American papers," added Sir Charles, "see much significance of various sorts in my visit, but I assure you they are mistaken."

Sir Charles saw Hon. Mr. Chapleau in Paris. The Secretary of State is much improved in health, but will not return before undergoing further treatment.

Regarding the negotiation of a commercial treaty with Spain in relation to trade between Canada and the Antilles, Cuba and Costa Rica, Sir Charles said the matter had been deferred for the present owing to the increase of the protectionist element in the Spanish Cabinet.

Sir Charles is hopeful of an early amicable settlement of the fisheries question but expects negotiations to be re-opened from Washington. There are no new developments in the Behring Sea fishery question. The appointment of Sir Julian Pauncefote as British Ambassador at Washington Sir Charles considers an excellent one.

"As to annexation," said Sir Charles, "the last question which I or those who come after me will ever see submitted to the consideration of the people of Canada will be the question of annexation to the United States."

Premier Mowat of Ontario, Hon. P. Garneau, representing the Province of Quebec, and Sir John Macdonald had a conference here to-day and came to an amiable basis for the settlement of the boundary question in the vast territory beyond the height of land and adjacent to Hudson Bay. This settlement does away with the necessity for litigation.

The following are the Customs decisions for the month of February:

Creolin, an antiseptic and disinfectant, 20 per cent.

Cotton wool, raw, dyed, not to include wadding, batting, bats or lowsters' wool, 20 per cent.

Iron, round rods, galvanized, 30 per cent.

Iron bars, galvanized, 30 per cent.

Ivory soap, 10 cents per pound and 10 per cent.

Preserved ginger, 1½ cents per pound and 35 percent.

Shells, marine, ground and broken, 20 per cent.

Syrup of phosphates of iron, lime, potatoes and soda, 25 per cent.

The New U. S. Cabinet.

Secretary of State—Mr. Blaine.
Secretary of Treasury—Mr. Windom.
Secretary of War—Mr. Proctor.
Secretary of Navy—Mr. Tracy.
Secretary of Interior—Mr. Noble.
Postmaster-General—Mr. Wanamaker.
Attorney General—Mr. Miller.
Secretary of Agriculture—Messrs. Rusk or Furnam.

General Boulanger at a reception which he gave to members of the Revisionist Committee and league of patriots yesterday, denounced M. Tirard for striking down the latter organization, which he said was a valiant phalanx that had rendered such service to the country as had awakened a sense of national dignity.

FIRES OF A DAY.

A Chatham Grocery Consumed—Building and Stock Heavily Insured.

CHATHAM, March 2.—The store owned and occupied by Thos. Snook & Son, grocers, in King-street, was completely gutted by fire about 11 o'clock Saturday night. The loss on building and stock will be total. It is impossible to give the amount at present. The building was insured for $3000 in the Citizens' and the stock in these companies: Phoenix of Brooklyn, $1500; Western, $2000; Caledonian, $2000; Scottish Union and National, $2000; Liverpool and London and Globe, $3000; National, $2000; Quebec, $1500. The front of George Stephens' hardware store adjoining was damaged about $250, covered by insurance in the Liverpool and London and Globe. The cause of the fire is unknown.

It Was Fire Proof.

ORILLIA, March 2.—Shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday morning an alarm was sounded for a fire in J. J. Hatley's pork packing house. The fire started in the engine room, but as the building is built fire proof only the interior is damaged. The loss is about $250, covered by insurance.

Lyman Sons & Co. Again Scorched.

MONTREAL, March 2.—A fire in the building belonging to Lyman Sons & Co., wholesale druggists, under reconstruction in St. Paul-street, took fire to-day and $5000 damage was done. Benny, MacPherson Company's hardware store adjoining was damaged to the extent of $400, covered by insurance.

A Steamer Destroyed.

ELIZABETHPORT, N.J., March 2.—This evening the steamboat Kill von Kull of the New Jersey Central Railroad took fire at her wharf here and was destroyed. Loss $75,000.

British Army Stores Burnt.

LONDON, March 2.—The Government's small arms stores at Weedon have been burned; loss, $500,000.

WINNIPEG WIRE WHISPERS.

WINNIPEG, March 2.—In the Legislature last night, the act guaranteeing $4,500,000 to the Hudson Bay Railway was repealed and a grant of a cash bonus of $3000 per mile up to 300 miles passed. The new grant is practically useless to the company, and was opposed by four Reformers.

The Real Property Act passed its third reading, but only three registration divisions will be established at present, with offices at Brandon, Portage and Winnipeg.

The Legislature prorogues Tuesday.

The Manitoba and Northwestern Railway have been notified by the Local Government that the act passed in 1886, by which the Government bound itself not to sell lands of the company which might fall into its hands under the guarantee act for less than $2½ per acre for a period of 25 years, will be repealed. The Government claims that the company is $100,000 in arrears for interest, and the province is losing $5000 annually interest on interest. The company is making a vigorous protest.

Andrew McNally, secretary of the Pioneer Knights of Labor, was killed at the Canadian Pacific Railway depot last night by a train, which started just as he was crawling under it. The remains were horribly mangled.

The Free Press has been repudiated by the Liberals of Morden. Government supporters are subscribing stock to start a newspaper.

Soft weather has made the ice almost unfit for the bonspiel which commences to-morrow.

Col. Irvine has returned from the far north and is in the hospital.

The Emerson International has suspended publication.

Flour has taken another rise of 25 cents per sack.

Edison's Narrow Escape.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Thomas A. Edison met with an accident last Saturday evening which for a time caused the gravest anxiety to his family. The details were carefully suppressed for a time, but a reporter visited Mr. Edison at his palatial home in Llewellyn Park last evening and obtained the facts.

The great inventor was busied in an intricate chemical analysis on Saturday afternoon and was treating the substances he was experimenting with in a mortar by adding a strong solution of nitric acid. The acid was slowly added, as Mr. Edison realized the danger of a too rapid union of the elements. During the process the mixture was kept constantly stirred. Without the slightest warning the mass suddenly exploded, shattering the mortar and scattering the contents about the room. The explosion was attended by a burst of flame from the ignition of the ingredients. The flame singed Mr. Edison's hair and eyebrows, and his face was pelted with the acid and other contents of the mortar, while a quantity of the acid struck his eyes. Despite the intense pain Mr. Edison ran across the room and plunged his face into a basin of water. This prompt action probably saved his eyesight. His face and burns were dressed and he went home. On Sunday the burns were painful, and it was feared that serious consequences would ensue. He has since improved steadily. Last evening he was in his accustomed state of health, a slight soreness of the eyes remaining.

Berlin Briefs.

BERLIN, March 2.—The recall from Samoa of the German consul has been promptly followed by the despatch of Stuebel, formerly Consul-General at Copenhagen, to replace him.

The Boisen Courier, adversely criticizing the increase in the German squadron in Samoan waters, asserts that the order for the despatch of the warships was not given through Bismarck but by superior authority.

The report that Count von Waldersee was about to retire arose from the overtures of Bismarck towards his acceptance of a high diplomatic post, stated to be Vienna in succession to Prince Henry of Reuss, upon whose discretion the Chancellor cannot reply. Von Waldersee declined placing himself within the grip of Bismarck and losing whatever hold his daily contact with the Emperor gives him.

Advices from St. Petersburg represent the Czar as incensed against Aitchinoff and as ordering his trial immediately on his arrival at Odessa. The Czar's anger extends to General Ignatieff, through whom the Slavonic societies supplied funds to Aitchinoff. General Balanoff, Governor of Novgorod and another noted Slav, is involved and is threatened with suspension from office.

The crisis in the relations between workmen and employers threatens to produce a general strike here. The severe weather, slack work and want of cohesion among the workmen have assisted employers in reducing wages.

The Irish Bishops' Lenten Pastorals.

LONDON, March 2.—Lenten pastoral letters from the bishops read to-day in Catholic churches in Ireland express sympathy with the Pope's position. They denounce both the action of the Italian Government regarding the Vatican and tyrannous government in Ireland. The letters also contain counsels from the bishops to their flocks against committing illegal acts.

Drowned in Conesus Lake.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., March 2.—A son and daughter of P. T. Adams of Livonia while crossing Conesus Lake in a sleigh Friday night drove into a hole where the ice had been removed. The young man jumped and was saved but the young lady and the horses were drowned. The body of the young lady has been recovered.

Railway Bonds Floated.

QUEBEC, March 2.—Mr. Beémer has successfully floated the Lake St. John Railway bonds in the English market. Ninety-six is said to be the figure obtained.

The Woodstock Mayoralty.

WOODSTOCK, March 2.—The quo warranto proceedings against the election of Mayor Karn have been dropped.

And the Earth Quaked.

HELENA, Ecuador, March 2.—A sharp shock of earthquake was felt here at 11.15 o'clock last night, lasting about 15 seconds. It was followed a few moments later by four others less violent. Several other shocks were felt during the night and the trouble still continues.

GUAYAQUIL, March 2.—A violent shock of earthquake occurred here at 11.05 o'clock last night. During the night and this morning 15 others less severe were felt. Clocks stopped, the telephones are down and panic prevails.

FOUND ON PIGOTT'S BODY.

A NOTE BOOK AND A LETTER FROM MR. LABOUCHERE.

The Significant Telegram Sent by the Forger to The Times' Dublin Solicitor—General Cable News.

LONDON, March 2.—Besides Pigott's cheque-book a letter addressed to Mr. Labouchere and a license to carry arms in Ireland were found on his body. The letter addressed to Mr. Labouchere says the first batch of letters sold by him to The Times were genuine but that in the second batch there were several forged letters, including two ascribed to Parnell and one each to Davitt, O'Kelly and Egan. Pigott further says: "I am deeply sorry for all those I have injured and am ready to place at their disposal all means in my power to remedy all that I have said that was false. Everything written under oath was true."

The license to carry a revolver was dated at Dublin. A cheque book of the Ulster Bank was also found on the body. Pigott tried to negotiate a cheque at a Madrid bank, but in the absence of proof of his identity the bank refused to cash it. A note book full of interesting notes was also found.

The body lies with four others in the morgue. The dead man's beard is stiff with blood. The bullet entered the mouth and came out at the back of the head near the neck on the right side. The body will be photographed to-morrow and will be buried Tuesday, after it has been identified by a British detective. The British embassy at Madrid has given orders for a decent burial.

What Had "S" Promised?

LONDON, March 2.—This telegram Pigott sent from Madrid on Tuesday to Mr. Soames' office in this city, was addressed to Mr. Shannon, The Times' Dublin solicitor. It read as follows:

Please ask Mr. "S." to send me what you promised. Write. ROLAND PONSONBY.
Hotel des Ambassadeurs, Madrid.

Mr. Balfour Was Warned.

LONDON, March 2.—Archbishop Walsh of Dublin has sent a telegram to Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary of State, instancing the case of Pigott as proving that the Parnellites have been misrepresented to the Vatican.

It is stated that a Fenian in Paris is prepared to divulge the source of the first batch of the Parnell letters.

Mr. MacLean, a Conservative member of Parliament, says that Mr. Balfour warned The Times a year ago that Pigott was unreliable.

Parnell Grasps a Great Opportunity.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Mr. Smalley in his cable from London to The Sunday Tribune says, with reference to the speech of Mr. Parnell on Friday night: The House of Commons received him last night with such a demonstration as perhaps never before was offered to a member who had never held a great office of State. Mr. Gladstone himself led the cheering, which lasted for many minutes—a scene of tumultuous enthusiasm. Mr. Parnell alone stood unmoved, pale, impassive; all ice amid the general flame. He spoke for twenty minutes in his usual tone, without one word of allusion to himself or to his victory.

So much for his personal demeanor. But his speech may mark a new departure in Home Rule. He is a politician who sees that moments like this are to be used, not to enhance but to modify his demands. He has at last the ear of the people of England, and his first word to them is one of conciliation and concession. "We ask," said Mr. Parnell, "that Ireland shall have the power of dealing with all those matters which concern herself and herself alone,"—he has said that before, but he now adds, with singular emphasis—"without the slightest shadow of danger or risk to the interests of the Empire." Then he goes on:

> All I ask is that you on your side should be willing to consider and deal with this question as if it were an open question: that you should consider how far you can give to Ireland the right to legislate for herself with safety to your own greater and undoubtedly more overpowering influences. It is legitimate and right that we, being the smaller country, should endeavor to conciliate you in every possible manner, to yield to you, and to agree to such safeguards as you may think necessary or desirable for the security of your own interests.

Such words as these open, or may open, a new future for Ireland and England. They are doubly significant, coming at such a crisis as this. They will be taken to mean that Mr. Parnell is now willing to approach Home Rule from the English point of view, if they on their side will give a fair hearing to the Irish view. He says expressly that it is an open question. He even appeals to the English to regard it as an open question. It is as if Mr. Parnell had said: "Let us begin over again. Let us try together to find a solution acceptable to both."

I shall perhaps be acquitted of over-readiness to praise Mr. Parnell, but if I understand rightly what he now proposes, I should say that no leader ever seized a great opportunity in a more statesmanlike spirit. If the English will meet him half-way, if on both sides a spirit of reason, of prudence, and of compromise, which Burke called the essence of politics, shall prevail, this eternal Irish question may cease to be eternal.

The Police at Clonmel Stoned.

DUBLIN, March 2.—Dr. Tanner, member of Parliament for Cork, arrested in London Friday, arrived at Clonmel early this morning. Tanner refused to enter the prison wagon whereupon three constables forced him in and held him on the seat. A crowd followed the wagon groaning and throwing stones at the police, both before and after the prison was reached. Six persons were arrested but were liberated.

A Vote of Confidence.

PARIS, March 2.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday M. Laguerre asked the Government to explain its prosecution of the Patriotic League and why he had not been included with those who were prosecuted. M. Tirard justified the measure. The Government, he said, would not falter before the intrigues and threats of the enemies of the republic. M. Tirard's remarks were greeted with applause. M. Thevenet, Minister of Justice, contended that the arrest of the leaders of the league was legal. He stigmatized the league as a hypocritical association whose real object was to raise one man to power. When justice required the prosecution of M. Laguerre he would be prosecuted.

M. Laguerre said an unruer moved an order of the day condemning the prosecution of the league. The motion was rejected and the Chamber by a vote of 348 to 220 approved an order expressing confidence in the energy of the government.

The Pope's 79th Birthday.

ROME, March 2.—Yesterday was the 79th anniversary of the birth of the Pope. He received a number of cardinals, who tendered their congratulations. The Pope replying to the cardinals said it was impossible for him in the present position of the papacy to perform his duties as the head of the church in an independent manner. He complained of the delay in the granting of the royal exequatur to the Italian bishops [illegible] appointments were subject to scrutiny. He referred to the oppression of the new penal code and the suppression of the funds of the fraternities. His Holiness was in splendid health and spoke vigorously.

Hydrophobia Brains.

Anrep, has succeeded in extracting from the brains and marrow of rabid rabbits [illegible] of an extremely poisonous character. The contradictory behavior of this [illegible] in great and small doses is singular. When given in small doses only does it give rise to symptoms of hydrophobia.

[illegible] Breaks the Record.

THE BIG TIMBER LIMIT CASE.

A Settlement—The Peterborough Syndicate Get the Limits.

The case of Scott vs. Benedict, which occupied the attention of Justice Street, at Toronto, from Feb. 26th until March 2nd, was settled by the parties to the suit on Saturday evening, the settlement arrived at giving the plaintiff the right to redeem and thus giving the limits to the Peterborough syndicate which had purchased them from the plaintiff.

The timber limits in question are situated in the townships of Anstruther, Cavendish and Harvey, in this county. They include about 140 square miles, and the lowest valuation put on them by the witnesses examined in Toronto was $300,000 and the highest $1,000,000.

The late W. A. Scott, who at one time carried on a large business here, was the owner of the limits. He gave a mortgage on them to Benedict, the Albany lumberman, in December, 1871. The property formerly belonged to Walter Scott, the father of W. A. Scott, and when the mortgage was given there was a balance due Walter Scott of $27,000. The Scott family brought action to have their claim made a first lien on the property. This action was carried to the Supreme Court, and that court decided that Benedict's claim had precedence and that Scott had the right of redemption.

Afterwards the Rathbun Company authorized Mr. J. B. McWilliams to give the Scott family $15,000 for their interest in the property. Shortly after Benedict had an execution issued for back costs. The execution was placed in the hands of the sheriff and the Scott interest was offered for sale for a small sum. Mr. McWilliams attended and forbid the sale, and it was adjourned. Thomas Scott being notified, he applied to Chief Justice Wilson and had the execution set aside on the ground that Benedict had no claim on them.

Mr. McWilliams made an examination of the limits and found them valuable, and he and Messrs Geo. A. Cox and T. G. Hazlitt decided to purchase and made a bargain with Thomas A. Scott. Benedict set up the claim that he was the owner of the limits and not a mortgagee. This was the case that went to court on Feb. 26th, the plaintiff, Thomas A. Scott, claiming the right to redeem and also that W. A. Scott was of unsound mind when the mortgage was given. The case was entered in the fall of 1887, and the hearing occupied ten days, when a settlement was arrived at. By the settlement Scott, the plaintiff, abandoned the contention of lunacy and Benedict acknowledged the right to redeem, and each side pays its own costs. An agreement was signed by the parties that does away with any further litigation, and this case, which in its different forms had been so long before the courts and brought many fat fees to lawyers, will drop out of sight.

The fight was a hard one, as the plaintiff and the Peterborough syndicate had two wealthy firms to contend with in Benedict and the Rathbun Company of Deseronto. The costs were heavy, the number of witnesses being large and the best legal talent of the country being engaged. On the plaintiff's side there were the Hon. O. Mowat, Attorney General, W. R. Meredith, Q. C., Bain, Q. C., Poussette, Q. C., Watson and Langton, and for the defendants, Hon. E. Blake, Q. C., Hon. S. H. Blake, Q. C., B. B. Osler, Q. C., C. Moss, Q. C., Barwick and Wickham. The syndicate is entitled to credit for the successful fight they made and Mr. A. P. Poussette, who gave a great deal of time and attention to the case, largely shares the credit.

If arrangements can be made for mills to cut the lumber here, as will probably be done, the result of the suit will be a good thing for the town, and there is said to be timber on the limits to keep mills going for twenty years.

The Toronto Empire, speaking of the settlement, says:—"The Dixon Lumber Co., of Peterborough, which has been backing the plaintiff throughout all the proceedings in this action, is by agreement of the parties to be substituted for the plaintiff in the judgment of the court. Their arrangements with the plaintiff are, of course, a matter of agreement between the plaintiff and themselves.

"There are several minor terms and conditions inserted in the minutes of judgment agreed upon, but the main features of the result are indicated with sufficient exactness above. The only portions of the timber limits in dispute which the plaintiff does not obtain are those in the township of Sherborne and timber already cut by the Rathbun Company. The whole of the $275,000 is to be paid into the Canadian Bank of Commerce on or before the 1st of June next to the joint credit of the defendants E. G. Benedict and the Rathbun Company, and in default of such payment the action is dismissed with costs. The timber limits in the township of Sherborne remain the property of Messrs. M. Boyd & Co. As regards all the defendants the action is dismissed without costs in case the plaintiff complies with the conditions of the decree for redemption. The negotiations for the settlement lasted the whole day and it was almost six o'clock when Mr. Justice Street was called in to give judicial sanction to the agreement arrived at."

THE BISHOPS IN TORONTO.

A Happy Reunion—The Students Present an address to their Lordships.

Last week the Bishops of London, Kingston, Hamilton and Peterborough visited St. Michael's College, Toronto. The Irish Canadian says:—"It must have been a happy reunion between Bishops Dowling and O'Connor and the college, in which they had received the thorough training which led them upward to the priesthood, and still higher to the Episcopate; and the rolls of St. Michael's, bearing as they do the names of many who have attained the front rank in the learned professions, will ever preserve theirs as graceful tributes to the scholarly zeal of its Faculty."

During their visit to the College the students presented their Lordships with an address, two clauses of which were as follows:—"We take the earliest opportunity of offering our congratulations to he Bishop-elect of Peterborough, Mgr. O'Connor. Your life as a student of this house has often been held up to us for our imitation, and your continued interest in every succeeding generation, your annual donation of a medal for the advancement of study, and your generosity to the church of St. Basil are the repeated expressions of your loyal devotion to your alma mater. We wish your Lordship long life, continued health and abundant graces in the exalted station to which, we rejoice, you have been raised.

"We are glad to welcome to our midst your Lordship the Bishop-elect of Hamilton. Being the first of the former students of St. Michael's raised to the purple, we have a special reason for looking upon you with pride, while the interest you, like Bishop O'Connor, have taken in the course of studies here, as well as your high literary attainment, renders you the creditor of our gratitude and a model for our guidance."

The Bishops each replied to the address in suitable terms. Bishop O'Connor remained for dinner, when his health was proposed and honored, and His Lordship replied in a happy speech.

He is a great student of human nature, and discovered the original of "Susan" at Huntsville, a pretty little town in north Alabama, during a southern trip several years ago. Some of the other characters have living originals. 1d54

Fatality Among Horses.

The Minden Echo says:—"The Dickson Lumbering Co. of Peterborough, had the misfortune to lose a valuable team by drowning a few days since, and on Sunday last two more valuable young horses died from the effects of a distemper that seems to be very prevalent this winter. In all the lumber shanties in this locality, we learn that quite a number of the horses owned by the above company are laid up with the disease, and that Mr. Beatty, veterinary surgeon, of Peterborough, is now attending them. We hope the fatality will be stayed under Mr. Beatty's skillful treatment."

Horse Owners' Agreement.

A meeting of stallion owners took place at the Balmoral House on Saturday afternoon when the following was the result of discussion:—

We, the undersigned horse owners, agree to do away with insurance and use our horses by the season at reduced rates. All payments to be due on the first of November of each and every year.

Messrs. W. H. Hill, W. Thompson and R. A. Hamilton returned yesterday morning from Montreal, where they attended the annual meeting of the Sun Life Assurance company. The past year of the company's business was the most successful in its history financially, and so far in 1889 its success has been ahead of any previous year. The Central Ontario agency, of which Mr. W. H. Hill is manager, is to be enlarged, and Mr. Hill will have larger scope for his energy and business talent.

REVIEWS.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.—The Century for March reaches well the high standard which is maintained by this excellent periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the Grand Lama of the Trans-Baikal, from a photograph given to George Kennan in exchange for his own. The only other visit to this special Grand Lama by a foreigner, so far as is known, was that of Dr. Erman, nearly sixty years before the date of Mr. Kennan's visit. Mr. Kennan's article describes an interesting and amusing episode of his Siberian tour. In fiction there is begun a three-part story by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, entitled "The Last Assembly Ball: A Pseudo-Romance of the Far West." Mr. Edwards, tells a story in a new vein, and without dialect, and Mr. Janvier in "The Correspondence of Mr. Miles Grogan," gives a study of the progress of a New York politician from a liquor saloon to a residence in Montreal. "The History of Alix de Morainville" is another "Strange True Story," edited by Mr. Cable. In the same number of the Century Mrs. van Rensselaer and Mr. Pennell present the history and appearance of old "York Cathedral" just at the time when the plans of a cathedral for New York are being decided upon. In the series of "Old Italian Masters" Mr. Stillman writes about Gaddo and Taddeo Gaddi, and Mr. Cole engraves "Music," by Taddeo Gaddi. In Charles de Kay's illustrated Irish Series "Christian Ireland" is the subject for this month. The fifth of Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote's pictures of the Far West is entitled "The Choice of Reuben and Gad," and Mr. Charles Barnard tells of "Something Electricity is Doing." In the same category of special timeliness should be mentioned a curious article on "The Use of Oil to Still the Waves," by Lieutenant W. H. Beehler, of the Office of Naval Intelligence, United States Navy Department. The present installment of the Life of Lincoln is entitled "The Edict of Freedom," and completes the story of Emancipation. "Rules of the House of Representatives" is an able article of timely interest. The number also contains other and excellent matter.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for March contains articles on a great variety of subjects, from the practical questions of the Railway Mail Service to the subtilties of Economy in Mental Work, with an abundance of good fiction and papers on topics of contemporary interest—several of them richly illustrated in a manner sustaining the reputation made by this Magazine for strong and original art work.

Thomas L. James, Postmaster-General in Garfield's cabinet, and now President of the Lincoln National Bank, New York, writes of the "Railway Mail Service." This paper contains a concise history of the evolution of mail carrying, and a graphic account of the work done on the most important mail trains in the country, with a tribute to the skill and dexterity of the corps of trained mail clerks. The elaborate illustrations are by Herbert Denman, who was afforded special opportunities to sketch the picturesque features of the Fast Mail.

"The Master of Ballantrae," Robert Louis Stevenson's exciting romance of adventure, has now reached an important crisis in the development of the plot. This remarkable serial was begun in November, 1888, and will continue through the greater part of the current year.

The End Paper, which is a feature of the Magazine, is this month contributed by Henry James, who writes "An Animated Conversation" (in dialogue form) between several Englishmen and Americans who casually meet in a London hotel. They discuss lightly, and with wit and satire, some interesting social topics from the international point of view.

William F. Apthorp, the musical critic, describes some of the most important of "Wagner's Heroes and Heroines." The illustrations are from photographs of prominent personators of the parts.

Under the title "A German Rome," Professor W. B. Scott, of Princeton, describes the little-known German city of Treves, which was the capital of a large part of the Roman world for more than a century. The many illustrations are from photographs of the author's collection. Other and able papers make up a very satisfactory number.

Eight "Good" Indians.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 2.—News has just reached here from Okeechobee of a bloody affray among the Seminole Indians in the Everglades. "Jim," a young buck, went crazy and with a Winchester rifle started on the warpath through the camp and settlement. He first sent a bullet through the brain of "Wankee Micco," chief of the Miamis, killing him instantly. He next killed "Old Tiger." "Young Tiger," a son of "Old Tiger" and probably the finest Seminole living, physically, stepped out of his wigwam just in time to see his father drop to the ground a corpse, and with a blood-curdling war whoop he sprang on the maniac and a hand-to-hand fight for the possession of the rifle followed. Tiger was the superior in strength but was at the wrong end of the gun and before he could wrest it from his antagonist he was shot dead. The maniac then killed two papooses of his sister and attacked bucks, squaws and children indiscriminately. He was finally cornered and shot dead by "Billy," another Seminole brave. In less than half an hour eight Indians were killed.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND QUEENS W

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 12 pieces of solveres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,000 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

Mr. Hudspeth, M.P., waited on Sir John Macdonald on Friday and urged the construction of a dry dock at Bobcaygeon. He expressed the hope that a sum to cover the cost would be placed in the supplementary estimates.

A Meeting To-Morrow Night.

A meeting of the local branch of the Irish National League will be held to-morrow evening in the Murray-st. school for the purpose of completing arrangements for the celebration of the 17th of March, St. Patrick's Day.

Rice Lake Bushed.

The road across Rice lake was maked on Thursday of last week by Mr. H. Merriam, of Harwood, and by this means those unacquainted with the good and bad parts of the ice can go safely across. Mr. Merriam has done this service several years, under the direction of the municipal authorities, and seems to possess the same facility in finding a weak spot in the ice as he does in locating a deer or other game.

For the Last Time.

"Laboring John" Sullivan made his appearance at the Police Court once again this morning, although on the occasion of his last visit to see the Magistrate he was most positive that that would be his last appearance. This morning he again earnestly pleaded for another chance. "If you get me here again, why give me two years" said John, and the Magistrate let him go.

The production of Gillette's "Held by the Enemy," at Peterborough, on Monday, March 11, will be a notable event in many ways. It is to be produced with all the original New York scenery and effects, and the same company which opened Palmer's Theatre under Mr. Palmer's own management. 1d54

Thieves Thieving.

Last evening while Mr. and Mrs. John Macpherson were absent from their residence on Stewart-st. attending church some unknown sneak thief effected an entrance to the house and carried away numerous articles. The thief or thieves were not evidently up to their business as they only took a clock, some bedding and clothing and did not touch any of the silverware or jewellery which they could have found without difficulty. It is thought that one of the doors was left unfastened by mistake and that entrance was gained in this way.

A Midnight Visit.

On Sunday morning between twelve and one o'clock in the morning Chief Roszel and two constables raided a house of ill-repute on Elm-st., and brought to the cells two inmates, Annie Moore and Frances St. Clair. No frequenters were found in the place, but yesterday afternoon after a hot chase Constable McGinty arrested a young man by the name of W. Sanderson who was wanted as a frequenter. This morning a most deplorable state of anxiety to hear the trial of the poor miserable specimens of humanity was evidenced by about five hundred men and boys who fought desperately with one another in their efforts to gain admittance to the court room. However, Police Magistrate Dumble cleared the court of every person except the witnesses. The two bedraibled looking females pleaded guilty to the charge and after giving them some kind advice and promising to have some ladies look after them when they came out, the Magistrate sentenced them to thirty days in gaol. The Moore girl seemed to be very repentant and promised to reform. She said she was from Buckhorn while her companion was from England. Sanderson was proven to be a frequenter and was fined $20 or thirty days. His fine was paid.

THE TWO EVANGELISTS

REV. MESSRS. CROSSLEY AND HUNTER OPEN THEIR SERVICES.

Services by Each of the Rev. Gentlemen in the Morning—Prayer and How to Pray—An Immense Joint Meeting in the Evening in George-st.—Four Characters of Men—Notes.

The two noted and most successful evangelists, Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, of whose labors in other places and the results thereof so much has lately been heard, arrived in town on Saturday evening. This visit of the evangelists has been much talked of and eagerly anticipated for several months past by those who have the spiritual welfare of the community at heart. What may be called the opening services of the revival were held yesterday, under the most bright and encouraging circumstances—the day being one of the finest and the services at which these gentlemen officiated being attended by immense crowds.

Rev. Mr. Crossley at St. Paul's.

An immense congregation filled every pew in St. Paul's church yesterday morning to hear the opening address of Rev. Mr. Crossley. The rev. gentleman is a very earnest speaker and, although his voice is not remarkable for strength, or his expostulations too emphatic, still he holds the undivided attention of his auditors. After a few words of introduction and asking the prayers of the congregation for blessing in the services which they were opening here, the evangelist chose for his text the words:—

"The fervent and effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much."—James 4.16.

In opening the rev. gentleman said that with reference to revivals there were four classes of persons. First, there were those who thought everything depended upon work and human instrumentality. These were half right and half wrong. Then there was another class who said "Lord it is Thy work" and neglected to think of human instrumentality. These were also half right and half wrong. The third class were those who spoke of God as a Sovereign Being and thought everything depended on God's sovereignty and that human instrumentality was of no avail. These were entirely wrong. Then there was another class who believed in human instrumentality and prayer to the Lord. These were all right and this was the class he wanted them all to belong to. If persons prayed, the rev. gentleman said, in the right way all would be well, and that was the reason he had taken prayer as his subject that morning at the opening of the services here. The text told them the Lord heard prayer, and he said prayer was simply talking to God. Some people asked how God could hear and answer prayer. If this would explain how they talked through a telephone and received answer then he would explain how God

HEARD AND ANSWERED PRAYER.

There was an unseen wire between earth and Heaven and running through the universe there was a great telephonic connection between earth and Heaven and that God heard their prayers and answered them, had no more mystery in it than there was in the telephone. People objected to prayer, saying that God knew what they wanted without asking, but he pointed out that the very ground of prayer was God's willingness to hear and His immutability to answer. He referred to the use of the word remarkable in reference to answers to prayers and said the word should be dispelled from connection with prayer. In the text two conditions were specified in order that prayer would be heard. The first was that they were righteous and second was that the prayer should be fervent. Fervent meant inwrought or inbreathed and this was the kind of prayer that was effectual. Prayer always assumed one of three forms—the desire of faith, the agony of faith, or the assurance of faith. They all might have this kind of prayer if they would first open their hearts to hear God's words, and secondly open their minds so that God might impress them and breathe prayer into their hearts and they then breathe it out to Him. They were not to take any special one into their minds for prayer, but should leave their mind open and let the Lord speak and then as he put the desire into their hearts they would breathe it out to Him in prayer and they would receive the answer, for the prayer of the righteous availeth much. This was not the only law of prayer, but was a special law which particularly applied to revivals. He then gave several instances in which the prayers of teachers, parents and pastors had been answered, and closed with a word to the unsaved and urged all to pray in the manner of the text.

The Morning at George-st.

There was a large congregation at the George-st. Methodist church at the morning service, which was conducted by Rev. J. E. Hunter. After the opening exercises Mr. Hunter read and commented on part of the 21st chapter of Revelations, pointing out that in this world there was the night of suffering, the night of sorrow, the night of affliction and the night of death, but in heaven there would be no night and the Lamb would be the light thereof.

Rev. Mr. PEARSON said he believed the time of the coming of the evangelists was providential. He believed this was the right time for them to come—the time that God wanted them to come, and that the services would be greatly blessed.

PRAY ONE FOR ANOTHER.

Mr. HUNTER took his text from James v., 16:—"Pray one for another." He said this was an appropriate text for the beginning their services. God had promised to give them all things that they asked for, with the one proviso, if they would be good for them. A great many "said" prayers, but they should get the idea that prayer was talking to God. He was learning more and more that God gave him what was good for him. God often answered prayer by no as well as by yes. A child might fancy a sharp tool or poison and cry for it, but the wise parent would not give it to the child. He knew what was best for it, and in withholding it the child's request was

MORE THAN ANSWERED.

God never withheld a request but He granted a greater blessing. He always answered prayer. Delays were not denials. Their prayers were not always answered in the way they expected, but he always gave more than they asked. How they remembered the one who first taught them to pray and the sermons that first aroused them! God called people in different ways—in prosperity, in adversity, in affliction, and if these calls were ineffectual he came with the angel of death. It was the Christian's duty and privilege to pray for others in whom they were interested. They might have prayed for years for the conversion of a friend, but they should have faith in God and pray without ceasing, and God would answer their prayer. Christian wives should take hold of God with one hand and of their husbands with the other. Many had been praying for their boys and girls, and God had seen their tears and would answer their prayers. The prayers of mothers had been answered even after they had passed to the tomb. He appealed to unconverted children of praying parents to come to God. If they needed encouragement to pray they would find it in the Grand Old Book. If they would have faith they would see the conversion of their husbands and children and hundreds upon hundreds in this town. He urged them to pray for a revival to get into Gethsemane with Jesus, and pray that Peterborough would be given to Jesus.

The sermon was illustrated by the relation of incidents of a pathetic character, many of which came personally under the notice of the preacher, and they were related in a way that made clear the point and also affected his hearers.

At the conclusion of the sermon a few minutes were devoted to silent prayer for unconverted husbands and children.

The Afternoon Meeting.

In the afternoon a meeting for Christian workers was conducted by Messrs. Crossley and Hunter in the Charlotte-st. Church. The church was crowded. The evangelists addressed the meeting and Rev. Mr. Crossley sang. Rev. Mr. Hunter in his address solicited the prayers of Christians for a blessing in their work and said he did not intend to ask them for their help as he and Mr. Crossley had only came to Peterborough to help the Christian workers in their revival. About one hundred requests were put in for special prayer by persons who were anxious about friends or members of their families. The meeting was of an organizing or preparatory nature.

THE EVENING SERVICES.

A Grand Opening of the Joint Services of the two Evangelists.

Every seat had one more occupant than it was intended to hold, the aisles were filled, the gallery was packed and the platform was crowded in the George-st. Church last evening by an audience which, perhaps, was never before equalled in numbers in the town. A regular procession set in for the church shortly after half past six and by ten minutes to seven standing room was obtainable only on the outside. It was a grand opening of the services which are to be conducted by the two evangelists conjointly.

THE OPENING.

Rev. Mr. Hunter offered the opening prayer, after which the immense congregation joined in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Rev. Mr. Crosley sang "The Handwriting on the Wall" and then his fellow evangelist asked the audience to bow their heads in a few minutes silent prayer for a number of persons who had sent in requests.

The lesson for the evening was read by Rev. Mr. Hunter and was taken from the fifth chapter of Luke.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER then made a short address of an introductory nature, in which he spoke of their services elsewhere, and invited everyone to attend their week meetings and hoped that all would be blessed by them. He did not want the people to criticize their manner of conducting their meetings, nor did he want any whispering or laughing during the services.

FOUR CHARACTERS.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY sang in a most touching manner the hymn, "Papa, Come This Way."

The rev. gentleman then said that he proposed to speak of four different characters, all of which were referred to in the first verse of the first Psalm—"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful,"—the ungodly, the sinner, the scorner and the happy Christian man. First, he said, there was the ungodly man. This, in these days, was known as the moral man. There were a great many who had the name of moralists who did not deserve it. A moralist was not a drunkard or one who would cheat his brother, but was a man who was supposed to live an exemplary life. There was a great difference between the Christian and the moralist. Morality related to time and Christianity to eternity. Morality taught the duties of man to his fellow creatures, but Christianity taught, not only man's duties to his fellows, but his duty to God. There was as much difference between morality and Christianity as there was between bank currency and bank gold. Here in Peterborough bank currency was worth as much as gold, but in France, for instance, gold was worth much more than our currency here. So it was with morality and Christianity. Here in Peterborough a moral person might be respected and held in high esteem, but when he went to the other country he would find himself bankrupt before the eternal throne. But if he had the gold he would be respected as much in society and get along as well in business here, and when he would pass over the sea and reach the land without a storm he would find that he was worth as much and probably had computed his wealth too low. If they were going to stay in Peterborough all the time and if this world was all he might only urge them to live morally, but when in a few short days or years they would go to a land where morality was not a saving grace he must implore them to live to God. The set phrase of the moralist, he said, was

"WHAT'S THE HARM?"

Christians would never adopt that phrase, but were always saying "What's the good?" Moralists said, "What's the harm in a social glass?" The Christians said "What's the good?" The moral man would say "What's the harm in a game of cards?" or "What's the harm in a parlor dance? I don't believe in balls, but just the little parlor dance." The Christian looked at these things and couldn't see any good in them and turned and followed after that which was pure and good. The moralist should change his cry to "What's the good?" The rev. gentleman after singing an appropriate hymn passed on to the second character, "he who standeth in the way of sinners. Who were sinners? The sinner was the man who lived in open sin. There were drunkard sinners, licentious sinners and sinners of a thousand different kinds. A sinner did not see his own badness, but got familiar with his own and only saw the sins of others. He was less of a hypocrite than the moralist. The moralists talked of hypocrisy, yet every one of them was a hypocrite. The sinner was a worse man than the moralist, for while the latter covered his shortcomings, the former was so bad that he gloried in his shame but was easier to reach because he was more easily convinced of his sin. Those who stood in the way of sinners were the persons who were associating with sinners, those who were living inconsistently before their families and the world, the moralist, the backslider and one sinner was standing in the way of another. He then sang "Sinner, the Saviour is calling for you" and proceeded to the third character. "Blessed is the man who sitteth not in the seat of the sinner." This meant those who were and included all who made fun of religion. A man might be a sinner and not make fun of religion, but he had heard moral men and women say "Did you hear the news—so-and-so is getting weak kneed," or "so and-so stood up at the meeting last night." Nothing led to skepticism as quickly as jesting. While a man had a reverence for the house of God, the religion of his mother and sacred things there was hope for him, but when he got so that he talked flippantly of sacred things then there was little ground to work upon. One who sat calmly down in the seat of the scorner was desperately far gone. The last character the rev. gentleman spoke of was the happy man, whose delight was in the law of the Lord. He said a great many Christians were caricatures on religion. They would draw a long face and talk of their sea of troubles, their trials and temptations and were keeping other persons from being Christians. He went on to speak of the Christian's happy death and closed with an earnest appeal to the audience to so live that they might die the happy death of the righteous.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER then earnestly exhorted the unsaved to seek salvation and offered up an earnest prayer. He invited all those who felt inclined to remain to the after meeting.

During the singing of a hymn those who wished were allowed to leave, while quite a number remained to the after meeting.

NOTES.

The singing by the St. Paul's choir yesterday morning was unusually good.

Afternoon services are to be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. On Tuesday it will be in the Baptist Church.

Rev. Mr. Crossley sings well and sings often, or at least he did last night. He has a good voice and sings with great feeling.

There will be a different subject taken up at each service every night. On Tuesday and Thursday nights Rev. Mr. Crossley will give a song sermon.

The evangelists met the choirs of the different churches in the Y.M.C.A. rooms on Saturday night and arranged for the singing throughout the services.

In his introductory remarks at the George-st. church last evening Rev. Mr. Hunter was speaking of the great success of services elsewhere and said that he had received a letter from Belleville, where they had had much success, in which his friends stated that they intended to run a special train to Peterborough during the services.

DR. KINCAID GONE.

Owing to Financial Difficulties He Suddenly Leaves Town.

For some time past Dr. R. Kincaid, ex-M P.P., has been in financial difficulties. Although he had a very large practice and accumulated property, of late years his affairs have gone behind, and a farm he owned south of the town and his other property was covered with a mortgage. A couple of years ago he consolidated his debts and gave a mortgage for $16,000, and made an effort to retrieve his position. It seems, however, that he was unable to do so, although his reputation as a physician was good, and rather than remain and face the difficulties, and see his property taken, he has departed from town. This resolution seems to have been suddenly come to, or at any rate was acted on promptly, as his family were informed of it shortly before he left. On Saturday night he packed his valise and yesterday morning, accompanied by his son Kenneth, he took the early train.

It is not known where the doctor has gone. Surprise was expressed when his departure became known, as though his friends knew he was financially involved they did not expect such a turn of affairs. There are various estimates of the amount of his indebtedness, but the mortgage is known of and there is besides considerable of his paper floating, backed by various persons. His son expressed the opinion that the assets are of sufficient value to offset the liabilities.

THE PETERBOROUGH CENTRAL.

A Meeting of the Directors—The Date of the Spring Show Changed.

A meeting of the Agricultural Society was held at the Morgan House on Saturday afternoon, President Rutherford in the chair. There were present Messrs. Collins (secretary), Fair, Morgan, Tully, Fitzgerald, Matchett, Elliott and Baptie. It was decided to change the date of the spring show from April 13th to April 27th, and Mr. Elliott was appointed gatekeeper at the show. The President gave a verbal report of the proceedings of the special meeting of the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions at Toronto.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

The matter of the fixing of the date of the Peterborough Central Exhibition came up and after some discussion a resolution was passed to the effect that the exhibition be held on the three days from September 24th to the 27th, and the secretary was instructed to write the directors of the Bay of Quinte District Exhibition at Belleville asking them to change the date of their show, which is on the same days—Sept 24-27. It appears that the Peterborough directors waited, according to the rules of the Association, for the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions to fix the dates of all the exhibitions at their recent meeting in Toronto but it seems that Belleville with several other places had fixed their dates without waiting for the Association's meeting and refused to change the days of their show. In view of this fact the Association did not fix the dates of any of the exhibitions, but left them to their own choice. The Peterborough directors now want the Belleville men to change their date to Oct. 2nd, 3rd and 4th, which is the same as the Port Perry show, but with which the Quinte Exhibition would not interfere owing to the distance between the two places.

The directors adjourned to meet at the grounds on the morning of the spring show, April 27th.

MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1889.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

It is surprising how accession to or contact with great wealth smooths our path. For many weeks Mrs. Antrobus had been in a complete quandary about Lord Charterhouse, not knowing whether it would be best to call upon his bride or leave it alone; yet one afternoon when she was calling upon Mrs. Trafford and the Charterhouses were announced, Mrs. Antrobus was more than equal to the occasion, which was certainly just as well, for little "Mr. Winks" turned as white as chalk, and his knees fairly knocked together as if he had met with his death blow.

Polly was not there. Mrs. Antrobus sat in a fat mass upon a sofa, like a queen upon a throne, and received Lord Charterhouse's deprecating greeting with the blandest and most charitable smile in the world.

"Oh! How do you do, Lord Charterhouse?" she began. "I am so charmed to see you. Pray introduce me to your wife."

And then she apologized for not having called upon Lady Charterhouse long before.

"The fact is," she explained to Mrs. Trafford's intense amusement, "I have been to stay with my daughter who lives in town. Poor child, she is very young, and I have to go and look after her now and then."

"I hope she is well," said Mrs. Trafford, politely, while "Mr. Winks" gave a murmur, which he meant for an inquiry after the Antrobus family in general.

"Oh, quite well, thanks. Very much delighted at her sister's engagement, of course," returned she, more blandly still.

"Oh!—is Miss Antrobus"—began Lord Charterhouse, then stopped short and sat staring at the stout lady on the sofa with all his soul in his eyes.

"Yes, Polly is going to be married immediately," replied Mrs. Antrobus, complacently, as if the match was entirely of her making and she had a right to be proud of it.

"Indeed! No—I—I—had not heard of it," returned the wretched "Mr. Winks" with a stammer which would have betrayed him to his wife had not she just at that moment been talking to Mrs. Trafford, who, by the bye, contrived to keep one eye and one ear open, so that nothing passing between "Mr. Winks" and Mrs. Antrobus might escape her.

"Really, that is surprising," returned Mrs. Antrobus, in quite a patronizing air of indulgence for his ignorance. "I thought every one knew it."

In truth it was not at all surprising that he had not heard of it, for he had been on the sick list for ten days past owing to a kick from a horse, and this was the first time he had been out. True, several officers of his own and the Blankshire regiment had been to see him since he had been laid by, but not one of them had quite liked to mention Polly Antrobus in Lady Charterhouse's presence, or as they already called her among themselves, "Mrs. Winks."

"No; I had not heard. I have been laid up. I—I—got kicked by a horse the other day. And Miss Antrobus is going to be married? I hope she will be very happy."

He looked at the stout and complacent old lady with a wistfulness which would have touched the heart of any woman less taken up with her own wordly importance. Mrs. Trafford saw it, and pitied the little lord profoundly; but Mrs. Antrobus perceived nothing, and babbled blandly on.

"Oh, yes—yes—it is quite an ideal marriage in every way."

Little "Mr. Winks" fairly writhed. If he could only have got away; but as they had just come in he could not in decency signal to his wife that he wanted to be moving on. Even had they come before Mrs. Antrobus, he did not know that signaling to Nell would have the very smallest effect. He had tried it several times, but without success, for Nell, with her gay, bright, breezy manner, and her outspoken unconventional spirit, had not noticed his signals of distress.

Meantime, Mrs. Antrobus had changed her seat, and to "Mr. Winks'" horror and dismay had established herself on the very sofa upon which Lady Charterhouse was sitting.

He watched the two in an agony of dread, no less, for he knew Mrs. Antrobus and he knew Nell, and was desperately afraid of them both. In a way, afraid of them apart—and together! well then his fear amounted to agony—to agony.

He watched the two in an agony of dread.

But he could see, and he saw that his wife and Mrs. Antrobus were sitting very close together with their heads or bonnets, or whatever they were, almost touching one another, and he guessed by the oily smile on Mrs. Antrobus' fat face and the satisfied nodding of her head and the outspreading of her broad fingers, that she was fairly set going on the subject of Polly's engagement! And oh! what a sigh he gave when his thoughts got there—a sigh so big and full of regret that Mrs. Trafford said in her most tender and sympathetic manner, "Is your knee very painful, Lord Charterhouse?"

DOWN AMONG THE FISHES.

HOW OUR NAVY LOOKED AFTER THE TOOTHSOME MACKEREL.

The Protecting Fleet and the Modus Vivendi—The Cost of the Service Was $77,108 for the Season of 1888.

OTTAWA, March 4.—The report of the Fisheries Protection Service of the Dominion for 1888 has just been issued. The cost of the service for the year was $77,108 out of an appropriation of $125,000 voted by Parliament. Each vessel cost for wages, provisions, etc., as follows:

Acadia	$[illegible]	C. J. Brydges	$[illegible]
La Canadienne	17,[illegible]	Critic	[illegible]
Cruiser	5,0[illegible]	Crusoe	412
Dream	7,0[illegible]	C. H. Tupper	[illegible]
Advance	4,377	Vigilant	[illegible]
General account			$1,6[illegible]
Total			$77,108

The following are the important portions of the instructions which were issued to the commanders of the different vessels at the beginning of the fishing season:

Under the modus vivendi and until further instructions fishing vessels of the United States are to be allowed to purchase bait, ice, seines, lines and all other supplies and outfits to tranship their catch, and to ship crews in ports of Canada and Newfoundland, upon procuring an annual license therefor, upon the payment of the fee of $1.50 per ton of the vessel's registered tonnage.

You will in no way hinder the access to Canadian ports of any United States fishing vessel whose master or owner declares his intention of procuring such license, nor interfere with any United States fishing vessel whose master or owner produces such license, in so far as the carrying out of the purposes of the license is concerned.

The possession of this license gives no right to the holder thereof to fish or prepare to fish in Canadian waters, or to violate any of the laws of Canada, and to do aught but carry out the objects for which the license is given.

United States fishing vessels which enter Canadian bays and harbors for any of the four purposes mentioned in article 1 of the Convention of Oct. 20, 1818, are not to be required to enter or clear at customs, provided they do not remain therein longer than 24 hours, and do not hold any communication with the shore.

The season has been an uneventful one, the better understanding on the part of the masters of United States fishing vessels as to just what rights they had in Canadian ports; the familiarity of the captains of cruisers with their duties, together with the issue of licenses under the modus vivendi of the Treaty of Washington, all tended to harmonize the work of the protection vessels.

Thirty-six licenses were issued during the year, which realized a total revenue of $3831.

It was agreed with the Government of Newfoundland, the Legislature having adopted the Treaty of Washington, thus giving effect to the modus vivendi, that licenses issued to United States fishing vessels by that colony should be recognized in Canada, and those issued by Canada should be recognized in Newfoundland. The department is not yet advised of the number of licenses issued by the Government of Newfoundland, but it must be considerably in excess of that issued under the authority of the Dominion Government since the privilege of purchasing bait was freely taken advantage of by a large proportion of the fleet of the United States fishing vessels engaged in deep sea fishing on the banks.

The total number of United States fishing vessels in the Gulf was 83, which is less than was ever known to be there in any previous season; the catch of these vessels is reported at 10,428 barrels, as against 17,588 barrels in 1887.

The number of Canadian vessels engaged in the mackerel fishery during the past season is estimated at 120.

The hook and line fishing inshore was carried on to a much larger extent than in former years, and to many of the fishermen engaged therein proved remunerative the high price which they obtained for their fish compensating many of them for the paucity of their catch.

The only seizure during the season was that of a small sloop rigged boat found fishing in the Bay of Fundy near Campobello; the boat was subsequently given up to the owners upon the payment of expenses incurred in the safekeeping of the same.

Lieut. A. R. Gordon, R.N., in command of the fisheries protection service, makes this interesting allusion to the movements of the mackerel, which fish the fleet was principally engaged in protecting in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The mackerel appeared on the Nova Scotia coast early in June. They were accompanied by a large fleet of United States seiners harrassing them and thus preventing them lingering on the coast. Some large catches were made off Chedabucto Bay and the fish were followed round Scatterie to Cape North, where they were lost sight of. The Bradelle and Orphan Banks were then searched and some vessels went to the Labrador, but the fish did not show up again in any quantity till late in July, when for a short time they "schooled" freely between Escuminac and North Point, some fair catches being then made. During the rest of the season the fish showed fitfully, but in small schools and very wild. In September most of the fish taken were raised by trolling bait, and when the fish rose, the seine was shot round both fish and vessel, making a small catch. Canadian seiners practised this method to some extent, and also reverted successfully at the close of the season to the old method of hook and line.

The change in the habits of the mackerel and their almost complete extinction in places they used to frequent is undeniable; and the investigation of the causes of the change is most desirable, as it affects one of our most valuable inshore fisheries.

Canadian catch	[illegible]	[illegible]	1[illegible]	*[illegible]
Total product, brls	478,[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

*Estimated.

I believe this decreased productiveness to be largely due to the increased destructiveness of the means of capture and the use of these means at improper times. The whole treatment of our deep sea fisheries has been hitherto conducted on the idea that the supply of fish of every kind there is inexhaustible.

We find the inshore fisheries of the United States depleted and the government of the country undertaking, at great expense, the doubtful experiment of restoring these fisheries by the artificial propagation of cod and mackerel.

In all cases of the destruction of a species there must come a critical point after which the diminution will proceed with great rapidity. In regard to Canadian mackerel we are approaching this point, and if the fishery is to be maintained protective measures of some kind must shortly be taken.

At New York yesterday Saloonkeeper John Sauter had his skull fractured by Officer Laune while resisting an excise arrest. He is dying. The officer tried to enter the saloon and was knocked down and belabored by Sauter and his wife.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Houses, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1.00 which needs no apology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

TORONTO TOPICS.

"Settling Day"—An U. C. C. Boy Presented With a Humane Society Medal.

TORONTO, March 5.—Yesterday was settling day. Enquiries at the wholesale houses revealed a more encouraging state of affairs than last year. The dry goods trade have met their payments very promptly, and there are reports of but few applications for renewals. In the hardware trade a similarly encouraging state of things is reported. Boot and shoe payments are quite up to expectations. Grocery men are not much behind, but there seems to be more complaints about payments in this line than any other. The drug trade have paid up well, but there does not appear to have been very much heavy paper maturing. Of course Feb. 4 and Aug. 4 are the big settling days, but the 4th of each month is looked forward to with some anxiety. The prompt payments of yesterday will do something to stimulate trade and restore the confidence that should exist, but which has unfortunately not been felt for some time past.

Yesterday was a "red-letter day" in the history of Upper Canada College. Charles Brand, one of the pupils, was publicly presented with the bronze medal of the Royal Humane Society for an act of bravery in saving two lives in August last. His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto made the presentation.

At the Police Court this morning Emma Wilson flippantly acknowledged that she had taken a $100 bill from Wm. Eastby in a house at 90 Richmond-street. Wm. Palmer, also charged with the same offence, pleaded not guilty. According to his story he had rescued Eastby, who was in a helpless condition, from a gang of pool sharks on Bathurst-street. The evidence, however, showed that Palmer had done this for his own financial benefit and with the intention of robbing Eastby. The girl was committed to the Mercer Reformatory for six months, and was then utilized as a Crown witness. She had taken the money and handed it to Palmer. The latter took it home and hid it under a paint pot. "Yes, and I was sorry and would have given it back had I known where Eastby lived," said Palmer. He was committed to the Central Prison for three months.

Quite a heap of larcenies were reported to the police yesterday. They were: A lady's ulster, stolen from De La Salle Institute; a book and 75c. from R. G. Walker, 147 Victoria-street; an overcoat from the house of S. Johnson, 189 Argyle-street; a watch from Charles Glover, who lives in Salem-avenue, and another watch from D. Davis, [illegible] King-street west. Mrs. Stafford of 73 Victoria-street, reports the loss of [illegible], taken from her pocket while entering Bond-street Congregational Church Sunday night.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Little Done Yesterday Beyond Passing Resolutions—A Lot of Deputations.

TORONTO, March 5.—Little was done in the Local House yesterday beside the passing of various resolutions. Mr. Bishop created quite a sensation when moving the second reading of his bill respecting live stock insurance by condemning the working of the Lion Provident Life and Live Stock Association.

Mr. Davis introduced a bill to amend the Municipal Act, the object of which is to give the franchise to freeholders and householders whose lease extends over a term of not less than five years from the date of voting.

Mr. Willoughby moved: "That in the opinion of this House it is expedient that all Police Magistrates should make the same returns of convictions and fines imposed by them in respect of infringements of the Canada Temperance Act as are made in other cases to the clerks of the peace. That such when made, should be published and that all expenses in connection with the enforcement of the act should be submitted for audit to the county auditors." The motion was lost on division.

These bills passed their third reading yesterday: Mr. Fraser's Franchise Amendment Act. To confer certain powers upon the Board of Trade of the City of Toronto. To legalize a by-law of the Town of Galt, and other purposes—Mr. Master. A lot of private bills were also passed through their second stage.

The Attorney-General and his Cabinet exhibited a vast amount of patience in listening to half a score or so of deputations which waited on them last night after adjournment. The untiring $500 exemption men urged what they consider will be a step towards a modern utopia, the temperance advocates gave the Government the benefit of their views, the druggists were on hand to talk about the Pharmacy Bill before the House, and so on.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

A CRUSH AT THEIR EXCELLENCIES FIRST STATE BALL.

Brief Session of the House—The Member for Annapolis' Scheme for the Annexation of Maine.

OTTAWA, March 4.—The features of the Capital to-day were a very brief session of the House, the appearance of Sir Charles Tupper in public and the state ball at Government House this evening. The House adjourned at 6 o'clock to give the members time to get ready for the spectacle at Rideau Hall.

There has been no small amount of dissatisfaction over the list of invitations to the ball. The press gallery does not of course feel sore because they are overlooked. That is a yearly occurrence in connection with festivities at the gubernatorial residence in Ottawa. But there is any amount of soreness among some forty members of Parliament who were overlooked this time. Others did not receive their invitation cards until late this evening and they had almost given up the hope of receiving them. Just how the oversight occurred is not at present known, but it is said His Excellency's aide, who had charge of the invitations, made a sad bungle of his task, overlooking those who were entitled to go and sending more than one card to others who were barely eligible.

There was a terrible crush at the ball. Toronto, Hamilton, London and other western towns were represented by a sprinkling of society people.

The House sat for about 2½ hours this afternoon and disposed of routine business. Mr. Girouard withdrew his bill to incorporate the Ottawa and Montreal Boom Company, as he saw the measure was objectionable to not only the Government but almost the entire House.

Sir John Macdonald told Mr. Mulock that the Government had decided at last to allow the allowance to the York and Simcoe battalion. The Premier also informed Mr. Mulock that 2½ years' interest would be added to the allowance, as the battalion ought to have been paid the money in December, 1886, at the same time the 10th Royals of Toronto received theirs. Col. O'Brien, Col. Denison of Toronto, and Col. Tyrwhitt have been energetic in inducing the Government to make this allowance.

In the Banking and Commerce Committee this morning, Mr. Edgar's bill incorporating the Canadian Assets and Debentures Company came up for consideration in its amended condition and, after discussion, passed. The most prominent amendments to the original bill are the striking out of the founders' share clause and the clause authorizing the company to receive money on deposit.

Mr. Kirkpatrick's act to incorporate the Canadian General Trusts Company was also considered. The incorporators are Geo. W. Stephen, C. A. Geoffrion, T. Drummond, J. L. Morris, J. Crothers, E. K. Greene, C. M. Holt, F. H. Chrysler, D. B. Maclennan and G. M. MacDonnell. The rights asked for in the bill were refused by the Quebec Legislature. It was explained that discussion upon the principle of the bill would have to take place in the House and it was decided to report it.

In the Railway Committee to-day Sir Hector Langevin asked that the bill incorporating the St. Helen's Island Bridge Company should be postponed. Mr. Curran said he had been asked by the City Council and Board of Trade of Montreal to oppose the bill.

The bill extending the time for the commencement of the railway within three years of the Hamilton Central Railway Company was passed. An act changing the name of the Lake, Nipissing and James' Bay Railway Company to the Nipissing and James' Bay Railway Company and in various other ways amending the act of incorporation was passed. Dr. Hickey's bill incorporating the Ottawa, Morrisburg and New York Railway and Bridge Company was reported with a number of amendments.

The act to amend the act incorporating the Kingston, Smith's Falls and Ottawa Railway Company was considered. Hon. George Kirkpatrick explained that the contemplated line would run from Kingston to Smith's Falls and from thence to Ottawa. Kingston and Smith's Falls would grant bonuses and efforts were being made to induce the adjacent townships to do this also. It was intended to commence work next year. It was decided by the committee that the railway should be commenced within two years from June next and completed within five years from the same date.

Mr. Daly's bill to incorporate the Lac Seul Railway was reported.

Mr. John A. Gross, who lately resigned his position in the Customs Department, has commenced an action against Messrs. Walters and McMichael, Toronto, of that service for the recovery of a portion of the proceeds of certain seizures and confiscations in which he claims he should have shared. Mr. Curran, M.P., is acting for Mr. Gross.

The Minister of Public Works informed Sir Richard Cartwright to-day that from July 1, 1888, to Feb. 1, 1889, there had been expended for plant and organization of the printing bureau $82,984 and on the building to Feb. 1 last, $129,946. It is hoped this bureau will improve the public printing of the country. Typographically the blue books and other public documents that have been turned out under the contract system have been a standing disgrace to the art preservative in the Dominion. One of these contractors grew immensely wealthy by getting top prices for slop work that would disgrace any back township printing office in the country.

Mr. Mills of the salt water County of Annapolis, N.S., put an extraordinary notice in the paper this evening. He believes he sees in the near future the dissolution of the federation known as the United States and the setting up of foreign powers in the New England States which might imperil British interests on this continent. He therefore asks the House to pass resolutions empowering the Governor-General to co-operate with Her Majesty's Government in securing such an amendment to the Act of British North America as may be necessary to extend the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada so as to include portions of the New England States, such boundaries, however, not to be extended in a westerly direction beyond the Connecticut River, the Green Mountains and Lake Champlain. Mr. Mills also graciously proposes that Canada assume the debt of the states which he proposes to absorb.

Sir John Macdonald gave notice this evening of a resolution providing that any member of the Northwest Mounted Police Force, other than a commissioned officer, may receive a pension for life provided he joined the force subsequent to May 23, 1873, and completed 25 years' service, or if having completed 15 years he retires in consequence of bodily or mental infirmity.

The following order-in-council was passed Saturday:

His Excellency-in-Council has been pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the special rate of toll of two cents per ton, adopted last year for the passage through the Welland and St. Lawrence canals, of [illegible], Indian corn, peas, barley and rye, when shipped for Montreal or for any other port east of Montreal, be continued during the forthcoming season of navigation, [illegible] covering the Welland and the St. Lawrence canals.

Winnipeg Wire Whispers.

WINNIPEG, March 4.—The local papers report the elopement of a grocer's wife with her music teacher, but no names are given.

The prospects for the bonspiel to-morrow are discouraging, owing to soft weather; 40 rinks are entered.

Seeding will probably be general next week in the west.

The Clarke-Burrows libel suit was again adjourned to-day till Thursday.

Found Dead in Bed.

ST. CATHARINES, March 4.—Miss [illegible] Jane Tenbroeck was found dead in her bed this morning. The deceased was [illegible] years old.

The Infected at St. George.

ST. GEORGE, March 4.—The infected have had quite a favorable day and improvement is noticeable in all.

A letter of thanks from the Mayor of Woodstock to [illegible] St. George for their efforts in alleviating the sufferings of the infected has been published. It is one of many.

WHO KILLED ANNIS?

A Murder Mystery with a Family History That is Puzzling Virginians.

ONANCOCK, Va., March 5.—The residents of Guilford Neck, at the extreme end of Accomack County, are much worked up over a murder mystery which the authorities seem unable to unravel. Cornelius Annis, a young man of 25, was the victim. While talking to Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, in whose house he was boarding, some one from without fired through the window. Annis was within three feet of his assassin, and received the contents of the weapon in his left side. About two dozen buckshot entered his body, shattering his arm and tearing away half his side. The young man lingered until yesterday morning, when he died.

Mrs. Taylor has not lived with her husband for several months, a deed of separation having been signed by both. According to the provision of the deed which is recorded Taylor agreed to give his wife $200 and some personal property, in consideration of which she surrendered all her interest in his estate, and he further agreed not to visit, molest or speak to her, or enter any house where she was known to be, and to allow her full liberty to live where she pleased and to conduct any business she might like, just as if she were a single woman. Taylor subsequently consulted a lawyer with a view to getting an absolute divorce from his wife. Mrs. Taylor says her husband has recently been making overtures to her with a view to reconciliation, but she has repulsed all his advances. Annis has been boarding at the house since Taylor left. Taylor is a heavy-set man about 30 years old. His wife, who is supposed to be the cause of the trouble, is about 40 and plain looking. As yet there has been no clue to the murderer. It has only been a month since a brother of Taylor died suddenly from strychnine poisoning, and his wife is now in prison charged with murdering him. Her trial will take place sometime next week.

BURGESS DENIES IT ALL.

And Grace Irwin Aggravates Her Charge Against Him—$2500 Bail Demanded.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Grace Irwin, the 13-year-old girl who accused James Burgess of abducting her, was brought to the Harlem Police Court yesterday morning by Agent Stocking of the Children's Society to appear against Burgess. Her cousin, Miss Caroline Smyth, and Henry and Simeon Irwin, two grown brothers of Grace, were in court. The girl altered the charge by denying that she consented to Burgess' relations with her. Burgess now denied the whole story, and demanded an examination. It was set down for next Friday, with bail fixed at $2500.

The two brothers of Grace, who were not called upon to testify, lived with Miss Smyth until about six months ago. They said yesterday that their father was a surveyor in the employ of the English Government at Dublin, where they lived well until his death. Eight years ago Miss Smyth, a second cousin, sent for the sisters Helen and Grace to come to this country, promising to adopt them and give them a schooling. Afterward the boys came. Henry declares that while they lived with Grace they were drudges. Grace was often sent out, he says, to gather cinders and firewood in the neighborhood, and was kept for hours at a time scrubbing the floors. In the evenings he had to go with his sister to the houses in the neighborhood distributing circulars of the school, which often kept them out until 10 and 11 o'clock. He says the girl was whipped and was ill fed. Miss Smyth says that this is not true. Grace's hands are hard and calloused.

PORT ARTHUR NOTES.

A Rich Strike—$7000 to the Ton—Assay Office Burnt—Warm Weather.

PORT ARTHUR, March 4.—The West End Silver Mountain mine has made another rich strike, a splendid pay streak on the drift working east, fully two feet, yielding ore in abundance assaying $7000 to the ton. So rich is the ore that drills have been discarded and the ore is coming out with picks.

The Badger mine has sent Thos. Marks & Co. a paper weight in the form of a solid silver brick weighing 27½ ounces.

The assay office of the Silver Mountain East mine was burned last week. The office and contents were a total loss.

The weather is extremely warm. The snow is all gone, causing loss and inconvenience to the lumbermen, who are unprepared for such a state of affairs. The ice in the bay and rivers is melting rapidly.

A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

MARQUETTE, March 4.—A singular railroad accident occurred here this morning. The South Shore heavy freight train loaded with mine machinery was pulled out of a spur track with two engines. The track is in Front street and four cars were left on the spur. When the train got part way up the hill it broke in two, one car from the engine. The train flew back and crashed into the cars on the spur, drove them over the big bulk head, across the street into Fraser's block, knocking the whole front of Steel & Lobdell's grocery in, tearing out the corner of Pickands & Co's coal office, damaging Rothschild & Benjamin's front and completely blocking the street. No lives were lost.

Filled a Ghost With Buckshot.

CASEY, Ia., March 5.—There is a little pond known as Silver Lake four miles west of here. Recently a ghost-like apparition has caused nightly terror in the neighborhood. Several nights ago the apparition frightened a farmer's team, which tipped over the buggy and nearly killed the farmer's wife. The husband procured a shotgun, loaded it with buckshot, and then lay in wait for the ghost four nights. Thursday night he filled the ghost full of buckshot. It cried, "My God! Don't shoot any more," and fell prostrate. The ghost was carried home by the shooter and cared for. No one but the attending physician has seen him, and he refused to give any name. He is suspected to be a land seeker, who wished to scare the owners and buy the adjoining land cheap.

Collapse of a Montreal Sawmill.

MONTREAL, March 4.—An old saw and planing mill at the corner of St. Philippe and Dorchester-street collapsed about 11.30 to-day. The roof fell in, the sides bulged out and the brick casing tumbled into the street. The workmen, of whom there were about twenty-five in the building, escaped without injury except in the case of two. Foreman Lemasche and laborer Philip Martin were pinned down by the roof timbers, but were taken out without much difficulty. Lemasche sustained several scalp wounds and Martin had his leg broken.

The Rowe-White Case.

BUFFALO, March 4.—Jack Rowe and Deacon Jim White are preparing a surprise for the baseball world. They have received legal advice to the effect that they have got the Detroit League organization on the hip. Their lawyer says that if Detroit refuses to release them they will offer their services to Detroit at the beginning of the season, and then start in to collect salary at last year's rate, suing after the first month in case the Detroits fail to pay. The lawyer believes that they will have a legal claim that the contracts were between these two players and the Detroit management. He says the men cannot be sold like galley slaves to other clubs. Baseball people here think that Detroit would rather release the players than go to the trouble and expense of such litigation. The buying clubs would not now have any interest in backing up the Detroits, for Boston does not want White now, and Rowe positively will not play in Philadelphia.

HARRISON'S INAUGURAL.

THE NEW UNITED STATES' PRESIDENT SWORN IN.

He Makes a Long Address, Principally Concerning Domestic Affairs—The Monroe Doctrine Reaffirmed.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—There was a stir and a bustle about the city from an early hour this morning. Probably 100,000 visitors and as many more of the resident population of Washington were along the line of march. The inauguration ceremonies were delayed for some time by heavy rain which threatened to drive the Presidential party from the east portico to the Senate chamber. After consultation with the Vice-President, President Harrison announced that he would not disappoint the large crowd in front of the Capitol and that rain or shine the inaugural address would be delivered on the east portico.

At 11.15 the Senate was called to order by Senator Ingalls and the senators rose as the diplomats entered. The venerable Hannibal Hamlin, the only living ex-Vice-President, occupied a seat at the right of the presiding officer. Shortly before 12 o'clock the members of the House of Representatives and members-elect led by Speaker Carlisle entered the Senate Chamber. A few minutes before 12 o'clock the President of the United States was announced. He entered the main door opposite the presiding officer, followed by his Cabinet. A moment later the President-elect was announced. He entered with Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. As the hands of the Senate clock reached the hour of noon the Vice-President-elect was announced. He was escorted to the platform of the presiding officer by Senator Cullom of Illinois. Everyone in the chamber arose and remained standing while Senator Ingalls administered to Mr. Morton the oath of office. At the conclusion of his remarks Senator Ingalls turned and handed the gavel to Mr. Morton, who assumed the position of presiding officer and called the Senate to order in extra session. Vice-President Morton then addressed the Senate briefly. At the conclusion of this speech the new Senators were sworn in. The message of the President convening the Senate in extra session was then read and the Senate having completed its organization, the ceremonies of inaugurating the President were begun.

When all had been settled the President-elect rose and the Chief Justice administered to him the oath of office. The great crowd rose and remained standing with uncovered heads during the ceremony. As the President bowed his head and kissed the open book the crowd cheered again and again. Turning from the Chief Justice, President Harrison began the delivery of his inaugural address.

After referring to the inaugural oath, and expressing the opinion that the obligations imposed by it on the President are no less binding on the people, the address notes that the occasion is the hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of Washington as first President, a statement which serves to introduce the paean of congratulation and triumph in which he refers to the nation's progress in wealth, population, territory and all that makes a nation great, during the century.

Much space is given to an explanation of the reasons which led the young Republic to adopt a protective policy, so that commercially and financially it should be as free from foreign control as it had become politically. Only the existence of slavery in a section of the country prevented a more general adherence to the principle of protection for home industries, and the emancipation proclamation carried with it reasons why the South should seek to share in the benefits which had come to the North because of the manufactures nursed and reared under the shield of a fostering tariff. He looked hopefully to the continuance of the protective system, and to the consequent development of manufacturing and mining enterprises in the States hitherto wholly given to agriculture, as a potent influence in the perfect unification of the people. "Is it not quite possible," he asks, "that the farmers and the promoters of the great mining and manufacturing enterprises which have recently been established in the south, may yet find that the free ballot of the workingman, without distinction of race, is needed for their defence as well as his own?"

The naturalization laws, said Mr. Harrison, should be so amended as to make the inquiry into the good disposition and character of persons applying for citizenship more careful and searching. The address continued:

We have happily maintained a policy of avoiding all interference with European affairs. We have been only interested spectators of their contentions in diplomacy and in war, ready to use our friendly offices to promote peace—but never obtruding our advice, and never attempting unfairly to coin the distress of other powers into commercial advantages to ourselves. We have a just right to expect that our European policy will be the American policy of European courts. It is so manifestly incompatible with those precautions for our peace and safety which all the great powers habitually observe and enforce in matters affecting them that a shorter waterway between our eastern and western seaboards should be dominated by an European Government that we may confidently expect that such a purpose will not be entertained by any Power. We shall in the future, as in the past, use every endeavor to maintain and enlarge our friendly relations with all the great Powers, but they will not expect us to look kindly upon any project that would leave us subject to the dangers of a hostile observation or environment. We have not sought to dominate or absorb any of our weaker neighbors, but rather to aid and encourage them to establish free and stable governments, resting upon the consent of their own people. We have a clear right to expect therefore that no European government will seek to establish colonial dependencies upon the territory of these independent American States. That which a sense of justice restrains us from seeking they may be reasonably expected willingly to forego.

It must not be assumed, however, that our interests are so exclusively American that our entire inattention to any events that may transpire elsewhere can be taken for granted. Our citizens domiciled for purposes of trade in all countries and in many of the islands of the sea demand and will have our adequate care in their personal and commercial rights. The necessities of our navy require convenient coaling stations, and dock and harbor privileges. These and other trading privileges we will be free to obtain only by means that do not in any degree partake of coercion, however feeble the Government from which we ask such concessions, but having fairly obtained them by methods and for purposes entirely consistent with the most friendly disposition towards all other powers our consent will be necessary to any modification or impairment of the concession. We shall neither fail to respect the flag of any friendly nation or the just rights of its citizens, nor to exact the like treatment for our own. Calmness, justice and consideration should characterize our diplomacy. The offices of an intelligent diplomacy or of friendly arbitration in proper cases should be adequate to the peaceful adjustment of all international difficulties. By such methods we will make our contribution to the world's peace, which no nation values more highly, and avoid the opprobrium which must fall upon the nation that ruthlessly breaks it.

The remainder of the message has no special interest for Canadians.

COMMERCIAL UNION.

THE subject of commercial union has again been brought forward by the resolution passed by the United States House of Representatives. The terms of the resolution should be carefully noted, for they inform Canadians of some things this country must do to give it effect if the Republic decides that it should be acted upon. The resolution was as follows:—

"Resolved, that whenever it shall be duly certified to the President of the United States that the Government of the Dominion of Canada has declared a desire to establish Commercial Union with the United States, having a uniform revenue system, like internal taxes to be collected, and like import duties to be imposed on articles brought into either country from other nations, and no duties on trade between the United States and Canada, he shall appoint three commissioners to meet those who may be likewise designated to represent the Government of Canada, to prepare a plan for the assimilation of the import duties and internal revenue taxes of the two countries, and an equitable division of receipts in a Commercial Union, and said commissioners shall report to the President, who shall lay the report before Congress."

The only encouraging feature in this resolution is that it shows a disposition to treat with Canada, but as the resolution stands it must remain inoperative. According to the terms of the motion the President will not be authorized to appoint commissioners until the Canadian Government has declared a desire to establish commercial union. That declaration the Government will not make. The people of the Dominion would not sanction such an arrangement and the proposal, if made, will be declined by Canada.

The proposal in Mr. Hitt's resolution is the one put forward by Mr. Wiman. It contemplates a uniform tariff and internal revenue taxes for the two countries and the pooling of the whole revenue, to be divided between Washington and Ottawa on some basis not named. There are several insurmountable objections to this scheme, each one of which would be enough to bring about its rejection by Canada.

Commercial union would involve the surrender by the Canadian Parliament of the power of regulating the tariff of custom duties. The Canadian tariff would have to be assimilated to that of the United States, and while Canada would admit all products of the United States free the tariff on British products would be increased. These are things that the Dominion will not do. The circumstances of the country require that the Canadian people should retain the power of regulating their own tariff. This power has been secured from the Mother Country and it will not be yielded up at the request of the United States. And Canadian interests and Canadian loyalty are alike opposed to forming a trade combination with the United States against Great Britain. There are other important though perhaps minor objections to this scheme.

If the United States really desires to have friendly intercourse and reciprocal trade relations with Canada, Congress should empower the President to treat with the Dominion in regard to the fisheries and trade without restricting the negotiations to a basis that this country cannot accept. Then, if the Republic showed a friendly and fair spirit, something might come of the negotiations.

While such proposals as these are being made from the United States the people of Canada should be careful to entrust the administration of its affairs only to men whose loyalty to Dominion interests and whose opposition to such a scheme as commercial union are beyond a doubt.

SPRINGVILLE SPRIGS.

Church Services — Real Estate Transactions and Other Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

RENTED.—Mr. Harry Adamson has rented the Hoopie farm for a term of five years.

MILL PURCHASED.—Mr. John Hutchings, of Fraserville, has purchased the Cavanville grist mill and intends commencing improvements at once.

MISSIONARY SERVICES.—Rev. Caleb Parker preached the missionary services at the Methodist Church, Fraserville, on Sunday, and delivered a very able discourse. The Rev. Mr. Clelland, of Port Hope, also occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church, Springville, on the same day.

AT ITS PRANKS.—That ghost in the classic land of Egypt still continues its nightly visits. Now it administers an unmerciful pounding to some person, frightens some of the animals or appears as an odd unearthly light, and yet, odd as it may seem, some people are found to doubt the story. Well, just let them take a week's board in the vicinity and go home convinced and frightened.

STOLE LOTTA'S MONEY.

Advance Agent Merriwether Runs off With the Box Receipts.

LOUISVILLE, March 5.—"Dink" Merriwether, for several years advance agent for dramatic companies going out of New York, but who has lived in the city for the last few months, is mysteriously missing, and with him departed nearly $1000 belonging to Manager John T. Macauley and Lotta, the actress. The latter was booked at Macauley's for the entire week commencing last Monday, but when Miss Anderson was secured for the first three nights, Lotta's managers consented to play at Lexington and Frankfort upon the same terms which were offered here. Mr. Macauley could not leave the city, so Merriwether was engaged to take charge of the box office at the two towns. The managers of the theatres were to receive 20 per cent. and Mr. Macauley and Lotta the remainder. The engagement closed at Frankfort on Wednesday night and the net receipts of the trip amounted to $960. The money was paid over to Merriwether. On Thursday morning Merriwether left on the 5.30 train, before the members of the company got up. He was heard from in Covington through a letter which he sent to a friend here, but since then nothing has been heard of him. Manager Macauley says that Merriwether was as much Lotta's representative as his, and that he is not responsible. Manager Dunn of the Lotta combination, however, holds that Merriwether was Mr. Macauley's representative, and the latter is responsible for the amount due the company.

The Interstate Commerce Act

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Cleveland, before the expiration of his term of office, approved the bill amending the Interstate Commerce Act. One change requires three days' public notice of any proposed reduction in the published rates of a railroad. Special provision is made to prevent and punish "underbilling" under severe penalties. The penalty section of the present Act is strengthened by adding the penalty of imprisonment to the fine now provided when the offence is an unlawful discrimination in rates or charges. The provisions of the present Act in regard to the publication of rates are made to apply to joint through rates. A change is made in the court provisions which is intended to facilitate the recovery of damages for overcharges, and the powers of the commissioners are increased in several respects.

Probably Maggie English.

BELLEVILLE, March 4.—It seems probable that the unknown woman who was killed in the accident at St. George was Maggie English, formerly of the Marchmont Home in this city. Two trunks, which reached Toronto from the wrecked train and were not claimed, were found to contain letters addressed to Miss Maggie English and a business card of a photographer here, who said he photographed the girl about a year ago. Mr. Wilson of the Marchmont Home, who had a photograph of the girl, has identified it as the [illegible].

Winning a Widow.

He gazed around the cheerful and comfortable looking apartment. Then, addressing the widow, he said:

"Your husband's been dead over a year now?"

"Yes," she answered, with a gentle sigh, "over a year."

"I remember reading his obituary," he said, "and I thought that it contained a misstatement of facts."

"A misstatement of facts!"

"Yes, it said that he had gone to a better home. In my opinion it would be impossible for him to find a more cheerful, a more comfortable, and, with you in it, a more charming and desirable home than this."

The widow smiled sweetly, then he popped and was accepted.—Boston Courier.

How the Pages Make Money.

The pages at the Capitol have so perfected the science of securing the autographs of members that an energetic boy on the doorkeeper's payroll can get the names of from 100 to 150 members per day, depending somewhat upon the character of the business that at the time is occupying the attention of the house. If the matter under discussion is of a character that occupies general attention, the autograph fiend cannot ply his nefarious calling, because the members will not permit themselves to be interrupted. If, however, the enterprising page starts out on a day devoted to private measures or district legislation, or something else in which the statesmen take no interest or have no concern, he will wind up with half the members of the house enrolled.—Washington Post.

Washington as an Angler.

Fishermen may be interested in these extracts from Washington's diary for 1787: "Monday, 30th July. In company with Mr. Gouverneur Morris, went into the neighborhood of the Valley Forge, to a Widow Moore's a fishing, at whose house we lodged.

"Tuesday, 31st July. Before breakfast I rode to the Valley Forge, and over the whole cantonment and works of the American army in the winter of 1778, and on my return to the Widow Moore's found Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris. Spent the day fishing and lodged at the same place.

"Friday, August 3. Went up to Trenton on a fishing party, with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris and Mr Gouverneur Morris. In the evening fished."

A Wise Precaution.

Messrs Wilson & Morrison received the following letter from St. Johns, N. B., written by a member of a Toronto firm.—

SIR.—Enclosed find my application for $10,000 in the Manufacturers' Accident Insurance Co. A Test for the Curlers.

The Belleville papers did not publish the score of the curling contest here on Friday night last as they said the curlers refused to give the figures. Yesterday, however, they had it and the Intelligencer says:—"Three games following closely after each other, with a long drive over a bad road from Keene to Peterborough, proved more than the Belleville curlers were able to stand, and the result was a very bad defeat at Peterborough. As the Peterborough men promise a visit to Belleville this week, provided ice can be had, the result will furnish a better test of the playing strength of the clubs than was afforded by the game at Peterborough."

An Exhibition of Fancy Skating.

If the weather is favorable the carnival on Friday night next will be the event of the season. Besides the attraction of the good music that will be furnished and the good management, which is insured by the fact that the firemen are running the affair, a most interesting feature is down on the list of competitions. There are the usual prizes for best costumes, etc., but a medal is also to be competed for by fancy skaters. A couple of the local dandies are practising and the exhibitions will alone be worth seeing. Get your costume ready and attend.

At the Opera House.

A large audience greeted Signor Giovanni and his troupe at Bradburn's Opera House last night, the house being packed to the doors. Revillo in his wonderful feats of magic is the best of his class that we have seen for some time. The popular melodies performed on the musical glasses by Miss Adele Gilbert assisted by Signor Giovanni were excellent. The Middleton's Marionettes created considerable amusement, and the singing of the minstrels was good. Signor Giovanni is always at home with his performing canary birds, and never fails to both please and astonish his audience. The performance concluded with Madame Strong's Fatamorgana pictures in the air. A large number of presents were given away, the largest being a china tea set, a china chamber set and a large lamp.

Spring Work at the Golden Lion.

The genial weather of the last few days has roused up the Golden Lion to prepare for spring, and in doing this the Lion has made royal preparations. New and fashionable goods are being opened up. New and telling prices are being affixed. Prices that tell of good buying and such as to presage better selling and the bright spring weather will find hosts of shoppers flocking to the store. A part of the programme has been the business change effected. Mr. Robt. Fair has bought the private interest in the business held by Mr. Van Every, and Mr. Fair will carry on the trade on his own responsibility. Customers of the old firm will find that the same courteous treatment and attention to all their wants and a perfect resource of goods to draw on. The Golden Lion asks your patronage and custom, and is prepared to do the very best that can be done by all the customers.

FATHER AND SON.

A Father Charged with Insanity by His Son.

Chief Rossel and Constables Stewart and Adams went out into Douro early this morning and brought in a man by the name of John E. Campbell who was charged by his son with being insane. Campbell, it may be remembered, was arrested about five years ago by Constable Adams and Pigeon on his farm in Douro, where he had held his house through a seige of a couple of days against the members of his family and his friends. He was very violent on that occasion which accounted for the three officers going out to bring him in this morning. However, he was apparently quite sane and harmless this time and came with the officers without any resistance.

IN MORTAL FEAR OF HIS LIFE.

From the son's evidence this morning it appears that his father has been in the asylum twice, the first time for about five years and the second time for about four years. He was released from that institution about eleven months ago as being sane, and since that time had been living with his son John on his (the father's) own farm. There was an agreement between the father and son that the latter was to board and room the former and work the farm for his own benefit. The father is subject to epiliptic fits, but besides being quiet and moody when these were coming on, had shown no signs of insanity during the past eleven months. Both the Campbells, it appears, have quick tempers and little quarrels arose at times between them but nothing violent occurred until Thursday morning last, when the father came to the barn and complained that the stable was not kept properly cleaned and the son "determinedly told him" that he was working the farm on the agreement and that he (the father) had no right to interfere. The elder Campbell, so the son said, then sprang upon him and grabbed him by the throat and tried to choke him. On Friday night the son and his wife noticed the father coming running up the lane towards the house waving his arms, and fearing violence they left the house and have not lived in the house since. The son said he was in mortal fear of his life when he was living with his father. He did not want to live on the farm, but his father would not give him his chattels off the place.

FEARED HER FATHER-IN-LAW.

Mrs. Campbell, the wife of the son, gave her evidence, in which she said she had always feared her father-in-law, because he had been in the asylum and also from his strange actions. She often never took her clothes off all night, being afraid of violence. Her evidence was in a great measure the same as her husband's.

The elder Campbell, the alleged lunatic, was asked several questions by the Magistrate and talked as lucidly and appeared as sensible as man could wish to be. He said on Thursday morning he did not raise a hand towards his son until the latter threatened him by pointing the dung fork at him. He explained how he might have been waving his arms when running up the lane on Friday, as he said he was doing it for exercise. He had learned to do this while in the asylum so as to keep himself in good condition.

The Magistrate said he could easily see the fear that the son might have in leaving his wife with a man who had once been insane, but he could not see his way to arrest Campbell as a lunatic, and thought the occurrence of Thursday morning was more the result of temper, and as a man's personal freedom was as dear to him as life he could not commit him to an asylum on the evidence submitted.

Mr. G. M. Roger appeared for John Campbell, sr., and Mr. C. W. Sawers for the son.

Oddfellowship.

The regular weekly meeting of Otonabee Lodge, No. 18, I.O.O.F., was held last night, when the brethren were paid a second visit by Prof. Duer, instructor in degree work, who was here some time ago.

An Afternoon Nap.

A drunk was picked up yesterday afternoon by Constable Stewart in the hall way leading to Labor Hall on Water-st., and this morning at the Police Court he was fined two dollars for the rest he took on the soft side of the plank.

A Knight Expelled.

A prominent member of the Knights of Labor in Belleville has been expelled from the order for violating his obligations. It is alleged that he did things in the name of the order which he was never authorized to do, and threatened citizens on various occasions under the protection of the Knights.

The Funeral Rites.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John McBurney, took place at noon to-day from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. John Nugent, to the G. T. R. station. Quite a large number of friends of the deceased lady followed her mortal remains to the station.

Preparing for the Vote.

Deputy Returning Officer Stapleton is making his preparations for the taking of the vote on the repeal of the Scott Act on the fourth of next month. To-day he was handed over the fourteen ballot boxes which will be used in the vote in town, by Town Clerk Macdonald. The vote of course will be taken under the Dominion statutes and there will, therefore, be fourteen sub division polling places.

Convinced.

The tea drinkers who have been buying our teas lately are now convinced that better value is not to be had and are showing their appreciation by buying in larger quantities, caddies, half chests, and chests. The quality at 25c. per lb. is still the favorite. This week we are receiving another large lot, together with a fresh supply of groceries, etc. All will be sold cheap for cash at R. H. Green's grocery, corner of Hunter and Aylmer-sts. The cheap sale of apples and potatoes at 80c. per bag is still going on. All goods delivered free of charge.

Orangemen in Council.

The Orang Grande Lodge of Eastern Ontario opened at Campbellford to-day and will continue to-morrow. Quite a number of delegates have gone down from this district among whom were the following:—Robt. Weir, Master Black Preceptory; John G. Weir, Peterborough, District Master; Mr. Delong, Haliburton, Deputy Grand Master; Rev. Mr. White, of Victoria; J. L. Winter, Past County Master, Victoria; W. Milburn, Past Master, 4th Line of Smith; W. Moore, Deputy County Master; W. Math, Deputy Master, Otonabee. There will be nearly two hundred delegates present and the accommodation of Campbellford will be taxed to its fullest extent. Mr. J. J. Turner sent down twenty camp beds to-day which will be utilized. A discussion will be brought up on the Jesuits' Estates Bill and probably some of the local delegates will take part in it.

THE TWO EVANGELISTS

ANOTHER LARGE AUDIENCE ATTENDS THE SERVICES.

Song by Rev. Mr. Crossley—The Collection—Coming into the Business—The Importance of one Soul.

The George-st. church was again filled last night when the Rev. Messrs. Crossley and Hunter held their first week night service. The general impression seemed to have got about that to secure a seat a person must be early at these meetings, and it is quite probable from present prospects that those who act on this impression will be wise. At half past seven last evening almost every person who attended the service was in a seat, but there was no long wait, for precisely at a quarter to eight o'clock, Rev. Mr. Crossley walked out on the platform and announced the opening hymn. A joint choir composed of the members of the different Protestant churches occupied the platform and led the singing. On the platform also were Rev. Messrs. Pearson, Shorey, Wilson, Parker and Johnston, of Keene.

After singing a couple of hymns from the Crossley and Hunter hymn book, Rev. Mr. Hunter offered a brief and earnest prayer. Another hymn was then sung and Rev. S. J. Shorey led in prayer. Rev. Mr. Crossley then sang a beautiful hymn entitled "Eternity, Where?"

THE COLLECTIONS.

Rev. Mr. Pearson then announced the meetings and in doing so he referred to the manner in which the evangelists came here. They came here, he said, at the request of the Peterborough churches without any agreement or understanding as to pay, but were willing to take whatever was given to them. He asked the audience, therefore, to contribute towards the collections in a similar liberal spirit. He stated, not in a fault finding way, that it was computed that there had been about 1800 people in the church on Sunday night, and the treasurer had observed that out of the 1800 there had been 1100 who did not contributed towards the collection as there was only 700 coins on the plates.

THE LESSON.

Rev. Mr. Hunter then read the last portion of the first chapter of John, commenting freely upon the verses. During the course of his comments he said he hoped that the Christians would all get right into the harness and not jump into the sleigh and now and then whip them up with their words or faces. He wanted to see every Christian working and not going to Heaven on a freight train but on a lightning express. The services, he said, did not bring them to any denomination. They did not desire to make a Methodist or Presbyterian or Baptist out of them, but simply to bring them to Christ.

Rev. Mr. Crossley again sang in his excellent voice a sacred song entitled "Calvary."

THE ADDRESS.

The rev. gentleman then said he would take as his text of his address the words:—

"Likewise I say unto you there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."—Luke 15 10.

The text, he said, taught them various lessons and impressed various thoughts upon their minds. The first was that those in Heaven knew what they were doing on earth. Some people asked if those in Heaven saw them. Undoubtedly they did. They knew more about us than we did of one another. Then the objection was raised that if a mother went to Heaven and leaves a son in sin, would not that son's actions militate against her happiness. That, the rev. gentleman said, was an argument against themselves, for it was admitted that suspense far more militated against happiness that certain knowledge. He quoted several passages in scripture which went to prove that the redeemed in Heaven witnessed the actions of those on earth. The Lord had said "They shall be as angels of God." Therefore, as angels beheld them, so the redeemed gone to the better land gazed upon them from Heaven and he wanted them to get the impression that they were surrounded by a cloud of witnesses. The second thought was that there was joy in Heaven over one sinner that repented. He wanted those unsaved to think of the intense interest here shown in them and take an INTEREST IN THEMSELVES.

The saved on earth should be particularly interested and anxious about the unsaved on earth. Those who complained of revivals and said they did not believe in them were the same as those people in the days of Christ who said "He dined with publicans and sinners." They should not seek to save certain ones but go out after the very worst. They should not always seek moral, well-dressed respectable sinners but go, as the Master did, amongst the drunkards and those fallen low. He wished to teach them the importance of repentance. They might go out to-morrow and by a stroke of business make fifty thousand dollars, but there would be no mention of it in Heaven, although, he said, there might be joy in hell as they might feel more sure of getting the man in that place. But if a man turned to God there would be joy in Heaven, so they could see the importance of repenting. What was it to repent? It was turning from sin to the Lord. He liked the soldier's definition of repentance. It was done with four commands—halt! attention! right about turn! quick march! From the text they also learned the certainty of being saved if they repented, and he went on to speak of the saving power of Christ who, as Whitfield had said, would save the wise person, even the devil's castaway. In conclusion he dwelt on the importance of the salvation of one soul and closed by urging the unsaved to seek salvation.

After an earnest prayer Rev. Mr. Hunter invited all who felt inclined to remain to the after meeting and then the first meeting closed.

A large number remained to the after meeting.

NOTES.

During the services last night the audience bowed for several minutes in silent prayer for a number of special requests. They were two brothers, two sisters, an unsaved brother, and two brothers.

The Rev. Mr. Crossley will give what is termed a song sermon to-night. The meetings commence at a quarter to eight to the minute.

A meeting was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Baptist Church conducted by the evangelists. Another afternoon meeting will be held on Thursday afternoon.

The collection during the meetings will go to the support of the evangelists.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

A Short Business Session—The Health of the Village.

A regular meeting of the Ashburnham Council was held last evening. There were present Mr. Burnham, Reeve, and Councillors Calcutt, Craig and Marshall.

The auditors' report was read, showing that the total expenditure last year was $8,567.18 and the expenditure $8,561.82, leaving a balance on hand of $5.34. The report was adopted and the abstract ordered to be published according to law.

On motion the Council declined to interfere with the assessment of T. Bridgewater.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

Mr. CRAIG moved, seconded by Mr. CALCUTT,—That no license fees be charged for butchers' licenses for the year 1889.—Carried.

After some conversation as to the market square and other matters the Council adjourned.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

A meeting of the Board of Health was held after the adjournment of the Council. Present, Messrs Burnham, Wood, Marshall and Wright.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, read his annual report for the year 1888. He congratulated the board on the freedom from outside epidemics, on a very small percentage of symotic diseases and a gradually increasing compliance on the part of the public with the Health Act. He was glad to notice a more healthy sanitary feeling in the village, mutual rivalry making neighbors vie in keeping their places in good order. Mr. Craig, the Sanitary Inspector, had made frequent house to house visits and was several times accompanied by the Medical Health Officer. He called attention to a hole near the C. P. R. diamond. The slaughter houses had been well kept, but complaints had been received regarding one and notices were sent, resulting in a great improvement. He had written to the Chairman of the School Board regarding the school building, and its sanitary condition had been improved, but he thought the drain from the cellar ought to be properly opened out. Although theoretically earth closets were better than privy vaults, they needed to be well kept and constantly looked after or they were apt to become serious nuisances. When privy vaults were used a few pounds of coperas or bluestone would keep them in good condition all summer. Much organic impurity had been found in water analysed and boiling or filtration was the only remedy. Two cases of typhoid fever and two of diphtheria had occurred during the year, one of the latter being fatal. The proper precautions had been taken in each case. Regarding the hospital the architect has assured him that the drainage would be conducted on the best principles, and the plan would be submitted later and could be examined by the Board. The report; which was lengthy and reported matters in detail, had the following synopsis of work done during the year appended:—

No. of yards inspected	90
No. of water closets inspected	82
No. of wells inspected	85
Old wells closed	4
Hog pens removed	5
No. of complaints	13
Notices issued	2
Manure heaps removed	22
Houses placarded	3

The report was received, and after talking over some matters the Board adjourned.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $3,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of solvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,000 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is light it is a comfort to think of $2,300 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are pleasant speculations, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

TUESDAY, MARCH 5, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

BY JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

"Not the least in the world now," he returned, promptly, waking out of his reflections with a start—then suddenly remembered that he had given a tremendous sigh, and made haste to retrieve his mistake. "It's really better, you know, Mrs. Trafford," he said, gratefully, and beginning to nurse the injured limb very gingerly; "only I get the cramp in it every now and again, a touch of rheumatism, I shouldn't wonder; rheumatism does seem to get into sprains, doesn't it? Any way, it's a horrid nuisance, for being easy at times I forget to move it about as I ought to do."

Very cleverly fenced, but the explanation did not take in Mrs. Trafford in the very least.

Still Mrs. Antrobus and Lady Charterhouse chatted confidentially on, the young lady's attention becoming more and more interested, and the old lady's nods getting more and more pronounced. And at last Mrs. Trafford rose and went to join them.

"An exquisite string of pearls worth three hundred pounds," was what Mrs. Antrobus was saying.

"And what lucky woman possesses those?" asked Mrs. Trafford, in her most winning tones.

"I was telling Lady Charterhouse about Mr. Mandarin's last present to Polly," Mrs. Antrobus replied.

"What a lucky girl," cried Lady Charterhouse, in her loud, hearty voice. "And Mrs. Antrobus tells me she is so pretty."

"Pretty is not the word," answered Mrs. Trafford. "Pretty is not the word with which to describe Miss Antrobus. She is lovely—quite the loveliest girl in Blankhampton."

"And the girls seem to be remarkably pretty here," put in Lady Charterhouse, who was also so situated that she could afford to be lavish in her praises.

"Yes, they are pretty girls here," Mrs. Antrobus admitted, with unusual modesty.

And at this point "Mr. Winks'" knee took a bad turn and became much worse, so that he got up suddenly and declared his "cramp" was so bad he must go home at once, in the face of which Lady Charterhouse had no choice but to say good-by.

"What was that old woman saying to you?" he demanded roughly of her as they reached their carriage.

"That old woman!" she echoed. "Why, Charterhouse, I understood that they were quite the—well, great friends of yours."

"Oh, I know them; but what was she saying?"

"Telling me about her pretty daughter's engagement, that was all. Is she pretty?"

"Yes, she's pretty," he said, shortly.

CHAPTER VII.

A SWISS FAIR.

Miss Earle was still a visitor at the Deanery, and was to remain yet another week in order that she might take part in a bazaar, for which the ladies of every age and grade in the neighborhood had been working for many a month past.

She had enjoyed her visit far more than she usually enjoyed visits of any kind, and in spite of the season of real hard grinding work under which every officer and man in the garrison was then groaning, she had seen a good deal of that lieutenant of the Blankshire regiment, who, in common, went by the name of Beautiful Jim. The more she saw of him the better she liked him, while Beautiful Jim was on his part, as he graphically put it, "So dead broke in the way of spoons that he could not possibly be any brokier."

This bazaar was to be an unusually smart affair. It was in aid of the funds of the City hospital, and, as the dean was president of the committee, was to be held in the grounds at the back of the Deanery and residence. These were both large and spacious gardens, divided only by a park railing and a wicket gate.

Then not only was it to be a bazaar but also a mask of flowers and a pastoral play! The bazaar in the guise of a Swiss fair, was to be held in one garden and the mask and pastoral was to be given in the other.

And it was really wonderful how this Deanery garden had been transformed; more than twenty chalets had sprung into existence in various parts of it, a row with open fronts being the bazaar proper, and others scattered here and there for such purposes as fortune telling, refreshments, flowers, art gallery and a cafe chantant where almost all the amateur singers in Blankhampton were to hold forth as sirens who would charm shillings and half crowns out of the pockets of all comers for the benefit of those who were poor and sick in the community.

There was a fish pond without any water and an Alpine dairy where the sweetest and freshest of milk was dispensed (for a consideration) by the sweetest and prettiest of dairymaids; and there was a very smart little shop with the sign of the red glove, next door to one in which pipes and sticks of every size and shape and price might be bought.

The whole thing was wonderfully well managed. Each chalet had its double set of ladies, one a permanent saleswoman whose name hung over the door; the rest bright and as far as was possible beauteous young damsels who divided their labors between acting as assistant shopwomen to their head for the time being and taking part in the mask or pastoral in the adjoining garden.

It was not yet the hour for the bazaar to be thrown open to the public, and the Leslie girls, after setting their own stall to their satisfaction, went off in twos and threes to see the effect of the others.

"Let us go and see how Lady Margaret's stall looks," suggested Sarah Leslie to her sisters as they went up the narrow street.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites

Is very palatable and much better than the plain oil. Dr. W. H. Cameron, of Halifax, N. S., says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites for the past two years and found it more agreeable to the stomach, and have better results from its use than any other preparation of the kind I have ever tried." Put up in 50c. and $1 size.

AMBITIOUS CITY NEWS.

Attempted Suicide—The Railway Deputation Off For the Capital.

HAMILTON, March 4.—On Saturday night Annie Russell, who became distracted at the death of her husband, Thomas Russell, which occurred at the hospital last week, tried to commit suicide by taking a dose of Rough on Rats. Russell, who was about 45 years old, was the black sheep of a respectable Scotch family, and went through a fortune of $50,000. He lived for many years in Ottawa, where his brother, who is a respectable business man resides. He was a big, handsome fellow, being quite an athlete, and took a great interest in all kinds of sport. He formerly worked for his brother, but neglected his business and squandered his money in drink. He was married, and his dissolute ways caused his wife so much grief that they separated about 15 years ago. Russell left Ottawa and wandered around the country, spending his money freely and foolishly. The woman who tried to poison herself claims that she met him in Buffalo about three years ago, and that they were married and lived together as man and wife until his death. At that time she did not know that he had been married before and that his wife was still alive. Mrs. Russell's condition is unchanged to-night, but recovery is not probable.

The railway deputation, consisting of Mayor Doran, Ald. Moore, Ald. Stinson, Capt. Fairgrieve and others, left this evening via Toronto, for Ottawa and will appear before the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to-morrow.

William T. Allison's hotel, corner of Bay and Stuart-streets, was broken into between 11 o'clock last night and 5 o'clock this morning and $10 in cash, three boxes of cigars and a bottle of wine were stolen. The thief got in by a cellar window.

Four boys, aged about 15 years, being tired of living in a metropolis like Toronto, set out last Friday night to visit the wild west. They came to Hamilton and were on the point of starting for Buffalo, when Mr. Wilson, of Toronto, put in an appearance and collared his son Frederick. The lad was taken home, and the others proceeded on their pilgrimage.

Daniel Sullivan, against whom a charge of committing aggravated assault upon Michael Flynn was dismissed a few days ago, was charged by Flynn this morning with selling liquor during prohibited hours. The case was dismissed.

Death of Dr. Hyde of Stratford.

STRATFORD, March 4.—Dr. John Hyde, one of the oldest residents here, died this afternoon at the age of 79 years. He was a graduate of Glasgow University and has been in practice here for over 50 years. Until late years he took a prominent part in politics. Dr. Hyde was for many years a member of the town council and a school trustee. The funeral occurs on Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot, I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION.

A HAMILTONIAN GETS INTO TROUBLE IN BUFFALO.

Projected New Industry in the Ambitious City—Manitoba's Legislature Prorogued—Looking for Tascott in Winnipeg.

HAMILTON, March 5.—H. C. Hickok, who used to run the St. Charles restaurant here and now manages a saloon in Buffalo, is in trouble. A few weeks ago a Canadian horse dealer named Benjamin F. Olmstead, who knew Hickok in this city, arrived in Buffalo and went to board at his place. Olmstead carried over $1100 with him and told Hickok about it. In the early part of last week Hickok asked Olmstead to lend him the $1100 for a little while, as he wanted to make a bet with a Broadway saloonkeeper that he could show up that amount. His request was granted and Hickok made a bet with his man and won $10. He managed to give his Canadian friend the slip, and soon after left the city with a horse and cutter. Olmstead complained to the police about the matter and Hickok was followed by officers and found in Aurora. The money was not found and he told the officer that he had lost it, which is not believed, however. Hickok was placed under arrest and was brought up for trial on Monday. He was tried on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. The evidence in the case showed that Olmstead had willingly loaned the money to Hickock, and the judge held that under those circumstances the case was one for the civil courts and not the criminal, and the prisoner was discharged. Olmstead was lucky in regaining [illegible] out of the amount lost.

Annie Russell, who attempted to take her own life by means of poison on Saturday night, is still in a very low condition at the City Hospital and her recovery is doubtful.

Four acres of land, east of the city, part of the Land estate, immediately south of the Grand Trunk Railway track and opposite Williams' coal oil factory, have been transferred to R. McKechnie, the well-known manufacturer. Mr. McKechnie will erect on the site large machine shops, for the manufacture of various kinds of machinery for iron and wood work. The buildings, it is understood, will cover two-thirds of the ground. Locomotives may also be manufactured there. Employment will be given to about 400 men. The erection of the buildings will be commenced early this year.

Important changes are being made in connection with the well-known firm of L. D. Sawyer & Co., manufacturers of threshing machinery, engines, etc., by the retirement of L. D. Sawyer and Jonathan Ames, who have disposed of their interest to H. A. Massey, president of the Massey Manufacturing Company of Toronto.

THE DOMINION FINANCES.

HON. G. E. FOSTER MAKES HIS FIRST BUDGET SPEECH.

No Changes in the Tariff—The National Debt—Progress of the Dominion—Sir Richard Cartwright's Criticisms.

OTTAWA, March 5.—Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Finance, delivered his inaugural Budget speech this afternoon and this evening. He spoke for nearly four hours. The galleries were crowded and there was a good attendance of members. Mr. Foster spoke very rapidly but clearly and distinctly. As is his wont, he frequently dropped the subject of figures to branch out into a laudation of the probabilities and possibilities of this great country. His words throughout were words of encouragement and hope. He made many comparisons between the condition of Canada, the United States and other colonies of the Empire and continental countries generally; as to the debts of these nations, their ability to pay, the resources and the energies of the people, and in nearly all cases he argued that this country compared favorably with any of them. Of course the speech was a great mass of figures from beginning to end, broken at intervals by incidents of finance and deductions. The House listened attentively to the minister's exposition, none more so than Sir Richard Cartwright. Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster's predecessor in office, was on the floor of the House during the delivery of the speech, and when the six o'clock recess arrived he congratulated the hon. gentleman on his presentation to the House.

The striking feature of the Budget, of course, is that there are to be no changes in the tariff. All those troops of deputations of lumber men, millers, iron men, manufacturers, etc., have been for naught so far as to-day's utterances by the Finance Minister go to show. To none of these deputations did the Government show any indication of altering the present imposts. This will be of especial interest to the flour millers and lumber men. The former wanted the duty on flour increased from 50 cents to $1 per barrel and the lumber men wanted the export duty of $3 per thousand on sawlogs reduced or removed altogether.

The Minister of Finance at once gave the indication that there were to be no tariff changes, because he moved the House into supply instead of ways and means. Had he made the latter motion the changes would have followed at the end of the speech. Besides the Government did not seize the telegraph lines running out of the Capital and tie them up until after the custom houses were closed, as is usual when important tariff changes are to be announced on Budget day.

Mr. Foster opened with a complimentary reference to the men of acknowledged ability and experience far greater than his own who have preceded him in the office and asked for the generous indulgence and sympathy of the House in this his first experience. Canada to-day, he said, had every reason to survey her past record with pride and to step forward into the future with confidence of peace, plenty, prosperity and continued greatness. Canada asked no concealment of her record, no flattery, and whatever merits or demerits his statement would have it would have the merit of candor and frankness.

Referring to the estimates of the revenue of the year 1887-8 he gave the following statement:

	Estimate.	Actual.	Diff'ren'e
Customs	$22,000,000	$22,105,926	$105,926
Excise	6,450,000	6,071,487	378,513
Misc'neous	7,550,000	7,731,050	181,050
Totals	$36,000,000	$35,908,463	$91,537

The estimated expenditure had been $37,000,000 and the actual expenditure $36,718,494, leaving a difference of $281,506 to the good, so that the actual deficit was only $810,031 in place of the million dollars estimated. It must be remembered, however, that though there was this deficit there had been set off in sinking fund $1,939,077, so that if we had not thus set off the debt there would be a surplus of $1,129,046. The items of expenditure were as follows:

Capital Expenditure.

Railroads and canals	$2,798,704
Public works	1,297,111
Dominion lands	135,047
Northwest rebellion	830,528
Total	$4,437,460
Railroad subsidies	1,087,041
Redemption of debt	3,125,638
Total capital account	$8,650,139

The net debt stands as follows:

July 1, 1887	$227,313,911
July 1, 1888	234,531,358
Increase	$7,217,447

This increase is caused by expenditure on capital account.

For the present year, 1888-'89, the estimated receipts had been $36,900,000. For the eight months concluded the actual receipts were $24,616,766. He now estimated for the remaining four months receipts amounting to $13,984,528 and the amended estimate of receipts for this year now stood as follows:

Customs	$23,533,971
Excise	7,063,143
Miscellaneous	7,398,180
Total	$38,601,294

Or, to be within the mark, say $38,500,000. The expenditure would amount, he estimated, to about $36,600,000, leaving a probable surplus of $1,900,000. This had not arisen from any increased taxation but showed an increased ability to consume and increased prosperity in the country.

The capital expenditure for 1888-'89 would be, estimating for the four months to come:

Railways and Canals	$2,772,567
Public Works	365,780
Dominion Lands	100,008
Northwest Rebellion	120,511
Railway Subsidies	1,183,425
Redemption of Debt	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

He thought that this was the last rebellion expenditure that would be heard of.

There was necessarily far less of certainty about the year 1889-'90, but the very favorable outlook for trade gave him confidence in making the following calculations, the increases in which were based simply on increase in population of say nearly 2 per cent

Probable Income 1889-'90.

Customs	$23,500,000
Excise	7,125,000
Miscellaneous	8,150,000
Total	$38,775,000

The estimates now before the House amount to $35,400,000 and the supplementaries would not reach an exceedingly high figure, so that the total would probably not be above $36,100,000, leaving a probable surplus of $2,675,000.

The estimates brought down made a very satisfactory showing, he held. He reviewed the items as shown in the printed estimates. Among the increases was a heavy amount for the Intercolonial Railway, which was accounted for by the purposed purchase of new [illegible], etc., and no estimate can increase receipts would do much to make up for it.

With reference to the condition of the debt, the figures of net debt were:

In 1868	$75,728,641
In 1874	[illegible]
In 1888	234,531,358

From 1880 to 1888 the Canadian Pacific Railway had been completed and yet the burden of the debt as represented by the interest charge was only increased by 14 cents per head between those years.

Comparing our debt with that of the United States, while the comparisons made with a view to discrediting the Canadian Government were to the effect that the United States were in a more favorable position, the facts were otherwise. Comparison could not fairly be made, because the United States had assumed no debts of the provinces, gave no subsidies to provinces, paid a very small proportion of the cost of administration of justice, the militia was kept up by the several states, the penitentiaries were not in charge of the Federal power, the Governors were not at the charge of the Federation. In connection with this comparison the following statement of payments on account of the consolidated fund from July 1, 1867, to June 30, 1888, would be interesting:

Subsidies to provinces	$72,336,089
Interest on public debt	147,324,626
Administration of justice	16,861,542
Immigration and quarantine	5,571,631
Militia and defence	21,851,626
Penitentiaries	5,611,085
Salaries of governors	2,290,643
Assumed debts of provinces	106,472,088
Total	$372,279,847

If Canada had set out on the same basis as the United States she would have saved:

Assumed debts	$106,482,088
Subsidies	72,336,089
Interest on debt	70,000,000
Penitentiaries	5,611,085
Salaries of governors	2,290,643
Militia and defence (½)	10,925,813
Administration of justice (½)	8,430,771
Immigration and quarantine	5,571,631
Total	$278,508,615

Our net debt is but $234,531,358, so that if Canada had set out on the same basis as the United States from the first she would not only have no debt to-day but she would have a surplus of $44,000,000. Just so soon as this statement went before the people it would remove a stock argument of the opponents of the Government who argued that the United States occupied a more advantageous position than Canada with respect to her debt.

Taxation was of two kinds, voluntary and involuntary; for instance, hundreds of thousands, if not millions, in this country did not use intoxicating liquors or tobacco. The tax on these a man might pay or not, just as he chose. As out of the total of $28,000,000 taxation in 1888, $8,000,000 was paid on three two articles of luxury, the involuntary taxation was found to be only $3.86 per head out of the total of $5.66 per head. But the per capita mode of reckoning was not a fair one and overstated the amount of taxes levied upon the poor man. Canada had within her own boundaries the great staples required for the sustenance of her people. A well-to-do man of luxurious taste, if he went to New York and there purchased his furniture, his musical instruments, statuary, plate, jewelry, wines, silks, carriages, carpets, etc., upon a modest outfit of his establishment might easily be taxed $1700; but in the case of the farmer he grows most of the articles of his food, the raw material for his clothing is grown or is brought in without tax, his farming implements are made in this country, his fuel is found here in inexhaustible quantities; all the great staples required are untaxed. The case of the artisan is similar.

Canada's peculiar natural advantages placed the taxation most heavily where it shall rest, upon the man of means. The customs returns showed that one-third of the total imports for home consumption were free of duty and also that more than 200 articles of raw material came in duty free. The United States had during the past 21 years paid an average of $6.64 per head and the average of Canada was $1.79 per head less; that is, that were Canada's taxation as heavy as that of the United States she would have paid for customs and excise $182,000,000 more than she has paid.

"Is this thing to go on forever?" he asked. "Are we to go on increasing the debt and the amount of taxation taken from the people?" Canada was to-day in a position to fairly answer the question. Taking the next three years, he estimated that between now and July 1, 1892, the capital expenditures would be:

Canals	$3,636,521
Railways	1,200,000
Public Works	407,000
Railway Subsidies	1,055,703
Reduction of the debt	2,417,267
Dominion lands	160,000
Total	$7,856,500

The redemption of debt would bring the capital expenditure up to $12,730,849. On the other side he estimated a surplus of $6,000,000 in the three years. That $6,000,000 would be placed to the credit of the sinking fund and that there would be a balance still on hand of loans now made of $2,500,000, making a total of $14,500,000 to offset the capital expenditure of $12,730,849 and being close on $2,000,000 for unforeseen capital expenditure, so that from now to 1892 there would, he believed, be not a dollar added to the public debt. After 1892 he believed that the country ought to go on for a series of years without increasing the debt one cent.

He next referred to the £4,000,000 loan just floated in London and pointed out that it was one of the most favorable loans ever negotiated. It not only made a gratifying comparison with other Canadian loans, but also with loans floated in 1888 in the London market by other countries. There had been some criticism in the press about the amount asked for, which was represented as excessive, but in view of the fact that temporary loans would otherwise have been required for works in progress and in view, also of the exceptionally favorable condition of the money market, it was, after grave consideration, deemed advisable to take the loan of £4,000,000.

The rate of exchange being in our favor the money was exchanged to New York and was there put into the hands of four Canadian banks at the best rate that could be obtained, or 1½ per cent. It had been intended to exchange it back to London about Jan. 1, the tables of exchange for a series of years showing that that would be probably profitable. Abnormal conditions, however, upset this calculation and it was found that it would be unprofitable to exchange it to London. The money was now on deposit in Canadian banks at 3 and 3½ per cent. interest.

The whole transaction showed that the surplus had cost for the year rather less than 4 per cent., or less than a temporary loan would have cost.

The last hour of the Finance Minister's speech was devoted to showing the progress that Canada was making. During the past year her commerce had progressed beyond the average. If crops were smaller, prices were higher. Manufacturing industries were in a healthy state, having worked off their large surplus stocks. There was a prospect of an advance of wages in the large manufactories. The shipping interests would be glad to hear that there was a prospect of an increase in freights.

The spirit of foreign trade, he contended, was developing in this country. In 1878 the people had decided that if we could not get reciprocity with our neighbors we would build up a commerce of our own and then reach out for foreign commerce, and the solid prosperity engendered since that time now enabled Canada to commence to make her way in the markets of the world. It had always been the policy of the Government to extend trade relations with other countries, but if the country to the south of us would not deal upon fair lines, it was Canada's duty to stand upon her own resources.

There was a great country in South America ready to trade with us, there was an opening for permanent and profitable trade with the West Indies, and the Government had decided to assist in the development of this trade by granting such a subsidy as would make rapid communication possible. To the east of us were China and Japan, and our Government had promised to meet this with a subsidy to a line of steamers already subsidized by the Imperial Government. To-day the surplus of many of our cotton mills found a market in those countries. The Government was also prepared to give aid for the establishment of a direct line of steamships between our west coast and Australia.

Though our Atlantic service had been good in the past, it was not as good as it might be, and the Government was considering steps to make it more nearly equal to the service running to New York. The proper Canadian policy was that we should look first to the Dominion's development and live at peace with other countries, but at the same time no blandishments from without or specious pleas from within would induce her to hand over her commercial government to any nation outside of Canada.

Speaking of the taxation of the people, the Finance Minister contended the taxes paid by any people was the gateway through which they passed to progress. It was an indication of their advancement and national prosperity.

Mr. Foster, in conclusion, said that many deputations had visited Ottawa during the past few weeks for the purpose of securing changes in the tariff. The claims of many of them were good, but the Government, after due consideration, had decided to continue on the line of the existing tariff arrangement. If there is any readjustment it will not be significant nor of an important character.

Sir Richard Cartwright followed. He said the protective system is wrong in this respect, that the burden of taxation is borne by the masses. Mr. Foster labors under a delusion when he says the taxation borne by the Canadian workingman is lower than the taxation paid by the British workingman. Excise duty in England is higher than in Canada, but the poor man there is not obliged to indulge in luxuries. Taxation in Canada on the whole is 600 per cent. higher than in England. A high tariff is not necessarily the only highway to national progress.

Continuing Sir Richard endorsed the proposal of the Government to extend its foreign trade relations. Dealing with their financial relations with the Canadian Pacific Railway he laughed at the Finance Minister's mode of bookkeeping in making the showing he had. These accounts had been literally "cooked" to suit the purpose, if not in a fraudulent way then to suit party exigencies.

Sir Richard continued his arraignment of the Government and its policy until 11.45, when he moved this amendment to go into supply:

That all the words after "that" be struck out and that it be resolved that "Mr. Speaker do not now leave the chair but that in the present condition of affairs, and in view of the recent action of the House of Representatives of the United States, it is expedient that steps should be taken to ascertain on what terms and conditions arrangements can be effected with the United States for the purpose of securing full and unrestricted reciprocity of trade therewith.

Hon. C. H. Tupper moved the adjournment of the debate. The House adjourned at 11.55 until Thursday afternoon, and to-morrow being Ash Wednesday there will be no sitting.

It is expected that notwithstanding the statement of the Finance Minister there will be a few minor alterations in the tariff.

BARKIS IS WILLIN'.

Mr. Gladstone Says the Irish Party is Free to Meet Tory Advances.

LONDON, March 5.—A correspondent had interviewed Mr. Gladstone in reference to the proposal made by Mr. John Aird, the famous contractor and Tory member for Paddington, a colleague and friend of Lord Randolph Churchill, who writes to The Times suggesting, in the interests of the country's business, the appointment of a small committee, commanding the confidence of all parties, to agree on just steps towards meeting Ireland's demand for local government. Aird said his letter was quite spontaneous, but he is convinced it expresses the views of a large section of the Tory party and that the Tory leaders say Ireland shall have a local government. He does not see why they should not meet Mr. Parnell's moderate attitude by taking the first step in that direction. Mr. Gladstone says he will watch the development of the movement with a friendly interest. He has always hoped the Tories would settle the question. He will certainly throw no obstacles in their way. He also holds that the Irish party is perfectly free to meet Tory advances. Their first duty will be to Ireland, not to the Liberal party. Mr. Gladstone seemed in excellent health, though anxious, owing to the serious illness of his eldest son. He showed no petty partisan feeling, only a patriotic desire to end the controversy, which, he said, like the corn law agitation, was wasting precious years of the country's life. Mr. Aird's scheme may come to nothing, but it is interesting as showing the reaction in Mr. Parnell's favor caused by "Pigottism."

Gladstone Thinks He Will Soon Come In.

LONDON, March 5.—Although Gladstone only spoke of a year or two hence as the possible date of an appeal to the country in his speech, he entertains a strong belief in his return to power being almost imminent. One day last week he was discovered in a well-known London drawing-room deep in the pages of The Morning Post, a paper which is carefully tabooed in James'-square, while waiting for the mistress of the house. On putting the paper down he recognized his fellow-caller and said cheerily: "I must come in. Lord Salisbury and The Times will fall together."

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, March 5.—The Parnell Commission resumed its sittings this morning. Attorney-General Webster narrated the facts in relation to Pigott's communication from Madrid to Mr. Soames. He stated that another letter from Pigott had been received to-day. It had been posted on March 2. This letter was sent to Mr. Soames' office for "Mr. Ponsonby." It was not read in court.

Parnell is Grateful.

LONDON, March 5.—Mr. Parnell, finding it impossible to respond to the many letters he has received from Europe and America congratulating him upon the collapse of The Times' case against him, desires through the press to heartily thank the writers of the letters.

A Trio Conspiracy.

NEW YORK, March 5.—The Times has the following cable: Prof. Maguire, who furnished Houston with the money and was the third partner in the amazingly ambitious, amazingly fatuous plot now laid bare, deserves an obituary line not less than Pigott. He it was who wrote three years ago what is known as "the bloody thumb-mark pamphlet," in which the ladies of the Land League were described as a historical counterpart of the association of harlots which was so active in Paris during the French Revolution. He was not killed for this, but he lived on the high favor of the Castle crew in Dublin and came to London last week to help swear to the authenticity of the forged letters. Just when proof of their debased origin came to light Maguire suddenly died.

The doctors first said he choked to death. Now they report that it was fatty degeneration of the heart, and the questions which were asked in Parliament concerning the suspected poison failed to secure any intelligent investigation as to whether there is aught of truth in these suspicions. Maguire is dead and now Pigott is dead, and tall, slender and well-groomed young Mr. Houston is the only survivor of the group who planned and planted this foul conspiracy upon the credulous London Times. Well may we wonder what the next act in this squalid, sinful tragedy will be.

Pigott's Remains Identified.

LONDON, March 5.—English detectives sent to Madrid to-day identified the remains of Pigott in the presence of the British consul, who ordered that the body be interred.

Pasteur's Occupation Gone.

PANAMA, March 5.—Chance has led to the discovery of a cure for hydrophobia in Ayacucho, Peru. A man was bitten by a mad dog, and shortly after the disease developed. In his madness the man rushed from the house, and falling among a lot of "penca" plants, some of the juice of these plants entered his mouth, and he swallowed it. A moment of reason seems to have followed, during which he seized some of the leaves, broke them, and drank of the milky and glutinous sap with which they are saturated. When his friends found him he was stretched senseless, with the "penca" or Maguey leaves in his hands. He was carried to his home, and soon regained his health. Experience has long since taught the Indians that "penca" sap invariably acts as a cure upon dogs suffering from hydrophobia.

HARRISON'S INAUGURAL.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S inaugural address was a calm and dignified one, though it is not an address that will cause excitement and to one not deeply interested in United States politics it may even be tiresome reading. The President referred to several subjects, such as the suppression of the negro vote in the south, the Panama Canal, the Samoan affair and protection, but he had not a word to say as to the fisheries or commercial union. Were these questions in which he took no interest or were they too important to be dealt with without consultation with his Cabinet?

The President touched gently on the Monroe doctrine in his reference to the inter-oceanic canal, but it is plain that he will oppose such a waterway being under the control of a European poper. As the Samoan difficulty has apparently passed the crisis his determined expressions as to colonial possessions of European states and coaling stations are not of as much public interest as they would have been a short time ago. On the question of protection he gives no uncertain sound, and it will be his policy to maintain protection for native industries.

In reading the address one cannot fail to be struck with its high moral tone—a good ring about it that is better than any historical flourishes or epigrams. There are, however, passages that, if not fervent, are eloquent, and the inaugural address cannot lower President Harrison in the estimation of the nation.

IT is gleefully pointed out that the passage of Mr. Hitt's resolution in favor of commercial union shows that United States politicians are disposed to make such an arrangement. That was not denied. But does not the resolution indicate that commercial union is the only arrangement they are disposed to make?

RETURN TO THE OLD HOME AFTER MANY YEARS.

SERMON BY A LAYMAN.

To the Editor of the Review,

It is surprising what changes take place in a locality in the course of one generation. Changes not only with the things there but with the people as well. If, after an absence of twenty-four years, the traveller returns to his native place, he will find many of his old acquaintances either dead or removed away, and he will also find many of the old landmarks gone. He will meet many strange faces when he expected to see former friends. When he is far away in other lands, no matter whether in prosperity or in adversity, and especially if he is alone, how often his thoughts go back to his old home. And at the close of the day, when night is setting down upon the earth, he sits and thinks, and wonders how everything looks there, and whether there has been much change among his old acquaintances. I have heard persons say who had left the old country twenty or more years before, that they longed to visit their native land and to see old places and old friends again. And I have heard them say how greatly they were disappointed when they did revisit them. They scarcely found anything as they had left it, and among all their old acquaintances but very few were left, and they said they were glad when they returned to Canada again. Their dreams had been dispelled and they returned home thoroughly disappointed, satisfied to remain here in peace and contentment. A little boy in a quiet part of the country got tired of living at home and he decided to run away and seek his fortune in other lands. He went on board ship and soon was gone. Many inquiries for him were made by his parents but no tidings of him could be obtained. He became a sailor and saw many strange places and strange people. He got tired of the sea and resolved to settle down in a new and distant country, where the people were all strangers to him, and where he wished to be unknown. He remained there for many years and at last became prosperous. But he was not contented. He often thought of his old home and he felt a strong desire to go back and revisit the scenes of his early youth. He imagined that he would find everything as he had left it. So he started on his return journey and he at last landed in his native country many miles from his old home. As he went along he was surprised at the great changes which had taken place, but he thought the place which he was seeking would look the same as when he had left it a little boy more than a generation before. The following lines will best describe what he saw:—

Long years had passed since I gazed on the scene,
Which my fancy still robed in the freshness of green,
The spot, where a school boy, all thoughtless I strayed,
By the side of the stream in the gloom of the shade.

thought of the friends who had roamed with me there,
When the sky was so blue and the flowers so fair,
All scattered, all sundered by mountain and wave,
And some in the silent embrace of the grave.

thought of the green banks that circled around,
With wild flowers and sweet briar and eglantine crowned,
thought of the river all quiet and bright,
As the face of the sky on the blue summer's night.

And I thought of the trees under which we had strayed,
Of their broad leafy boughs with their coolness of shade,
And I hoped, though disfigured, some token to find,
Of the names and the carvings impressed on the rhind.

All eager I hastened the scene to behold,
Rendered sacred and dear by the feelings of old,
And I deemed that unaltered my eye should explore
This refuge, this haunt, this elysium of yore.

Tears, a dream, not a token or tree could I view
Of the names that I loved, of the trees that I knew,
Like the shadows of night at the dawning of day,
Like a tale that is told, they had vanished away.

And me thought the lone river that murmured along
Was more dull in its motion, more sad in its song,
Since the birds that had nestled and warbled above,

I passed, and the mood came home to my heart,
Behold, how of earth the glories depart,
Our visions are baseless, our hopes but a dream,
Our staff but a reed, our life but a dream.

Then, Oh, let us look, let our prospects allure,
To scenes that can fade not, to realms that endure,
To glories, to blessings that triumph sublime,
O'er the blightings of change, o'er the ruins of time.

Everything in this world is full of change. Nature is never idle and it never goes backward. Onward, always pressing on. To-day is not to-morrow and to-morrow is not the same as to-day. The present growth dies away to be succeeded by a new development and a new growth to-morrow, and these successive changes will continue as long a the earth lasts. And so our generation of men passes away to be succeeded by another generation and these changes will never end. And what man builds up, time and the elements pull down. And thus it comes to pass that the old home and all its surroundings moulder away and disappear. And the long absent one at last comes forth only to see the ruins of the house where his family dwelt and where he passed many of his happiest days. And he goes to the churchyard near by and there he sees the place where lie all that remains of his father and mother and perchance of his brother and sister also. And he realizes then that this world is not man's abiding place and that his other and better life is in the home beyond the skies. Beyond the skies where there are no changes and where "the house with many mansions" continues forever. And he turns and goes away a wiser and perchance a better man. If he goes into other lands he will see the same changes taking place. And he will see the ruins of cities laid desolate thousands of years before, and countries which once were great and powerful, great and powerful no more. And a people who were once known for their science and wisdom, low down in the scale of civilization and worshiping in mental darkness and superstition and the slaves of a hard, overbearing despotism. Countries where the light of the Gospel never penetrates. He thus realizes, by comparison, the great benefits and blessings which Christ brought into the world, and he finds that the Bible carries with it freedom and liberty to all the people who made it their help and guide. And by means of these things he saw that God made man a free being and endowed him with the elements of power, prosperity and happiness in this world and everlasting happiness in the life to come. And he will thank God for giving him a book which will be a lamp to his feet and a guide to the better world. A book which alone is capable of bringing him comfort in times of trouble and which will bring Jesus to his sorrowing soul. And as the wanderer, far from his home, looks around him and looks back over his past eventful journey, his heart grows weary and longs once more to revisit the scenes of his happy childhood, thinking that when he gets there he will be at peace. He thinks that there is rest for the weary in the old place where he lay first in his mother's arms and where she afterwards nursed him and sang to him those good old songs, the like of which he has never heard since and which he may never hear again. And the daughter who is far away, struggling over life's stormy sea, when the shades of evening begin to fall and the darkness gathers closer around her, sits down in her lonely room and thinks and thinks over all her past life, of the old home, of father and mother and of brother and sister, and she wonders what they will be doing then—and whether they are thinking of her. Indeed they are thinking of her then. They are thinking of her all the time, and the mother prays that she may be kept free from the world's ills and that she may be prosperous and happy. And she prays that the time may soon come when she will see her child face to face once more, and that then they may all dwell together in peace and unity. And although many things have changed since the daughter went away yet she will find the old home the same. And she thinks, when that happy time does come, how happy they will all be. The mother knows that death must sooner or later part them all, and that her own time will be first. But she hopes that her daughter will be among the family to speak to her and to smooth her pillow, and promise her so to live that she too will die the death of the righteous and that at last all the family will be once more united in that eternal home where there will be no more parting forever. And so, after many years, the absent daughter comes home, and when they see her afar off all the household go out to meet her with thanksgiving and joy. And then each has to tell of the things of the past, and the coming evenings are made pleasant by the relation of the incidents of the years now gone, and by expressing the hope that their after lives will be full of peace and happiness. The daughter's loneliness and homesickness and longings for home are now ended, and all her wanderings are over.

Wanted to Be Relieved.

Gen. Tom Moonlight, now governor of Wyoming, took from Chicago on the occasion of his recent lecture visit the memory of a pleasant incident. He was standing in the rotunda of the Grand Pacific hotel early in the evening when a respectable looking old gentleman approached with the inquiry: "Is this Gen. Tom Moonlight?"

"The same," was the general's genial rejoinder. "What can I do for you?"

The old gentleman saluted and said precisely: "I am Private Joseph Creer, Company C, Twentieth Missouri, in scouting service under your command, and I request to be relieved."

Gen. Moonlight smiled first, and then, impressed by the old man's serious mien, his glance grew incredulous, and with the last words he was flushed with embarrassment. He surveyed the veteran and adjudged him to be in comfortable estate, but there was no mistaking the character of the appeal, so he thrust his hand into his pocket, asking pleasantly: "How much will be of service to you?"

The old soldier threw off his deferential manner with a loud laugh, and seizing the general's arm cried: "You don't understand. I want to be relieved from duty. April 14, 1865, coming twenty-four years this spring, I was assigned by your orders to a picket station, at Corn Landing on the Missouri, fifteen miles from Kansas City. My orders were explicity to stay there until relieved. I stood by my post two weeks, rationed by a Union family living close at hand, and would probably have been there yet if a fellow on a load of hay hadn't have answered my challenge by the positive declaration that the war was over. I thought it strange I didn't hear from headquarters, so I put my duty in my pocket and went down to Kansas City. I learned there that the war was truly over and the army disbanded. I never got a discharge, and when I was in Washington last year I looked over the war records and found that I am officially still standing sentry at Old Corn Landing. No, I don't want to be relieved for a fact, as my case is the only one of its kind in the history of the United States army."—Chicago Tribune.

One of Lincoln's Stories.

"I remember the last time I ever heard Lincoln converse," said Gen. Porter. "We were discussing the subject of England's assistance to the south, and how, after the collapse of the confederacy, England would find that she had done the south not much good and herself much harm.

"'That reminds me,' said Mr. Lincoln, 'of a barber in Sangamon county. A man woke him up one night and said he must get shaved; that he was going to a ball and he had a few days' beard on his face which must come off. Well, the barber lathered his face and his nose and ears and slapped some of it in his mouth, and stropped the razor on his boot. Then he mowed over one side of his face and shaved off two or three pimples and a wart or two. And the man in the chair—a common low backed chair which nearly dislocated his neck—said, "You propose to make everything level as you go, don't you?" "Yes," replied the barber; "if the handle of this razor don't break I'll get away with what there is there." [Laughter.]

"'The man's cheeks were so hollow that the barber couldn't get down into all the valleys. But he had a bright idea. He stuck his finger into the fellow's mouth and pressed out the wrinkles so as to level them. And so he mowed away with the razor until finally he cut right through the man's cheek and cut his own finger.

"'There, you lantern jawed cuss, you have made me cut my finger!' exclaimed the barber as he shook off the blood." [Laughter.]—From a Recent Speech of Gen. Porter.

The Arizona Kicker.

MOLEHILL VS. MOUNTAIN.—There is a disposition on the part of a few mudsills to magnify the little incident which occurred at the postoffice last Tuesday evening. Last week we referred to Col. Crocker as a thief. We were wrong. He was arrested in Illinois for arson and jumped his bail. He met us in the postoffice and knocked us down. While down, we explained that we were in error, and he apologized and helped brush the dirt off our clothes. That's all there was to it—one of the trifling incidents of everyday life—and that class who are seeking to exaggerate the facts will make nothing by it. When we call an incendiary a thief—a robber an absconder—a bigamist an embezzler, we shall apologize every time.—Detroit Free Press.

Another Great Artist.

"What a wonderful painter Rubens was!" remarked Merritt at the art gallery.

"Yes," assented Cora. "It is said of him that he could change a laughing face into a sad one by a single stroke."

"Why," spoke up little Johnnie, in disgust, "my school teacher can do that."—Harper's Bazar.

The usual Ash-Wednesday service was held in St. John's Church this morning. A good congregation was present, though many engaged in business found it impossible to attend. All such persons, will however, have a clear opportunity at the evening services on this and succeeding Wednesdays. Rev. W. C. Allen, who gives the first address this evening was, curate of St. John's some thirteen years ago, and his friends will be glad to see him again in the church. Since his sojourn here Mr. Allen has travelled extensively in Europe, Egypt and the Holy Land, spending also some time in parochial work in England. He is now assisting his father in the large parish of Cavan, and it is currently reported that he has been lately asked to accept a post of greater responsibility in the church.

EVERY DENOMINATION

IS ASKED TO TAKE PART IN THE EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

An Immense Crowd at the Crossley and Hunter Meeting Again last Night—The objects of Prayer—Episcopalians—Roman Catholics—The way to Heaven Who Were in the Audience.

Again the George-st. church, with all its seating capacity, was hardly large enough to accomodate the immense crowd that sought admission to the Crossley and Hunter evangelistic services last night. It was precisely a quarter to eight when Rev. Mr. Crossley announced the opening hymn, number 127. The singing of this was followed by another, the 191st. Then Rev. Mr. Crossley said they would sing another, the 128th, "My Precious Bible," for the benefit of one person. He said his brother and he were singing this hymn in a meeting in Port Hope and there happened to be in the audience a lady who had not been in a church for four years and this lady had been struck with the beauty of the hymn and it had led to her conversion. That lady was there to-night and he would sing it for her benefit.

Rev. Mr. Hunter then offered up a prayer, and after the singing of the 99th hymn Rev. A. C. Wilson led in prayer.

THE GEORGE-ST. PASTOR.

Rev. Mr. Pearson in making the annoucement of the meetings spoke of the blessed and profitable meeting that had been held in the Baptist church in the afternoon and said that another afternoon meeting would be held on Thursday next in the same church. The rev. gentleman went on to impress upon the minds of the immense audience that these meetings were not confined to any one denomination. It was not Peterborough for the Methodists, but their cry was "Peterborough for Jesus Christ." He was delighted at the marvellous power that the meetings had already had in the town and also at the general spirit of inquiry after God there seemed to be among men.

THEY WANTED EVERYBODY.

After singing the 15th hymn, Rev. Mr. Hunter said he did not want the people to be talking about the evangelists all the time, but to forget them and talk about Jesus Christ and the unsaved. They were not here for praise nor for money, but just out of love for God's word. Just as soon, he said, as the spirit of enquiry for salvation got abroad, just so soon would the town be turned upside down. He did not know what the bottom would be like, but the top he knew was very good. In fact he might say that in Peterborough he had met the most intelligent audiences he ever had and he thought they had one of the nicest little, or big, towns he ever got into. He then read as the lesson for the evening, part of the fifteenth chapter of II Chronicles. Commenting on the truths contained in some of the verses he said that they were shown that a great revival might begin with one or two persons. There were many things he and Mr. Crossley were going to give them, but the people could not stand them yet. There were idols in the hearts of some of them. The heart, he said, was made up of little rooms. Some of them had the card room and the dance room in their's, and these were closed and Jesus could not enter. There were idols in the home. Ladies made an idol of their home itself. There were idols in the church. People talked all of church and never of Jesus Christ. They should talk less of church and more of Jesus Christ, the author of the church. He wished that the Roman Catholic priests of the town would come up on their platform. He wanted the Episcopalian clergymen, also. Why did they not come? In other towns they had always come to the meeting and he hoped they would all come here before long. He wanted all to come, whether black, white, grisly or grey. After some further comments he said he would leave the chapter with the audience and he wanted them all to read it and get the many lessons from it which it contained.

THE EPISCOPALIANS.

Rev. Mr. Crosley then gave as his solo "Abide with Me." He said this piece of music had been composed by Rev. H. P. Wright, an Episcopalian clergyman, and he would sing it especially for the Episcopalian friends present. He supposed there were many of them present. In Winnipeg he had been told that one half of their audience were Episcopalians and he said over one hundred gave themselves to God at their meetings. In St. Thomas one hundred and twenty and in Ottawa between one and two hundred Episcopalians had been converted and all over the people of this denomination had taken a great interest in their meetings.

OBJECTS OF PRAYER.

Rev. Mr. Hunter then asked the audience to offer a silent prayer for several special cases which had been sent to him. A lady who would be unable to attend the meetings and who was in great trouble and under a very dark cloud asked for special prayer. A father asked prayers for his eldest son. A young man, who was anxious about himself, solicited Christians' prayers. Parents asked for prayers for their son. Another request was for "one who professed to be a Christian but who visited questionable places of amusement." Another solicitation was for prayer for a father and mother, and for a brother "who seems indifferent to anything religious."

THE WAY TO HEAVEN.

Rev. Mr. Crosley took for the text of his address the following verses:—

"And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it, but it shall be for thine; the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.

"No lion shall be there nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereln, it shall not be found there, but the redeemed shall walk there.

"And the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

The evangelist said here they had a description of the way that led to the better land, and said he hoped those who were on the way were journeying along happily and those who were not could get on that night. He pointed out that it was an expensive way, not to us, but to Him who had laid it. Secondly it was a free way—the King's highway. Some people said they would go in this way because there were so many hypocrites. Hypocrites could not be in their way unless these people were travelling in the same way with the hypocrites. Others said, "If so-and-so is in the church I don't want to be." The rev. gentleman said that was all the more reason they should be in the right way, and the more unconverted people there were in the church the more reason there was for everyone to say "I'll be in the right way." It was also a holy way. Holiness meant set apart to God and therefore, he said, every Christian who had given himself to God was holy. It was a great mistake that many made in limiting the use of holy to certain sections of the way, but he believed that it included the whole, and then the division could come afterwards. He pointed out also that it was a a plain way, so much so that even a fool could not err therein. A way of surrender, trust and peace, and not, as some believed it to be, of peace, trust and surrender. It was also, he said, a safe way and all could come in confidence, and lastly it was a happy way, and after dwelling on this point for a a short time he concluded his address by giving in a most beautiful manner his experience after conversion, telling how be had sang himself through his joy, trials and temptations.

During his address the rev. gentleman sang several appropriate hymns, as his address was called "A Song Sermon," the concluding portion especially being beautifully illustrated with songs.

FROM THE AUDIENCE.

Mr. HUNTER then made a few earnest remarks and called upon all there who had been on the good way for 50 years to stand up. A few aged forms, with heads that had grown white in the journey, arose in answer to the call. He then called on those who had been 40 years saved, and then 30, then 20, then 10 and lastly for 5. There were numbers stood at each call, increasing as the years decreased. He then asked all those who wished to be on the way and wanted the prayers of the Christians to stand, and thirty sinners who wished to have salvation arose one by one in all parts of the church.

The first meeting then closed, but about one half of the large audience remained to the after meeting.

At St. Peter's.

The usual services on Ash Wednesday were held at St. Peter's to-day. There were masses at seven, eight and nine o'clock this morning. At the nine o'clock mass His Lordship Bishop Dowling officiated.

Married and Gone.

Mr. Wm. Lundy, a son of Mr. Jos. Lundy, was united in marriage yesterday morning to Miss Mary J. Walbrook, by the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, rector of St. John's church. Last evening the happy couple left for British Columbia, where they will reside in future.

Those present were Messrs Deans, Hill, English, Dumble, O'Meara and Hamilton, and Dr. Burnham and Mr. T. Rutherford were met on the way up by those returning. There were four applications for increases of salaries from teachers to be read, making in all ten such applications.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS.

Missionary Services—A Pleasant Church Social—Other Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

A SOCIAL.—A social under the supervision of the Presbyterian congregation of this place, was held here on Tuesday evening, the 26th ult. A very pleasant and profitable evening was spent by all.

LECTURE.—The temperance lecture last Wednesday evening was not as well attended as had been desired. Notwithstanding "the very poor state of Mr. Bancroft's health on that occasion" he succeeded in keeping the interested attention of his audience for over thirty minutes. All we regret is that more did not avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing the lecture.

METHODISTIC.—The annual missionary services held in the Methodist church here on Sunday night last resulted in a grand success. By a motion made by the pastor, Rev. W. B. Seccombe, Dr. Jeffs was called to the chair, which he filled in a manner creditable to himself and to the church with which he stands identified. The chairman in his opening remarks showed the congregation how his heart and soul were in the work, how the work was prospering in India, China and Japan, how God would honor those who honored him by giving freely to the support of this grand work and closed by exhorting those present to liberally support the cause. The Rev. W. B. Seccombe was then called upon to read the annual report of the society. The deputation for the evening consisted of S. P. Ford, M. D., of Norwood, and Rev. J. S. Clarke, Chairman of the District. These eloquent and efficient speakers brought before a very large and appreciative audience the object, system, foundation, progress and results of this Christian society. The amount subscribed that night in aid of that society was about $70 00. It is expected that Havelock will this year triple the amount raised last year. Great credit is due to the pastor for the progressive state of in this mission. The special services that have been in progress here for the past six weeks have been brought to a close, but the revival spirit is still alive. God has greatly owned the earnest and efficient labors of Revs. W. B. Seccombe, pastor, and A. B. Osterhout, colleague, in these services, and as a result much good had been accomplished.

PERSONALS.—Rev. A. B. Osterhout's absence from our midst is occasioned by the sickness and death of his father, who died at his own residence, in the village of Frankford, on Thursday night last, after a short but painful illness. We, as a community, deeply sympathise with Mr. Osterhout in this sudden and sad bereavement....Miss Galbraith, of Peterborough, is the guest of her cousin, Miss Ella Waller....Mr. Thomas Wilde intends starting for Manitoba in a week or so....Miss Burnett, of Kingston, is visiting with her brother, Mr. W. Burnett....Miss Mellis is visiting with her brother Mr. B. Mellis.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Another Brakeman Meets his Death Under the Wheels.

News reached the town this morning of a dreadful and fatal accident that occurred on the Midland division of the Grand Trunk about eight o'clock last night, whereby a brakeman named Badgerow met a terrible death. The accident occurred between Uxbridge and Goodwood stations. A freight train in charge of Conductor McArthur was coming east from Uxbridge and when Goodwood was reached Badgerow was missed from the train for the first time. Conductor McArthur got on the west-bound express which crossed the freight train there and went back over the road to ascertain if his worst fears were correct, viz, that the missing man had slipped between the cars. His fears were unfortunately realized and the mutilated remains of the unfortunate brakeman were found lying on the track, the head and one of the arms having been severed from his body. The poor fellow had probably slipped while running along the top of the morning train and fallen under the wheels to meet his horrible death. The deceased man has lately been residing in Lindsay and is a married man.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

Burleigh Asks to be made a Free Grant Township—The late Mrs. Peters.

Correspondence of the Review.

SCHOOL TENDERS.—Mr. Wm. Delries was awarded the contract for building the new School House for S.S. No. 1, Anstruther.

AT REST.—The funeral of the late Mrs. S. Peters left her husband's residence on Friday, March 1st, and proceeded to the Strangers burial ground, St. George's, Apsley, where she was interred, the Rev. Mr. Harding officiating. The deceased lady had been in poor health for some time, but her demise was unlooked for so soon, although her case was considered hopeless by the attending physicians. She was a native of Frontenac County, Ontario, and moved here only a few years ago with Mr. Peters, her second husband. Her life has been a laborious one, yet the calls of mercy always met a ready response from her, and her kind disposition and neighborliness endeared her to many, who testified their regret when following her remains to the quietness of their hillside rest; and with whom we extend our sympathy to the bereaved ones in their great affliction.

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL.—The Council of Burleigh, etc., met in the Town Hall, Apsley, on Feb. 28th. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. C.R.D. Booth presented the Auditors' Report, which was adopted on motion of Coun. Scott seconded by Coun. Hales. The application from the Trustees of S.S. No. 1, Anstruther, to raise the sum of $800, was laid over until next meeting with the recommendation that the Trustees call another meeting of ratepayers to reconsider the matter. Taxes against Mr. Sharp, Mrs. M. M. O'Brien and Mrs. Clegg were ordered to be remitted. On motion of Councillor Scott, seconded by Councillor Langford, the time for the return of the Collector's Roll was extended to the first day of May, 1889, and that the seal be attached to this resolution. Moved by Councillor W.H. Hales, seconded by Councillor Langford, that it is the opinion of this Council, that it would be greatly to the benefit of corporation of the United Townships of Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos if the Township of Burleigh were placed amongst the Free Grant Townships, and that the Clerk send a copy of this resolution to Mr. T. Blezard, M.P.P., asking him to lay it before the Legislature at this Session.—Carried. The following orders were drawn:—George Delries, shovelling snow, $1.00; D. Anderson, holding school election, $2.00; D. Anderson, expenses to Peterborough, $40.00; A Wilson, shovelling snow, $2 00.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND
QUEENS WA

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $4,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of selveres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $3,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

But before they could reach their goal they were stopped by the sister of the member for the city, who was standing outside her stall contemplating the effect thereof. This was Miss Gervase, perhaps the most energetic and charitable, and certainly not the least popular woman, for many a mile round Blankhampton. She was very tall and wonderfully fair, with crinkled golden hair, bunched up at the back of her head into a sort of cloud of glory; her eyes were blue, bright forget me not blue, and she had lovely hands.

"My dears, she said, in a brisk, fresh, bustling voice, the voice of a woman who could get through twice as much work as most of her kind; "my dears, how do you think my stall looks?"

"Oh! awfully well, Miss Gervase," Sarah Leslie replied, heartily. Everything these girls did was hearty, and they were like a sea breeze on a bright summer's morning for freshness.

"I got my picture done in time, you see. Oh! my dears, I worked like a slave to finish it; and there's my embroidered screen at the back. Like it? Yes. I think those water lilies on it are pretty good; any way, they took me three months to work. And then I've got all that old china in the corner, and a case of curios, which, by the bye, Jack has bought already."

"Dear Miss Gervase, it puts us all in the shade completely," struck in Violet Leslie, cheerily; "for so it ought, for you've worked harder than any one, and the whole thing is your doing from beginning to end."

The Leslie girls passed on; then they came to Lady Margaret's chalet, where the dean's lovely daughter and her friend Miss Earle were just putting the finishing touches to their display of fancy goods, with the aid of several other girls, all dressed alike as Swiss peasants.

They stayed there a good while laughing and chattering like a flock of birds, and presently Sarah Leslie noticed that Aileen's visitor kept looking toward the house.

"Are you looking out for somebody, Miss Earle?" she asked, with frank curiosity.

Nancy Earle smiled.

"Yes; Lady Margaret has asked my young brother to come and stay for the bazaar; and he, you know, is just gazetted to the Blankshire regiment, and so delighted at the chance of coming and seeing his brother officers. He is very young, you know, and it is almost impossible for me to think of him as an officer yet."

"Dear child," laughed Sarah Leslie, kindly, "we are rather fond of griffs; you must hand him over to us and we will help to complete his education."

"How kind of you," cried Miss Earle, impulsively. "He is really a delightful boy, though he looks what he is, awfully young. I hope he'll get on all right with the regiment."

"Well, he is sure to have rather a rough time at first," returned Sarah; "it's part of the system. I don't think, though, that they carry their system to quite such lengths in the line as they do in the cavalry. You must try and interest some of the others in him a little."

"Mr. Beresford said"——

"Oh! if Beautiful Jim is going to take him up he will be safe enough," broke in Sarah, whose admiration for Beautiful Jim was very great. "Oh! I say, there is Mrs. Antrobus and the fair Polly. I suppose the bridegroom elect will be in attendance today."

Nancy Earle craned her neck so as to look at Polly, who was to help at one of the stalls, and wore the Swiss dress, in which she looked lovely.

"I have never seen her before," she said, "though I have heard such a lot about her—Lady Margaret doesn't know them. How lovely she is, and how the costume becomes her; but"—with a flash of that quick humor which had made her so infinitely attractive to Beautiful Jim—"it's just as well her mother did not attempt to wear it; people would have taken her for one of the Alps!"

"Yes, there is plenty of her, that's true," laughed Sarah Leslie, "but her daughter is awfully pretty—quite the prettiest girl in Blankhampton. Lord Charterhouse was fearfully in love with her, in fact he was her shadow from the time the Black Horse came here until he went away and got married to his cousin without saying a word to a soul. I fancy," she said reflectively, "that he would rather have married her"—looking in the direction which Polly and her mother had taken—"only he couldn't get off his engagement to his cousin."

"Oh! here is Stuart," cried Nancy, gladly.

"Tommy, you shameless boy, is that you?" she exclaimed.

CHAPTER VIII.

WORKING UP INTEREST.

Miss Earle opened her eyes to their fullest extent in her astonishment at Sarah Leslie's greeting to her young brother. "Oh, have you met Stuart?" she said.

"Stuart?" Miss Leslie laughed. "No, I know no Stuart, but I know the shameless boy they used to call 'Tommy,' at Brighton, last autumn. Do you know that boy," she went on, in teasing tones, "that boy walked about with me for a whole week, and then when little Violet, who was just 16, joined us, he quietly jilted me for her."

"Oh, Miss Leslie!" cried the object of their attack, "there was a long brute of a Guardsman, and you never so much as cast a glance my way after he came. What was the good of hanging after you while he was to the front? So I just slipped into the background, and, thinks I, 'I'll let them get comfortably married, and then perhaps there'll be a chance for me.'"

FENIANS.

Numerous Demand for Information.

A, March 4.—Parnell branch ational League will this week resident Harrison and Secretary resolution adopted by it yesterday, ich will be sent to every branch in United States, urging joint action by Congress requiring the State Department to demand of the English Government a statement of how far it has carried on its spy system, military and otherwise, in this country. The action is based on the testimony of LeCaron before the Parnell Commission. The resolution alleges that spies paid by Great Britain are now employed in the government departments and in the United States army, which is equivalent to a declaration of war. It advises a demand upon England for the names and aliases of all its spies in this country.

Harrison's Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The President sent to the Senate to-day the following nominations:

Secretary of State—James G. Blaine of Maine.

Secretary of the Treasury—Wm. Windom of Minnesota.

Secretary of War—Redfield Proctor of Vermont.

Postmaster-General—John Wanamaker of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of the Interior—J. W. Noble of Missouri.

Secretary of Agriculture—Jeremiah M. Rusk of Wisconsin.

The nominations were confirmed in a ten-minute session of the Senate.

A Chess Seized.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 5.—The schooner Wm. H. Toye was seized on Friday at Beaver Harbor, N.B., for alleged violation of the customs laws. A fine of $400 was imposed and paid before the vessel was released. Captain Rowe denies that he was smuggling or otherwise violating the law.

Fires in the States.

ALTOONA, Pa., March 5.—Slack's Mountain City Theatre was burned this morning by an incendiary, loss $75,000.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 5.—The rendering and glue factory of the Minnesota Transfer Packing Company was burned this morning, loss $80,000.

Milan to Abdicate.

LONDON, March 5.—A Belgrade despatch says there is the highest authority for stating that King Milan will abdicate in favor of his son on Wednesday, the anniversary of his being proclaimed King, and that M. Ristich will be appointed Regent for the whole time of his son's minority.

SOUTHWOLD'S SCOURGE.

The Smallpox Epidemic—Twenty Cases in the Vicinity of Fingal.

ST. THOMAS, March 5.—Almost the sole topic of conversation here is the smallpox epidemic in Southwold. The City Council and the Board of Health are fully awake to the urgency of prompt and vigorous action, and a rigid quarantine will likely be established.

Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, who has just returned from Fingal, reports that there are eleven houses infected, and there have been twenty-seven cases up to date. There are now some twenty cases in the township and village. The doctor advised the prompt arrest of any infected or exposed persons who entered St. Thomas. There is now one case in Shedden, that of Judson Burwell, livery stable keeper, who caught it from the robes of one of his cutters, which had been hired by a young man who attended the fatal dance at Eustice's. The hotel at Shedden is closed.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

Prorogation of the Legislature—The Bonspiel—Detectives Looking for Tascott.

WINNIPEG, March 5.—The prorogation of the Legislature this afternoon was almost with democratic simplicity with the exception of a guard of honor. The House sat till 5 this morning to finish business.

The curlers were unable to commence play this morning owing to soft weather, but have decided to begin this evening and play in relays night and day till the whole competition is completed. It will take about five days to finish the bonspiel.

A number of miners from Lethbridge passed through to New York to-day.

Sir Donald Smith is here.

Several American detectives are reported in town looking for Tascott.

The eloping couple mentioned yesterday are Prof. Ernest and a Mrs. Mitchell. They are still in the city.

Burglary at Brantford.

BRANTFORD, March 5.—Five young men named Joe Walker, Charles Milne, J. Marcle, F. Sickles and Mark Garvie have been arrested charged with burglarizing T. E. King's liquor store last night. Part of the stolen property, which consisted of liquor in quart bottles, was found in the possession of the prisoners. They will be tried to-morrow.

Death of Halton's Registrar.

MILTON, March 5.—Milton lost one of her most highly respected citizens to-day by the death of Mr. Francis Barclay, Registrar for the County of Halton. Mr. Barclay had been a resident of the county for many years, was appointed registrar in 1860, which position he held up to the time of his death. He leaves a family of seven children.

Harrison Fails to Please Berlin.

BERLIN, March 5.—Most of the papers here reserve their opinions on Harrison's inaugural address. The Tageblatt says that the address shows an arrogant spirit and does not display particularly friendly feelings toward other powers. Other papers make similar comments.

The King of Holland Moribund.

BERLIN, March 5.—The latest news from The Hague is that the death of the King of Holland is imminent. There are acute symptoms of blood poisoning. The King is experiencing terrible suffering and what cessation from pain is obtained is due to the use of morphia. It is stated that Bismarck favors joining Alsace-Lorraine with Luxembourg on the death of the King of Holland, making the Duke of Nassau King.

A Panic on the Paris Bourse.

PARIS, March 5.—The sudden death of M. Denfert Rochereau caused a temporary panic on the bourse to-day. Stocks beyond the sphere of copper speculation remained unshaken. To-morrow, it is understood, will be big with fate for the copper syndicate, the negotiations for an arrangement with all the mines, including American, finally succeeding or failing.

A G. T. R. Ferryboat Burned.

WINDSOR, March 5.—The Grand Trunk ferryboat Transit, which has been lying at the dock for some time, was discovered to be on fire last night about 11 o'clock. Nothing could be done to save her and she burned to the water's edge. The loss is $15,000, thought to be insured. The Transit has not been in commission for some time past, the Grand Trunk having been trying to sell her.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Why will you cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief? Price 10c. 50c. and $1. J. C. Wells & Co., proprietors, Le Roy, N. Y.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Houses, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1.00 which needs no apology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION.

A TORONTO MERCHANT SKIPS TO THE STATES.

The Safe in the Ottawa Police Station Robbed of $600—No Clue to the Thief—Ambitious City Notes.

TORONTO, March 7.—In all probability the population of Toronto has been decreased by one, and the populace of New York State increased in proportion. William Burgess, a local wholesale fruit canner and commission merchant, has had some trouble lately with his creditors which would have reached a climax yesterday, but, it is said, Mr. Burgess did not wait to see it out. Mr. Burgess' factory is in Mimico. He resides in Parkdale, and has an office down town. On Saturday last Burgess called on a leading assignee and informed him that he (Burgess) had between $9000 and $10,000 worth of notes falling due on Monday, the 4th, and that there were no funds to pay any of them, or anything on account. In view of this, Burgess said, an assignment would have to be made. Nothing has been heard from him since, and the assignee expects that he will execute the assignment and send it across the bridge in the regular way. Nothing further of his liabilities is known outside of the paper due on Monday.

The bad results of the Fourth of March are much heavier throughout the province than was anticipated. Yesterday morning the business community was flooded with reports of embarrassments from almost every district in Ontario. Happily large failures are few, but the numerous small bankrupts are bound to not only try the patience, but will also hamper the business of larger houses.

Among the usual routine motions heard by Judge Robertson yesterday was one to strike the name of J. P. MacMillan, County Attorney of Dufferin, from the roll of solicitors. The application was made on behalf of a client of the solicitor, who charges Mr. MacMillan with not paying over to him certain moneys collected by him. An order was made to strike the defendant's name off the rolls, but the order is not to issue for two weeks.

The Grand Jury yesterday returned true bills against John Wadsworth, false pretences; and Richard Cole, bigamy. The case of Richard Cole, the old pensioner, who is charged with bigamy, was traversed till the next court, when it is expected that several important witnesses will be here. [illegible] was released on bail. [illegible] King-street to the number of 100 [illegible] to the Mayor's office [illegible] to represent to him the [illegible] condition of that thoroughfare. The result of the invasion was that the Mayor issued orders to Street Commissioner Jones to set all the men he could find able to handle pick or shovel to work to remove the packed snow from King-street between Sherbourne and York-streets.

The Police Magistrate yesterday sent William Vevers to jail for 30 days for a brutal attack on his wife. Ellen Sullivan for theft got seven days, and Edward Deeg for disturbing the Salvationists was fined $7 or 30 days. J. E. Townsend, on a charge of fraud preferred by Mary A. Bright, was committed for trial.

BEARDING THE LION IN HIS DEN.

OTTAWA, March 7.—Last night the safe in the Ottawa Police Station was robbed of $600. The thief entered the station, got Chief McVeity's key, thence entered the clerk's office, obtained the key of the safe and rifled it. No one heard any noise and who the culprit is is a mystery. An ex-policeman is suspected.

Railroad Consolidation.

BOSTON, March 6.—The Oregon Short Line and the Utah Northern Railway, branch lines of the Union Pacific, are about to be consolidated. The two companies operate 1,[illegible] miles of railroad. The question of [illegible] with this new company [illegible] other [illegible] of the Union Pacific is under consideration.

The Rochester Beer Syndicate.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 6.—The three [illegible] breweries of the city were to-day purchased by an English syndicate. The prices paid were as follows: Bartholomew Brewery, $2,000,000; Genesee Brewery, [illegible]; Rochester Brewery, [illegible]. Five per cent. is paid down.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS CLOSED IN THE BRITISH HOUSE.

The Flurry on the Paris Bourse Subsides—King Milan's Abdication—The Italian Cabinet Crisis.

LONDON, March 6.—In the House of Commons to-day W. H. Smith moved a cloture on the debate on the address in reply to the Queen's speech. The motion was carried, 247 to 66.

Sir Julian Pauncefote, the new British Minister to the United States, will start for Washington about the end of this month. After a short stay he will return to London for the summer. In the autumn he will take his family to Washington for a permanent residence.

Further correspondence between Lord Salisbury and Mr. Bayard on the Sackville affair is about to be submitted to Parliament.

In the event of the Parnell Commission presenting no interim report on the forged letters the Opposition contemplate a motion to adjourn in order to call attention to the action of the Government in aiding the prosecution to collect evidence, or an address to the Crown regarding the expenses of the commission.

Crispi in Trouble.

ROME, March 6.—Signor Crispi is experiencing great difficulty in forming a Cabinet. He has chosen Signor Doda, of the Left, for Minister of Finance, to the astonishment of his friends, who believe Doda to be incapable.

Signor Crispi to-day presented to King Humbert a cabinet list composed of members of the Left, but he expressed a doubt as to his ability to secure a majority in the Chamber of Deputies and therefore proposed that the King entrust Signor Biancheri with the formation of a transition cabinet. King Humbert has the matter under consideration but it is probable that Signor Biancheri, if summoned, will decline the task and that Crispi's ministry will be given a trial.

Abdication of King Milan.

BELGRADE, March 6.—King Milan has abdicated the throne of Servia. Crown Prince Alexander will be proclaimed King to-morrow. MM. Ristitch, Protitch and Belimarkovic will act as regents during the minority of the King, who was born Aug. 14, 1876.

King Milan in announcing his abdication declared there would be no change in the relations between Servia and Austria.

After a solemn service to celebrate the proclamation of the kingdom, Milan returned to the palace, where he received the congratulations of the ministers, diplomats and others. The King addressed the assemblage thus: "I thank you for your congratulations. Excuse me, I am very busy. I beg to inform you that I have resolved to abdicate. The manifesto will perhaps explain my motives." He then silently shook hands with all present and went into an adjoining room, where in the presence of the cabinet and state council Milan, in a voice choked with emotion, read the Ukase announcing his abdication. He then gave a cheer for the new King, all present joining with enthusiasm.

King Milan will remain commander-in-chief of the army during his son's minority.

The Flurry on the Paris Bourse Over.

PARIS, March 6.—The Bourse was quiet to-day. The market closed firm on reports that the position of the companies interested in the Societe des Metaux is assured. Societe des Metaux shares advanced 60f. Rio Tinto shares advanced 32f. 75c.

The evening papers concur in the opinion that Rochereau committed suicide. The Temps gives particulars according to which there was no alternative but suicide.

Six directors of the Comptoir d'Escompte have announced their readiness to pay on demand all monies deposited with the company. The chiefs of the principal banking firms to-day resolved to place themselves at the disposal of the Comptoir d'Escompte in order to assure, in case of necessity, the repayment of all deposits.

A Conspiracy Against the State.

PARIS, March 6.—The Temps states that the magistrates inquiring into the affairs of the Patriotic League have found documents proving that the league was engaged in a scheme to mobilize its members. The Government, The Temps says, intends to criminally prosecute the chiefs of the league for conspiracy against the state.

To be Arbitrated.

COPENHAGEN, March 6.—In the Lower House of the Rigsdag to-day the Minister for Foreign Affairs stated that the British minister at Athens had consented to act as arbitrator in the dispute between the United States and Denmark regarding the claim of Mr. Butterfield against Denmark for the loss of a number of vessels near St. Thomas many years ago.

Royal Nuptials Fixed.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—The marriage of Grand Duke Alexandrovitch to Princess Alexandra of Greece is fixed for June 16.

Stallo Will be a Roman.

ROME, March 6.—The Riforma says it learns that ex-Governor Porter of Indiana will succeed Judge Stallo as American Minister at Rome. The Riforma speaks in high terms of Judge Stallo, and says he has decided to settle in Rome.

W. L. Alden, the American Consul-General here, will also resign. He intends to resume journalistic work.

Trunk Line Meeting.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The joint executive committee of the Trunk Line Association and of the Central Traffic Association, as well as the general passenger agents of the same associations, assembled here to-day to consider the alleged violation by some roads of the agreement entered into by the trunk lines regarding paying and receiving commissions for passenger business. Some of the roads present confessed to having violated the agreement in this respect, others claimed [illegible] to have violated it. A resolution was finally adopted that on and after to-day they would refuse to pay further commissions for passenger business. It was also resolved that the signers would endeavor to persuade all connecting lines not in the association to stop paying commissions to agents.

Killed Her Sleeping Husband.

WAUKESHA, Wis., March 6.—Mrs. Ann Driscoll decapitated her sleeping husband Timothy with an axe during a temporary fit of insanity near Delafield this morning. She attempted to murder her son, also, but was restrained by her daughter, who awoke in time to prevent the act. The woman has recovered her reason. She says she was impelled to murder her entire family in order to save them from some unknown calamity.

[illegible]

NEW YORK, March 6.—Mrs. Michael Martin [illegible] in her bed [illegible] struck with a flatiron by [illegible] Brown, a boarder who boarded there. Mrs. Martin is dying. Brown was arrested.

STRONG RESOLUTIONS.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 6.—The Orange Grand Lodge this morning passed the following resolutions, the entire assemblage rising to their feet and receiving them with Kentish fire and repeated cheers:

"That while we claim for our Roman Catholic fellow-countrymen the rights and privileges we ourselves enjoy, yet we, the members of this Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East representing 375 primary lodges, view with great apprehension the present state of affairs in Canada, where both political parties show such a strong disposition to pander to the Church of Rome, and moreover we take this opportunity of explaining ourselves as being in hearty accord with leading papers in their wise and outspoken course regarding the disallowance of the Jesuit bill; and further we are of opinion that a continuance of the present course of political action must inevitably lead to the coalition of the best of all parties with definite principles and a definite policy—principles based upon eternal righteousness and truth, and with a policy that will accord equal rights to all but exclusive privileges to none; a policy that will put country before party and stand by right and truth at any hazard and at every cost.

"That the act respecting the Jesuits' Estates recently passed by the Legislature of Quebec is clearly derogatory to Her Majesty's prerogative, inasmuch as it invites the interference of an alien power in our domestic affairs. Therefore this Grand Lodge petition His Excellency the Governor-General in-Council against said bill, and asking for its disallowance; also that all county, district and primary lodges be instructed to petition to the same effect."

A resolution was also passed indorsing the action of Colonel O'Brien in his intention to bring before the Dominion Parliament a resolution disapproving the allowance of the Jesuits Estates Act.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A Long Discussion on the Price of School Books.

TORONTO, March 7.—The price of school books was the topic of discussion at the Local House yesterday afternoon. Outside of this little was done with the exception of passing these bills through their third reading: To amend the Ontario Shops Regulation Act; respecting St. Andrew's Church, Darlington. No new bills were introduced.

Mr. Preston moved for a return showing the names of all publishers of public school text books, with the respective books published by them and their prices; also for copies of all correspondence by or with the Minister of Education or any officer of his department respecting the price or publication of public school text books subsequent to that already brought down.

A long discussion followed, participated in by Mr. Preston, the Minister of Education, Mr. Clancy, Mr. Harcourt, Mr. Wood, Mr. Creighton, the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Hammel, Mr. Whitney, Mr. Awrey, Mr. Willoughby and Mr. Dance. The motion was at length carried.

At the evening session half a score of private bills were passed in committee. The most important bill read a second time was that relating to the consolidation of the debenture debt of Toronto. The other bills passed were: respecting the Ontario and Sault Ste. Marie Water, Light and Power Company and the Town of Sault Ste. Marie, to authorize the Synod of the Diocese of Huron to sell certain lands; to revive and amend the act incorporating the Sarnia and Lambton Southern Railway Company; respecting the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company; respecting the Niagara and St. Catharines Street Railway Company.

FIRES OF A DAY.

MONTREAL, March 6.—A fire broke out early this morning in the planing shed of the Deaf and Dumb Institution immediately opposite that building, at Mile End. The flames quickly demolished the planing shed and caught on the adjoining building, a factory 75 feet long and three stories high, which was also consumed. Three wooden sheds that were used for storing the material that was used in the factory were badly gutted. The loss is estimated at $20,000. No cause can be assigned as no fires were ever used in the planing shed.

A $2000 Blaze at Trenton.

TRENTON, March 6.—A fire broke out this morning about 2 o'clock in a wooden building on the market square occupied by G. A. Booth, grocer. The flames quickly spread to the adjoining building, also of wood, owned and occupied by J. Cunningham for livery stables, the whole of which was quickly reduced to ashes. The horses, harness, buggies, etc., were all saved. Total loss about $2000, said to be covered by insurance.

SIR CHARLES' VISIT.

It is Thought he Has Come to Press a Fast Atlantic Service.

OTTAWA, March 6.—The impression prevails here among well-informed people that Sir Charles Tupper's unexpected arrival in this country is at the solicitation of Sir George Stephen and his associates, who are impressed with the idea that it is of vital importance to the interests of the Canadian Pacific Railway that a fast Atlantic service exclusively to Canada should at once be instituted. Their influence with the Government has already secured the stipulation that the new boats to be subsidized by the country shall be able to make twenty knots an hour against a heavy sea, and it is doubtful whether any company can undertake such a service for the half a million of dollars originally spoken of. Sir Charles is probably here to press the Government to accept the lowest tender, even if it be in excess of the sum contemplated.

The Inaugural Ball.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The inaugural committee has achieved an unprecedented financial success. There were 12,000 tickets to the ball sold, netting $60,000. And it is expected that the receipts from the sale of tickets to the promenade concert held in the ball room yesterday and from the sale of souvenir ball tickets will bring this amount up to $70,000. The $60,000 guarantee subscribed by public-spirited citizens will be returned.

Busy Shaking Hands.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The new cabinet officers had little opportunity to attend to official business this afternoon, as they were receiving a continuous line of callers, mostly people from their own states who came to offer congratulations. Most of the assistant secretaries tendered their resignations but will hold office for a short period until the heads have succeeded in getting into working order.

A Fatal Fall.

ST. PAUL, March 6.—J. H. Baker, employed to make public exhibitions with a self-acting fire escape, fell from the Ryan Hotel to-day and was fatally injured.

Robert Garrett's Condition.

RINGWOOD, N. J., March 6.—Robert Garrett, the insane millionaire, left here this morning in care of his physician and attendants en route for Mexico. Mr. Garrett's condition is greatly improved by his sojourn here, but he is not considered out of danger of a relapse.

ALEX. AND THE ACTRESS.

THE BATTENBURG'S MARRIAGE CAUSES CONSTERNATION.

The Queen Said to be Annoyed Beyond Measure—Empress Frederick's Mortification Even More Profound.

LONDON, March 6.—A thunderbolt in a summer sky could not have created more amazement and consternation than was caused at Windsor Castle by the news of Prince Alexander of Battenberg's mesalliance. The Queen is annoyed beyond measure as, after having allowed her daughter and granddaughter to contract morganatic alliances with two of the princes of Battenberg, it is highly provoking that a member of the family should marry an actress. Luckily for Prince Alexander and his bride they are beyond her reach. Everyone knows how zealously the Queen has exerted herself to forward Prince Alexander's interests, both public and private, and he has certainly proved that love has been more potent with him than gratitude. The mortification of the Empress Frederick is for obvious reasons even more profound, as she had constituted herself the champion of Prince Alexander during the whole of the last year, and now feels that she has compromised herself. She has shown herself to be entirely wanting in that wisdom which she wishes all Europe to suppose that she possesses by allowing her daughter to be ignominiously jilted by an individual of whose suit she had so warmly approved, and herself to be egregiously hoaxed.

The truth about the matter is that last August, when the squabbles about the Emperor Frederick's diary were amicably settled, Emperor William consented that his sister should marry Alexander, on the condition that the couple undertook to live quite privately at a distance from Berlin. It was then arranged that the marriage should take place in the private chapel at Windsor during the winter. Prince Alexander and his bride were to have lived at Cronberg, in the Taunus, where the Empress Frederick had purchased a villa for them adjoining her own.

About two months ago Emperor William was informed of Alexander's flirtation with Mlle. Loisinger, and I hear that after discussing the matter with his brother, Prince Henry, with Prince Bismarck and with his eldest sister, the hereditary Princess of Saxe Meiningen, he sent to his mother in England a peremptory letter forbidding the marriage. The Emperor has absolute power over his relatives, as by the Hohenzollern family statutes he can deprive any prince or princess who disobeys him of any share in the state fund or family fortune. The Emperor later on explained to his mother that Alexander was trifling with Princess Victoria and acquainted her with the Loisinger story.

Then there came a right royal row at Osborne, as both the Queen and Empress were not merely furious, but also much ashamed of having so seriously committed themselves in support of Alexander. Poor Prince Henry, who has been languishing in the north wind of royal favor since this explosion, was ordered to write a letter to Alexander, then at Darmstadt, requesting an immediate and full explanation of the story which the Queen and the Empress could scarcely bring themselves to credit, whereupon the offender suddenly resigned his commission in the German army, a step which was at once followed by his private marriage, which was not intimated in any way to his relatives in Germany or to his patrons in England. The royal family learned it from the newspapers.

HENRY LABOUCHERE.

The Gold Fever in Southern California.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—The gold excitement in Lower California near Ensenada is increasing. Work on the Cuyamaca, San Diego and Eastern Railway is stopped and the workmen are leaving in a body for the mines. Steamers between San Diego and Ensenada have doubled their rates, but the rush continues and stages are now running overland carrying many persons direct to the mines. San Diego papers declare that the development covers 100 miles square and that placer mines are making a great deal of money. Thirteen thousand dollars in gold dust were brought into Ensenada and San Diego yesterday.

A San Diego special says: The Mexican border at Lia Juna has had the appearance of war for two days. Nearly 100 teams and trains and 500 prospectors gathered there to enter the gold fields. They wanted to evade the custom officers and the red tape and attempted to force their way into Mexico. Mexican troops were called out and the trespassers were forced back. The Union publishes statements from Prof. Anthony, Chas. Bennett, John R. Berry and others of undoubted veracity saying that the fields are phenomenally rich. Fully 1000 people are in camp. All the peninsular towns are deserted.

Business Crashes in the States.

TRENTON, N. J., March 6.—Willets & Co., extensive manufacturers of pottery, are financially embarrassed. Two of their notes to-day went to protest. The company employs 300 men. The company reported its assets in September at $362,000 and its liabilities at $168,000.

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—The Mahoning National Life Association, doing an insurance business on the mutual assessment plan, failed to-day and a receiver was appointed. An inventory shows $30,000 cash, notes and accounts $21,000. The association has risks amounting to $10,000,000.

Suicide in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., March 6.—Nathan A. Wilson, secretary of the Cleveland Stove Company, shot himself dead this morning while sitting at his desk. His father is president of the company. This afternoon the company assigned. The nominal assets are $200,000, liabilities nearly $90,000. The assignment was made, it is said, to tide the company over the excitement caused by the secretary's suicide and to prevent hasty action by creditors. It is thought Wilson was depressed because of too close attention to business.

Navigation Opened on the Hudson.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., March 6.—The propeller Newburgh of the Ramsdell Transportation Company opened navigation on the Hudson River between New York and Newburgh this evening by making a trip from New York to Newburgh in 5½ hours. She had no difficulty with ice.

A Hydrophobia Epidemic.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W.Va., March 6.—Nearly 200 dogs suspected of being mad have been killed in this county during the past month. The interior of the country still seems to be overrun and there is general alarm. There has been considerable loss of swine, sheep and cattle, which have died from being bitten by infected dogs, and in two instances horses have succumbed. Several people have also been bitten but in no instance has any serious result followed. Farmers consider it dangerous to go along the roads unarmed and dog-killing squads are out daily. One man has seven dogs believed to be mad. They have taken to the woods and are running wild with dozens of other dogs in a like condition. These dogs spread the disease by biting other dogs, live stock, etc. The disease first appeared in Fishing Creek last August and has been growing worse steadily.

The Recent Meeting Regarding the High School District.

THE MEETING REPORTED.—A correspondent of the Hastings Star writes:—As conflicting rumors are extant regarding the proceedings of the late meeting called by the Reeve to consider the Norwood High School question, we will give a short summary of the actual events. The Reeve, Mr. Moore, was appointed chairman. In a short speech, he told the audience the purpose for which the meeting was called, viz., to find out the views of the electors on the propriety of Asphodel becoming a part of the Norwood High School district. Next, Mr. John Walsh wished to learn from the Reeve his authority for calling the meeting, asserting that the meeting was not legal. The Reeve explained that other Reeves were calling similar meeting, and he wanted like them, to learn how the people felt on the matter. Mr. Roxburgh then ascended the rostrum, and endeavored to convince the electors of Asphodel that it was necessary for the mutual benefit of Norwood and Asphodel that they should be one with regard to supporting the High School, also stating that Norwood aspired to getting as far as the Indian river westward, included in their territory. Mr. Walsh then followed opposing the proposition, holding that the Norwood High School receive money from the Legislature and the county council, and if this and their other means would not prove sufficient, to impose a rate bill or give up the school which Lakefield would only be to glad to receive. Next, Mr. J. C. Brown, C.P.&L., gave a short address, and endeavored to impress the fact that for benefits received, gratuities should be given and he considered Asphodel benefitted. Mr. F. Birdsall in a very neat address, opposed the measure, favoring giving them a grant from the county, and then we would be in no way committed to whatever extravagant expenditures the Norwoodites might resort to in the future. He was decidedly opposed to the measure. Then the Deputy-reeve, Mr. Jos. Harrison, addressed the constituents also opposing the measure, stating that if a young man went to learn a trade, he or his parents had to foot the bill and he thought those wishing a higher education should do the same. Then Mr. Fitzpatrick, councillor, informed the assembly that he heartily re-echoed every sentiment of Mr. Birdsall's. Mr. Henry Humphries, councillor, next gave a stirring address, declaring that he was opposed to the measure; give them so much of a county grant to let them go about their business. If we became part of the section, no telling where the matter might end. Now came the orator of the day, James Humphries, Esq., who in a grand peroration, declared against the proposition, giving some good, sound advice and offering to spend one month getting up a petition against the proposal. Mr. Anderson, of Norwood, took up the cudgels for Norwood, but he only wasted his sweetness on the desert air, for the people were now thoroughly aroused, and vehemently denounced the measure.

After some discussion it was moved by Mr. Birdsall and seconded by Mr. Robert Harrison, that this meeting is decidedly opposed to the proposal to make Asphodel part of the Norwood High School district, but would recommend the county council to make them an annual grant. Moved in amendment by Mr. Walsh, and seconded by Mr. Jas. Humphries, that this meeting take no action. Their grounds for making the amendment were that the Reeve was not asked by the people or the Council Board to call the meeting. That it was called at the request or for the purpose of aiding the Norwood scheme. Both motions were put to the meeting, but owing to the somewhat confused state would not like to say for a certainty which side had the majority. But any way, both parties were decidedly opposed to the measure.

Correspondence of the Review.

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL.—The Council met on 18th February, 1889, all the members present. On motion the fee for ball or dance in Town Hall was reduced to $4.00. The clerk was instructed to write to Philip W. Elmhirst, requesting him to attend next meeting of the Council to endeavor to come to an agreement with regard to the concession line fence opposite his lot. Michael Crowley requested a survey to be made to define the north half of the allowance of road between lots 11 and 12, in the east half of 17th con., which he is to receive by resolution in 1887 in lieu of 18 feet for road given by him across the north end of the south-east quarter of lot 12, con. 17. The Reeve was instructed to get the survey made. Patrick Fitzgerald requested the Council to open and establish a road around O'Brien's hill on lot 27, con. 8. Messrs. Anderson and Johnston were appointed to see David Knox about right of way for said proposed road. On motion lot 28, con. 2, was put into road Division No. 55. Samuel Sargent received $4.00 to assist Samuel McNair. The Treasurer's accounts were finally audited by the Council. The Clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law to repeal by-laws No. 385 and 387. A FEW NOTED DWARFS.

MIDGET MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE PUZZLED SCIENTISTS.

Sudden Growth of One of the Little Fellows—Remarkable Longevity of Those of Short Stature—Lucia's Big Lover—The Smallest Married Couple.

The English dwarf, Sir Geoffrey Hudson, was doubtless the most widely known of any human curiosity of either ancient or modern times. Born of parents of normal size, in Rutlandshire, in 1619, at birth his height did not exceed 8 inches. He did not begin to walk until after the end of his third year, his height then being about a foot. At the end of his seventh year he was taken into the family of the Duke of Buckingham, having, between the age of 3 and 7, added but 4 inches to his stature. At the age of 30 he was only 18 inches tall when equipped with his high heeled shoes, then so fashionable.

From the age of 30 to 35 his growth was as remarkable for its rapidity as it had previously been for its tardiness. At 30 he was but 18 inches high; at 35 his height was 3 feet and 9 inches!

How or why this remarkable change was brought about was too much for the distinguished Society of Royal Surgeons, who time and again discussed the phenomenon without arriving at any satisfactory conclusions. Hudson lived to the ripe age of 68, about three times the age attained by the average giant.

HOW NATURE EVENS UP.

Why giants, as a rule, should all, or nearly all, be of the male persuasion and of very short life, and why dwarfs should be of about equal numbers of both sexes and of long life, is an anthropological enigma worthy of laborious investigation.

Joseph Borawalski, by courtesy called Count Borawalski, was another of the old time dwarfs of distinction. He was born in November, 1739, near Chalies, Polish Russia. He was one inch less in height than Hudson at birth, and weighed but 15 ounces. His brothers and sisters—the entire family numbering six, including himself—were alternately dwarfs and people of normal size. The eldest was a brother, 2 feet 9 inches in height; then came another brother, 5 feet 10 inches; next Joseph, the subject of this sketch, who was but 2 feet 4 inches on the day he attained his majority; next came a sister 5 feet 4 inches; next another sister, who died at 22, being then but 2 feet 2 inches in height, who was in turn followed by a sister of the regulation size.

Joseph married a woman of fair proportions; removed to Banks' Cottage, Durham, England, where he lived to the advanced age of 98 years, furnishing a more striking evidence of the longevity accorded dwarfs by pitying nature as part payment for the abridgment of stature suffered.

There lives, or did, a short time since, near Stonersville, Pa., a girl by the name of Vadilla Sheerer, who will be 19 years of age if she lives until Oct. 31, 1889. She weighs 29½ pounds. At the age of 7 she weighed but one-third as much as the average baby at birth, tipping the beam at 2¾ pounds. The poor little thing is unable to walk or talk, cannot even stand alone, and is perfectly helpless.

AN ATOM OF HUMANITY.

The most remarkable atom of humanity that has ever attained his or her majority bears the poetic name of Lucia Zarate and hails from Mexico. She was born in the country named Jan. 2, 1863. When on exhibition in this country in 1883 to 1885 she weighed, according to the most reliable accounts, about nine pounds; generally advertised as weighing but four pounds and nine ounces. Lucia, like most Mexican girls of good family, was betrothed when still in her cradle. As her affianced grew to be a strapping fellow of 150 pounds, Lucia's parents watched over their midget offspring, reluctantly admitting to each other that the unequal match must sooner or later be declared off, and, although the two have long since given up all hopes of ever being joined by the hymeneal ties, each holds the other in loving remembrance. When on exhibition in Philadelphia, Lucia thought she saw the face of her Mexican lover in the throng which daily crowded around her. The very sight of his face, or the face of one she mistook for him, caused her days of sorrow. Her time off the stage for two weeks after the little episode was spent in bemoaning her fate and praying to be allowed the stature and avoirdupois of other girls of her age. After her tour of the principal American cities, Lucia returned to her Mexican home, where she is, no doubt, still enjoying her semi-oriental life on as grand a scale as her abbreviated proportions will admit.

It has remained for Germany to outdo all other countries in producing the smallest married couple in the person of a miniature marquis and marchioness, who made a bridal tour of Continental Europe during the year 1880.

The marquis was born at Kiel, the capital city of the province of Schleswig-Holstein, in the year 1850; soon adopted the title of Marquis of Kiel, by which he has ever since been known, and which, as with the name of our own Tom Thumb, was first applied as a nickname. The marchioness was born at Neurachnister, also a German city, in 1858, and is consequently eight years the junior of her midget husband. At the time of their marriage their combined height was eight inches shorter than five feet, and their combined weight but thirty-two pounds, the groom weighing nineteen and the bride but thirteen pounds. At the time of his marriage the marquis weighed almost four pounds less than the Bates baby did at birth; the bride weighed but little more than half as much as the same child.—St. Louis Republic.

An Army in Miniature.

A gentleman by the name of Lawrence, living at West Salem, Ills., has produced a remarkable piece of mechanism. It represents an army and consists of 400 pieces. Horses, men, cannon, cavalry, artillery, infantry, and a band of fifty-two men, each holding an instrument, are represented in this wonderful mechanism. Many of the figures move automatically, the power being obtained from a miniature windmill, propelled by the heat of candles. Galileo's cowled monk was not more strange in structure. Most of the work, strange to say, was done with a pocket knife, and although Mr. Lawrence exercised his ingenuity for a year in the construction of the marvelous mechanism, yet he disposed of it for a mere nominal sum.—Indianapolis Journal.

Burying a Gendarme Alive.

A gendarme was buried alive in a village near Grenoble. The man had become intoxicated on potato brandy and fell into a profound sleep. After twenty hours passed in slumber his friends considered him to be dead, particularly as his body assumed the usual rigidity of a corpse. When the sexton, however, was lowering the remains of the ill fated gendarme into the grave he heard moans and knocks proceeding from the interior of the "four boards." He immediately bored holes in the sides of the coffin to let in air and then knocked off the lid. The gendarme had, however, ceased to live, having horribly mutilated his head in his frantic but futile efforts to burst his coffin open. So terrible a case of premature burial has hardly ever before been reported in this country, where hasty interments are only too common.—Paris Cor. London Telegram.

A Remarkable Coincidence.

On Monday last, the Bishop of Toronto presented the bronze medal of the Royal Humane Society to Master Charles Band, of Upper Canada College, Toronto. Band was formerly one of Mr. Sheldrake's pupils at "The Grove," Lakefield, and it was during his residence there that he acquired his proficiency in swimming. It is a rather remarkable coincidence that the Humane Society's medal was also obtained last year by Mr. W. Heathcote, of Peterborough, who was assistant master in Mr. Sheldrake's school when Band was the senior pupil.

TEACHERS IN COUNCIL.

Semi-Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Association.

The semi-annual meeting of the Teachers' Association of the town and county of Peterborough was begun in the Central School building this morning, Mr. A. Hutchison, of Norwood, President, in the chair. There was a large attendance of teachers.

The PRESIDENT opened the convention with an address in reference to the work of the meeting.

The roll of teachers was called and the minutes of the last meeting read.

Mr. J. J. ROONEY read the Treasurer's report, which showed that, when the departmental grant was received, there would be a balance on hand of $29.31, or, with the county grant, of $69.

Messrs. W. Smith and E. Mark were appointed auditors.

The following Nominating Committee was appointed:—Messrs. McCreary, Lewis, Raddon, and Misses Scott and Maggie McDonald.

The President introduced the subject of promotion examinations.

Mr. J. COYLE BROWN stated that the last examination was conducted by the teacher of each school. In the estimation of a great many this was not a satisfactory test, and their opinion was that the teachers should change and committees should be appointed to examine the papers. Examinations properly conducted conduced largely to success, but when conducted in a perfunctory manner they were useless. The papers for the last examination were prepared by himself, and he hoped they would not be backward in giving their opinions on the papers.

Mr. J. J. ROONEY could not say that he believed in the method of teachers changing schools for the examinations. It had been tried in Durham and had not been found to work satisfactorily. He thought it would be better if a committee were appointed to assist Mr. Brown to prepare the papers. His only complaint of the papers were that they were too easy.

Mr. J. STIRLING said that two examinations in Durham were conducted by the teachers changing schools, but it was found unsatisfactory and each teacher now examined in his own school.

Mr. BROWN said he understood that in Durham the Inspector dealt with the papers in lieu of one visit to the schools. When there were frequent changes in the schools, as there was in this county, the teacher in charge could not be held responsible for the status of the school.

The PRESIDENT agreed that the teacher in charge was most competent to conduct the examinations.

Mr. H. LEWIS agreed with Mr. Brown that it would be better to have a committee examine the papers.

Miss BECKET said that one of her best pupils did not take the lead in the examination in her school.

Mr. MARK asked what was the use of the examinations at all if everything was to be left in the hands of the teacher?

The PRESIDENT said that was not intended, as the teacher could only recommend the promotion of any who did not pass.

A committee consisting of Misses Cumming, Duff and Lizzie Lewis, and Messrs. H. Lewis and H. Strike, was appointed to consider the question and report.

Mr. BROWN distributed copies of a programme of studies for public schools and asked the teachers to study it and make suggestions.

A committee was appointed to prepare the papers and attend to the final examination of them, consisting of Messrs. J. C. Brown, H. Strike and H. Lewis, and Misses Becket and Tracy.

A general discussion on the promotion examinations and the papers followed, and the meeting adjourned until the afternoon.

A Strong and Popular Play.

Mr. Gillette's great American play, "Held by the Enemy," has probably achieved more triumphs at home and abroad than any success in past years. Besides its long run at the Madison Square theatre, originally, it has been produced at Wallack's Star Theatre, at the Grand Opera House, and this season Mr. A. M. Palmer has offered it for his first play at Palmer's (last Wallack's) Theatre, as his opening production. When it is considered the numerous attractions and plays that would have made sacrifices for the opportunity which was given to Mr. Gillette to have "Held by the Enemy" for this event, the drawing strength and popularity of this play may be understood. The play is still running in England, being given by two companies through the provinces and in Australia it is one of the legitimate triumphs of the country. Nym Crinkle has to say about the play, which was written after the production at Palmer's Theatre: "I think it may be safely said of 'Held by the Enemy' that is a play that will delight everybody with a pure, honest, wholesome delight. You cannot see it without coming, for the time being, a little closer to majestic events. It leaves no taste of gunpowder in the mouth, like those lurid melodramas that have caught only the glare and noise of war. But it leaves a distinct recollection of men and women who have no time to flirt with foreigners, for they are swept along by history itself, and of one quaint girlish face on which is visible a child's unconsciousness of everything but her own awakening love and desire." Held by the Enemy will be produced at the Opera House here Monday, March 11th. Secure your seats at Dowsell's music store. 1d56

ANOTHER BIG MEETING

THE EVANGELISTS AGAIN TALK TO AN IMMENSE AUDIENCE.

The Effect of Lent—Give up the Cards and Dance—Pay Your Doctor Bill—Requests for Prayer—Two Thousand to be Saved—The Work in Belleville.

Rev. Mr. Crossley commenced the opening hymn, "In the secret of His Presence" at the evangelistic services in the George-st. church last evening to an audience which filled every pew and brought the aisle seats into requisition. After the singing of the hymn Rev. Mr. Hunter offered the opening prayer and the immense congregation joined heartily in the 19th hymn, "Numberless as The Sands on the Sea Shore." Rev. Mr. Torrance then offered a brief but earnest prayer, asking for a blessing on the meeting and the revival work, and Rev. P. Clifton Parker made the announcements.

HOW THEY LOOKED IN LENT.

Rev. Mr. Hunter in rising to read the lesson caught a glimpse of the face of Mr. W. Johnson, of Belleville, in the audience and invited him to come upon the platform, and shook him warmly by the hand. Turning to the audience he said they all looked happy and contented, and he supposed it was because Lent had commenced. During Lent they made all kinds of good resolutions, not to drink, nor play cards or dance. He said he hoped that some of them could die during Lent, for if they did not die at the last of Lent they would never get to heaven. He was not saying anything about Lent, but it was the only time some of them lived a good live. He wanted them to be good all through Lent and to repent and never drink any more, or play any more cards, or dance again. He then read as the lesson part of the thirty-second chapter of Genesis. In his comments he said Jacob was in some distress for he had been roguing his brother. If any of them had been they would be in deep distress before these meetings were over. As was shown in the verses, he said, the best way to pray was to plead a promise. He spoke of Jacob making restitution and said there would have to be a good deal of restitution in Peterborough. If they had been talking about the evangelists or about their neighbors they had better straighten it out. If they had taken a dishonest dollar, they might bury it under the years of a life time but on the judgment day it would come to the top. "Go," he said, "and pay your doctor bill and your grocery bill; pay them all but your wiskey bill; don't pay that because they can't collect it. The men who sold you the wiskey, that damned your life and destroyed the happiness of that loving wife, never pay him." They should all make a restitution. He told them not to pray for some outlandish thing, but to go and ask for what they wanted and expect an answer. A good many were like the old lady in front of whose house was a hill which was a great source of trouble to her and some of her friends suggested that she pray to the Lord to remove it. She did so and the next morning she went to the window and looked out and the hill was still there and she remarked "It's there yet; well, I didn't expect it would be done when I prayed."

Rev. Mr. Crossley then sang by special request the beautiful hymn which he sang on Sunday night "The Handwriting on the Wall."

PRAY FOR US.

Rev. Mr. Hunter then asked for silent prayers of Christians for some special requests. The first was from a lady who had attended two of the meetings and been delighted with them and she asked the prayers of the evangelists and the people of God for her husband who was unsaved. The next was for "a brother and aged uncle." Another asked "God's people to pray for my brother." Another asked for prayers for "two boys and two daughters," and a sister asked the prayers of Christians for "a brother and his wife who once knew the Lord." Another request read:—"Will you please pray that I may be kept trusty and also for a very dear friend in Brockville." A brother requests prayers for his sister and the last read "please pray for a poor drunkard that I may be converted to God."

TWO THOUSAND SAVED.

Rev. Mr. Crossley then rose to give his usual evening address. He said if they as a congregation would carry out the text he would take for that evening at least 2,000 souls would be converted during the next two weeks. This might seem rather high to some of them. But take the town. There were 10,000 people in it. Of these say 1,500 were adult Christians, 1,500 boys and girls who were bound for the kingdom of Christ and suppose 2,000 were converted at these meetings, it would still leave 5,000 unsaved. He did not think there were any persons present who were willing to be or have their friends or relatives be among that 5,000 unsaved. He said if they all did their duty and carried out the text then the two thousand would be saved, and if not it would be because some had neglected to do their duty. His text was Luke ix., 13—"Give ye them to eat." The rev. gentleman took the miracle from which the text was taken, the feeding of the multitude, and beautifully applied it spiritually to their meetings and said the saved should meditate upon and be absorbed in thought of the need of the unsaved and how that need could be supplied. He pointed out to them that as the loaves increased as they were broken so would there grace increase if it was broken, and urged them if they only had a little grace to use that little and it would increase, as had been his own experience. In closing he said there was only one of three dispositions that could be made of the invitation God was extending to them through him that night. The three dispositions were to treat it with silent contempt, decline or accept it. He had written out answers. The first read like this: "To Lord Jesus Christ: Your invitation to receive salvation received to-night. I decline for the time being to accept; please excuse me." He did not think any of them would like to sign that. The other read thusly: "Your invitation received to-night; I should have received before; forgive me, I will no longer delay to accept." He hoped all would sign this and said those who did not practically signed the first.

THE BELLEVILLIANS COMING.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER then offered an earnest prayer and asked Mr. Johnson, of Belleville, to say a few words, as he had helped so wonderfully in the work in Belleville.

Mr. JOHNSON spoke of the grand success of the services in Belleville and of the lasting character of the conversions in that city. He spoke of several instances where children who had been converted at the Crossley and Hunter meetings in Belleville, who had been instrumental in bringing their parents to the Saviour. Among these was the mayor of the city. He said that there had been about twenty of them in Belleville who had talked of coming out to Peterborough to tell the people of the town what God had done in Belleville, but now the number had assumed hundreds in numbers and they were all, including the mayor, coming out to tell of their joy and happiness. He said eighty per cent at the lowest estimate of those converted through Messrs. Crossley and Hunter's services had proved true to their profession, and some of them were the best men in Belleville for whom they had been praying for years. He said there was an intense interest taken by Bellevillians in the meetings here and that they were the subjects of many prayers.

The larger portion of the audience remained to the after meeting.

Mr. W. H. Dingle, who has been presiding at the organ every evening since the services started, was relieved last evening by Mr. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's.

The united choir continues to keep up its numerical strength.

The Belleville special train will probably be run out here next Thursday. It will come and return the same day.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

A Large Congregation—An Address by Rev. W. C. Allen.

The congregation present at St. John's Church last evening was certainly by far the largest that has assembled at a week day service for some time. Indeed the attendance at the services generally has increased so satisfactorily of late as to give good grounds for believing that this congregation has taken fresh heart, and that its members are working with renewed vigor for the cause of Christ and His church.

Rev. W. C. Allen was the special preacher last night and began his address by saying that the man who would consecrate his life to Christ's service might as well open his eyes to the fact that he had something difficult before him. Work, self-denial, endurance would all be necessary. The Christian life was compared by St. Paul to a race, a warfare, a wrestling match in which idle, enervated or careless people would have no part in the contest, no share in the reward. Mr. Allen then went on to show what a nobility and a grandeur there was in Christ's active service. The man who engaged in it marched calmly and serenely through the frivolities, vexations and seductions of the world, knowing that whatever others were doing he was forwarding the grandest of causes—that of Christ and of humanity—a cause which must in the end prevail. The speaker then illustrated this by alluding to St. Paul's life. He was a man of like passions with us. Had he given way to these passions he would have obtained some of life's quickly passing pleasures and a reputation merely local and transitory. But instead of this he consecrated his life to the service of Christ, and accomplished in that service an eternal benefit to the whole human race. A consecrated man he lived and worked, a consecrated man he died. Surely there was an inspiration to be caught from the contemplation of such a life!

A Relic of 1789.

The shoes of our English forefathers were slightly different from the nicely finished shoe of the present day. In the window of Root & McWhinnie's shoe store a child's shoe of 1789 is on exhibition. The sole is of wood and has a rim of iron running around it which would lead one to believe that in those days a man or child would go to a blacksmith and not a shoemaker for a pair of half soles.

Notice To Curlers.

A point match will be played on Friday night for President and Vice-President's medal. All members are requested to attend. Play to commence at 7 o'clock sharp. C. McGill, Secretary.

Curling Chat.

The rink of curlers that went to Winnipeg with Mr. J. D. Flavelle as skip is apparently going to loom up near the top of the big bonspiel. An Empire despatch says.—Portage, Wis., Lindsay, Ont., Stonewall, Granites, Thistle, Virden, Morden, St. Paul and Portage la Prairie were the winners in the second draw for the challenge cup to-day and will play off to-morrow, when the contest will be concluded. The weather is becoming colder and the bonspiel may yet be as successful as anticipated. Lindsay, St. Paul and Portage, Wis., are now favorites, and it thought that one of these three will capture the trophy. If the weather moderates again to-morrow the bonspiel may be declared off.

The roarin' game has been at a discount for the past few days, but prospects are brighter with the slight drop of the thermometer.

Three rinks of curlers from the Toronto club will be here to-morrow to play a game with three local rinks.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND
QUEENS WA

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $3,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $25,000 as the market value of a set of 12 pieces of Sevres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the [illegible] that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an [illegible] plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of [illegible] being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the curious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

There must have been some shade of truth in this assertion, for Miss Leslie flushed up in a very guilty way, though she made believe that his desertion had cut her to the heart.

Nancy Earle was only too delighted to see her boy had met friends who were pleasant and glad to see him. She watched him proudly, as he stood in the midst of the handsome Leslie girls, shaking hands and exchanging boisterous greetings with every one of them. She was quite content to be passed over with just a careless touch of his cheek against hers, and to wait until it should suit his lordly pleasure to give her the last details of her father's welfare.

How proud she was of him too, the handsome, smooth faced lad, who was the last of the Earles—the last to count, that is. She had been well drilled in her family duty, and honestly thought herself far inferior to him in every way, and of infinitely less importance; for he was a boy, you know, a lord of creation, and she was—well, in her own estimation, nothing, as far as the family tree was concerned.

He was a handsome lad, very much like her sister, but with much more importance of manner, and none of her sweet, shy ways. Not for a moment did it occur to him to study any wishes save his own, and as soon as he had spoken to Lady Margaret and the lovely Aileen, who was not one of his dislikes, he went off with the Leslies without troubling to give his sister another word.

Lady Margaret had noticed it all, trust her for that, and she said sharply enough to Aileen: "Young Earle does not seem to have anything to say to his sister."

"It's the way he's been brought up," answered Aileen—as if a boy, and the last of the Earles, had a prescriptive right to lord it over his sister, who is only a woman, a sort of excrescence which the family tree would, if anything, be rather better without.

However, as Nancy herself seemed thoroughly delighted by the simple knowledge that her dear boy was within reach of her, it was no use for either Lady Margaret or Aileen to worry about it. As a matter of fact, they very soon had something else to do; for just then Lord and Lady Mallinbro' arrived, accompanied by a houseful of guests, and Lord Cardella, looking as moody and miserable as only a man with a settled trouble ever can look; and the ceremony of declaring the bazaar open began.

Lord Mallinbro' made the shortest and most appropriate speech that could be wished, and immediately afterward went with Lady Mallinbro' on a round of the chalet and other attractions of the place.

"Polly," said Mrs. Antrobus, in a loud whisper, "have you seen Lord Cardella?"

"Yes, mother," Polly answered.

"Did he speak to you?"

"No; I've not seen him speak to any one yet."

"I think the least he can do is to introduce us to his father and mother," said Mrs. Antrobus, with dignity. "If he comes to speak to me I shall tell him so."

"As you please, mother," said Polly.

Polly was not a good saleswoman, and was not as yet doing good business; if the truth be told, indeed, she utterly loathed the whole business, and was in hourly, at least momentary, dread of her future husband's arrival.

"Is Monty coming?" asked Mrs. Antrobus, who had no aversion or such like feelings to fight against, and was looking eagerly forward to waddling round the various stalls with her son-in-law to be, covering herself with honor and glory out of his fat purse.

"I believe so," said Polly, assuming an indifference she was far from feeling.

"Did he promise to come?" persisted her mother.

"He said he would come," returned Polly.

"I hope he will; your clasps and ornaments are lovely," her mother whispered. "I have seen nothing like them so far. Really, it was most lavish of Monty to send to Switzerland for them after all the costly presents he had given you."

Polly gave a glance at her great silver clasps and ornaments, such of them as were visible, that is; but she did not answer. Truth to tell, she liked the clasps well enough, for in themselves they were lovely. But after Lord Cardella, [illegible] brother, whom she [illegible] a few [illegible] looking the very picture of misery, and after Lord Charterhouse, whom each moment she expected with dread to see, it was impossible to be particularly enthusiastic about the appearance of a Moses, or, as Mrs. Antrobus euphoniously and with affectionate familiarity called him, Monty Mandarin.

But there is a proverb founded on the probability of bad shillings turning up again, and, sure enough, Mr. Mandarin put in an appearance very soon after the opening ceremony was brought to a close. He made his way quickly to the stall at which Polly was helping, reaching it, in fact, just as Lady Charterhouse, followed by the unhappy "Mr. Winks," approached it from the other side.

"Oh, that is pretty!" exclaimed Lady Charterhouse, stooping to look at a pretty carved whip stand which graced the stall. "How much is it?" addressing herself to Polly, with undisguised admiration for her beauty. "Thirty shillings. Oh! I'll have that. Pay up, Charterhouse, please."

Thus bidden publicly, the unfortunate "Mr. Winks" had no choice but to go forward and doff his hat to Polly. At the same moment Mrs. Antrobus bore down upon them from behind, and greeted Lady Charterhouse with affectionate effusiveness. "And I must introduce my daughter," she said, indicating Polly, who would willingly have died at that moment if by so doing she could have escaped the

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

City Hall Tenders Accepted—The Projected Summer Carnival.

HAMILTON, March 6.—The markets, fire and police committee has accepted three important tenders in connection with the new city hall. For putting in the wires for electric lighting, there were four tenders. That of the Hamilton electric light company was accepted. The company agrees to supply and put in wire for 430 lamps of 16-candle power, for $3 a lamp, and the price of switches, etc., brings the total amount of the tender up to $1480.

Tenders for supplying the tower clock were received from three firms—one English and two American. The Howard Clock Company of New York was awarded the contract, its figure being $2212 for a clock capable of bringing a full, clear tone from a 4000 pound bell; the clock to be hour-striking, arranged with four sectional glass dials eight and one-half feet in diameter.

Three tenders for the bell were received. The tender of Meneely & Co. of West Troy, N.Y., was accepted. The firm agrees to supply a 4000 pound bell for $880, and guarantee it for four years.

This morning James Nichol, employed at Tuckett & Son's factory, accidentally fell into a box in which tobacco is dried, and was badly injured.

The scheme to hold a summer carnival at the beach during the [illegible] aquatic meeting is taking active shape. It is proposed to have the carnival last a week, with the amateur oarsmen's regatta as the chief attraction.

This morning an Arthur Carpenter, who is employed at Wanzer's factory, was on his way to work he took a short cut through Brennen's lumber yard. In jumping over the fence he fell and fractured his leg.

The Garrick club celebrated its removal into new quarters in Main-street east by holding a housewarming party last evening.

THE EX-PRESIDENT.

Mr. Cleveland's Enthusiastic Reception at Jersey City—He Looks Ill.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The train bearing ex-President Cleveland and party arrived in Jersey City at 6 p.m. The train should have arrived at 4.57 but, desiring to avoid a crowd, Mr. Cleveland had it sidetracked for a time at Bergen Point, six miles from Jersey City. The effort to avoid a crowd went all amiss, however. Each incoming train was met by an ever increasing crowd to see the distinguished passengers. When Mr. Cleveland's train came in there was a great rush. Policemen attempted to stay the people in vain. Mrs. Cleveland smiled as if pleased by the warm reception. Mr. Cleveland several times touched his hat. When the two finally entered their carriage a man proposed three cheers and a tiger for Grover Cleveland. They were given with a will and were followed by three tremendous cheers for Mrs. Cleveland. Then three cheers and a tiger were given for Col. Lamont. After crossing the ferry to New York the party was driven to the Victoria Hotel. Mr. Cleveland did not appear to be well. His eye did not have the brightness of health, his skin was leaden and there were dark circles under his eyes. Col. Lamont looked pale and thin.

THE FLOUR OUTPUT.

Falling off Last Week—The Market Dull—Drop in Prices.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 6.—The Northwestern Miller to-day says: Both ice and low water hindered the mills during all of last week and although there were fourteen running part of the time the flour output fell off somewhat. The aggregate production was 86,700 barrels against 95,250 the week before and 128,100 for the corresponding week in 1888. Ten mills running to-day are producing at the rate of about 15,000 barrels daily. Three others with an output of 4500 barrels are expected to start up within a few hours.

The heavy decline in wheat has affected the flour market unfavorably and the moderate demand reported by some mills previous to Saturday has been cut off. Prices of flour have been reduced 20 cents per barrel, but apparently without any effect toward inducing buyers to take hold. In fact millers disposed to treat the subject frankly say that they never saw a duller market.

The direct exports of flour for the week were 13,600 barrels against 10,740 barrels the preceding week. Merchant mills in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Dakota and New York to the number of 114 have made reports of their flour output and exports during January, showing a total output in 1889 of 763,738 barrels; same mills in January, 1888, 919,634 barrels.

It is Now Said He Wrote the Secret History of Fenianism.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Col. Richard Burke, of this city has known Pigott, the Parnell letter forger, since 1866, and charges that Pigott gave the English Government information about Burke's connection with the Irish Republican Brotherhood that sentenced him to prison for 15 years, five of which were served.

"Last November," says Col. Burke, "I wrote The London Times a letter suggesting the likelihood that Pigott had a hand in forging the alleged Parnell letters. There has been published a secret history of Fenianism, and the English press has made a great ado over its alleged exposures. I associated Pigott with its authorship, for the half truths in it could come only from the Government officers, who had all the facts accumulated during the trials of 1867-8, or from three certain men who were in the confidence of the Brotherhood leaders. One of these was Pigott.

"The others may be implicated, but to my mind Pigott is probably the man who wrote the book. I am tracing up the thread of the story in its connection with Pigott and the other two men and I think I will be able to say soon who wrote that book."

On a Friday, in Room 13.

LONDON, March 6.—A large number of dispatches have passed between the Government and the British Embassy at Madrid concerning the disposition of Pigott's effects. The informer's papers have been ordered into the custody of a special detective now in Madrid, and they will be put in evidence before the Parnell Commission on Thursday. It is stated that a letter has come to light in Madrid addressed to Ponsonby, otherwise Pigott, regarding Mr. Shannon's promise to pay the informer money. This letter is said to contain important evidence concerning the responsibility for Pigott's escape. It is rumored craftily that Pigott committed suicide on Friday in room 13.

The Electric Sugar Conspirators.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 6.—Olive E. Friend and Howard, the electric sugar-refining conspirators, left for New York last night in custody of four detectives. They broke completely down when the news of Governor Luce's decision reached them, and claimed that their last hope of justice was gone when they had to leave Michigan. They threaten to make disclosures that will implicate Cottrell and others.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Why will you cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief? Price 10c. 50c. and $1. J. C. Wells & Co., proprietors, Le Roy, N. Y.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Houses, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. Commence at $650.00 for a good house and lot, I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1 00 which needs no appology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Annual Meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

TORONTO, March 8.—Judge McDougall and the jurors had a busy time of it in the General Sessions yesterday. An Italian named Pasquin Rogero was tried and acquitted on the charge of having at Hayter and Teraulay-streets on the night of Dec. 1 last stabbed James Young, the evidence of Wm. Waldron who swore that Rogero was not the man who struck Young saving him.

John Martin the expressman arrested recently on the charge of having stolen a large quantity of fancy goods from the establishment of C. M. Taylor & Co., 52 Front-street west, by whom he was employed, was tried and found guilty. He had access to the place often during the day and many of the articles were found at his house.

There died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. P. Fogarty, Pape-avenue, yesterday morning, one of Toronto's old citizens, in the person of Mr. Joseph Pape, father of Messrs. John, James and Joseph Pape of this city. The deceased was born in Yorkshire, England, 75 years ago, and with his wife came to Toronto in 1844.

William Haines, a small boy, was arrested last night for appropriating a diamond ring, the property of Robert Nichols.

David Robb surrendered himself to the police yesterday on learning that there was a warrant out against him for wife-beating.

George H. Chandler was arrested last night on a telegram from Madoc, where he is wanted on a charge of fraud.

Yesterday afternoon, the 14th annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was held at the Association office, No. 6 Wellington-street west. President Shorey of Acton delivered the presidential address, dealing with the various questions now occupying a foremost place in the interests of Canadian manufacturers. Referring to the increased interest manifested in the Association in Canada, he extended a hearty greeting to delegates and members present from sister provinces. The officers were all re-elected.

The Clarke-Burrows Libel Suit Dismissed—But Tascott But a Tramp.

WINNIPEG, March 7.—In the Clarke-Burrows criminal libel suit to-day the case was dismissed, the magistrate holding he had no jurisdiction.

The man supposed to be Tascott proves to be a well-educated tramp who was working in the woods.

Gov. Schultz has offered one-fourth of his land in Selkirk in aid of a hospital.

A brewery has been discovered near Medicine Hat and seized. The proprietor was fined $500.

Mrs. Mitchell, who eloped with a music teacher, was captured by a detective yesterday and is home again and forgiven.

A SENTRY SHOT.

Mysterious Affair at Halifax—An Investigation in Progress.

HALIFAX, March 7.—About 11.15 o'clock last night Private Byford, who was on sentry duty at the powder magazine immediately west of the railway bridge at Richmond, was fired upon twice by an unknown man, the second shot passing through the index finger of the soldier's right hand and necessitating amputation. The whole affair is extremely mysterious, and a military court of enquiry is being held.

A WITNESS FROM CANADA

TESTIFIES BEFORE THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Queen Victoria Enthusiastically Received at Biarritz—England and the Samoan Affair—Two Marine Disasters.

LONDON, March 7.—At the sitting of the Parnell Commission to-day an ex-American Fenian named Coleman, now residing in Ontario and employed by the Canadian Pacific Railroad, detailed the outrages in which he took part while he was in Ireland. He said Moroney told him the League had paid him £300 for shooting Burke. On cross-examination Coleman testified he had received £1000 from the Government for acting as a spy in America. With this money he bought property in Winnipeg.

Mr. Soames, The Times' solicitor, testified that Walsh said he could produce documents to prove that Parnell and O'Kelly were connected with the importation of arms into Ireland, but he did not know Walsh's whereabouts. (Laughter.)

The commission at this point adjourned.

Parnellites in a Flutter.

LONDON, March 7.—The Parnellites are in a flutter over the approaching close of The Times case. Sir Charles Russell is ready to make an elaborate opening address for the Parnellites. He is determined not to risk an adverse decision on any grounds. Most of the witnesses subpœnaed from Ireland have promised their services free.

Dr. Tanner Convicted.

DUBLIN, March 7.—Dr. Tanner, M.P. for Cork, arrested for violation of the Crimes Act, was sentenced at Tipperary to-day to three months' imprisonment without hard labor. He has appealed.

Proposed Increase to the British Navy.

LONDON, March 7.—In the House of Commons to-day Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, stated that the Government proposed to build 8 men-of-war of 14,000 tons each, and two of 9000 tons, nine first-class cruisers, twenty-nine smaller cruisers, four of the Pandora type of cruiser and eighteen of the Sharpshooter type of torpedo vessels. The total tonnage of all these vessels will be 318,000 and the total cost £21,500,000. Lord George asked that £10,000,000 be appropriated from the consolidated fund for the proposed increase of the navy and that the remainder of the sum required be provided for in the ordinary estimates. He promised that the Admiralty's program would be executed within 4½ years.

Lord George did not think the proposed increase would induce other nations to attempt to rival England in naval strength because England had refrained from military rivalry. He did not believe that any other power was capable of executing such an extensive program in so short a time.

Lord Charles Bresford complained that the Government gave no real reason why just so many ships—no more and no less—should be built. He gave notice of an amendment declaring that England's naval strength ought to be equal to the navies of France and any other great power combined.

The Radicals will oppose every stage of the legislation connected with Lord George Hamilton's scheme. It is expected Mr. Gladstone will lead the Opposition attack on the Government.

England Not Entitled to Interfere.

LONDON, March 7.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson said the Government had not heard of any truce being established between the German Consul at Apia and Chief Mataafa. England, he said, had no right to interfere in the matter. He had no doubt Germany had treated Malietoa well.

The Dissident Liberals.

LONDON, March 7.—The dissident Liberals have formed a central organizing council, which will hold its first meeting March 22. Lord Hartington will make an address.

The Queen at Biarritz.

LONDON, March 7.—Queen Victoria arrived at Biarritz to-day. She was welcomed by the mayor and other prominent persons. The Queen was enthusiastically cheered by the people along the route from the station to her villa. Wreck of a British Man-of-War.

LONDON, March 7.—The British man-of-war Sultan has been wrecked on the Island of Comino in the Mediterranean. The captain and crew were saved. The Sultan was an iron armor-plated vessel of 9290 tons and carried 19 guns. She was temporarily attached to the Mediterranean squadron.

Sunk by a Collision.

LONDON, March 7.—The British ship Vandalia, Capt. Coon, from Perth Amboy, Feb. 5, for London with petroleum, has been sunk off Bognor by a collision with an unknown steamer. One of the crew was killed by the falling of an anchor and one was drowned. The remainder were saved. The boats of the steamer rendered no assistance.

Legitime Demands Recognition.

LONDON, March 7.—General Legitime has sent a telegram to the European Governments announcing that the rebellion in Hayti has been crushed and demanding recognition of his Government.

French Affairs.

PARIS, March 7.—The Cabinet has rescinded the decree of exile against the Duc d'Aumale.

In the Chamber of Deputies to-day the election of Gen. Boulanger to the Chamber for the Department of the Seine was verified.

M. Villain submitted his interpellation of the Government regarding the Panama Canal Company. He urged that the canal scheme should not be abandoned and that a meeting of shareholders of the company should be convened for the purpose of discussing means for the continuation of work on the canal. M. Villain said that if the savings of France were insufficient to build the canal assistance should be invoked from other countries. He suggested that an international conference of engineers be summoned. He moved an order of the day appealing to the Government to safeguard the interests of shareholders.

M. Rouvier, Minister of Finance, disclaimed any responsibility on the part of the Government. He said the Government had no means of interfering, although it approved of every effort made by capitalists and companies to prevent the collapse of the undertaking.

Prime Minister Tirard, replying to M. de Cassagnac, said the Government would do its utmost for the success of the canal but he could say no more.

The Chamber then by a vote of 344 to 185 adopted a Government order of the day in regard to the canal.

THE WOMAN TEMPTED ME.

Milan's Abdication Causes General Uneasiness in Europe.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Times London despatch says the abdication of King Milan will create considerable uneasiness on the Continent, chiefly because M. Restiche, who is left in charge, has no majority at the back of him, either in the Skuptschina or the country, and has intrigued equally with Russia and Austria. The situation at Vienna is regarded there with despondency. Every effort has been made on the part of Austria to keep King Milan up to the task. Abdication now is regarded in the Austrian Capital as meaning that Queen Natalie will be back in a month, and that Servia will be fully under the Russian wing before summer. Such a situation may easily precipitate a crash, and certainly will if Austria is encouraged by her allies, Germany and Italy, to interfere against Russian ascendancy at Belgrade. As for Milan himself, he has been for years the scandal of royalty, and personally all will be glad to see him disappear. It is taken for granted that he will live in Paris with the woman who was responsible for his rupture with Queen Natalie.

It is said that Archduke Rudolf's suicide is what prompted him to take this resolve to quit the throne. This would seem to be woman's special decade, for the number of instances in which during the last ten years great men have been killed and great places lost by feminine influence is probably unequalled in the history of Europe. From Gambetta to Gortschakoff and from Louis of Bavaria to Alexander of Battenberg the story has been written of late in the biggest sort of type. The new King of Servia is a lad in his thirteenth year. He is said to be an exceptionally bright, good boy, but the chances seem to be that by the time he comes to years of discretion there will be no Servia for him to rule. It is stated that the new King will be declared of age on his fifteenth birthday, and that he will then assume the government himself.

Long Live Servia.

BELGRADE, March 7.—The country is tranquil. Milan in his manifesto declares his abdication is the result of a resolution long since formed. He says he is convinced that the country will derive benefit from his labors but the new era opening demands powers which he feels he does not possess. Justice to Servia, to his son and to Europe demands that he should abdicate. He appeals to all political parties in Servia to assist the new constitution. In concluding he says, "God bless Servia and Alexander First. Long live Servia."

Bulgarian Official Circles Pained.

The Regents' Manifesto.

BELGRADE, March 7.—The regents of Servia have issued a proclamation in which they declare they will endeavor to cultivate friendly relations with all powers, inaugurate a constitutional regime, place the finances of the country upon a sound basis and maintain order.

The Paris Bourse Again Agitated.

PARIS, March 7.—The offices of the Comptoir d' Escompte were crowded to-day with persons waiting to withdraw their deposits. The Bourse was agitated, Societe des Metaux shares fell 15 francs and Rio Tinto shares 26 francs 25 centimes. Comptoir d' Escompte shares fell considerably.

The Comptoir d'Escompte has obtained nearly 150,000,000 to meet the run on the bank. Yesterday 37,500,000 francs were withdrawn. It is learned that on the late M. Rochereau's advice the Comptoir d'Escompte gave the Societe des Metaux a credit of 20,000,000 francs. Rochereau himself bought 2000 shares of the Societe des Metaux besides backing the Rio Tinto, Tharsis and Cape Copper Companies.

A Ghastly Execution.

LONDON, March 8.—The hanging of Jenkins, the Godalming murderer, took place at Wandsworth yesterday morning. The prisoner was emaciated to a degree, leaving him little more than a skeleton, and this condition rendered it necessary for hangman Berry to attach a seven pound weight to each foot in order that the fall might break his neck. It was suggested that a longer drop be given to the rope, but this was over-ruled by Berry, who expressed his opinion that a greater fall would result in beheading the prisoner. The execution was successfully carried out.

More Trouble in Zanzibar.

ZANZIBAR, March 7.—An Arab dhow arrived here yesterday and reported that she was boarded by an officer of a German gunboat, who granted her a pass. Afterwards she was fired on by other German gunboats and her captain was killed. This news created great excitement among the people of Zanzibar, and crowds surrounded the Sultan's palace, clamoring for revenge. The Sultan referred them to the German consul.

Murdered for Money.

ST. LOUIS, March 7.—Information comes from Paducah, Ky., that Mitchell Peebles, his wife and two children were found murdered in bed at their home at Duck Creek this morning. It had been reported that Peebles had received a considerable sum of money and it is supposed thieves committed the deed.

Fire in the Lottery City.

NEW ORLEANS, March 7.—Faranta's Theatre was burned to-day and a number of adjacent buildings including the Convent of the Holy Family were badly damaged. The Maldoon's Picnic Company lost their wardrobe and the Forepaugh band their uniforms and instruments. Total loss $35,000.

15 Miles Through the Panama Canal.

ASPINWALL, March 7.—The British vessel El Dorado, 270 tons burden, has passed through the Panama Canal from Aspinwall to Chagres, a distance of 15 miles. This is the first foreign vessel that has passed through the canal from one port to another.

A Dog Case at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, March 7.—A dog case was before the Police Magistrate yesterday, the complainant being F. Gilbert and the defendant L. Abrahams. The former claimed that the dog tore his coat. The owner of the Newfoundland was fined $1, and killed the dog.

The Life Saving Corset.

BRYN MAWR, Pa., March 7.—Donald Fraser fired two shots at his wife to-day and then shot and killed himself. Mrs. Fraser's life was saved by the bullets striking the steel ribs in her corsets and glancing off.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Ex-President Cleveland drove down in a carriage this morning from the Victoria Hotel to his law offices in William-street. He was accompanied by [illegible] and MacVeagh.

Big Snowstorm in New Hampshire.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., March 7.—The storm of last night continued all day throughout New Hampshire. Two feet of new snow has fallen.

The New York State League.

AUBURN, N.Y., March 7.—The New York State league of ball players met here to-day. Utica, Elmira, Auburn, Canandaigua and [illegible] were represented. After an informal discussion of plans for the summer the meeting adjourned at 4 p.m. Rome and Binghamton are supposed to come into the

THE NEW COUNTIES BILL.

DISCUSSED BY THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A Field Day for New Bills—The Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Bill Passes Its Third Reading.

TORONTO, March 8.—The members of the Local House earned their salaries yesterday by discussing the formation of new counties question. And they worked hard, at least some of them did, in opposing and supporting the measure.

It was a field day for new bills. Ontario's Premier introduced a couple and there were at least half-a-dozen more from the members.

These bills passed their third reading: To amend the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries act; respecting appeals or prosecutions to enforce penalties and offences under provincial acts; to confirm certain bylaws of the City of Kingston, and for other purposes.

Mr. Hardy's bill respecting drainage to lands by flooding in the new districts passed in committee.

These bills passed their second reading: To make further provisions respecting the Districts of Parry Sound and Muskoka; for enforcing orders under the act respecting master and servant; respecting steam threshing machines; respecting the powers of electric light companies.

There was an Ottawa deputation in the lobby yesterday and its object was to talk to the Attorney-General about the controversy between the merchants of Ontario and Quebec. It appears that Montreal merchants procure debtors in Ontario to assign to persons nominally residents of Ontario and conducting the real assigneeship in Quebec. Mr. Mutchmore of Ottawa as spokesman was courteously heard by the Attorney-General. He, however, replied that it had lately been represented to him by the Toronto Board of Trade that they thought it reasonable that Montreal men should possess this control in the same way that they considered that Toronto men should have the control of estates when nominal assignees were appointed here.

Mr. Wood's bill is to prohibit toll gate keepers from collecting tolls on the public highway in case they allow sand to accumulate on the road so as to impede travel, make it dangerous or compel travelers with any animal or vehicle to leave the highway.

Mr. Conmee introduced a bill yesterday to amend the Waterworks Act. Its object is to make the machinery requisite for carrying out the provisions of the act better adapted for unforeseen requirements.

Mr. Dack's bill to amend the act respecting the planting and growing of trees, provides that the Lombard poplar be added to the list of trees which municipal councils may bonus to extend not exceeding 25 cents for each tree planted on highways. This particular variety of poplar is extensively cultivated by farmers in some sections.

A BIG IRON COMPANY FAILS.

The Reading, Pa., Iron Works Company Suspend Payment Owing a Million.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—The suspension of the Reading Iron Works, one of the largest concerns of the kind in Pennsylvania, is announced. The works are located in Reading and operated by a stock company, and the principal offices are in this city. Edward W. Colt, president of the company, declines to make a statement, but says that a meeting of the creditors will be held on Thursday. Many of the stockholders of the company are Philadelphians. The failure is generally attributed to the stringent condition of the iron trade. About 2500 men are employed in the works at Reading. There are three rolling mills, a steam forge, a large machine shop and foundry, a rail works, and one of the largest pipe and flue mills in the country. The liabilities are said to be about $1,000,000. Of this $600,000 consists of funded debt, and the balance, $400,000, is due to various parties, mostly for material purchased at various times.

The Railway Holocaust.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At the conference of the State Railroad Commissioners and Inter State Commerce Commissioners yesterday, ex-Railroad Commissioner Coffin of Iowa, now representing the Brotherhood of Brakemen, delivered an address, which was received with marked attention. He said: I want to state this fact, that any labor looking toward the passage by the National Legislature of a law compelling the observance of safety appliances on freight cars will be in the proper direction, and that if such a law were passed it would not at all be detrimental to the railway companies. The only question is that of dollars and cents. I refer to the wonderful slaughter of men by the old link-coupler and the hand-brake. In ten years we have killed and maimed 2429 men in the State of Iowa by these two causes alone. We think in Iowa our roads are managed as carefully as any roads. We are a temperance state, and our railway men are temperate and careful, and still last year there were over 349 men killed and maimed by the causes I have spoken of. There are 150,000 miles of railroad in the United States, and over 6000 active, strong men were either killed or maimed for life from these two causes alone last year.

Chinese Hostility to Foreigners.

SHANGHAI, March 7.—A marked increase in hostility to foreigners is noticeable throughout China. The native soldiery at Che Foo are suspected of plotting to attack the foreign settlement.

A Prohibition Defeat.

ST. PAUL, March 7.—By a vote of 57 to 39 the House to-day refused to submit to the people an amendment in favor of prohibition of the liquor traffic.

Weir and Murphy.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The articles of agreement entered into by Ike Weir of Boston and Frank Murphy of England have been made public. The fight is to be to a finish for $1000, with skin-tight gloves, for the world's championship, Queensberry rules to govern. Should there be police interference the referee shall order the men to finish the fight within three days. Each man is to weigh 120 pounds at the ring side.

The battle is to be fought on Monday, March 18, within 250 miles of Chicago. Al. Smith of New York is agreed upon as the referee. The stakes shall be paid to the winner on the referee's decision. J. N. Taylor is temporary stakeholder, and $200 has been deposited with him. The balance, $700, is to be deposited on March 12, the whole amount to be turned over to the referee, who shall be the final stakeholder. The failure of either man to live up to the articles will cause a forfeiture of all money put up by him or his backers.

Smallpox near Oswego.

OSWEGO, N.Y., March 7.—Two cases of smallpox were discovered in the town of Hannibal, this county, to-day.

The American Art Exhibition.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—A large and fashionable assemblage including Vice-President Morton and a number of Senators attended the opening reception of the American Art Exhibition to-night at the elegant residence recently purchased by Mr. Morton. The exhibit filled eight spacious rooms and showed a gratifying growth in American art, being exclusively devoted to works of native artists. There are 151 pictures of an estimated value of $125,000. Palms, ferns and statuary placed about the house enhanced the beauty of the exhibition. Leading [illegible] and [illegible] artists are represented. [illegible] a fine collection of [illegible].

THE DOMINION BUDGET.

The first budget speech of a Minister of Finance is always awaited with interest, for by it to a large extent are judged his qualifications for that important office. The speech delivered by Hon. George E. Foster on Tuesday was his first effort of that character, and it was a masterly one. The facts were plainly stated and his arguments so lucid that there was no mistaking the reasoning or the conclusion that should be drawn from them. It is a difficult task to make a budget speech interesting, yet to Mr. Foster it scarcely seemed a task. In this exposition of the country's financial affairs, as well as in the performance of the other duties of the office since he assumed charge of it, Mr. Foster has demonstrated his fitness for the office and that the department is in capable hands.

Mr. Foster takes a hopeful view of the future, and the statements he presented justified that view. For the present financial year, which has nearly four months to run yet, he estimates a surplus of $1,900,000. Although it is expected that the sum of $7,000,000 will be laid out on capital expenditure before the close of the year, he looks for a reduction in the Dominion debt by July 1st next, of nearly $2,000,000. Further, without any increase in the tariff and having regard to the favorable outlook for trade, the Minister expects a surplus in the year 1889-90 of over $2,000,000. These statements will be satisfactory to the country.

Comparing the debt of Canada to that of the United States, which the Opposition does but in an unfair manner, Mr. Foster pointed out that the Dominion bears expenses that in the Republic are thrown upon the several States and showed that, if the Dominion had made no payments that the Federal Government across the lines does not make, instead of a debt there would be a considerable surplus. Clearly he demonstrated that the large expenditures on beneficial public works and in assisting undertakings for the benefit of the country since [illegible], including the Canadian Pacific railway, had only added fourteen cents per head to the interest charge of the country. Who would wish to demolish all these works and save fourteen cents? Comparing the transaction of Canada with that of the United States he showed that the people have been and are more heavily taxed than the people of Canada. Mr. Foster also believed that the Dominion's engagements for aiding railways and the capital expenditure for the next three years could be met without increasing the debt.

Mr. Foster's facts and figures demonstrating the progress the Dominion has made during the last twenty years completely confuted the doctrine of the Opposition that Canada is in a bad way. More, they not only showed that the Dominion was not in a bad way, but they proved that its progress had been reasonably rapid and was substantial, and that, with the statesmanlike efforts being made by the Government to extend its trade, to protect its industries and carefully manage its affairs, Mr. Foster was fully justified in taking a cheerful view of the future.

KEENE CHRONICLES.

Successful Missionary Meeting—Sabbath School Work—Items.

Missionary Meeting.—The annual missionary meeting of the Presbyterian Church was held here on Monday night last, when Rev. Mr. Andrews presided and Rev. Messrs. Alex. Bell, E. F. Torrance and Macfarlane were present. The two Peterborough pastors each gave short and interesting addresses on missionary work—home and foreign—and were listened to with great attention by the audience. Rev. Mr. Macfarlane also made an earnest address. The subscriptions during the year have amounted to over $400, while the collection on Monday evening was about $60. The choir of the church sang unusually well and several excellent solos were rendered.

Sunday School Convention.—A Sabbath school convention was held in the Methodist Church, Keene, on Wednesday. Mr. Day, Secretary of the Provincial Sabbath School Association, gave an address to Sabbath school workers in the afternoon and also gave an illustration of conducting a teachers' meeting. Rev. F. Andrews attended and gave some good counsel. In the evening the meeting was called to order by Rev. J. Macfarlane. Reports of Sabbath school superintendents were received and presented to the meeting. Rev. McEwen, Lakefield, being unable to be present, the Rev. J. Macfarlane gave an address on the subject of "Home Training." The report of the Nominating Committee appointed by County Associations to arrange for township organization gave in their report when Mr. Geo. Ryan was elected President; Dr. Harrison, Vice-President; Mr. Jas. McNeil, Treasurer; Mr. Robt. English, Secretary; Messrs Geo. Reid, K. Mark, John Kindred and Miss Porter were appointed an Executive Committee. Mr. Day gave an excellent address on "missionary work" in connection with Sabbath schools. The address was full of excellent suggestions and was listened to with close attention by the audience. The choirs of the two churches rendered some fine pieces of music in good style. The attendance was large and all expressed satisfaction with the proceedings. The convention concluded with the benediction by Rev. J. McCamus.

THREE KINDS OF REST.

THE THEME OF MR. CROSSLEY'S EARNEST ADDRESS.

Another Immense Audience at the Evangelistic Meetings—Requests for Prayer and Avowed Seeking for Pardon.

The evangelistic services last evening was opened by singing "I Know that my Redeemer Lives," and prayer by Rev. Mr. Hunter. There was the usual large attendance, the large George-st. Church being crowded. Several clergymen occupied seats on the platform.

After singing "It is Good to be Here," Rev. Mr. Torrance led in prayer. Rev. Mr. Pearson made the announcements, and referred to the excellent meeting during the afternoon. "How Firm a Fountain" was sung while the collection was being taken up.

Mr. Hunter was glad to see so many out. In some towns people would not go to church when it was stormy, but was glad to see it was different here. Every meeting would be a grand meeting if they did their duty, and he believed they would. In an amusing way he pointed out where some boys sat the previous evening who were noisy. They were present to-night, though in a different place, but he saw them and wanted them to be quiet. He read part of the fourth chapter of John. In commenting on it he said an official member of the church had been at the theatre the previous night, and he hoped he would be entirely with God. They (the evangelists) could and the people would not get mad at them, because they knew they were their best friends. He asked any who had difficulties with friends to settle them and not stand in the way of the revival.

Messrs. Crossley and Daly sang a beautiful duet, "Calling to Me."

While the audience bowed their heads the requests for prayer were read. They were from a mother for her invalid boy; for two friends, a brother and sister, one in Peterborough and one in Ottawa, and for a moral young man who had been trying for twelve years to understand the way of salvation.

REST OFFERED.

Mr. Crossley's theme was "Rest." There was the rest of faith, spoken of in the Bible. All were seeking for rest, but some sought in the wrong direction. Some sought for rest in morality alone, others in reformation of life, and others by joining the church. These things were right in themselves, but they would not give rest. Others sought for it in false doctrine, such as infidelity, election wrongly understood, and universalism, but they did not touch the cause of unrest. The cause was consciousness of sin and condemnation. Others had not this rest and did not know what was the matter with them. It was the consciousness of guilt and the fear of the penalty. Forgiveness of sins only could remove guilt and give rest. "We which believe do enter into rest." Jesus having made an atonement, invited them to come to Him and find rest. They should come in faith, and however heinous their sin might be they would find rest. They must seek for the removal of the cause of their unrest—their guilt, for until it was removed they would not find rest.

Mr. Crossley and Miss Wrighton sang "Waiting at the Pool," a beautiful sacred song.

Continuing his address Mr. Crossley said the second rest was that found in service, obtained by taking Christ's yoke upon them and learning of Him. They should become Christians before they tried to lead a Christian life, and the change of nature would make Christ's service delightful. The approval of God would give them pleasure and it would be pleasant to work with Him. His yoke, instead of being a burden, was like feathers to a bird, bearing them up. And their reward being sure, in the voyage of life they remembered that and were not troubled by the boisterous ocean. Had they the rest of service? If not they would not have complete Christian rest. If they did not work for the Lord they would

DO CHORES FOR SATAN.

Let everyone do personal work for God. But he would point out that they should first get the rest of faith, and then consecrate themselves to the Lord for service.

After singing another hymn with Miss Wrighton, the preacher said that there was also a rest for the people of God in Heaven. Some of them had friends in Heaven, and he wanted them to start to-night to meet them. He closed by singing "We May All Meet There."

After a brief prayer by Mr. Hunter, "I'll Away to the Promise Land" was sung. While Mr. Hunter exhorted and prayed a number stood up asking for prayers on their behalf.

The greater portion of the audience stayed for the after meeting, and a number went forward to the penitent bench and still more requests for prayer were made.

The meeting to-night will be especially for young men and young women.

St. John's Church Notes.

Service is now being held daily at 5.15 p. m. except on Wednesday and Friday when it is at the usual hour. During Lent the Bible reading is altered to Friday evening after the 7.30 service.

Last night Rev. Mr. Kenrick began his series of Thursday evening meetings in the St. John's Mission School House on Dalhousie-st. There was a fair attendance.

The special preacher for next week in St. John's Church will be the Rector of St. George's Church, Toronto, Rev. J. D. Cayley, M.A. Mr. Cayley is a well-known worker and organizer, not only in his own important parish but in general diocesan affairs, and his visit to Peterborough next week will be of much interest to churchmen here.

The Bishop of Toronto is to administer confirmation at St. John's in the early summer. Due notice will be given of the exact date.

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. New York, March 7.—The Herald's Washington special says: It is believed James N. Huston of Indiana will be nominated Treasurer of the United States. Col. Clark Carr of Illinois, it is said, will be First Assistant Postmaster-General and A. C. Matthews of the same State, Speaker of the Illinois Legislature, is likely to be Commissioner of Internal Revenue. John C. New is to have his choice of the European missions. It is understood he desires to go to Vienna. Ex-Governor Porter of Indiana will probably go to Rome and Lew Wallace to Turkey. There are a dozen candidates for the collectorship of the port of New York. It is understood Mr. Platt can have the office if he wants it, but his friends say he will name Senator Fassett for the place. Charles R. Pope, formerly a theatre manager in St. Louis, is a candidate for Consul-General at Montreal. It is expected Walker Blaine will have a consulship abroad, or he may be re-appointed to his old position as Third Assistant Secretary of State. Gen. Longstreet is likely to go to South America. Fred Grant is said to have already been selected for Minister to China. Judge L. W. Brown of Ohio wants to be Consul-General at Montreal.

Ambitious City Notes.

Hamilton, March 7.—Thomas Findlay and his two young brothers, Henry and John, were this morning arraigned before the Police Magistrate on a charge of committing an aggravated assault upon Stephen Hurd, an old man who lives in the neighborhood. Thomas and John were found guilty and sent to jail for ten days each; Henry, who appears to lack sense, was let go.

A scheme was submitted to the Board of Works last night by Messrs. Peter Balfour, Richard Elliott and William Sharp for the re-numbering of the houses of the city. The assessors promise a scheme which can be carried out at a cost of $15 per hundred houses, and by which the present unsatisfactory state of affairs will be entirely rectified.

Burglars visited the residence of Robert Menary, 33 Oak-avenue, last night and stole two silver watches and $10. They got in through a cellar window.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

She was very sick and her husband sent for the doctor. I think that ladies have so little to do nowadays that it is a kind of way they have of amusing themselves—getting sick and sending for the doctor. I don't believe we will ever have female doctors to any extent. If we do it will be mainly for children. Men will never take kindly to female doctors. I suppose it may be an unjust opinion, but I can't fancy a man being very spoony with a doctor. There is a distinct prejudice in mankind against a woman who has anything of a practical nature except about the house.

He doesn't mind if she can hang pictures and nail down carpets and sew on buttons, but a scientific woman is always viewed with suspicion. A male doctor, for instance, always says it is the liver or the stomach; a female doctor would probably say it was the heart, and she would very often be right. The ladies don't want a female doctor. It is in some cases the only chance they have of seeing a man when they are sick. However, the doctor was called in, and, of course, immediately wrote out a prescription. It was for some pills, to be taken every third day. He came again the next morning.

"Well, did you take the pills?"

"No, doctor, the three days are not up until Wednesday."—San Francisco Chronicle.

On the Ice.

Three rinks of the Toronto Curling Club arrived here this morning and this afternoon are playing three local rinks. Play was commenced shortly after noon and is close and enthusiastic.

The point match which was to have been played at the rink to-night for the President's and Vice President's medal has been postponed until Monday. Play will commence at 3 o'clock and 7 o'clock p. m.

The weather was colder at Winnipeg yesterday and the big bonspiel was continued. The Mail's despatch says:—"For the challenge cup the two American rinks were defeated to-day, Flavelle, of Lindsay, defeating the celebrated Crusaders rink of Wisconsin, by twenty-one to fourteen, while McMillan, of Winnipeg, defeated St. Paul rink by twenty-four to eighteen. This reduced the contest to six Winnipeg rinks, one from Portage La Prairie and one from Lindsay. This afternoon's games were exciting and closely contested. The best game was that between Flavelle's rink, from Lindsay, Ont., and the Crusaders, of Portage, Wis. The Lindsay men won by 21 to 14. Eight clubs are in the fourth draw to-night. The Lindsay rink played a stubborn game against Patterson, of Winnipeg, but had to succumb, and are now out of the championship contest, as are also the famous Crusaders, of Wisconsin." The score by which the Lindsay rink was defeated was 18 to 8.

TEACHERS IN COUNCIL.

Addresses by Mr. J. J. Tilley and the Rev. J. McEwen.

At the reassembling of the teachers at 2 o'clock on Thursday the roll was again called.

GRAMMAR.

Mr. J. J. TILLEY, of Toronto, gave an exposition of his method of teaching grammar to a class. Beginning with a class unacquainted with the subject it was necessary to have a good start and to see that each pupil understood what was taught. The order of teaching was the names of things, their qualities and their actions. Taking a sentence for an illustration he showed how to bring out, by questioning, the words that tell, such as who? when? how? etc., and the use of words. This should be repeated to ascertain that the pupils had ascertained the use of words. Analysis was illustrated in the same way. The next step was classification, bringing out the noun or name of the thing, and then the kind, introducing the adjectives. He would teach objectively, the steps being to present the thing to be taught, to lead the pupils to see the use of it, to examine its form or operation, and to apply.

Mr. TILLEY then took up "Case." He illustrated the teaching of the subjective form and the objective form of words, and the subjective and objective case.

THE PROCESS OF TEACHING.

Rev. J. McEWEN, of Lakefield, gave an address on "Vital Steps in the Process of Teaching." All teaching, he said, must be according to the laws of mind. The "vital steps" were living—necessary. There should be a definite view of education. It must have a being and knowledge, the former being more important. The steps to reach the pupils were contact, by getting on a level with the learner; impression, and recognition. The process was by attention, co-operation and instruction. The effects were assimilation, conviction, conduct, habit (which was the largest share of the work of life) and habit being formed character would be established.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. McEwen, after which the meeting adjourned until next morning.

Friday Morning.

The Teachers' convention was resumed this morning.

PRACTICAL SIDE OF EDUCATION.

Mr. W. H. ELLIS, M.A., dealt with the practical side of our education. He said that some writers forgot that the system was in a state of development. He noticed some of the changes that had been made and changes must be expected. He criticized the public school curriculum, and said children should be encouraged to observe, so as to be able to clearly comprehend. He referred to different views regarding practical education, for farmers, mechanics and merchants. The majority went no further than the third book. To read intelligently was one object, and writing an abstract of the lesson would show that it was accomplished. He did not approve of text books in grammar for the public schools. Practical grammar was acquired in the use of the reading book. He touched on geography, and urged the production of a work on history uniting the chief facts in connection with geography, the lessons to be in a manner descriptive. As taught largely the study of history was time wasted. He also referred to arithmetic, and urged thoroughness in simple rules. In connection with arbor day why should they not make the trees a subject of a series of lessons, and teach from objects around? It would be more useful to learn facts regarding articles in daily use than much that was in the text books. And why should the pupils not learn something of the duties of trustees, municipal officers, etc., and thus become intelligent citizens? He also dealt with examinations.

The discussion was continued by Messrs Hutchinson and Earle.

Mr. BROWN recommended part of the day being given to mental education and part to manual training.

Messrs Rooney, Fife and Tilley made remarks on the subject.

PRINCIPLES OF EDUCATION.

Mr. TILLEY said that in our education more attention was given to methods, as time would not permit more, but reasons must be given for methods, and thus theory came in, which was obtained by investigation. Physical and mental growth were interdependent. They could increase growth by use, and in this connection he referred to activity in childhood, which explained why a child prefered some subjects. Faculty grew only by exercise, and perfection was secured by repetition of the action. The exercise of the child's activity led to the acquisition of knowledge. Nature always began to teach with objects. Nature furnished the faculty, the material and the occasion for use. The child begins to obtain knowledge from an object as a whole, and then studied the parts in detail, hence the child pupil proceeded by the analytic method. Joy was experienced by doing something. In the school room the pupil must be encouraged to do the work. The teacher could place the kind of work before the pupil and guide him, but if the teacher did the work the true teaching of nature was violated. Nature's teaching was not systematic or perfect. They begun where nature begun and then went on and increased in the attainment of knowledge. Nature had no sympathy for an old offender. They must use methods based on true theory and then give reasons for the methods.

The convention adjourned until the afternoon.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN LIFE

LABOR, PERSEVERANCE, SELF-RELIANCE AND CHARACTER.

An Eloquent and Instructive Lecture by Mr. J. J. Tilley, Inspector of Model Schools for Ontario—Advice to Young Men—The Lecture to be Repeated.

It was not a large audience that gathered in the court house last evening to listen to the lecture of Mr. J. J. Tilley, inspector of Model Schools of Ontario, and the number that was present was almost entirely composed of teachers. This was to be regretted as the lecture was a most magnificent and substantial one, of special interest to young men, and could have been listened to with profit and interest by any one. The slim audience was easily accounted for by the counter attractions at the George-st. church and the Opera House. However, it is quite probable that Mr. Tilley will deliver the address here in the Opera House, and if he does every one should hear it.

Mr. Coyle Brown occupied the chair last evening in the absence of President Hutchinson, and without much ado introduced the lecturer.

SUCCESS IN LIFE.

Mr. TILLEY upon rising said he felt just a little disappointed at the audience, but the small attendance was easily accounted for. He intended his address more specially for young men, but he believed it would embrace the ladies as well. The subject he would speak on was "Success in Life." By success in life he meant the result when a man made the most and best of this life. There were several laws that governed this success and he would first speak of perhaps the most important, and that was that all men should labor. From the first man had been created to labor for his physical welfare and all posterity have been compelled to carry on the work, and as a man acquired great or little he was said to have success. With nations the general well-being and prosperity of the people was dependent upon this law, and downfall was an infallible result of a neglect to observe this law. He instanced Rome as an example of this and said in our own day they could see the working of this law. Looking out over the world they would see those nations prospering where men of high and low classes were engaged in labor. They could see this strikingly exemplified in this continent of ours. In Canada and the United States where they had the moral, educational and civil liberty and all that went to make a grand nation, the prosperity was all traceable to the industry of all classes. Industry thrived in the north, but as they went farther south they would see the effects of lack of industry. He pointed to Spain as showing the result of an antipathy to labor. Whenever, he said, in a country honest industry was not regarded as the laws of a nation's prosperity the seeds of decay were soon in its heart and the vital spark was not there and that country would soon have its downfall. Some people were inclined to look down upon those who

for their daily bread, but, although he was no demagogue, he wanted them to remember that if the men who toiled from day to day throughout the country would stop work the supply of bread and butter would soon run out. They all must work with either their physical or mental powers. They might see rising from some college or school or from the bosom of the same family two young men—one a man of genius and brilliant talent and the other of perhaps of less then ordinary ability. They might see the man of genius sink into comparative obscurity after a short time, but the mediocre would keep working and rise gradually, gaining a firmer grasp at every step until he reached the top. They must work in whatever department they might be in order to achieve success. A man might be born to title and might have blue blood in his viens, but without work he could never have success in this world. Men called upon to perform what was termed the menial work, complained that their wages were less then others, who perhaps were subjected to a greater strain upon their nerves or mental faculties. He went on to illustrate this by the case of the train despatcher and the school teacher, who after a few years were incapacitated for their calling. Speaking of the case of the teacher he said the fact of the work being such a strain upon a person and the salary so small that teachers were continually leaving the profession at every opportunity. So much was this the case that it had been shown that it amounted to the same thing as if every seven years the entire seven thousand teachers were to retire in a body. This would go on he said as long as men went on giving them remuneration less then that paid in ordinary manual labor. He said attention was often powerfully attracted to

PHENOMENAL SUCCESSES.

Men saw only the great result, the crowning glory, and not the great strain on mind and nerves, or the arduous labor that achieved the success. They need not be discouraged for the fiercest storm might be breasted, the greatest difficulties overcome, and they could remember that phenomenal success was never the result of accident but always of perseverance along one line. He then dwelt on perseverance, associating with it a determination to excel. When a young man had chosen his calling, the speaker said, let him stick to it as true as steel and determine to excel. Some young men failed to do this, but were satisfied with merely skimming along so as to save himself dismissal and to earn his wages. He urged all young men to excel in their calling, for it was the one who had made his services indispensable who, when a depression came, would be kept until the last, or if there was promotion would get it or if a partner was wanted would be most probably to be chosen. For perseverance he turned them in eloquent language to George Stephens and Sir Walter Scott. He passed on to speak of self reliance. It could not be too strongly or too earnestly impressed upon the minds of the young that success depended mainly upon self. Whatever came from within a man had a tendency to strengthen and add to his resources, while what came to a man from without tended to weaken him. He spoke of the evil effects that often resulted in a young man starting with wealth and instanced the many cases where the poor boy had accumulated wealth—John Jacob Astor, who rose from peddling apples; Cornelius Vanderbilt, who started ferrying on New York harbor; Daniel Manning, a poor errand boy; Sir Hugh Allan and others. The speaker lastly spoke of which he said he left till the last because he regarded it as the most important. They were all day by day erecting a structure which was called character and every act of their daily life was a stone towards that building. Character was not the result of action but rather the action was the result of character. Character could be regarded as capital that would never fail, but would stand the test against all adversities and always be above par. Some young men said they must have a good time and sow their wild oats, but he said they could depend upon it that if a young man sowed he could never be sure that he had finished reaping his harvest. He most earnestly and eloquently talked to the young men who spoke of "sowing his wild oats" and said it was well for a young man to occasionally get away from the world and take stock of himself, and ask himself questions and answer them honestly. They might ask themselves whether they were really honest or not with their employer's time and money. They could ask if their life was always as pure at eleven o'clock at night as it was at noon, if they were as good young men as their fathers thought, or as their mothers believed, or as their best girls thought. If a young man would answer these questions honestly he would come out better. In conclusion he spoke of the blessing of a parent's love and counsel and the influence of home.

WELL WORTH REPEATING.

Mr. D. W. DUMBLE said he had listened to the lecture with more than ordinary interest because it was substantial and said he would have liked to had it given where it would be heard by more of the young men. He had great pleasure in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Tilley for the instructive and eloquent lecture.

Mr. WM. SMITH seconded the motion which was unanimously carried and acknowledged by Mr. Tilley.

Councillor ADAM DAWSON said he would like to ask Mr. Tilley if he would be willing at any time to repeat the lecture, which he considered as the best he had ever listened to and as of great interest, especially to mechanics, at some future time to a larger audience.

Mr. TILLEY said he would be most happy to do anything that would in any way benefit men generally and if he received an invitation would willingly repeat his lecture.

The meeting then adjourned.

Held by the Enemy.

William Gillett's "Held by the Enemy," which as just concluded one of the most unprecedented runs on record at Palmer's Theatre, New York city, will be presented at the Opera House for one night only, Monday, March 11th, and is said to be thoroughly an American play. There has been so much enquiry of late years for the coming American dramatist, and his coming not has been a source of continual bemoaning and aggravation to the receiver of theatrical affairs in the daily journals. From the excellent criticisms Held by the Enemy has received from the press, their hebdomadal moanings must now cease, as Wm. Gillette has now come upon the scene, and in his peculiarly American drama has at one bound scaled the heights and assumed a position on the pedestal of fame as the American dramatist who has arrived. When produced in the north for the last time, Held by the Enemy won instantaneous success in every city where it was seen. Taken to London, England, and produced before a lukewarm public and prejudiced body of critics, its success was unequivocal and startling in the enthusiasm it aroused. Its representation in Peterborough will show that after all there is at least one man in America who can write a drama of the first order, and that it can be interpreted to perfection by a company of artists, all of whom are of American birth and training. The sale of seats is now on at Doucet's Music Store. 1d57

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

CHINA HALL

CHINA GLASS AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $4,000 being given for a china plate crushed at that. Consider $20,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of old Sevres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that "astonish," but the rational side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

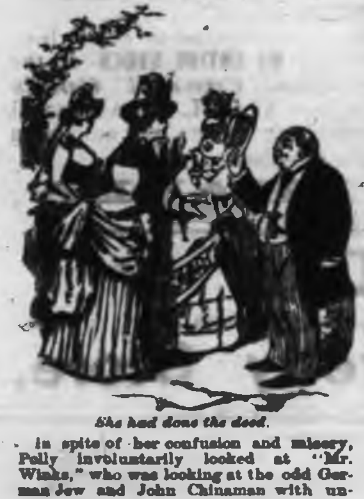
BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

ordeal through which she had to pass.

She tried hard to turn Lady Charterhouse's attention upon a pipe rack exactly matching the whip stand, hoping by so doing to convey to her mother that she need n t introduce Mr. Mandarin to anybody. But Mrs. Antrobus was much too proud of her wealthy son-in-law elect not to make all the display she could of him; so before Lady Charterhouse could turn to look at the pipe rack she had done the deed.



She had done the deed.

In spite of her confusion and misery, Polly involuntarily looked at "Mr. Winks," who was looking at the odd German Jew and John Chinaman with unconcealed horror; then he looked at Polly, and saw that one her eyes fell before his gaze they were filled with tears.

It was a miserable moment. Lady Charterhouse declined the pipe rack, and with a pleasant word passed on. But as soon as they got out of earshot, she turned to him eagerly. "Charterhouse," she said, "is that girl going to marry that monster?"

"I suppose so," returned "Mr. Winks," staring straight in front of him, and saying nothing.

"Good heavens!" cried his wife. "What a poor lot the men here must be to stand it."

Poor little "Mr. Winks'" heart gave a great sick throb, and his wife gabbled on. "She is lovely, perfectly lovely. Did you know her pretty well?"

"Pretty well," he answered, woodenly.

"Well, I can't understand it. Did you know her before you got engaged to me?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, I tell you frankly, I can't think how in the world you came to think of me, when you might have married her; and to let that little monster"——

"That little monster is a new acquisition," said "Winks," with a ghastly effort to be facetious.

Of course, she had not understood; but there were other eyes upon the stall just then, who not only saw but understood precisely what had happened. They belonged to the Leslies, whose stall was in the next chalet, and who were all hovering about outside it, the better to waylay any likely looking purchasers who might be passing along the street.

It happened that Beautiful Jim, who had come in about the same time as Mr. Mandarin, was brought to the Leslies' chalet just then by Nancy Earle, that he might make young Stuart's acquaintance, and he, too, saw more than Lady Charterhouse had done.

Nor was that all he saw, for just as Miss Earle pointed out her brother to him, that gay young gentleman was very busily engaged in fixing up a heavy plait of Violet Leslie's hair, which had escaped its pins.

"H'm—plenty of cheek," said Beautiful Jim to himself.

Miss Earle waited until the plait of hair had been properly fixed in its place, and then she went forward and intimated to her brother that one of the officers of his regiment was waiting to be introduced to him.

"Ah! How-do-do!" said Tommy, with perfect composure and a hail fellow well met air, such as would have done credit to a general just appointed to command the district, and to whom it would have been much more suitable than it was to him, a not yet joined subaltern.

They stood a few minutes making conversation, and parted with relief on both sides, for Beautiful Jim was in that frame of mind which found everything but Nancy Earle flat, stale and unprofitable.

Nor did he at any time particularly affect the society of youngsters; and in this instance he set down "Tommy Earle," (as he was called in the regiment from that day) as "an impudent young devil, who wanted licking into shape and his cheek knocked out of him."

Nor had Tommy any desire to stay. There were five bright and pretty girls close at hand, with whom he was on the best of terms, and he felt that he would like Mr. Beresford better in his proper place, that is, at the mess table or in the barrack yard.

"What do you think of him?" inquired Miss Earle, eagerly.

"He is rather like you," returned Beautiful Jim, in a tone which conveyed that if Tommy had been more like his sister he would have been more to his liking.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

THE BUDGET DEBATE CONTINUED IN THE HOUSE.

How Threats of Non-Intercourse Have Increased Canada's Self-Reliance—Among the Committees.

OTTAWA, March 7.—In the Senate yesterday Hon. John Macdonald spoke on the motion which he placed in the paper recently regarding the extension of the Dominion's trade with the West Indies and South America. It was a continuation of the able paper which he recently read before the Toronto Board of Trade and which has been printed and extensively circulated by that body.

Hon. C. H. Tupper resumed the Budget debate in the House of Commons, and spoke for over two hours in reply to Sir Richard Cartwright's criticisms made on Tuesday night. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries argued that Canada had progressed beyond a doubt and that the policy of the Conservative party had always been for a free and liberal trade relation with the United States, and he believed such an arrangement could be made with the new Republican administration.

Mr. Charlton followed in support of Sir Richard Cartwright's amendment. He went very largely into figures and statistics which evidently had been collected with great care. He was followed by Mr. Peter White, and Mr. Armstrong moved the adjournment of the debate.

The House adjourned at 12.20.

At the meeting of the Railway Committee this morning Hector Cameron, Q.C., was on hand to oppose the Toronto bill, which proposes to compel the burial of telegraph, telephone and other wires, on behalf of the companies interested. Mr. Cameron had his trip for nothing, as the bill will not be heard by the committee until a week from next Friday.

Mr. John Bain was at the meeting in the interest of Mr. Davis' bill to incorporate the Calgary, Alberta and Montana Railway Company. The bill was reported and Mr. Davis was complimented on the exactness of his surveys as presented to the committee.

W. B. McMurrich, one of Toronto's ex-Mayors, was on hand for the furtherance of Col. Denison's bill respecting the Lake Nipissing and James' Bay Railway. The name of the company was changed to the Nipissing and James Bay Railway, and after being somewhat amended was reported.

The act to incorporate the Cobourg, Northumberland and Pacific Railway was considered. The incorporators wish to construct a line from near Cobourg harbor to a point in the township of Marmora, crossing the Trent River and joining the Ontario and Quebec branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The bill passed.

An act extending the time for the completion of the South Ontario and Pacific Railway for another five years was approved of.

The Canadian Pacific Railway bill, authorizing the company to issue bonds for the acquisition of vessels to run on the Pacific Ocean and other vessels to be used at the terminal points of the railway, was amended in a few particulars and it was then decided to report it.

Mr. Lariviere explained the provisions of the act incorporating the Manitoba and Southeastern Railway Company, which propose to build a line from Winnipeg to the international boundary, with branch lines from the main line to Selkirk and Morris. There was a clause permitting the company to construct telegraph lines for commercial purposes, but this was knocked out.

Mr. Daly, in regard to the bill to enable the City of Winnipeg to utilize the Assiniboine water power, said that there was some doubt as to this Parliament having jurisdiction, and he wished the bill to be referred to a special committee consisting of Sir John Thompson, Colonel Tisdale, Mr. Mulock, Mr. Rose, Mr. Watson and himself. This was agreed to, and the bill incorporating the Assiniboine Water Company was also referred to the same committee.

The Committee on Banking and Commerce this morning reported the bill to consolidate the borrowing powers of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company. The act respecting the Ontario Mutual Life Assurance Company was also reported. This bill slightly amends the company's act of incorporation.

HOIST WITH THEIR OWN PETARD.

The Effect of the United States Congress' Threats of Non-Intercourse.

OTTAWA, March 7.—The transit trade of Canada through the United States under the bonding system shows a great decrease for the past year compared with previous years. The figures are: Goods carried from United States seaports to Canada $15,610,519 and goods carried from Canada to United States seaports for outside countries $8,315,683, making a total of $23,926,202. This is the smallest amount since 1870. In 1867 the amount was $33,692,600; that is, in a single year the decrease amounted to over nine and three-quarter million dollars. This trade has been dropping down rapidly since 1883, when it amounted to $[illegible].

The very large drop, equal to 30 per cent. in the last year, is without doubt due to the determination of our Canadian merchants to use our own seaports and our own railways in preference to those of our neighbor to the south of us. The threats of non-intercourse indulged in by the United States Congress were the principal cause of the change of route. The effect has been to transfer the disbursements of the ships requisite to carry this amount of goods to our own seaports and to increase the carrying business of our own railways. As the non-intercourse act is still unrepealed our merchants will see the necessity and wisdom of turning all the business they can into our own routes.

It may be added that the five great seaports of Canada show an increase in 1888 over 1887 in tons of goods brought into and carried out of them of over 200,000 tons.

Personal Gossip.

OTTAWA, March 7.—W. B. Scarth, M. P. for Winnipeg, arrived this morning and took his seat for the first time this session.

Miss Maggie Tisdale, daughter of Col. Tisdale, M.P., of Norfolk, is on a visit to her father. So is Miss Daisy Brown of Hamilton, daughter of Adam Brown, M.P. Both these young ladies are favorites at the Capital.

Mrs. J. H. Thompson, formerly of Ottawa, now of Toronto, is on a visit to her father, Sheriff Sweetland.

Lieut. and Lady Alice Stanley will give a ball at Rideau Hall on March 15.

It is said that Lt.-Col. O'Brien, M. P., has received through the Militia Department a check for $6600, the amount of the bill allowance which the Government have decided to make to the York and Simcoe Battalion on account of services in the Northwest.

Harrison's Cabinet's First Meeting.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At 3 o'clock the first Cabinet meeting of the new Administration was held. It is understood that it was an informal meeting of the newly appointed officers called in order that they might become acquainted with one another.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $675.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good values in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1 00 which needs no appology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

Before you hear from us again, I will have visited the wholesale markets where I will be on the look-out for Bargains for my Customers.

LANCEFIELD'S LUCK.

The Hamilton Board Appoints Him Librarian—Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, March 8.—At the meeting of the Free Library Board last night Richard T. Lancefield of Toronto was appointed librarian. There were twenty applicants for the position. Mr. Lancefield was a resident of Hamilton for twenty-three years and became well known as the proprietor of a bookstore and the founder of Lancefield's circulating library. Subsequently he was for about a year telegraph editor of The Spectator. Six years ago he went to Toronto, where he has been connected with Grip, Saturday Night and more recently The Bookseller. He is secretary of the Canadian Copyright Association, an active, energetic and capable man and is expected to make a first-class librarian.

Charles Magill was terribly burnt about the face, head and arms by the ignition of a can of benzine in his trunk factory this morning.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West will convene at the Court House in this city on Tuesday, March 12, at 2.30 p.m., W. W. Fitzgerald of London, grand master, presiding. It is expected that about 300 delegates will be present from all parts of Western Ontario. The Jesuits Estates Bill will be the principal subject under discussion, and definite action will be taken by the Grand Lodge on the subject.

About 6 o'clock this morning David Fields, a waiter at the Royal House, and his wife, who live in Napier-street opposite the patrol station, were horrified when they woke up and discovered that their 6 weeks-old baby was dead. The child slept in the same bed with them, and the probability is that it was smothered during the night.

Edison's Patent Void.

OTTAWA, March 8.—One of the most important patent decisions ever rendered in Canada has just been given by the Commissioner of Patents, in which the patents on the incandescent lamp, held exclusively in the Dominion by the Edison electric light company, has been declared null and void, the ground of the decision being failure to comply with the patent regulations, which provide that the articles thus patented must be manufactured within Canada one year from the issue of the patent, and the importation of the same patent from the United States must cease within two years.

Noted Counterfeiters Arrested.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 8.—Marshal Funkhouser arrested in Conway County yesterday Martin Thorp and William Garner, leaders of the most extensive gang of counterfeiters in the Southwest. Officers have been on their track for months. An immense sum of bogus money, comprising $5, $10 and $20 [illegible] gold pieces, was captured. Over a dozen persons are implicated, comprising some well-known people of Pope and Saline Counties. The arrest caused a great sensation.

Wealth in a Poorhouse.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., March 8.—George Cook, aged 78, an inmate of the poorhouse, was yesterday discovered to have [illegible] hidden in a bag under his bed, $800 of it being gold. He is a queer character and claims to be a Russian exile.

ONTARIO'S LAWMAKERS.

A LIVELY DEBATE IN THE LOCAL HOUSE YESTERDAY.

The Question of Teaching the French Language in the Public Schools Discussed—Railway Deputations

In the House yesterday Mr. Craig moved an order of the House as follows:

Return showing the number and location of public schools in Ontario in which any language other than English is used in the work of tuition, either wholly or in part. A list of text books in any language other than English used in such schools. The total number of scholars attending each of such schools. The number of scholars in each of such schools using text books in any language other than English. The number of teachers in such schools who cannot use the English language in teaching.

Mr. Craig made a speech in which he attacked the teaching of the French language in the eastern counties public schools of the Province of Ontario. This, he said, was an English-speaking province, and it was the wish of the people that this province should remain such. "I am," he said, "always glad to welcome our German friends who come here, but I believe that it will be admitted that whoever comes to this country ought to submit to its laws and institutions, and they should be willing that the English language should prevail in all these institutions." Most of us were aware that in this province we had French and German schools. "I don't refer," said he, "to high schools, and I wish to make it distinctly understood that I have no reference to our high schools or collegiate institutes, but I refer to what we know as our public schools." Nor did he wish to throw contempt upon any religious views. He continued: "I respect the religious opinions of every man, but it is my duty to present the facts and show the true state of affairs which I find existing."

The Minister of Education replied to the mover. He was glad that Mr. Craig fell in line with the sentiment of Ontario: That our school system was an excellent one, and that its defects were trifling compared with its points of excellence. Mr. Craig has censured the department, but had failed to give it credit for its insistence upon the study of English in every school under its jurisdiction in the counties referred to. He repudiated the charge that teachers were engaged who could not teach the English tongue. On the contrary all candidates totally ignorant of English were rejected. With regard to the licensing of teachers he would say in a word that no teacher could be authorized to teach in a school where both languages were taught unless he could teach English as well as French. He was prepared to accede to the motion of his friend, but he did not wish that the impression should go forth that this Legislature of Ontario was not broad enough, not liberal enough to respect even the prejudices of any nationality which might choose Ontario as its home. We would not accomplish anything as a people unless we entertained more liberal views.

Mr. Meredith followed. He contended that the English language should not be taught as a foreign tongue in the schools of Canada. He maintained that no school supported by the State, no school receiving a dollar of the public money, should with regard to the education which is given by means of it, be without the control of the State. We have in this Province of Ontario, he said, departed from a system of unity of education. We have created a separate school system and I believe it was a great mistake, not only in the interest of Protestants but of Catholics, when these separate schools were established. These matters are not under control of this Legislature, and we can only express our opinions upon them as upon abstract measures. Mr. Meredith concluded: "There will never come the fibre out of which is built a nation if the rights of a majority of the people are not recognized.

Mr. Awrey moved the adjournment of the debate at 6 p.m., but the Attorney-General stating that several deputations were in attendance, moved the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Leys' bill introduced yesterday to amend the Voters' Lists Act provides for amending voters' lists in cases where subsequently to their final revision a voter has sold his property or has died. This bill will enable the purchaser or the devisee or heir to be substituted for the name of the seller or the deceased voter.

Mr. Meacham introduced a bill which allows a council to appoint fire guardians, on the petition of one-fourth of the ratepayers. It enacts that no one shall set out fire in open places, where there is danger of its spreading, between July 1 and Oct. 1 without consent of fire guardians.

Mr. Guthrie's bill introduced yesterday, to amend the Ontario Insurance Act, provides for a prompt appraisement by competent appraisers, mutually chosen by the insured and the company, of goods partially destroyed by fire and also for the expense of the preparation of a particular account of goods lost should the insured refuse to prepare one.

A deputation from Parry Sound waited upon the Attorney-General after adjournment. Their object was to obtain a grant for a line of railway from Arnprior, across the Northern Pacific Junction by Burk's Falls and thence to Parry Sound. A delegation was also in attendance to ask a grant of $6000 per mile for the Ottawa, Arnprior and Parry Sound Railway. The line would cover a distance of 230 miles. The object of both deputations were practically the same. The idea is to get a short route from the upper lakes to ocean points such as Portland and Boston and facilitate the opening up of the country.

ENGLISH POLITICAL TALK.

Relations Between Great Britain and the States.

LONDON, March 8.—Sir Julian Pauncefote leaves England for Washington at the end of this month. His first visit will be a brief one. He will return to London for the summer and not settle in Washington as British minister till autumn. Lord Salisbury's political opponents give him credit for having made a wise choice. I asked one of them, says Mr. Smalley, perhaps better qualified to judge than any other living Liberal, whether he thought Sir Julian likely to do well at Washington. "In my opinion," answered he, "there could not be a better appointment."

The same eminent Liberal dissents strongly from the suggestion cabled here, truly or not, that President Harrison regards English relations with the United States as of less practical importance than those of South and Central America. "We have," he said, "more than one burning question to settle. We have sent you as good a man as we could find and we strongly hope your new president will do as much for us. We have no wish to discuss grave subjects with a weak minister; it is of no advantage to us, but a positive disadvantage. These matters cannot be finally settled unless they are fairly settled, and fair settlement can only be reached by the help of able men on each side."

Lord Randolph Churchill's absence during the whole debate on the address is thought significant. He returned two days ago. He finds the ministry of which he was once a member in a condition more critical than at any period of its existence; that the Parnell commission, on which Lord Salisbury insisted, and which Lord Randolph opposed, has half ruined the Union cause, and that Parnell has himself come forward with suggestions in a new deal for some new form of home rule—if such there be—that shall not imperil the empire or alarm England. The situation is, in fact, very different from the situation when Lord Randolph quitted this island of east winds for Monte Carlo and sunlight. He has been loitering in Paris watching events from that easy distance. He has not returned to do nothing. What he will do is a question of no little interest to the Government and of no little importance outside the Government.

Time was when Lord Randolph and Parnell were politically intimate. What could be more natural that one or both should think the time had come to renew that intimacy!

It would not be the first time that Lord Randolph has shown his slower colleagues the way to popular favor and political good fortune; but his colleagues have not earned of late any good will from their former leader, and should they want his help they will discover that it is not to be had without asking—perhaps not even if asked for.

The Opposition seems still to be in doubt whether to attack the Government in connection with the forged letters. Various forms of motion have been suggested and rejected. Meantime, they are fishing for more evidence of their alleged complicity. The Home Secretary, the Irish Secretary and other officials are nightly plied with questions in the House of Commons relating to the employment of the police to collect testimony for The Times, the admission of The Times' agents to prisons to extract statements from prisoners, the presence in London of Irish magistrates waiting to testify before the commission, and twenty other kindred topics.

These questions have another object. They are meant to impress by incessant repetition on the public mind the fact, if it be a fact, that the resources of the Government have been put at the disposal of The Times throughout the inquiry. Mr. Balfour meets this with his usual frank courage. He avows that the Government has thought it its duty to aid in the inquiry, and it offers equal aid to both parties. Hitherto the evidence given has come from one side. When the turn of the other side comes the other side will have equal facilities, or may, if they like, have them now.

They Will [illegible] a Discussion.

LONDON, March 8.—If the Parnell Commission does not report on the forged letters the Opposition in the House of Commons will raise a discussion Monday on the Attorney-General's action.

The Record Will Stand.

LONDON, March 8.—The House of Commons by a vote of 112 to 79 rejected Mr. Bradlaugh's motion to expunge from the records the particulars of his expulsion from the House in 1880.

PARIS, March 8.—Prices of copper shares improved to-day on the Bourse.

LONDON, March 8.—The Stock Exchange relapsed to-day and closed heavy on continental sales. At the Metal Exchange, G. M. B. copper closed at £35, a fall of £7 since yesterday, and £20 on the week. It is reported that a large Paris order to buy was received to-night.

On Wednesday 150 families reached the place from Michigan. Many are destitute. They say they will wait thirty days longer, and if there is then no proclamation they will enter Oklahoma, for they might as well risk losing their lives as their rights, and [illegible] no one will attempt to remove them.

Shortage in the [illegible] Crop.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 8.—The general belief among the loggers is that the crop will show a shortage of 25 per cent. from the calculations made at the beginning of the season.

Midland Votes $6000 For Its Harbor.

PROPOSED INCREASE IN THE SALARIES OF JUDGES.

The House Gets Through a Lot of Business and Finds Time to do Considerable Speechmaking.

OTTAWA, March 8.—Sir John Thompson to-night gave notice of an amendment to the act respecting the salaries of judges of provincial courts, to increase the same. The Minister of Justice introduced the amendment at the last session of Parliament, but it was withdrawn, presumably because of the large amount involved by these increases.

The judges of the county courts of Ontario will learn with regret that no mention is made in Sir John's amendment of an increase to any of their salaries. The attention of the Minister of Justice was called to the matter some time ago by Mr. Mulock, but it is not likely that any of them will receive increases in the near future. The principal question now is, Will the Government really make the increases of which the Minister of Justice gives notice this evening?

The amendment proposes, as it did last year, that the salary of the Chief Justice of Ontario shall be increased from $6000 to $7000 per annum, three Justices of Appeal from $5000 to $6000; the Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench from $[illegible] to $[illegible]; two Puisne Judges of the same court from $[illegible] to $[illegible]; the Chancellor of Ontario from $[illegible] to $7000; three Chancery Justices from $[illegible] to $[illegible]; the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas from $[illegible] to $7000; two Puisne Justices of the same court from $[illegible] to $[illegible].

The salaries of the Judges of the Superior Courts in Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba are also all down for increases of $1000 per annum. The Chief Justice in Quebec will get the same as the Ontario Chief Justice, $7000. The Senior Puisne Judge residing at Quebec, however, if the Chief Justice resides at Montreal, or the Senior Puisne Judge residing at Montreal, if the Chief Justice resides at Quebec, is to receive $[illegible] in addition to his other salary.

The Chief Justice of Nova Scotia is to receive $6000, of New Brunswick $[illegible], of Prince Edward Island $[illegible], of Manitoba $[illegible], of British Columbia $[illegible] and the five judges of the territories $[illegible] each.

The amendment also provides that the salaries of five County Court Judges in British Columbia shall be $[illegible] and that each judge may in addition receive a salary from the province for acting as stipendiary magistrate. Also that there may be paid to each judge of a provincial court attending as such any court held at any place other than that at which he is directed to reside, for traveling allowances, his moving expenses and such sums as are allowed from time to time by the Governor-in-Council for each day he is absent from his place of residence. These increases affect 14 judges in Ontario, 26 in Quebec, 7 in Nova Scotia, 6 in New Brunswick, 3 in Prince Edward Island, 4 in Manitoba, 1n in British Columbia (including County Judges) and 5 in the territories.

The lowest salary paid to Superior Court Judges under the increased schedule will be $4000 in Prince Edward Island.

LAWMAKING AND TALK.

OTTAWA, March 8.—The proceedings in the House this afternoon and to-night were divided between speaking and talk. The Minister of Justice monopolized nearly two hours in passing to a finishing stage four of his own bills. He was assisted to a criticism of them by the three Opposition lawyers who sit straight across the floor from Sir John Thompson: Mr. Weldon, Mr. Mills and Mr. Davies.

The bills referred to are the act respecting rules of court in relation to criminal matters, an act respecting corrupt practices in municipal affairs, an act to make further provision respecting enquiries concerning public matters and an act to permit conditional release of first offenders in certain cases. The first and last of these acts are adapted from British statutes. The Minister explained that the judges have been in the habit of suspending sentence on certain first offenders, and it was to give this action legislative authority that the bill was introduced.

The act respecting corrupt practices in municipal affairs was to provide punishment for persons who offer bribes to anyone who is a member of a municipal council or to the person who receives a bribe. Col. Amyot wanted the bill extended so as to punish bribers at municipal elections, and Mr. Mills wanted the bribery of members of Parliament included. Sir John Thompson said Mr. Amyot's suggestion was a good one. As for Mr. Mills' remarks no demand had yet been made for such legislation. It had, however, as regards municipal bodies. To further reply to Mr. Mills the minister said the Parliament of Canada was competent to raise to the rank of a crime the offering to or taking of a bribe by any member of a municipal council or body."

The act respecting public enquiries was suggested by the recent "boodle" trials in Quebec. The minister said that by the bill persons who were called to give evidence at an enquiry ordered by Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council could not plead "privilege" on the ground that his evidence would criminate him. No such "privilege" will be permitted, but no criminal action shall follow the giving of any evidence in such an enquiry except in cases where the witness may have committed perjury. All of the bills were read a third time and passed.

Private bills Nos. 39, 43, 46, 47, 51, 52, 54, 59, 64, 40, 57, 60, 61, 63, 33, 41, [illegible], 49 were considered in committee and passed through all their stages. A big batch of private bills were also advanced a stage.

Mr. Armstrong resumed the debate on the Budget speech. Mr. Porter followed Mr. Armstrong in a two-hours' speech against Sir Richard Cartwright's amendment. Mr. McMullen spoke next in favor of the amendment and Dr. Ferguson of Welland moved the adjournment of the debate.

THE TEACHERS' COUNCIL.

The Convention Closes — A Paper on Literature.

The Teachers' Convention resumed its session yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, the President in the chair. The first feature on the programme was a paper on literature by Mr. B Earle, of the Central School.

LITERATURE.

Mr. EARLE dealt with his subject in a most able and thorough manner, holding that literature was one of the most important subjects that was taught and was also one of the most poorly taught of any. He proceeded at considerable length to speak of the importance of the subject, the manner of teaching, etc., and the teachers appreciated the magnificent paper greatly.

PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS.

The report of the committee appointed to consider the matter of Promotion Examinations was presented by the Chairman, Mr. H. A. Strike, as follows:—

As chairman of committee regarding promotion examinations it affords me pleasure to recommend the following:—

(1) A programme of studies absolutely necessary; such programme to be forthcoming at once.

(2) We recommend a committee to prepare the examination papers.

(3) We object strongly to changing of teachers during said examinations, but that a trustee or person appointed by the trustee be present.

(4) Allow only those pupils to write who have prepared for such examinations.

(5) Each teacher to examine papers in his or her own school—then within ten days to forward said papers to the inspector, enclosing on a paper expressly for the purpose, a list with the names of pupils who write, the number of marks either passed or neglected, also explanatory notes concerning any special case.

(6.) Hence it is understood the number of marks to be deducted for misspelt words and also the number of marks to be allowed for neatness.

This subject was thoroughly discussed by the members of the committee and therefore we conscientiously feel that our ideas expressed in the foregoing will meet with your approval and will bring about a uniformity in our schools which cannot be accomplished in any other way.

H. A. STRIKE,
Chairman.

THE DISCUSSION.

The question of the examinations was then taken up and considerable discussion arose. Mr. Tilley gave his views on the question, and the report was taken up for adoption clause by clause.

The second clause aroused some discussion.

Mr. COYLE BROWN thought that it would be quite unfair to those who were not on the committee preparing the papers, as those who were on would select questions along their own line.

Mr. MATCHETT moved in amendment that the preparation of the papers be left to Mr. Brown, assisted by a committee which he might select.

Mr. BROWN said he would be satisfied if a committee was appointed. He referred to mistakes that might have been made in the papers last year, but he thought they were along the right line. It had been said they were a little too easy, but they must remember that he had to prepare papers for the whole county, and some of the schools in the rural districts were in a rather disadvantageous position.

Mr. Matchett's amendment carried.

After a little discussion the third and fourth clauses were adopted. The fifth clause was taken up and finally an amendment to it was carried, to the effect that Inspector Brown appoint a committee to examine all papers.

The sixth clause was referred to the committee on programmes.

THE FINANCES.

The committee appointed to audit the treasurer's books reported through their chairman Mr. Wm. Smith, that they had found them in a most satisfactory condition and presented a financial statement which showed that there had been a total expenditure of $56.76 and with the balance of last year and the government and county grants a balance of $29.21 was left in the hands of treasurer.

The report was adopted.

Mr. TILLEY was to speak on another subject, but thought it would be unwise to keep the teachers longer as they had had a pleasant meeting. He congratulated the teachers on their convention and said he would always be pleased to meet them.

A vote of thanks was then passed to Mr. Tilley and the retiring officers of the association and the convention adjourned.

The next meeting will be held in Norwood.

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. McCausland & Son, Toronto, supply by far the largest quantity in Canada.

A Strong Company.

On Thursday evening last the Michael Strogoff Company, which plays here on Tuesday night, played at Kingston and the News speaks of the performance:—"The attendance at the Opera House last evening was large, and the performance more than reached expectations. The company is a good one, and time and again was greeted with applause. Miss Gussie Curtis, in the representation of Nadia Fedor, created sympathy for herself. Marie Strogoff, mother of Michael, by her acting during the trial of her son before Feofar, Emir of Bokhara, when the order was given to burn his eyes, created immense enthusiasm. Sangarra, a gipsy woman, Miss Ella Wieman, in company with Ivan Ogareff, a disgraced Russian officer, and the two newspaper correspondents, were fully equal to their parts. The two latter were the comedians of the company, and kept the audience highly amused. William Fredericks, in the leading character of Michael Strogoff, was the centre of the plot. His commanding figure, handsome face, and heavy voice, and his fidelity to his country brought out rapturous applause. Despite the punishments, trials and temptations he met with, he was true to his oft repeated cry, 'For God, for the Czar, and for my country.' The jugglery performance by Nelton was probably the finest ever given in the opera house."

A Complaint of Travellers.

The Orillia Packet says:—"If the people of Peterborough deem the passenger traffic between this district and points east worth bringing through their town, they must reduce the cost of transfer. Those leaving Orillia for, say, Ottawa, by afternoon on the Grand Trunk, purposing to proceed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be called upon to pay fifty cents cab hire to and from their hotel, and fifty cents tea. Returning, the expense is repeated. Then the sleeping car is taken about midnight going, and left at five o'clock returning. In addition, an extra charge is imposed for 'going round by Blackwater.' Now, if they took the morning train for Toronto, the sleeping car is taken before twenty-two o'clock, and need not be left until eight next morning. Returning, the slumber of the passenger will not be disturbed until eight o'clock, unless he desires to be aroused. A day is afforded for business or pleasure in the Queen City. Certainly, with these advantages and the cost rendered practically the same by the charges for transfer at Peterborough, the bulk of the traffic will go by Toronto." The people of Peterborough would very much like to see the good people of Orillia come this way when they are travelling east. The complaint, however, is one that cannot very well be met by municipal action, and the REVIEW brings it before the cab drivers and hotelmen, as well as the railways, so that if there is any grounds for it they may take action. At the same time, if travellers desire to ride in hacks or to put up at first-class hotels they must expect to pay for it.

To Cook Husbands.

Here is the recipe of Miss Juliet Corson, the famous cuisiniere, for "cooking husbands so as to make them tender and good." She says: "Make a clear, steady fire out of love, cheerfulness and neatness. Set him as near this as seems to agree with him. If he sputters and fizzes do not be anxious; some husbands do this until they are quite done. Add a little sugar in the form of what the confectioners call kisses, but no vinegar or pepper on any account. Do not stick any sharp instrument in him to see if he is becoming tender. Stir him gently; watch the while, lest he lie too flat and close to the kettle and become useless. You cannot fail to know when he is done. If thus treated you will find him digest, agreeing nicely with you and the children, and he will keep as long as you want, unless you become careless and set him in too cold a place."—Towanda Reporter-Journal.

THE RUMOR DISCREDITED.

It is Not Probable that there Has Been a Fight in Samoan Waters.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—Great prominence is given by the papers here to the rumor that an American man-of-war was sunk in Samoan waters in a fight with the German corvette Olga. While no credence is given to the report the publication has occasioned a sensation following the report from Kiel a few days ago of an engagement. The fact that the name of the vessel alleged to have been sunk is omitted adds to the disbelief in the report, but the only United States vessel now in Samoa waters is the Nipsic. Captain Schenck, quartermaster of the United States Marine Corps, verifies the statement that the Olga was supplied with torpedoes, which is not the case with the three American war vessels despatched to Samoa.

The steamship Alameda of the Oceanic Line, which left here for Australia Feb. 9, touched at Tutuila, the southern island of the Samoan group, on Feb. 25 and arrived at Auckland March 3. Had an engagement occurred at Apia she would probably have learned of the fact and carried the news to Auckland where it would have been cabled. It is conceded that the information might not have reached Tutuila, as Apia is 70 miles distant, in time for the Alameda to carry the news to Auckland.

The Samoan Conference.

BERLIN, March 8.—Several papers announce that the Samoan conference will open about March 3.

YOUNG LOVE TURNS ON THE GAS.

A Bride of Sixteen Discovered That She Couldn't Live Without Money.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Hattie Chrostowska, a married woman, 16 years old, attempted suicide yesterday morning by turning on the gas in the third story front hall bedroom which she had occupied for one night in Lillian Lecount's boarding house at 317 East Fourteenth-street. She revived in Bellevue Hospital and will be arraigned at the Yorkville Police Court this morning.

In the young woman's room was found a letter addressed to "My dearest husband." The letter begged him to forgive her for what she was about to do. There was, however no help for it, she said, as she had found it "impossible to get the money" from her mother. The letter concluded by chiding the husband gently for his suspicions that she had been untrue to him. She assured him that she had been always and wholly his.

Mrs. Chrostowska gave her husband's name as Mensystean Chrostowska, and said he lived at 9 Fayette-street, Brooklyn, E.D. He is said to be a reporter. Hattie eloped with him from her mother's house, 66 East Third-street. The young couple couldn't support themselves and the wife returned to her parents. Her father warned her that if she ever saw her husband again he would turn her out of doors.

The girl says that as she was a minor, her parents sought to get her marriage annulled, intending to marry her to a wealthy Pole, whose name is equivalent for Alfred Patterson. So she ran away again, but her husband would not take care of her and she had no more money.

Chauncey Rode in Their Papa's Carriage.

Chauncey Mitchell Depew sat in his library one afternoon last week, talking to a delegation of railroad men who had called upon him, when they heard a terrible clatter on the piazza. The noise increased. The children's voices drowned the silvery, rippling conversational tones of Chauncey. The guests first smiled, then frowned. Mr. Depew was pleased with their smiles, but annoyed at their frowns. So he arose and said:

"I will make an investigation. This noise must stop."

Mr. Depew went outside, and to his surprise found his coachman's children raising old Nick. They paid but little attention to him, however, and his presence did not lessen their clatter. Growing impatient, he said:

"Children, do you know who I am?"

"Oh! Yes, we do," said a little 5-year-old tot to the great railroad man. "You're the man that rides in my papa's carriage."—New York Evening Sun.

He Drew Off.

"You aren't going up on —— street any more, I hear?" remarked one of a couple of young men who sat together in the theatre the other night.

"No; I have drawn off."

"Didn't you like the girl?"

"Oh, yes."

"Old man object?"

"Oh, no, He was too good."

"How?"

"Borrowed over $200 of me at one time and another and never repaid a dollar of it. I'd rather go with a girl whose father keeps a watch dog and a shot gun."

A Runaway Without Damage.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry, of Auburn, had a rather startling experience yesterday afternoon but fortunately it was startling and nothing more serious. Her horse became frightened near Auburn and became unmanagable and came down Water-st. at a most reckless speed until near Dublin-st. where it was captured by two gentlemen without any damage having been done.

Labor Measures.

In his address to the local Knights of Labor, District Master Workman Elliott outlined several measures which the labor party intended to have brought into the House this session and in response to the demands of the Knights of Labor the Dominion Government have introduced a measure imposing penalties for overloading vessels plying on inland waters and sending them out of harbor insufficiently equipped, or in an unseaworthy condition. The Knights now ask that three inspectors be appointed, one at Montreal, one at Kingston and one at the Welland Canal.

Held by the Enemy.

The preparations for the appearance at Opera House, Peterborough, for one night of the strong company which will produce Wm. Gillette's highly successful American play, "Held by the Enemy," are completed, and Monday evening will witness its initial performance in this city. The sale of seats is very large and the engagement is looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

It will be given with the same cast and effects that made the play so remarkable a success in New York city, whence its praises have spread throughout the country. The scene of the play is derived from the scene of its action—a Southern city held by the Union forces during the late war. It is a love story, but it is said to be thrilling in the incidents represented, which take their color and interest from the surroundings of war. The action is said to be of the most thrilling nature, but without sensationalism. A Union colonel is in love with a Southern girl who is engaged to a Lieutenant in the Confederate army, but who returns the Colonel's love. The story works from this point. The play was offered by A. M. Palmer as his first production at Palmer's Theatre (formerly Wallack's), which fact alone stamps it as being the most popular and best drawing attraction extant. 1d56

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN

WHY THE MORAL STANDARD OF THE LATTER IS ABOVE THE FORMER.

Rev. Messrs. Crossley and Hunter Talk Earnestly and Plainly About the Usages of Society—Bad Company, Yellow-Covered Books and Habits.

As can now almost be taken for granted George-st. church was again packed last evening to hear Messrs. Crossley and Hunter. The evangelists had announced that they would speak specially to the young men and women, and this they did most plainly and most earnestly, and it was remarked that the meeting last evening was the most impressive and powerful one of the whole week.

After the usual opening exercises Rev. Mr. Crossley sang a beautiful solo entitled "The Better Land."

BAD COMPANY, BOOKS AND HABITS.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER then rose to read, as usual, a few verses of Scripture and give some running comments thereon. He said he did not want any of them to make an entertainment out of the meetings or to come there merely to be entertained. Their speaking and singing was a small matter and what they should come for was to work for the Lord Jesus Christ. He wanted them to think only of this one thing and just as soon as they did this was the whole town going to be moved. He was going to read to them the story of a prodigal boy found in fifteenth chapter of Luke, beginning at the tenth verse. In commenting on the parable he said he was not going to talk to young men only, but they would have meetings later on for men only in the Opera House, if that place would be given to them. If he was going to speak to young men he would say there were three things they should guard against. The first of these was bad company. He could always tell a man from the company he kept and they should always remember this. He always tried to get into better company than himself. Secondly, young men should be careful what books they read. The mothers should alway be careful to know what books their children read. If he was a mother he would never give his daughter's hand in marriage to one of those young men who read and would march down street with one of those books under his arm as proudly as if he were leading a poodle dog. Great was the harm being done by those yellow-covered novels which were being scattered throughout the whole country, and he would say to all mothers "Make a bonfire of all those novels, whether borrowed or not." Then, thirdly, young men should be careful of habits. Smoking was one of these habits. He had received a letter only the other day asking him if a man could be a Christian and use tobacco. He would answer as Mr. Moody had, he might be a Christian but he would be a nasty one. He had had a little experience himself in smoking. When he was at Norwood attending the model school he came up to Peterborough once and saw other young fellows smoking and thought he would try it. So one morning before breakfast he lit a cigar and walked up as far as St. Peter's Cathedral, putting on great style and thinking that all Peterborough should know that he was here. He went back to the hotel and in to breakfast, but he didn't eat anything. He had never smoked since. Boys and young fellows thought themselves men when they strutted down street with a cigar in their mouth—a little fire at one end and a little fool at the other. Habit had all to be taken away. Take off the first two letters and they would still have the "bit" there yet, and take off the "b" and "it" would be there still. He spoke of the evil results that so often followed when a young man was left a fortune. He said if he was a millionaire he would not leave a son over $5,000. If the young man was worth anything he didn't need it, but they would see some parents piling money that would damn their children. They should say to their boys, go out into the world and sink or swim and in nine cases out of ten they would swim. There were some young men waiting and almost wishing for the old man to die and there was the father working away saving his money and thinking of nothing else and they couldn't squeeze five cents out of him for the missionaries. It would never do for such a man to go to Heaven, for he would be down on the pavement trying to dig up the gold. The prodigal son spent his portion in riotious living and nineteen out of every twenty young men were going to do the same thing if left fortunes. They could see this on every hand. He closed by earnestly urging the young man to come to Jesus, and as the prodigal in the parable he must come to himself first.

THOSE YELLOW-COVERED BOOKS

Mr. Crossley then sang a very pretty solo "My Mother's Prayer."

SOLICITING PRAYER.

The audience then bowed their heads in silent prayer for the special requests. A man wanted prayer for his shop mate and his boys. Another request was for prayer for a young lady who was sick, and a husband asked for prayer for his wife and son. A daughter asked the Christian's prayer for her mother who was unsaved and her brother who was wicked. There were also a number of requests from Port Hope, Cobourg and other outside places.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY then rose to give his nightly sermon. He said it was his privilege to speak to young men and young women specially that night, but the older ones could listen and take any good out of it they might see. He had selected two texts as follows:—

"Run, speak to this young man."—Zechariah 2-4.

"And we sat down and spake unto the women which resorted thither."—Acts 16; 13.

The latter suggested a talk and, the rev. gentleman said, this was his idea of preaching and the more they kept on that line the better. He told them he had no old foggies' idea of life, but wanted to speak to them, although he might be a few years older than Mr. Hunter, as one of themselves. He spoke first to the young men and women who were Christians and said he wanted them to carry out the text. The hope of the country and the hope of the church was in the young men, and he appealed to the young people to enlist in the work and not allow a young man or young woman in town remain unspoken to personally about his or her soul. He considered it better to be a man than the Angel Gabriel, as men had the privilege of speaking and working to bring their fellows to the Saviour, which was a privilege which the angels had not. He wanted to speak to young men and women together who were Christians and who were not Christians. They should all have a high ideal of life and no better could be found than in Thessalians 5, 22nd—"Abstain from all appearance of evil." The ideal should be high for they never struck higher than they aimed, and they would never

RISE HIGHER THAN THEIR IDEAL.

He wanted to see the same standard of right and wrong for both sexes. What would they think if they went into a bar and saw a lot of young ladies and one of them would turn around and say, "Come girls, what will you have?" Why, they would be shocked. Yet young men could say this and sound all right. This was because there was a different moral standard for the sexes, but he thought if it was all right for the boys to say it, it was all right for the girls. Or what would a young man say if he was walking down street with a young lady and she would open her satchel and take out a cigar and ask, "Do you object to tobacco smoke." The young man would be astonished and shocked. Yet he had seen young men who had the impertinence and ungentlemanliness to smoke in the company of a lady. No lady who smoked would be called a lady and so the same standard should apply to young men. He asked what would be thought of a young lady who stood on a street corner, or would be seen sitting up on boxes telling stories, not always the cleanest. Young men could do these, all because there was a different standard. The rev. gentleman then spoke of the manner in which young ladies treated and went with young men of loose habits. If a young lady had loose habits, he said, she was at once thrown out of society, yet young men who were known to have loose habits could be seen with young ladies driving and walking on the streets. If it was bad in a woman it was just as bad in a man. The result of this was that the demand regulated the supply, not only in the business, but in the moral and social worlds. Young ladies did not demand purity and virtue from young men and so not one in twenty young men were comparable in society, excellence, morality and virtue to nineteen out of every twenty young ladies. The reason of this was because young ladies didn't demand of men what the latter did of them. If the men, Mr. Crossley said, came up to the same standard as the ladies the millenium would be more than half way here. He most pathetically pleaded the cause of fallen women and told the Christian ladies not to make it so hard for a fallen woman to rise or so easy for

YOUNG MEN TO GO DOWN.

He then spoke to the young men alone, telling them that it was all well enough to say "boys must be boys" and talk about "going it while you're young" and "sowing your wild oats." That was just what the Bible said, but he wanted them to keep the judgment always in view and they would not go astray. Young men planned for life, but never for eternity. He gave them a text:—

"Rejoice, O young men, in thy youth and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the right of thine eyes, but know then that for all these things God will bring thee into judgement."—Ecclesiastic 11, 9.

He then addressed young ladies alone and gave them a text:

"But she that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth"—1 Timothy 5, 6.

This was not complimentary to ladies but there was no immoral meaning implied in the text. A young woman might be virtuous and pure but not cherish or take in the idea of glorifying God and live with no worthy object in life. After giving several touching instances where a love of worldly pleasures had sent young ladies unconverted to meet their Master he said he wanted them to look at life from the standpoint of the grave or tomb. In concluding he gave two texts to the unsaved:—

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are piece."—Proverbs 3; 17.

"Give me thy heart."—Proverbs 23; 26.

After speaking briefly on each of these verses he closed by urging the young men and young women to enlist in the Lord's work and get the "oil of joy."

At the close of the address Rev. Mr. Hunter asked all those young ladies' and gentlemen under twenty-five years of age who felt God to be their Saviour to stand, and a large number responded. He then asked any who wished to enlist and who would like the prayers of Christians in their behalf to rise and again quite a number responded.

The first part of the meeting then closed, but the major portion of the audience remained for the after meeting.

NOTES.

The evangelistic services will be continued in the George-st. church next week again and not in St. Paul's as at first announced. They will be held in St. Paul's the week following.

Both of the evangelists last night told the audience to go to their own church to-morrow and not all crowd to the services at which they were to speak.

The excursion from Belleville is coming up on Thursday evening next and will return the same night after the services.

Rev. Mr. Hunter will preach in St. Andrew's church to-morrow morning. Rev. Mr. Crossley will be at the Charlotte-st. church and both of them will conduct the service in George-st. church in the evening.

The opening week of the services has not been without fruits nor have the words fallen on barren ground. There has been wonderful awakening and it is estimated that at least two hundred have manifested a desire for a change of heart.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND QUEENS W

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of selvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,500 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

"Oh, he is far better looking than I," she cried—at which Jim laughed outright, and she protested further. "He is more of an Earle, you know. I am more like my mother's family."

"That is lucky for you," said Beautiful Jim, gravely.

"Do you think he will make a good soldier, Mr. Beresford?"

Beautiful Jim laughed: "It is impossible to say," he answered. "I could better answer your question next year this time."

"Next year this time! Oh, we don't know what may happen in a year," she said, quickly. "They tell me that Stuart will have a terrible time at first among the other officers."

"I dare say he may find the first few months pretty rough," answered Jim, composedly.

"But what will they do to him?" she asked, anxiously.

"Oh! Mr. Beresford," she exclaimed. "I don't know how he will stand it—he has such a hasty temper."

"He must have had a pretty fair test of his temper already at Sandhurst," said Jim.

"Well—I believe it was an awful stumbling block to him," Miss Earle admitted; "and if I only knew that some one was looking after him it would be such a relief to my mind—I can't tell you what a relief. And he is such a dear boy—quite the dearest boy I ever knew."

"I am sure he is," said Beautiful Jim, telling the lie boldly and promptly. "And, of course, if it will make you feel more comfortable, Miss Earle, I will keep an eye upon him; only—if you want to make a first rate soldier out of him, you must let things take their natural course."

But Nancy Earle, caring more in her steadfast and simple mind of the personal comfort and welfare of her precious boy, "the last of the Earles," than for the advancement of his qualities as a soldier, did not heed the advice. In truth, she scarcely understood it, and certainly did not realize sufficiently how valuable it was. To her, a first rate soldier meant one who would dash proudly on through fire and smoke, who would storm a battery single handed, and, if need be, die with a proud smile upon his lips. That was Nancy Earle's idea of a first rate soldier; but to Beautiful Jim, who loved his profession as his life, though he could grumble with the best at an extra field day or at a court martial, and hated an inspection like poison, a first rate soldier was something very different. It meant somebody who would learn to obey before he should attempt to rule, one who would follow as well as lead, one who had learned patience and forbearance, and the value of that greatness which consists in ruling his own spirit. It meant, in truth, a good deal less dash and a good deal more sound, plain, common sense.

However, Nancy Earle did not know all this, and Beautiful Jim was either too weak or had not the heart to tell her; so she got him to promise that he would be a sort of fairy—or at least a regimental—godfather to young Stuart, and try to keep him out of harm's way.

Pleasant task!

CHAPTER IX.

A FIRST FLIGHT.

Taken on the whole the bazaar was a brilliant success, and the funds of the hospital were considerably increased by the proceeds thereof. A great deal of pleasure and fun had been got out of it, too, by many persons, and if there had been some pain attending it—why, nobody knew much about it.

Polly Antrobus, for instance, in spite of her brave attire and the lavish gifts of Mr. Mandarin, which had made her out and out the best dressed Swiss peasant in all the show, had suffered a very martyrdom of pain—but after all nobody was any the wiser, and only one or two people suspected what Polly never spoke of to a living soul.

And Lord Charterhouse, whom Mrs. Antrobus had once eulogized as being "so frank and open," to him also that Swiss Fair and Mask of Flowers was an ordeal, a period of such exquisite anguish that on the second day, when my lady spoke of going again, he flared out, in sheer self defence, that his leg was bad again, and he would rather keep quietly at home.

So Lady Charterhouse, not unwillingly, went off by herself and had an uncommonly good time, much better than if "Mr. Winks" who was, she made no secret of saying, a dear old boy, but as slow as a top, had been with her. But when she came home and enlivened him with a full description of everything, and of how that beautiful fair haired girl with the fat fussy mother, and the lovely silver ornaments, had looked more beautiful that day than she had done on the day before, Lord Charterhouse found himself wishing that he had gone too, and made up his mind that he would go on the morrow. And sure enough on the morrow he did go, and finding his way to the stall at which Polly was helping, stayed there, his game leg giving him an excuse for a chair, and the chair giving him an excuse for remaining where he would be out of the way.

I think "Mr. Winks" hardly knew that he was inflicting positive agony on the girl he had once called his Mayflower. Polly was very quiet, making no effort to get rid of the various wares which she had come there to sell, and neither he nor any one else guessed that there were times when she could have covered her eyes with her hands and shrieked aloud for the very anguish in her heart. Poor Polly!

THE END OF AN ELOPEMENT

M'LACHLIN KILLS THE GIRL HE RAN AWAY WITH AND HIMSELF.

They Spend two days Together and Seem to Have Died by Agreement—A Note from the Girl Foreshadowing the Event.

PAW PAW, Ill., March 9.—The elopement which threw this community into excitement on last Monday has ended in a tragedy. It was regarded as an abduction rather than an elopement, owing to the tender age of the girl and the unenviable reputation of the man with whom she fled. On last Sunday night Cora Carnahan, the 16-year-old daughter of the landlord of the Detmore House, disappeared, and it became noised abroad that she had eloped with a young fellow named McLachlin, who was notorious for his evil conduct among women. To-day the abductor and his victim are dead, the suspicion being that McLachlin first took the girl's life and then his own with the same weapon, a heavy revolver.

Just at dark on Sunday night the girl's mother saw her go out of the back door of the house and disappear in the darkness. The haste she made caused suspicion and an alarm was given, and several parties started in search of her, but owing to the darkness she made her escape.

The next morning the discovery was made by tracks in the mud that the girl and her companion had gone north out of the town. He had led her through a corn field for some distance, in which the mud and water was almost knee deep. After crossing the corn field, they turned to the east until they reached the railroad track, which they followed, going south to Earlville. The trip thus far made an eleven-mile walk over a slippery and muddy track, full of bridges and pits on a dark and foggy night. The only protection or the girl's feet were a pair of fine shoes with high heels, and on this account the footprints as far as Earlville were easily traced. At the last end of the journey the tracks indicated that the girl was much fatigued. She had stumbled and staggered from side to side on the track.

The couple reached the farmhouse of Albert Phillips, six miles southeast of Earlville, on Tuesday night, and applied for shelter. The place is now occupied by Elmer Davis, a young married man. He is well acquainted with McLachlin, and having been to Earlville the same day the couple came to his place; it is the belief that he knew of the elopement. Davis asserts, however, that McLachlin said they were married. The couple stayed at the place on Tuesday night and occupied the same room. They remained in the house all day Wednesday. They retired early Wednesday evening, shortly after supper, saying they were very tired. They went to bed about 7 o'clock, and shortly after the report of a revolver was heard and Phillips started for the room. Before he reached it another report was heard, and upon his reaching the room McLachlin and the girl were both dead. They were in bed. The young man had evidently put the weapon back of the girl's ear and sent a bullet into her head. Not satisfied with one shot, he again placed the weapon to her temple and discharged it. He then shot himself in the crown of the head, the bullet coming out under the chin. The handsome girl had evidently died without a struggle. The expression on her face was calm and peaceful.

"DEAR MAMMA: By the time you receive this letter I will be in my grave."

A short time previous to the elopement the parents discovered that Cora was deeply infatuated with McLachlin. They opposed all intercourse, but by the assistance of Gilbert Still a correspondence was secretly carried on and clandestine meetings held. Young Still is now under arrest.

TO CORRUPT CANADA.

Exiled Boodlers Said to be Trying to Buy Up Parliament.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The World to-day says: John Keenan, assisted by John C. Eno, is said to be engaged in the congenial task of collecting a boodle, estimated at $100,000, to defeat in the Dominion Parliament Prof. Weldon's bill for the surrender of fugitive criminals whose offences are not embraced in the existing Extradition Treaty. Failing to defeat the bill, the exiles would be content to make it non-retroactive. Here is a list of United States citizens who are deeply interested in the proposed legislation:

Thomas Axworthy, defaulting Treasurer of Cleveland, O.; short $450,000; in Toronto.

George M. Bartholomew, ex-President of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., who absconded with about $2,000,000; in Quebec.

Robert De Lacy, New York boodle Alderman of 1884; in Montreal.

Charles Dempsey, New York boodle Alderman of 1884; in Montreal.

John C. Eno, ex-banker of New York, who absorbed $4,000,000 from the Second National Bank; in Quebec.

Franklin W. Krum of Schoharie, N.Y., bank wrecker; in Hamilton.

"Mother" Mandelbaum of New York, receiver of stolen goods, equipper of thieves and burglars; shop-keeper in Hamilton.

William Moloney, ex-Reading Clerk of New York Common Council and professional handler of boodle; now in Amsterdam, Holland, but would prefer Montreal if assured of safety there.

Joseph A. Moore of Indianapolis, who embezzled $500,000 of Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance funds; in Windsor.

Robert Sayles, New York boodle Alderman of 1884, who forfeited his bail; in Montreal.

H. D. Scholl, defaulting cashier of Chicago and Northwestern Railroad for $[illegible],000; in Toronto.

Harry G. Stickney, Boston defaulter for $17,000; in Toronto.

Gentlemen's Buttons.

The old-time plait bosomed shirt and the pearl buttons on it, sewn by hand, are nearly things of the past. Patent collar buttons, separable and levers, are coming into the market every day. Well dressed men, who formerly looked down on "made" jewelry, now use plated collar buttons, for the many used justify the good quality at a moderate price; and it is astonishing the number sold. As we used to say of pins, "What becomes of them all?" The same could be said of plated jewelry generally. The desire for change and the really beautiful patterns tempt so many; and all retailers encourage it, preferring frequent sales and at the same time giving the customer a chance to keep up with the style.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Houses, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $175.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S.

The Flood of the Season's French and English Printed Calicoes is rolling in—white capped and aglow phosphorescent, color play. How the Priscellas of the past would joy to see them? Pretty as you have seen them, they were never so handsome before. Persian designs, leaves, buds, flowers, polka, dots, plain stripes, scrabbles, and scrawls, angles and tangles. More than 300 different styles, small figures, large figures, and mourning designs, better printing was never done 'exquisite.' If you don't want to buy, don't pass the window or come in. Prices range from 6 to 15 cents.

The trouble with low grade MARSEILLES BED SPREADS has been loose threads at the back—face, all right, but you didn't like the fiddle-string arrangement at the back, needn't. Here are $2.50 Marseilles Bed Spreads, full size and handsome patterns, with backs firm and well finished. Look at this Honey-comb quilt, for $1 00 which needs no appology for either size or weight.

Flannelettes—what are they? Are they all wool? No they are mostly cotton, finished to imitate a Flannel, and especially adapted for children's dresses and ladies' wrappers. They consist of Cream Grounds, with pink, blue and cardinal stripes, blue and white, pink and cream and grey, some 18 patterns in all—the best quality being only 12½ cents a yard.

Opened out this week, a line of Linen Tablings, the maker of which is noted the world over. They are specially suited for every day wear—the warp is well twisted and they wash and iron well.

Before you hear from us again, I will have visited the wholesale markets where I will be on the look-out for Bargains for my Customers.

SACKED AND BURNT.

Anti-European Riots at Chin Kiang in China—The Town in Ruins.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—The steamer Belgic, which arrived here this morning from Hong Kong and Yokohama, brings the first detailed advices on the recent anti-European riots at Chin Kiang. Chin Kiang is a ruin. The trouble began, it is claimed, in a street row, when a Chinaman was knocked down by a policeman. This excited the mob, and their first act was to destroy the police station. Then they made for the British consulate, where a Chinese inspector, who has not since been seen, is believed to have taken refuge. On the way they fired three foreign houses. The Chinese general in command sent 300 men to protect the consulate. As soon as the mob appeared the soldiers capitulated. Some fled and the rest joined the mob. The Consul's wife fled barefoot with her children from the back door of the consulate, while the mob, aided by the soldiers, sacked and burned everything. The missionaries' house and a chapel nearly shared the same fate, while the British Consul himself was twice in imminent danger of death.

The American consulate was looted and more houses were burned. The residents took refuge on hulks and the mob tried to follow them, but the connecting bridges were raised. The viceroy telegraphed to the British Consul that he was sending 2000 soldiers to restore order.

The riot broke out again on Wednesday afternoon. When Gen. Kennedy reached Chin Kiang he had the American flag raised at the United States consulate. The British ship Mutine arrived on Thursday and fired a salute to the British flag. Within five minutes after the firing of the first gun the Chinese in the settlement had fled in all directions. The United States steamer Omaha has been recalled from Corea and gone to Chin Kiang direct.

The North China Daily News says: "The chief lesson learned from this outbreak is that it will not do to believe that foreigners are in absolute security at any of the treaty ports."

A BELLEVILLE GIRL'S FATE.

Abandoned by Her Betrayer She Takes Her Own Life.

ROCHESTER, March 10.—Anna Diamond, about 25 years old, committed suicide at the Waverly House this morning by taking poison. She came here from Belleville, Ont., with Charles Macklin, a member of the "Shamus O'Brien" Company, last week. Saturday the company left for Syracuse and Macklin told her he was tired of her and would no longer be bothered with her. This, it appears, caused the woman to take her life.

Project For a Monster Bridge.

MONTREAL, March 9.—A deputation has gone to Ottawa to look after the project to construct a bridge across the St. Lawrence, from Longueuil to St. Helen's Island, with nine spans, and from the Island to Point St. Charles, with fourteen spans. Provisions will be made in the plan for a double track line of railway for tram cars as well as a roadway for vehicles and foot passengers. The estimated cost is $2,000,000.

Stole a Statue of St. Joseph.

OTTAWA, March 9.—A sensation has been caused here by an affair which eclipses anything of the kind ever heard of in Canada in the way of church robberies. Last night thieves entered St. Anne's Catholic Church and stole a statue of St. Joseph. The priests are indignant over the sacrilegious act and have secured the services of detectives.

THE EIGHTY CLUB DINNER.

A REMARKABLE PASSAGE IN MR. PARNELL'S SPEECH.

Lord Randolph Churchill's Attack on the Admiralty Proposals—Conybeare's Conduct at the Cornish Dinner.

LONDON, March 10.—"I do not know," said Lord Rosebery Friday evening, "whether it may be the lot of the Tory party—but I feel it already not obscurely adumbrated by some of their organs—to offer Mr. Parnell and his party such a measure of Home Rule as they can accept. If they do, I am sure that we can only rejoice." That is the first response from any Liberal of Cabinet rank to Mr. Parnell's speech last week in the House of Commons.

What Lord Rosebery said was said at a dinner given by the Eighty Club to Earl Spencer. Mr. Parnell spoke just before Lord Rosebery. It was a purely political dinner, the guests all Gladstonians or Parnellites, and not, therefore, a moment to be holding out olive branches to the Tories. No fresh one was offered. But none the less remarkable was this passage of the speech:

Lord Spencer has expressed to you his belief that Ireland is capable of self-government, that there is no such wrong in the minds or the genius of the Irish people that they cannot be trusted to do for themselves that which all your Colonies are trusted to perform, and that which every State of the American Union has the power to perform in the internal economy of that country, with advantage to itself and with increased strength to the Federal body of which it forms a part.

Now that is not a direct declaration of a willingness to accept Home Rule on either the Colonial or the American basis. Taken, howev, in connection with his House of Commons speech, it may show in what direction Mr. Parnell's mind is wearing. Mr. Chamberlain is never weary of pressing the Canadian parallel, but the American example and the relations of the American States to the American Union offer analogies so remote from Ireland that they have hitherto been left mainly to the amateur. It is not at all likely that Mr. Parnell will propose or accept what may be called American Home Rule, but a modification of Gladstonian Home Rule is certain, and particulars suggested by American experience would be a very different matter.

Earl Spencer, whose speech was of great weight and authority, spoke of a day coming when Mr. Gladstone should introduce a Home Rule measure, not in the same form, but on the same principles, probably in an improved form. This, too, is significant. It even begins to look as if others than Mr. Parnell might be ready for a new departure.

Canada and the States.

LONDON, March 10.—Fanatically Protectionist is the verdict of The Spectator on President Harrison's inaugural address, and this journal is, therefore, of the opinion that the new administration will try to bribe or compel Canada to enter a customs union.

The Admiralty Proposals.

LONDON, March 10.—Lord Randolph Churchill's first speech in the House of Commons on his return was an attack on the naval proposals of the Government. He follows it up yesterday with a hard-hitting letter in The Times. He condemns not merely this present scheme of Lord George Hamilton and his Admiralty colleagues; he protests that all schemes emanating from the Admiralty as at present constituted must be received with the gravest suspicion and mistrust. Lord Randolph is not the only critic of these proposals. The expenditure on announced additions to the navy amounts to $50,000,000, spread over seven years. The Gladstonians, probably with Mr. Gladstone at their head, will oppose this as a waste of public money. Lord Randolph promises them his best help, and there is every prospect of lively work.

Conybeare's Poor Taste.

LONDON, March 10.—Mr. Conybeare, M.P., attended the annual Cornish dinner at the Holborn restaurant Saturday. A toast was proposed to the Prince and Princess of Wales as the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall. All present with the exception of Conybeare rose and sang "God bless the Prince of Wales." Seeing Conybeare sitting the diners became furious and shouted "Stand up, Conybeare!" "He is disloyal!" "Turn him out!" etc. Conybeare finally rose.

The Floods in England.

LONDON, March 10.—Further damage by floods is reported in the Midland and Western counties of England.

Russia's Triumph in Servia.

LONDON, March 10.—King Milan's abdication is the visible sign and seal of Russia's triumph and of Austria's defeat in Servia. It is the end of a long game, played rather low down on both sides. Austria is Prince Bismarck's close ally; Russia is dreaded as a probable ally of France; and Prince Bismarck's policy is to postpone to the latest possible date the turning of that probability into fact. He has therefore every motive to keep on easy terms with both Russia and Austria. Russia's triumph is regarded at Vienna as momentary. Certain it is that Austria will not lightly relinquish her claim to ascendancy in Servia. What Russian intrigue has achieved Austrian intrigue is likely sooner or later to undo. The situation in the Balkans becomes in fact more critical than ever.

Received Quietly at Berlin

BERLIN, March 10.—The abdication of King Milan of Servia, though not expected so soon, was received here very calmly, having been long considered inevitable. In foreign official circles no fears are entertained that the event will disturb the existing peace, Prince Bismarck having taken precautionary measures to restrain Austria from any precipitate action, and Russia having all to gain by maintaining a waiting attitude. The news that Servia had decided to reduce her army further reinforces confidence that no adventurous policy will be pursued.

Won the Wager and Lost His Life.

LONDON, March 10.—A blacksmith in the town of Marne, Schleswig-Holstein, recently made a wager that he could eat three pounds of raw meat and one pound of raw sausages and drink six quarts of beer at one sitting. He accomplished the feat, but died almost immediately afterward. A post mortem examination of his body revealed the fact that his stomach had been rent by the pressure of its contents.

Sufficiently Punished.

PARIS, March 9.—The revocation by the government of the decree of exile against the Duke d'Aumale was accepted by the Chamber of Deputies to-day. The chamber, by a vote of 316 to 274, sustained the action of the government.

M. Millerand demanded urgency for and the immediate discussion of the question of granting amnesty to persons imprisoned under the laws dealing with strikes, public speaking and press offences.

Premier Tirard accepted the proposal of urgency, but opposed an immediate debate. He stated that the Government was disposed to use largely its power of clemency, but would not assent to amnesty.

The proposal for immediate discussion was negatived by a vote of 345 to 185.

The leading German authors, including Spielhagen, Freytag, Frenzel and Wildenbruch, have [illegible] protest against the action of the [illegible] formed for the purpose of inducing the Government to assent to a measure for expunging from the German language all words of foreign origin.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Another Fatal Crossing Accident—The Cardwell Election Case.

TORONTO, March 11.—At the meeting of the Toronto Ministerial Association on Saturday a motion condemning the Jesuits' Estates Bill was passed without a dissenting vote.

Mrs. Shannon, 169 Bathurst-street, was passing along King-street west on Saturday night when a thief deftly snatched her purse containing $3 and made good his escape with it.

About 10 o'clock on Saturday night Walter Nicholson of 13 Alice-street was walking along Yonge-street when three men set upon him near Cumberland-street, and knocking him down, went through his pockets. All they got for their trouble was a pawn ticket for a silver watch.

The Cardwell election case was again before Judge Street at Osgoode Hall Saturday morning. The five days' statutory notice of Smith's withdrawal not having been announced in the county paper the case was again adjourned two weeks and will be finally disposed of March 23 at 11 a.m.

It is officially announced that these companies have been incorporated: "The Constructing and Paving Company of Ontario," "The Windsor Manufacturing and Novelty Works Company," "The St John's Good Templar Hall Company of Toronto," "The D. W. Beadle Nursery Company of St. Catharines."

James Alexander Irwin is a Hamilton moulder, 40 years old, who is in custody here on the serious charge of bigamy, it being alleged that he has two wives living, No. 1 in Hamilton and No. 2 in Toronto. He came down from Hamilton Saturday afternoon to see the second wife but was met by Detective Slemin, who arrested him on a warrant sworn out by the Toronto wife.

Where the Grand Trunk Railway crosses Greenwood's sideline seems to be a bad place for accidents. Several have taken place there in past years, and it was only last Thursday night that a man named Donald McBrien met his death there. On Saturday night another was added to the list of victims in the person of James Kirk, a foreman carpenter employed by the Grand Trunk, and who lives at Little York. He was struck by a train and almost cut to pieces, the accident occurring within a few yards of where McBrien met his death. The patrol wagon was summoned and the remains brought to the Morgue, where at 4 o'clock to-day Coroner Duncan will open an inquest.

A SCORCHER AT WALLACEBURG.

Two Blocks in the Heart of the Town Wiped Out by Fire.

WALLACEBURG, March 9.—A disastrous fire broke out about 7 o'clock this morning in the restaurant of George H. Keys, South Wallaceburg. The building being frame, the local fire company, though promptly on hand, could not save it. Next to Keys' was McDonald & Bros.' hardware store. This was soon consumed. To the westward was situated Halpin's bakery. This went next. A vacant store between was also consumed.

A strong northwest wind was blowing at the time and in a few seconds the flames crossed the street and enveloped T. Redpath's fine new hotel, the Oriental. This, with most of its contents, was consumed. Spreading southward the fire engulfed a dwelling occupied by Pierce Welch and owned by Mrs. Smith. Then followed the destruction of the buildings belonging to the Kerr estate and occupied by Green & Christian, butchers; Wm. McGregor, grocer, and B. Wellman, dwelling.

Again crossing the street to the south, Wm. Murdock's butcher shop and dwelling, a tenement house owned by S. Barfoot of Chatham and occupied by S. Terrall; S. Collinge's harness shop and residence, R. C. Stonehouse's grocery store and residence and J. Rose's cooper shop were burned. Two entire blocks in the very heart of the town were wiped out, only one building, the Arthur House, remaining.

The total loss amounts to $20,700, with only $9000 insurance.

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Fire in High-street this morning caused a loss of $100,000.

A GAS SYNDICATE.

The Kingsville, Ont., Well to be Piped for Detroit's Benefit.

OTTAWA, March 10.—American capitalists are organizing a powerful syndicate to convey gas to Detroit from the famous gas well recently discovered accidentally at Kingsville, Ont. The intentions of the capitalists were kept a secret until yesterday, when one of them visited Ottawa to interview the Government with the object of ascertaining whether legislation would be required to enable them to convey gas in pipes from Canada to the United States. Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, assured them that they could go ahead without any further delay.

A Clever Forger Nabbed.

MONTREAL, March 9.—Perhaps the sharpest and most successful forger who ever came to Canada was arrested this afternoon. He goes under some twenty aliases, one of them being James Taylor and another Samuel Oakley. His field of operation has included nearly every State in the Union. He managed to introduce himself into church societies, took charge of Sunday schools, joined actively in Young Men's Christian Associations and thus gained the confidence of the upper thousand in large cities. With this confidence to back him he forged cheques on new and wealthy friends, and after having them cashed, quietly took himself to other pastures. This has been going on the last five years, and though most strenuous efforts have been made by the police he always managed to elude them until he pocketed by the trade some $60,000. Last week a private detective here was notified of the man's probable arrival in Canada, and this morning he succeeded in finding him in one of the best hotels in the city, where he posed for the last fifteen days as a nabob whose only occupation seemed to be to make himself agreeable to everyone around him and to try to introduce himself into good families here.

A Serious Accident.

ST. THOMAS, March 10.—While Mrs. John Campbell was attempting to replace a log under the stove it tumbled over, pinning her to the floor and rendering her unconscious. When she recovered her senses the stove was still across her body, which had been painfully burned by the hot metal. She remained pinned to the floor for ten or eleven hours, or until nearly 7 o'clock next morning, when a neighbor, who had been alarmed by her cries, burst in the door and rescued her. A doctor was summoned and will endeavor to save the patient, although she is terribly injured.

Death of an Ex-M.L.A.

BELLEVILLE, March 9.—Mr. Ketcham Graham, ex-M.L.A. for West Hastings, died this morning at the residence of his son, aged 69 years. Mr. Graham was elected to the Legislature in 1867 after a contest and in 1871 by acclamation, but in 1875 he was defeated. He was one of the pioneers in the dairying industry. A family of three sons and one daughter survive him.

THAT TINY SPECK OF WAR

NOTHING KNOWN AT WASHINGTON ABOUT THE SAMOAN STORY.

The Belief That the Report is False Unchanged—Stirring Rumors Cause Wild Excitement in San Francisco.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—There is still a dearth of news from Samoa in the State and Navy Departments. In the State Department the fact that they have not been officially advised of the blowing up of the Nipsic is regarded as sufficient evidence that no such thing has happened. They have not telegraphed the acting consul for the reason that it is not to be supposed that he has neglected his duty and failed to inform his government of an event of such importance. In answer to the suggestion that the Germans would control every avenue by which the news could reach the United States, it is said that they could not prevent the information from reaching England through some of the English vessels at Samoa, even supposing that the reported engagement had been followed by a declaration of war, which might have resulted in cutting off Consul Blacklock from the cable at Auckland. Naval officers here without exception also discredit the story, although they admit that the Nipsic would have been overmatched by the Olga in a sea fight. They are rather inclined to accept the view taken by certain of the English papers that the publication in the German newspapers was thrown out as a feeler to learn how an attempt to chastise the Mataafa forces for the killing of the German seamen would be received in Germany and America.

Secretary Tracy and Commodore Walker denounce the story as an absurd fabrication. It is learned that the reported destruction of the Nipsic was not even mentioned at the cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon, which fact is an additional proof that none of the executive departments are in possession of information which would confirm the rumor.

Frisco Excited.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—The newspapers here yesterday put out bulletins stating that the rumor that the Nipsic had been sunk and the Alameda captured by the Germans, had been confirmed by private advices. Tremendous crowds collected about the offices and the excitement was intense.

In an editorial article headed, "The First Shot," commenting upon the reported engagement between the United States steamer Nipsic and the German corvette Olga, The California Democrat, leading German paper of this city, will say to-morrow: "As an American citizen of German extraction we cannot but deeply deplore this unfortunate quarrel between the country of our choice and that of our birth. But whatever may come, there remain but two roads to follow: Either we must rally round the starry flag and defend it with our lives and our fortunes, or we have to shake off American citizenship by emigrating from this country, and since we have come here to stay we will stand and fall by our flag, our country right or wrong."

The Situation in Samoa.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The following is a part of the last letter from Capt. Mullan, of the United States steamer Nipsic, received by his brother in this city. The letter is dated Apia, Jan. 18:

"Here in Samoa we have war times and excitement. Germany has declared war against Mataafa and proclaimed martial law here and in Samoa. I have protested against this martial law business, and think it has had a beneficial effect. Things are all exciting here. They are at war with Mataafa, but all their proclamations are directed against foreigners. They carry on a high game here, and our Government has but one vessel while they have three good ships.

"I hear by way of Auckland that we will have more ships here. God only knows how this affair will end. The Samoans do not want Germany to annex their island, but have long ago asked both England and the United States to take them.

"The little paper published here, The Samoan Times, has been suppressed by the Germans. On Jan. 9 the German consulate, German Consul's house, etc., were burned. Loss $100,000. It was the greatest fire ever in Apia. I sent men to render aid.

"I hear Germany intends sending out troops. The German Consul at Auckland chartered a small English steamer the other day and sent her here with important German despaches, but what these despatches were no one but Germans know."

TEN PER CENT.

A Windsor Alderman Receives an Objectionable Letter Concerning a Contract.

WINDSOR, March 10.—For some months Windsor has been agitating the opening of certain streets in the western part of the town and a bylaw was introduced and passed for that purpose. Arbitrators were appointed and are now holding meetings listening to the different sides of the question as to what will be allowed the property owners through which the streets will pass. The survey as made will require the moving of a number of residences, and these will have to be let by tender to the Board of Public Works, who make the award.

Thursday last Ald. John Harmon received a letter purporting to be from Goodman & Clark house movers of Detroit, which is a flagrant violation of the criminal law of Canada. The letter is written on the bill heads of the above firm and purports to be signed by Mr. Clark, the junior partner of the firm, who was in Windsor a few days previous to the date of the letter. It winds up with the following: "I have this proposition to make, Mr. Harmon. It is customary in Detroit, when a job is given to remunerate the one who has the giving of it, and if you will secure me the job of moving the houses on the proposed streets I will give you 10 per cent. on all jobs."

As yet comparatively few are aware of the receipt of the letter by Ald. Harmon. The law states that the attempted bribery or intimidation of any public officer is punishable by a long term in prison. Magistrate Bartlett said last evening that it was one of the greatest pieces of impudence he had ever seen. The letter will be laid before the Committee on Public Works on Tuesday.

WHEN THEY ARE RIPE.

An Ex-Torontonian's Prophecies About Canada and the States.

NEW YORK, March 10.—To-day's Herald contains a long letter from Rev. W. A. Crawford-Frost of St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown, P. E. I., in which the writer prophecies that within the next century the United States will become a monarchy, that Canada will not be a colony of Great Britain more than twenty-five or thirty years longer but will become independent, and that when both countries are ripe for it they will unite in one kingdom.

Discovery of a Treasonable Plot.

CALCUTTA, March 10.—A sensation has been caused here by the discovery of a plot in Cashmere against the life of the British Resident. The Maharajah has offered to abdicate.

Frozen to Death.

WINNIPEG, March 10.—The body of Archie Wilson, who disappeared from here a month or so ago, was found about five miles from the city frozen stiff and brought here. An inquest will be held.

MONDAY, MARCH 11, 1889.

WHAT NOW?

When commercial union was first brought before the country it was endorsed by several Liberal leaders and by the Liberal press generally. In fact we only know of two Liberal papers in Ontario that did not openly favor it. Soon, however, the party found that it was not as popular as its leaders had hoped it would be, and they gave their policy a new name, calling it unrestricted reciprocity and alleging that it was different from commercial union. What is their policy now?

Sir Richard Cartwright has moved a resolution in the House of Commons which declares:—

> "Under the present condition of affairs and in view of the recent action of the House of Representatives of the United States, it is expedient that steps should be taken to ascertain on what terms and conditions an arrangement can be effected with the United States for the purpose of securing full and unrestricted reciprocity of trade therewith."

What was the recent action of the House of Representatives which is referred to by Sir Richard? It was the passing of a motion favoring commercial union with Canada, "with a uniform revenue system, like internal takes to be collected and like customs duties to be imposed," and with no duties upon trade between the United States and Canada. When the Canadian Government had declared a desire to establish such a commercial union the President was to be empowered to appoint commissioners to arrange the details.

Until the Canadian Government accepted this basis the President was not empowered to act.

Now, does the Liberal party believe Canada should accept that basis? If it does not Sir Richard's resolution is buncombe. If it does the party has returned to a policy that it declared it had cast aside and that the Globe (although it had formerly advocated it) said would be disloyal.

It is noticeable and worthy of notice that Congressman Hitt's commercial union resolution was favorably received by the Liberal press, and gleefully referred to by a portion of the press as showing that their policy was acceptable across the lines. The Ottawa Free Press, the organ of the Liberals at the capital, says:—

> "There is little doubt that the action of the House of Representatives will be approved by the Senate and then we shall have a 'standing offer' of reciprocal trade relations which our Government will hardly venture to refuse."

But the Government will venture to decline the invitation. An invitation to negotiate regarding trade relations would be accepted, and has been offered by Canada to the United States, but when the Republic declares that Canada must first accept the basis of commercial union the Government will respectfully decline—unless we are greatly mistaken—and it will be sustained in so doing—unless we are wonderfully mistaken—by the people of the Dominion. Canada will not surrender her commercial independence, her most important Parliamentary peregatives or make the other surrenders that commercial union implies.

If the suit for $50,000 that the Jesuit Society has entered against the Toronto Mail goes to trial we will probably learn more of the Society than is generally known now.

The Canada Citizen states that the vote on the Scott Act will take place here on April 1st and berates the Government for fixing the voting in this county three days before the other counties. Is this to be taken as an April fool joke? The voting will take place on April 4th.

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. McCausland & Son, Toronto, supply by far the largest quantity in Canada.

A COMEDY IN THREE ACTS.

THE NEW THEATRICAL MANAGER AND THE THINGS HE LEARNED.

The Pretty Soubrette Who Got a Week's Wages in Advance and the Leading Man Who Carried Her Off in a Coupe After the Performance Was Over.

The Leading Man rests his cigar above the sign. Rules such as these are for ordinary mortals, not for him. He regards himself in the looking glass with something of pleasure in his gaze. He sits down in a chair opposite the dressing table and shouts for his servant. This worthy rushes in at once and the evening's transformation scene begins.

With a deftness learned by long experience the dresser removes the master's street attire. The master, in the meantime, is engaged in looking over the evening's correspondence. Here is a letter from a stagestruck school girl desiring an introduction. The note is torn up and thrown in the corner. The Leading Man has long passed that stage of his his profession. The next letter is a request for an autograph. The dresser, who is a better writer than his master, attends to this department. He takes a certain delight in writing his master's name and deceiving the innocent. All dressers are alike in this particular.

PUTTING ON THE HANDSOME.

Now comes the "make up." The Leading Man is strictly intent on business. He throws away his cigar, looks earnestly at his reflection in the glass, rolls up his sleeves and begins to work. First he covers his face with a grease preparation which serves as a groundwork for the paint. Next the eyes are penciled, the wrinkles drawn, the mustache defined and the wig carefully adjusted. The work is done rapidly, years of experience are brought into play in as few minutes. The joining place of the wig must be hidden. More paint is used, and as the work progresses the entire countenance becomes transformed to such an extent that the Leading Man's mother would never have known her son had she seen him. A last glance in the looking-glass and the work is over.

In the meantime the dresser has changed the shoes, prepared the costume for the act, and arranged all its minor details.

The door now opens and the manager enters. His hat rests jauntily on the back part of his head. He smokes a very strong and singularly atrocious looking cigar; his talk shows a decided Hebraic accent.

"How's the house?" is the first question that greets his entrance. The manager shakes his head. There are volumes of information in that shake.

"About $200, mostly paper."

An ominous silence prevails.

The manager sits down upon a trunk, kicks vigorously and finally pulls a bunch of dramatic papers from an inside pocket. They afford him little satisfaction.

"Them fellows don't know a good play when they see it," he remarks sadly. "They are a precious lot of jays." The Leading Man turns to his master encouragingly.

"Never mind, old fell. Wait until we get a New York opening, that's all. They can't do us, you know. You're a splendid loser and game. I never saw a better. Next season we'll laugh at this."

The manager's countenance brightens; he is pleased at the compliment, for it is his first season in the business. Next year, if he lives, he will know more, but the probabilities are that his wealth will not be a source of great trouble to him. It is the common lot of mortals. Why should we seek the exception?

Presently the bell rings for the rising of the curtain. The manager takes his place in the proscenium box and leans back with the lordly air of a Standard Oil magnate, prepared to applaud at the proper time and place. The people in the body of the house look at him curiously and envy him. They don't know all.

THE MANAGER'S TRIALS.

The act is over and an adjournment to the dressing room is again in order. The leading man is wiping his heated brow and drinking a large schooner of beer which one of the king's guards has just brought in from the nearest saloon. The manager enters and is invited to share the feast. He drains his glass quickly, when a knock is heard at the door. The property man enters.

"Please, sor, I want tin cints for to buy a cake for the third act."

"To buy what!"

"A cake, sor, for the dinner scene. We need a cake, you knows it, sor."

"What, in the name of heaven, became of the cake you got yesterday! Tell me at once!"

"Plase, the rats ate it last noight, sor."

The manager swears long and loudly. "You're a pack of thieves all around. Money, money, all the time. Last night the stage baby got sick. Had to get another; $5 out. Now you want a cake. I'll give you the cake, but, by G—d, sir! if it goes you go too. You hear me. Rats is too thin a game to work on us."

"Third act's in!" screams the call boy. The leading man walks toward the stage, leaving the manager still sitting on the dressing room trunk, smoking vigorously. By and by there comes a gentle tap at the door. It is gentle, very gentle.

"Come in," growls the manager. The door opens little by little and the soubrette enters. She looks charming; her timidity is delightful to behold.

"Well, what's the matter now?" says the manager in rather mollified tones. "Oh, sir, you're not like the rest of the managers I've played for; indeed you're not. If you were I wouldn't have troubled you. But you see, sir, I'm all alone. Mother has gone to New York and I only want one week's salary in advance to pay my board. Can't I have it, please?" The blue eyes look up so appealingly. The manager cannot stand their gaze.

"Well, you can have it this once, but mind, this is the last time. Alone, eh? I'll walk home with you to-night if you're lonely."

"Oh, thank you, sir," is the answer, and the maiden vanishes.

The show has now come to an end. The audience file out to the music of the orchestra, and the manager goes in front to wither with his glances the souls of any of the critics who may have been in the body of the house. Then he walks back once more. He reaches the dressing rooms. They are empty and the gas is out. "Where is Miss M——?" he asks of the back door man.

"Was it Mr. M——?" he asks, mentioning the name of the leading man.

"It was, sor," is the answer.

"Sold again, guess I'll go to the hotel and go to bed," soliloquized the manager. "My name's Dennis, anyhow."

The play was indeed over.—Philadelphia Times.

The London Mode of Fashion says that the Empress of Japan is at the head of a powerful movement for bettering the condition of the women of that country. She has established a college for women at Tokio, under the management of a committee of European and American women. The standard of education is very low, especially in the country districts, and it is hoped that this college will prove a valuable aid in raising the women of Japan to a higher level. In one of the London hospitals there are now three Japanese ladies who are going through their training as nurses, with the intention of returning to their own country when qualified and teaching their countrywomen.—Detroit Free Press.

The Samoan Islands.

Samoa consists of a group of four islands in the Pacific ocean, about as far from the Sandwich Islands as the latter are from San Francisco and about 1,200 miles to the northeast of Australia. The names of the four islands are Upolu, Savan, Apolima and Manono, with a population, in 1887, of 300 foreigners, mostly Americans, Englishmen and Germans, and 35,000 natives, and with an area of 2,600 square miles. These islands are the dominating power in that part of the Pacific ocean and the center of commerce. They are in the line with all American commerce with New Zealand and Australia.—Detroit Free Press.

WARNING TO YOUNG MEN.

The Sad Case of Lover with a Hole in His Pocket.

Jenkinson Wipedunks would not have exchanged situations with the president of the United States, the Prince of Wales or the drum major of a brass band.

Felisty McGinnis had answered "yes" in a voice as soft and gentle as the sigh of music in a dreamless sleep or the murmuring wail of a caressing breeze from lethean waters soothingly fanning the whiskers of Father Time.

"Felisty," he exclaimed rapturously, as his left hand and arm disappeared from sight with a rapid yet sneaking motion toward the back of the sofa on which they sat, and the fingers of his right hand appeared to be feeling for something in his vest pocket, "you have made me the happiest man in the world."

The timid, upturned glance of her liquid, dark eyes and the warm blush that overspread the happy face of the lovely girl replied more eloquently than words could have done.

"And you will forgive my presumption, darling," he continued, "if in anticipation of your answer I have ventured to provide myself with—with—a—with—a"——

Jenkinson paused in some apparent excitement, and his finger and thumb nervously explored his vest pocket without seeming to find anything.

"I—I must have lost it!" he gasped. "Felisty, it was a ring! Ha! Perhaps it is in some other pocket."

Rising to his feet he thrust a trembling hand into his trousers pocket.

There was a hole in that pocket.

"Jenkinson," said Felisty, as she noted with concern his ghastly face, on which the light of a desperate resolve was breaking, "don't grieve over it. It will turn up. You are excited. Is there anything I can do to"——

"Yes," exclaimed Jenkinson in a hollow voice. "Felisty, I think I know where that ring is. If you would do me a favor I shall never forget until the last hour of my life, for the love of heaven go and get me a bootjack and leave me to myself for a few moments."—Chicago Tribune.

The committee will also proceed on to Hamilton for the purpose of inspecting the new market buildings in that city and will report them to the Council with a view to have some similar improvements made here as far as practicable and expedient. The Councillors who were named in the motion and who will probably take the trip to-morrow, are Messrs. Davidson, Cahill, E. H. D. Hall, Langford and Rutherford.

POSTPONED.

The meeting of the Young Men's Conservative Club called for this evening, has been postponed until Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. All Conservatives are invited to be present on that evening to consider business of importance.

A SUNDAY NIGHT BLAZE.

Three Families Burned out—The Origin Unknown.

Fire last night totally destroyed two dwelling houses in Ashburnham and left three families without a home and two of them without very little or almost no furniture or household effects. The alarm was sounded shortly after eight o'clock, just as the church-going portion of the community was returning from church, and the bright glare attracted an immense crowd to the scene of the conflagration. The fire originated in a double frame house which stood on the north side of Elizabeth-st., just west of the railway track. The west half of the house was occupied Robt. Henderson and it was in his half that the fire started. The other half of the dwelling had only lately been rented by a man by the name of Armstrong. When first noticed the fire had gained considerable headway, as both the Henderson and Armstrong families were absent from the house at the time, and when the firemen and engine arrived the building was entirely enwrapt in flames, and the adjoining frame house in which lived Isaac Dormer was also in flames. A short delay in getting a stream on the burning buildings was caused by the negligence of "someone" in not having the approach to the fire tank cleared away. The engine was backed in towards the opening of the tank, but the snow was so deep that it banked the fires of the steamer, which had to be drawn out and stood in the middle of the road. This caused a slight loss of time and the village authorities should see that a similar delay does not occur again. The firemen worked with a will when the water came and the adjoining dwellings were saved, although the two frame dwelling houses were destroyed. The double house was owned by a Mr. O'Brien who lives at Auburn, and the other dwelling was owned by Mr. Thos. M. Smilie and was insured. Mr. Dormer had no insurance on his furniture, which was badly damaged in being removed, while Henderson and Armstrong saved almost nothing and had no insurance. The two dwellings would probably be worth $1,000. The origin of the fire is unknown, although it is thought that it must have originated from the fire left in the stove.

St. John Church Notes.

There were large congregations in St. John's Church yesterday, both morning and evening. Notice was given of confirmation which will be held here by the Bishop of Toronto on Sunday, June 23rd. Preparatory classes will be begun next week. The subject on which Rev. J. D. Cargley will speak on Wednesday evening next is announced to be "Faith versus Formalism." The two Bible classes in connection with St. John's are progressing most satisfactorily, both in numbers and in the work done by the classes. Yesterday the attendance at the young men's class was 28, that at the young women's 22. A meeting for young men is to be held in the school house on Tuesday of next week, to be addressed by Rev. R. J. Moore, of Toronto, and by other speakers.

EVANGELISTS' SUNDAY

WHAT MESSRS. CROSSLEY AND HUNTER WERE DOING.

At St. Andrew's and Charlotte-st. Churches—With the School Children—An Enormous Crush at George-st. Last Night—The Evening Addresses—Messages to the Back-Sliders, to Christians, to the Skeptical, to the Youth and Unconverted Husbands—Notes.

Messrs. Crossley and Hunter, the evangelists, had no rests from their labors yesterday. In the morning Rev. Mr. Hunter occupied the pulpit in the St. Andrew's church and preached to a large congregation, and Rev. Mr. Crossley delivered a good discourse taking his text from the fourth chapter of John and the eighteenth verse, to a filled church at the Charlotte-st. santurary.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

In the afternoon an immense gathering of the children of the different Sunday schools took place in St. Paul's church, at four o'clock. The commodious edifice proved too small to accommodate the great crowd which sought admission, but the meeting was a most interesting one. The choir of the church were present in full force and the singing during the service was splendid. Each of the evangelists gave entertaining and earnest addresses to the children and the meeting dispersed about five o'clock.

The Evening Service.

At ten minutes to seven in the evening there was a steady stream of people pouring towards the George-st. church, but they reached the door only to be met by another stream of late arrivals who were leaving the church, for the very good reason that a place within was not to be secured. There is one thing certain that should have been learned by experience during last week, that to have a seat at the services a person must be there early. Last night's crowd was equal if not in excess of that of the opening meeting a week ago, so that nearly two thousand persons must have listened to the evangelists last evening and surely it would not seem so incredible when it is said that conviction of sin was brought home to two hundred hearts last week when such immense numbers are addressed.

CHILDREN IN HEAVEN.

The services were conducted last evening in the same manner as during the past week. Rev. Mr. Hunter read the evening lesson from the eighteenth chapter of Luke, beginning at the ninth verse, the parable of the Pharisee and publican and the story of the ruler who asked the Saviour "What must I do to inherit eternal life." The rev. gentleman in the course of his comments said: "One reason why he wanted to go to heaven was because there will be millions and millions of little children there. I don't like to go into a house and tarry very long where there are no children. I don't think children will grow up in heaven. I think I will find my little girl who has gone there just as she left us, only glorified and made beautiful in the presence of God. If for no other reason, I would ne go to hell because there is not a single child there, not one." Speaking of the ruler's way of going to heaven, he said they had to humble themselves. Some men wanted to go to heaven their own way. They say "I am worth so many thousand dollars, get out of my way." This kind of men would almost knock St. Peter down at the gate and say "I am Lord so-and-so or Esq. somebody else, get out of my way." They will have to get off of their high stand and not be so proud. When the evangelist came to the verse "Thou knowest the commandments, do not commit adultery, do not kill," etc, he said his heart was bleeding for those men and women in this town, some of whom were perhaps before him, who were committing this damnable sin, and closing his eyes he prayed "Oh, what will become of you? Oh God, burn this down into the heart of that person who is guilty of this sin." Then he paused and said "I was going to say more, but I will leave it until we get better acquainted." He also spoke earnestly on the command "Honor thy father and mother," saying he felt it one of his greatest privileges in life to care for his aged mother, and urged them all to honor and "take good care of the dear old people" and to give them the best place at the table and the house.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY with that great expression and pathos which he has the happy faculty of imparting to all his hymns, sang a solo "Peace be still."

PRAYERS FOR SPECIAL REQUESTS.

The heads of the vast audience was then bowed and the prayers of the Christians were offered for a number of special requests. A young man who was unable to attend the meetings through illness asked for prayer. A parent asked prayer for his three boys and also for himself, and a sister solicited prayers for a brother. Another request was for a friend in Lakefield and another for a father who was about to leave town. The other requests were for two boys whose mother died from an accident a few weeks ago, and for a little girl who had been sick for three years and was now in the hospital.

MESSAGES FOR EVERY ONE.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY then rose to deliver his usual evening address. He said the subject of that night was an important one for each and every one of the audience and chose for his text the words:

"I have a message from God unto thee."—Judges iii, 20.

The rev. gentleman then divided his audience into divisions and gave each a text. The first was a message to

THE BACKSLIDERS:

"Return ye backsliding children and I will heal your backslidings."—Jermiah iii, 22.

He then addressed a few earnest words to the backsliders and told them that he believed that if they came back they would rejoice at being again in the fold and would never go back again, for he said it was seldom that a backslider who returned to God ever backslided a second time. He had only known this to be the case once and then the young man returned the third time and was now a local preacher. He then had a message for the larger part of the congregation—

THE CHRISTIANS:

"Say ye to the righteous that it shall be well with him for they shall eat the fruit of their days." Isaiah iii; 10.

He dropped a few earnest words of encouragement to the Christians, telling them they should not fear to have the presumption to say "I know it is well, it is well, with my soul." He most pathetically pictured the Christian's hope by singing in his expressive style the hymn "Some sweet Day." He next addressed and had a message from God to in thought and sinners:

"Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool."—Isaiah i; 18.

After portraying the saving, cleansing and sustaining power of Jesus' blood he said he had a message to

THOSE WHO WERE IN YOUTH.

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, and the years draw nigh, when thou shalt says, I have no pleasure in them."—Ecclesiastes xii, 1.

In speaking to this class he said that the majority of persons became Christians before they were 20. He said they had found out that there was only about two out of every hundred persons converted after they had reached forty years of age, about eighty out of one hundred between 20 and 40 years of age, about thirty-two between the ages of 20 and 30, and fifty-eight out of one hundred under twenty years of age. He urgently appealed to the young people to heed God's call, and said that if they were not converted before they were twenty, habit would become nature, and they were liable to go on in sin until the day of judgment. He said after a man was forty unless he made a most desperate resolve, he said they would remain in sin and Satan would get them sure. His last message was to the UNCONVERTED HUSBANDS.

"Husbands love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself for it."—Ephesians v, 25.

He said the husbands should be converted out of love to their wives and family, and he pointed out that by a husband remaining outside the church it would be difficult for his wife to be a Christian and almost impossible for her to bring up the family as Christians.

After the sermon Rev. Mr. Hunter most earnestly exhorted and pleaded with the unsaved, and asked all those who were Christians or would then make a start to rise, and over two-thirds of the audience arose.

NOTES.

Before announcing his address last night Rev. Mr. Crossley spoke of the meetings during the week, and gave the subjects for each evening as follows:—Monday night, "Blunders"; Tuesday night, Song Sermon; Wednesday night, "Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost;" Thursday, Song Sermon; Friday, address particularly to professional and business men.

During the afternoon service in St. Paul's a lady standing near the door fainted and was carried outside, but soon recovered and returned, and remained until the close of the meeting.

The greater part of the congregation remained to the after meeting last night. About a hundred came forward as penitents and others asked for prayers on their behalf by standing up.

The children seemed to enjoy and take such an interest in the meeting yesterday afternoon that a similar service will be held in the George-st. church next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock.

A Canadian Opinion.

The provincial theatre is not so very far behind the metropolitan preceptor, when plays are as well done in all particulars as was "Michael Strogoff" at the Grand last night. There are in representations of the sort just now in point, a substantial encouragement to believe that the day is nearer at hand than ever, when the traditional old time difference between performances in Toronto and New York, Philadelphia and Boston, will be obliterated to a large extent. "Michael Strogoff" is a play which admits of elaborate scenic display. It would be interesting, however, even if the expenditure in painted canvas was not nearly so prodigal. The efforts to preserve the standard of the original production are honestly put forward by the present management. The enterprise which is carried by Mr. Charles L. Andrews, is made at what must be a large cost. The result is the mounting of the play in a manner entirely in keeping with its popularity and reputation. Those of us who have witnessed the presentation in New York, are left in no disappointed state in viewing the play under the present conditions. The scenery is elaborate, bright and adjustable, of the many excellent illusions produced. The mechanical appliances used to operate the fixtures, seem to be admirably managed. The company who act in the play are well adapted to the exigencies. There are some thirty personages in the cast, whose numbers are reinforced by a little army of supernumeraries. Every part deserves the high compliment which can be paid to a meritorious and even performance.—Toronto World. 1458

CHINA
AND QUEENS WARE

Lottery Superstitions.

The lottery ticket craze has developed all manner of superstitions. A group of several staid citizens of the lode made a pool for the purchase of tickets, and after it was completed it was suggested that a negro and Chinaman be included in the pool to bring good luck. The suggestion was forthwith acted upon by unanimous consent and a committee appointed to bring in a native of Africa and one of China. The committee returned a few minutes later accompanied by a descendant of the Dark Continent, dusky as a moonless night, and a subject of the tycoon, the color of an ancient saddle, whose names were added to the club list.—Virginia (Nev.) BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

I say poor Polly advisedly, for it was hard that after Blankhampton had seen her as the possible, aye and probable, bride of such men as had worshiped at her shrine in the days gone by, she should have to appear before her world acting Hermia to this Bottom—this monster—this Caliban. Nor was this all! She was in utter ignorance that Charterhouse had engaged himself to his cousin after he had known her, and had done his best to make her like him. She believed that the marriage had been some family arrangement to which he had committed himself before he had entered the army. She believed that he would have got out of it if he could, and that in his heart he was just as desperately in love with her as he had ever been! Yes, it must be owned that it was a very trying time for poor Polly.

Perhaps the two persons who enjoyed the affair most were Mrs. Antrobus and Mr. Mandarin. To Mr. Mandarin it was joy unspeakable to flaunt round buying anything that took his fancy, with a loud voiced remark to his mother-in-law-elect that "Polly will be sure to like this;" and to Mrs. Antrobus it was a delight beyond the expression of words to waddle from one stall to another, making a great show of patronage out of Mr. Mandarin's fat purse.

And it had the desired effect. Blankhampton had laughed at the unutterable pretentiousness of poor little To To's marriage, but Blankhampton this time could not but believe that Mr. Mandarin was as rich as Crœsus.

And how dear that was to Mrs. Antrobus' soul it would be hard for me adequately to convey. She loved money and all the pomp and display and flattery and adulation which the possession of money enables you to enjoy. If Mrs. Antrobus had thought it necessary to start a new religion she would certainly have set up the worship of Crœsus; and I don't suppose if her golden image had only been big enough, that she would have had her josshouse empty or even ill filled.

But there was yet another person who enjoyed the week thoroughly—that was young Stuart, the last of the Earles.

On the whole, the young gentleman had a famous time of it; from the five blithe and bonnie Leslie girls he was passed on to the acquaintance of almost every decent looking girl in the town; his happy, good form impudence stood him in good stead and proved as fascinating as if he had been of a marriageable age instead of, as he was, a mere slip of a lad eighteen years old. And one evening he went up to a mess when he greatly edified Beautiful Jim, whose guest he was, and all the other officers of his new regiment and laid up a goodly store of suffering for himself in the days to come by his frank and easy comments on men and manners alike, by the careless and friendly ease with which he took the lead as befitted him who had been born the last of the Earles.

But, unfortunately for him, he was also the last of the Blankshire regiment and his future comrades were only able to check their disgust by remembering that he was as yet a guest, when, having perhaps had a trifle more wine than his young and unseasoned head could carry (I do not mean to say that the boy was drunk, far from it), he gayly undertook to chaff Urquhart, the commanding officer of the Black Horse, who was also dining there.

"Of course, I don't remember the stage as far back as yourself, colonel," he began, in the tone of a man of the world. "I dare say you'll remember Macready."

"I never saw Macready," said Col. Urquhart, giving the youngster credit for being a good deal more nearly drunk than he was.

"Not—ah—I should have thought you'd be quite up in all that period," returned Tommy, flippantly. "But you'll have heard what an irritable chap he was."

"Heard what?" asked Urquhart.

"You'll have heard what an irritable chap he was," Tommy repeated, tipping the wink to one or two of the less disgusted of the officers of the Blankshire regiment, who were grinning with expectation.

Whether he had some joke or catch about Macready's peculiarity of temper or not it would be hard to say, but if he had, Urquhart nipped them in the bud after a fashion quite his own. He looked up as courteously as if Tommy had been a field officer instead of an unfledged subaltern, and fixed him with a pair of keen and clear gray eyes that seemed able to look right through him and out at the other side. "Yes," he said, gravely, "I believe Macready was an irritable man. Some men are born bad tempered—they can't help it, and, in fact, it is really not their fault. They are born so," he went on, mildly, so mildly that Marcus Orford, who was dining there that night, looked sharply up to hear if anything more subtle and smart than usual was coming—"they are born so, and silly people irritate them by asking foolish questions."

To the surprise of the lad, who was not just then clear enough in his head, nor at any time clever enough, to understand a shaft of quiet sarcasm, every man round the table burst into a roar of laughter.

They would have laughed to a man at any joke of Urquhart's, whether they had seen it or not; in this case, however, they did see it clearly enough; and the officers of the Blankshire regiment would each and all have thoroughly enjoyed "punching" the lad's head for being such a young fool as to bring so severe a snub upon himself.

Finally, when, still highly pleased with his performance and on the best terms with himself, he said adieu to Urquhart, that gentleman paid him a somewhat doubtful compliment.

"Good night, youngster. Your new regiment ought to be very proud of having you come among them."

THE HIGH COM'S REPORT.

WHAT SIR CHARLES SAYS ABOUT COLONIAL MATTERS AT HOME.

Immigration From Great Britain and the Continent to This Country—Trade and Commerce with the Mother Land.

OTTAWA, March 11.—Sir Charles Tupper has issued his annual report in connection with his office as High Commissioner for Canada. The document is an appendix to the report of the Minister of Agriculture and deals extensively with the question of emigration from Great Britain and the Continent to Canada and colonial trade and commerce with the Mother Country.

The following is an extract from the emigration returns issued by the British Board of Trade, so far as they relate to Canada:

Nationalities.	1888.	1887.
English	26,720	24,611
Scotch	5,264	3,612
Irish	2,790	2,889
	34,934	22,086
Foreigners	14,234	12,881
	49,168	44,606

The returns show an increase, both of British emigrants and foreigners, although there is a decrease in the number of departures for the United States. The figures for the latter country were 298,000 as against 296,901 in 1887. There was also a falling off in the emigrants to Australasia, the numbers being 31,811 and 35,198 respectively.

In 1886 the total quantity of wheat imported into Great Britain was 47,404,344 cwts., valued at £17,888,155; in 1887, 55,784,685 cwts., valued at £21,336,982; in 1888, 57,234,894, valued at £21,971,331, of which there went from British North America and the United States:

On the Pacific.	4,281,589	4,014,785	3,275,482

Of wheat meal and flour there were imported into Great Britain in 1886 14,730,232 cwts., valued at £8,254,407; in 1887, 18,056,545 cwts., valued at £10,030,438; in 1888, 16,812,773 cwts., valued at £9,530,808, of which there came from the United States and British North America:

The imports both of wheat and flour from Canada show a considerable decrease compared with that of the previous year, and the same remark applies to the United States. The feature of the year was the increase in the imports from Russia and Germany. The total imports show a tendency to increase, but it is an important fact for consideration that out of the total quantity of wheat which was imported, about 57,000,000 cwts., less than 12,000,000 cwts. came from British possessions. In the case of wheat, meal and flour, out of nearly 17,000,000 of cwts. imported only 785,163 cwts. came from British territory. It will be seen, therefore, how great a margin there is for a development in the imports from British possessions and particularly from Canada. Great Britain would certainly be in a very serious position in the event of her being embroiled in any war, considering the extent to which she has to rely upon foreign countries at the present time for the means of feeding her rapidly increasing population.

The High Commissioner then refers to the smallness of the imports of barley and oats from Canada, and says this country should have a much larger showing.

I am sorry to notice, says Sir Charles, that Canada seems to be falling rapidly out of the list in connection with the export of butter. Of over 15,000,000 cwts. imported during the year only 9173 cwts. came from the Dominion. There is no reason whatever that I can see why Canada should not make butter as good as that produced by the other countries which send the bulk of Great Britain's supplies. I trust some means can be found by which Canada may assume the position in this trade which she has a right to occupy, considering the advantages she possesses. Of course the great increase in the exports in cheese from the Dominion may have something to do with the decrease in the exports of butter, but as Canada is able to produce cheese which is regarded as among the best that is imported, it is the subject of remark that she does not occupy a similar position in regard to butter. The question is one which will repay investigation, considering the prices paid in this co[illegible] I should think that if butter were [illegible] made, and if care were taken in it[illegible] and in its export, it would realize a handsome profit to all those who interested themselves in the trade. Greater attention might also with advantage be paid to the raising of poultry for consumption here. There is a large market for this kind of produce, and the prices are high. The demand would certainly be greatly increased if the prices were a little lower. The cost of transport from Canada is comparatively light at the present time, and I believe that fowls, ducks, geese and turkeys could be sold here to realize large returns to any persons in the Dominion enterprising enough to engage in the trade. Fowls, ducks and hares are already on the market in London from Russia. The import trade is not very large yet, but it will be seen from the figures that it is rapidly growing.

The cheese importations from Canada and the United States show these figures:

MONTREAL, March 9.—Rev. Dr. Smyth, secretary of the Protestant Ministerial Association, has obtained thirty feet of signatures to the petition in opposition to the Jesuits' bill, which represents 1500 names.

Give them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if every thing else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused those to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap, but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

BRADFORD GOODS in stripes and checks at 10c. a yard, fresh goods, new colors.

Those wishing to have their dresses made up can have them done on the premises if necessary by our dressmaker, Miss Mercier, who has given up her own business to take charge of this department.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD.

A BETTER FEELING PREVAILS ON THE PARIS BOURSE.

Sir Julian Pauncefote's Appointment as Minister at Washington Approved by the Queen.

PARIS, March 11.—Societe des Metaux shares at 4 p.m. were quoted at 110 francs, Comptoir d'Escompte 370 and Rio Tintos 318 francs 75c.

The bourse closed firmer and extensive purchases are reported to have been made by leading banks. At 5 o'clock Comptoir d'Escompte shares were quoted at 400f. Bears were buying, fearing a heavy reaction. It is persistently reported that the Comptoir d'Escompte will be reconstructed.

The Chamber of Deputies has authorised the Government to prosecute Senator Naquet and Deputies Laguerre, Turquet and Laisant, leaders of the Patriotic League, on the ground that the league had been converted into a secret society having, besides its public statutes, secret arrangements by which the league by sending telegrams could mobilize its members for opposing any measure the authorities decided upon and also for sending copies of the League's manifesto concerning the Atchinoff expedition to Generals Ignatieff and Tchernaieff and the mayor of Moscow, who are declared to be the leading representatives of the league in Russia.

London Stock Market Firmer.

LONDON, March 11.—The stock market closed firmer in sympathy with the better prices on continental bourses.

Afghanistan and Russia.

LONDON, March 11.—The Ameer of Afghanistan denies that he has any designs against Russia. He declares that his enemies, wishing to embroil England, Afghanistan and Russia, originated the report.

The Times' Sacrifice.

LONDON, March 11.—Mr. Macdonald, the manager of The Times, has been made the scapegoat of that newspaper's fiasco. His resignation was accepted Saturday night.

Sir Julian's Appointment.

LONDON, March 11.—The Queen has approved the appointment of Sir Julian Pauncefote as British Minister to the United States.

The Cashmere Conspiracy.

CALCUTTA, March 11.—An official inquiry has been ordered into the charges that the Maharajah of Cashmere was implicated in a conspiracy to poison the British Resident and in other treasonable practices. The Maharajah is an imbecile and is wholly in the power of his ministers.

Millionaire Williamson's Wealth.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The will of I. V. Williamson, the dead millionaire, was admitted to probate to-day. The estate amounts to between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000, exclusive of $2,250,000 for the mechanical school. The entire estate is taxable for collateral inheritance and will yield the state between $400,000 and $500,000. The cost of settling up the property will not fall short of $750,000.

Milwaukee's Bad Chinamen.

MILWAUKEE, March 11.—The examination of three of the Chinamen charged with ruining young girls was not concluded today. The testimony against them however is very strong. After smashing doors and windows of several Chinese laundries this afternoon the crowd dispersed. The feeling against the Chinese is growing in bitterness as the enormity of their crimes is being revealed by the testimony in court.

Diphtheria in Cardwell.

CAMILLA, March 11.—Diphtheria has been very bad in the neighborhood of Mono Centre and Rolansey. There have been over 35 cases in the past three months. The Mono Centre school has been closed for two months. Quite a number of deaths have occurred.

Dancing and Card Playing.

MONCTON, March 11.—Attendants at the Moncton Baptist Church have been allowed the privilege of sending questions during the week to be answered by the pastor. Rev. Mr. [illegible] spoke last night in answer to questions as to whether it was right for church members to dance and play cards, or to frequent places where such amusements were carried on. He condemned both amusements and said it was absolutely wrong for members of any church to dance or play cards or to attend places where these things are, as it was a great hindrance to the influence of the church. The tendency to-day was to see how near hell we could get and yet remain Christians.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

A NUMBER OF NEW BILLS INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE.

Proposed Amendments to the Civil Service Act and to the Law of Conspiracy—Proceedings in the Senate.

OTTAWA, March 11.—In the House this afternoon half a dozen bills saw the light for the first time. Four of them are Government measures. The Postmaster-General sent up a bill to amend the Civil Service Act. It has for its object provisions that the salary of the clerk of the board of civil service examiners shall not exceed $700 per annum and that each examiner shall not be paid more than $400. This is a considerable reduction in the stipends of these gentlemen. The bill also provides that postoffice inspectors may be exempt from the provisions of the Civil Service Act, also in the postal service that the annual salaries of railway mail clerks shall be the same for night as for day work, and that each railway clerk may be paid a mileage rate of ½ cent for day and 1 cent for night work. The salary of the postmaster at Toronto, the bill further provides, shall be increased from $3000 to $4000 and of Ottawa from $2400 to $3000. The Montreal postmaster receives $4000. The condition of Postmaster Patteson's increase is that the annual receipts of his office exceed $250,000. That in the inland revenue service the annual salaries of accountants shall range from $600 to $1400 and of special excisemen who are chief officers in charge of distilleries from $1400 to $1600.

Sir John Thompson sent up his bill to amend the Canadian Copyright Act. The bill is in line with the recommendations of the Canadian Copyright Association and provides that a foreign author must publish or republish his works in Canada within three months after their appearance and have them copyrighted. In default of this the Government can grant a license to Canadian houses to publish such works on the payment of 10 per cent. royalty to the authors.

Dr. Wilson of Elgin introduced a bill of considerable importance to members of trades unions. It is an amendment to the act respecting threats and intimidation (Chap. 173, R.S.C.). Sub-section 2 of section 13 of said act reads:

> No prosecution shall be maintainable against any person for conspiracy to any act or to cause any act to be done for the purposes of a trade combination, unless such act is an offence punishable by statute.

The Doctor proposes to amend that section thus:

> No prosecution shall be maintainable against any person for conspiracy in refusing to work with or for any employer or workman, or for doing any act or causing any act to be done for the purpose of a trade combination, unless such act is an offence punishable by statute.

Dr. Wilson's bill is an outgrowth of the late trouble in Bricklayers' Union No. 1, three of whose members were convicted of conspiracy in the Court of Sessions at Hamilton and the conviction was afterwards held to be good in an elaborate decision given last month at Osgoode Hall by Chief Justice Armour. The act of conspiracy consisted in the union passing a resolution that none of its members should work with a "scab" named Bascombe, who was superintending certain corporation work for Contractor Piggot under the City Engineer. Bascombe was deprived of his means of livelihood by the action of the union and three of the members of No. 1 were convicted of conspiracy and heavily fined, the Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench subsequently holding the conviction to be good. The Doctor proposes to do away with the conspiracy clause under similar circumstances. His amendment proposes that if a trades union passes a resolution refusing to work with objectionable men or employers, and if the members act on such resolution, they may not be prosecuted for conspiracy.

There was a big question paper to-day. In answer to Mr. Mulock, the Minister of the Interior said the total amount of Northwest land scrip of all kinds outstanding was about $700,000. Mr. Carling told Sir Richard Cartwright that between July 1, 1888, and Feb. 1, 1889, $70,296 had been expended for all purposes on the experimental farm just outside this city. Mr. Dewdney informed Mr. Edgar that in future elections in the Northwest Territories would be by ballot.

Mr. McDonald of Nova Scotia had a lengthy question on the paper respecting the continued absence from duty of Mr. Justice James of the Supreme Court of that province. The Minister of Justice read a number of telegrams from the judge in question to the effect that he was a confirmed invalid and that he was doing what official duties his physicians would permit at his private residence at Dartmouth. Sir John Thompson also announced that he understood there was a remonstrance from the bar of Halifax against Mr. Justice James' absence and thus congesting judicial business in Nova Scotia.

It is said Mr. Justice James' condition is so serious that he may never be able to perform his full duties any more as judge of the Equity Court, and that he will be superannuated.

Mr. Charlton's resolution providing that the House of Commons should not sit after midnight was quietly dropped after a friendly talk across the floor between the leader of the Government and Mr. Laurier. Sir John Macdonald pointed out that while very late sessions were undesirable yet he did not think it was wise to pass such a dangerous resolution. "At my age," said Sir John, "I would sooner be in my bed at midnight than in my place in the House."

It is believed that arrangements are to be arrived at between the leaders to abolish peep-o'-day sessions except when important questions are before the House.

Nearly all of the balance of the sitting of the House was monopolized by the Nova Scotia members discussing railway matters in their province. The Nova Scotians, like many other people, suffer from "a long felt want," viz., a missing link in their railway system and they want it filled up. The missing link is from Digby to Annapolis, a distance of 18 miles. Nova Scotia sends men to Parliament who can talk and they made the fur fly for several hours. Banker Kenny of Halifax in a vigorous speech on another alleged species of Nova Scotia's railway grievances said the Canadian Pacific Railway had broken its sacred agreement in connection with the "short line" to the seaboard.

The House had a lively talk for an hour over the permit system in the Northwest Territories. From remarks dropped by some of the members from the rolling prairies it would seem that permit or no permit there is plenty of 4 per cent. grog and even 40 rod in the territories.

The House adjourned at 12.25.

The Senate.

OTTAWA, March 11.—The Senate this afternoon discussed Mr. Girard's notice of motion to have brought down all the papers and answers in the possession of the Government in reference to the questions sent to the officers of the Hudson Bay Company missionaries, Arctic explorers and others by the committee appointed by the Senate last session to inquire as to the value of that part of the Dominion lying north of the Saskatchewan watershed, east of the Rocky Mountains and west of Hudson Bay, comprising the great Mackenzie's basin, in view of completing the said report.

Mr. Abbott said that the answer to the questions were now in the possession of the House. He suggested that they should be laid on the table of the House to be dealt with as they might think proper, and when this is done the members can see this and decide upon the best mode of disposing of these papers, and with this reply Mr. Girard withdrew his motion.

Debate was resumed on Hon. John Macdonald's motion calling the attention of the House to the present condition of the trade of the country, import and export, in connection with the proposal of the Government to open up extended commercial relations with Australia, South America and the West Indies.

Mr. Hawthorne said that we already had a trade from the Maritime Provinces with Bermuda and the West Indies for many years, and on the whole it has been a self-sustaining trade.

Senator Drummond criticised Senator Macdonald's speech, especially the portion of the statistics which Senator Macdonald formed from the statistics of exports and imports. He argued that the volume of trade is the correct exponent of the real progress of the country and not the foreign [illegible] We instanced manufactures of cotton. Instead of importing the manufactured article why not import raw material and work it up in our own mills, paying our own people to do so? He also instanced sugar, which was imported refined in 1878 and previous years and is now imported raw. In 1887 we imported 17,000,000 pounds of sugar costing $5,500,000. In 1888 we imported 224,000 pounds, costing $6,750,000. The first year the sugar was manufactured and the second year it was raw. We were working up the raw material and adding value to it ourselves instead of paying outsiders for doing the work. In 1874 the total coal sold by the Nova Scotia mines was 950,000 tons, in 1887 the total production was over 1,500,000 tons. The export of coal had dropped from 195,000 tons in 1874 to 98,000 in 1887. Judged by exports the coal industry was in a bad state, judged by the sales the industry was in a prosperous condition. Why? Because though exports had decreased the internal consumption had vastly increased. The trade with the West Indies and Brazil, which had decreased under the policy of the Government between 1874 and 1878, had increased largely under the present policy.

Exterminating the "Lunge."

OTTAWA, March 11.—Mr. Smith of Ontario has received advices that the toothsome maskinonge is disappearing from Lake Scugog at the rate of nearly two tons per day by the indiscriminate use of snare nets. He laid the matter to-day before Major Tilton, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, to ascertain if this wholesale depletion of the "Lunge" cannot be checked.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Rev. T. W. Jeffery's $1000 Suit Withdrawn—A Bigamist Punished.

TORONTO, March 12.—Rev. T. W. Jeffery has withdrawn the suit for $1000 which was pending against Mr. C. R. S. Dinnick, as representing the trustees. The latter will pay over the amount without litigation, and both sides will adjust their claims amicably.

The death is announced at the residence of her son, Richard L. Denison, in the 71st year of her age, of the widow of Col. Richard L. Denison, and aunt of Lieut.-Col. George T. Denison, Police Magistrate, and Lieut.-Col. Fred. C. Denison, M. P.

The Police Magistrate yesterday sent Mary Sullivan to the Mercer for six months for theft of various articles from the Eye and Ear Infirmary. James Alexander Irwin was committed for 15 months for bigamy. He married a woman at Creemore, in the county of Simcoe last December, his former wife, whom he married in 1885 at Berkeley-street Methodist Church, being still alive. For borrowing a coat, ostensibly to get married in, but really to pawn for drink, Albert Lee will spend 60 days in jail.

At the morgue yesterday afternoon Coroner Duncan held an inquest on the body of James Kirk who was killed at Greenwood's side line Saturday night. The jury found a verdict of accidental death caused by being struck by an engine, no blame being attached to the railway company.

At the General Sessions yesterday Henry W. Simmons was tried and acquitted on the charge of stealing $20 from the trunk of Jas. Powers at 13 Temperance-street. He has already pleaded guilty to other charges of a similar nature, and there are some others that will not be pressed against him. One of the witnesses against him was a girl named Rose Manning, who said she knew the prisoner, as she was engaged to be married to him after three days' acquaintance and that just after they got the marriage license Simmons was arrested.

At the meeting of the Board of Works yesterday Ald. Galbraith and Woods brought up the question of the two men, Mathew Brian and James Kirk, who had been killed by the cars at the Greenwood crossing, within the past four days. Ald. Galbraith stated that at the beginning of last year he had brought before the Board the great necessity of seeing the public property protected at these railroad crossings. There had been deputations, correspondence and promises, but nothing had been done and lives continued to be sacrificed. He moved that a deputation go down to Local Superintendent Wragge and demand that something be done to mend this sad state of affairs. Ald. Wood for the extreme west coincided with Ald. Galbraith. It was determined that the whole board would seek out the superintendent in a body as soon as possible and get him to answer yes or no whether the G.T.R. will take any action or not.

SEVEN ATTEMPTS AT SUICIDE.

Death Was Not For That Disconsolate Colored Girl.

ATLANTA, March 11.—Sallie Solomon, a mulatto girl, made seven attempts at suicide to-day. She learned that a man with whom she had been living had died in Birmingham and she made an effort to raise money and go and bury him. She could not do this and became desperate. She made a break for a well, going head foremost into the opening, which was too small, and neighbors caught her.

Half an hour later she tied a rope around her neck, tied the other end over a beam, kicked a chair from under her and when found she was unconscious, but was resuscitated. She made three other attempts to drown herself in the well, failing each time. Once more she tried to hang herself, but a policeman saved her. Then a dozen neighbors were placed as a watch over her. While they were all in the room, she grabbed a lamp from the mantel piece, broke it over her own head and then jumped headlong into an open fireplace. She was pulled out before any serious damage was done and was locked up.

The Weavers' Strike.

FALL RIVER, MASS., March 11.—Three thousand weavers assembled in mass meeting in the park this morning. Reports to the executive committee of the union showed that the weavers in every print cloth mill in the city had quit work and that the strike was general. The agent of the Pocasset mill here offered to compromise with the strikers.

A Petty U. S. Customs Fee Abolished.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Treasury Department has directed a discontinuance of the practice at Burlington, Vt., and other ports of exacting a fee of 20 cents for a certificate of copies of invoices transmitted under the provisions of article 73 of the general regulations with triplicate copy of transportation entries.

They Will be Formidable.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Unless unforeseen obstacles are encountered within a few months after the beginning of the next fiscal year contracts will have been let for constructing new war vessels which will increase the tonnage of the navy by nearly 15,000 tons. Although the majority of the new vessels will be small compared with the monster ironclads of Europe, they will embody the latest approved ideas and from their high speed and heavy armament will be formidable vessels of war.

Mr. C. H. Freeman of Amherst from whom a customs detective seized a number of organs for undervaluation, and who deposited $6000, awaiting a decision from Ottawa, has had his money returned, everything being found correct.

The Canada Atlantic Railway has decided to build a branch line from Glen Robertson station to Hawkesbury, on the Ottawa River. Work will be begun in the spring, and it promises to kill the project to build the Ottawa and Vaudreuil railway.

A Westbrook correspondent of The Amherst Sentinel says Alfred Fullerton threatens suit against the Cumberland Coal and Railway Company for neglecting to stop at Fuller Crossing where he was waiting to board the train. [illegible]

THE TRUNK IN HARD LUCK

A MISHAP TO THE MONTREAL EXPRESS NEAR LUCAN.

Two Passenger Cars Rolled Down an 18-foot Embankment—What a Broken Rail Did—No Lives Lost.

LUCAN, March 11.—The Grand Trunk, to say the least, is in hard luck. A week ago last Wednesday all Ontario was startled by the news of the terrible disaster at St. George. The excitement had not subsided when there was flashed over the wires the intelligence of the fatal collision at Paris. To-day rounds up the chapter of accidents with a mishap which occurred near here at 3 o'clock this morning.

The Montreal express that left Detroit last night made fast time without mishap until it had reached a point one and a half miles west of this village. Here a broken rail blocked the way. The locomotive passed over the obstacle safely, as did also the baggage car and smoker, but the two passenger cars left the track and rolled down the eighteen foot embankment. The Pullman coaches on the rear end of the train remained on the track. The passengers in the derailed cars were terribly frightened, and filled the air with their lamentations. To release them from their imprisonment was a work that occupied forty minutes, and when all were free the muster roll showed these victims:

Edwin Houghton of Baird's Dramatic Company, foot crushed and slight bruises on body.

Mrs. James H. Rowland of Baird's Dramatic Company, head bruised and arm hurt.

Another lady who is a member of the dramatic company was slightly injured, but the rest of the passengers in the two cars were more frightened than hurt.

Barrister W. G. Murdoch of Toronto was a passenger on the unlucky train. He was in the rear sleeper when he was aroused by the lurching and bumping of the car. When he got out of the car the passengers in the two coaches that had left the track were crawling out. In the rear sleeper there were six passengers, nine in the first sleeper, eleven in the coach that rolled down the embankment and twenty in the coach that lodged on the side of the track and pulled the front end of the first sleeper off the track. Of the eleven passengers in the coach that rolled down the embankment, which was 18 feet high, eight were members of the Baird Dramatic Co., who were taken on board at Parkhill. Edwin Houghton, a member of the company, was thrown across the car as it rolled down the embankment, and had one of his feet badly crushed. The injured member was caught in such a position that the rescuers had to cut and saw through a mass of timber to release him from his painful position. Mrs. J. H. Rowland, also a member of the Baird Company, sustained severe bruises about the head and arms. Little Maudie Baird, daughter of R. L. Baird of Toronto, the proprietor of the show, was sitting at the side of Mrs. Rowland, but escaped injury.

After the passengers were all rescued the engineer proceeded to Stratford and returned with extra coaches in which the passengers were brought on to Toronto. The broken rail that caused the wreck was ground almost into atoms. Mr. Murdoch has a specimen of the rail, about the size of a quail's egg, which he is keeping as a souvenir of the occasion.

James E. Steen, the editor of The Winnipeg Commercial, was a passenger on the train. He says he wasn't scared at all, but came away with the impression that every one else was. "The first man I saw when I came out of the sleeper," said Mr. Steen, "was a big burly fellow who was smothered in a fur coat. He had the physique of a Hercules and the intellect of a goat. He was making more noise than all of the ladies on the train. The porter pulled him up on to the platform of the sleeper and asked him if he was hurt. 'Am I hurt?' he exclaimed, 'Great Heavens, man, I'm killed!' I looked expecting to see blood running, but he didn't have a scratch on him. Still he may die of fright. The wounded stood it finely. "Houghton laughed over his crushed foot as though it were a distinction that could not be enjoyed by everyone. He will probably try to make the G.T.R. folks pay for his laugh. The wonder is, though, that all the passengers in the first coach were not killed."

The Mud Run Disaster.

MAUCH CHUNK, PA., March 11.—The trial of Engineers Cook and Major and Flagman Hanningan, the Lehigh Valley employes charged with having caused the Mud Run disaster on Oct. 10 by which 60 lives were lost and many persons injured, was commenced here to-day. The first case called was that of Engineer Cook.

Fatality on the Reading.

READING, PA., March 11.—The locomotive of a freight train on the Reading Railroad ran off the track at St. Nicholas yesterday. The engine and twelve cars were wrecked. Benjamin Walker, the fireman, was killed, and Conductor John Gilkner has died from his injuries. A brakeman had his shoulder broken.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

The Michigan Central Lays Off About 80 Employes.

ST. THOMAS, March 11.—An order has been issued to reduce expenses 10 per cent. in all departments of the Michigan Central Railway and is being enforced on this division. The services of 40 section men have been dispensed with and 30 or 40 men in the car shops have been laid off. A number of operators have been laid off, and in many cases the agents are obliged to perform the duties.

The Interstate Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued an order which says that all advances and reductions in joint rates, fares and charges shown upon joint tariffs established by common carriers shall be made public. Every advance or reduction shall be plainly printed in large type, two copies of which shall be posted in two public and conspicuous places in every depot, station or office of such carrier where passengers or freight are received for transportation, in such form that they can be conveniently inspected by the public. Such schedules shall be posted ten days prior to the taking effect of any advance and three days prior to the taking effect of any reduction in rates. The railways in the trunk line association have been notified to appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington on March 16 for the purpose of showing what their export rates are, and how made and in what manner they are published.

Sudden Death at Rothesay.

ROTHESAY, March 11.—Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, while attending the Presbyterian tea meeting in this place this evening, appeared in her usual health. Suddenly she fell down apparently in a fit and expired a few minutes after.

TO RESIGN FROM THE BOARD.

From what took place at the Board of Education on Monday evening it seems that Mr. Stratton will not be allowed to hold his seat at the Board while taking contracts from that body. In view of what the law on the matter is, it is certainly surprising that he should still be a member of the Board or hold a seat there. Before the tenders for the school supplies were received Mr. Stratton was in the position of having vacated his seat, and even if that was not the case one would expect him to resign before making this contract with the Board, because by doing that he violates the law again and the contract is null and void.

However, it seems that Mr. Stratton has made up his mind that the limit of his tether in this direction has been reached. Whether he would have resigned had the matter not been brought up in the Board we do not know, but it is certain that if it had not been made public he would have continued to persistently violate the law. Mr. Dumble, who mentioned the subject on Monday evening, deserves credit for doing so. He cannot be suspected of any animus towards Mr. Stratton, but he recognized the awkward position in which Mr. Stratton's actions placed the Board and the intimation he gave that the seat must be vacated was straightforward and in the interest of justice. It was creditable to the Board that there was not a member to try to screen Mr. Stratton's wrong doing.

TWO WAYS OF USING WEALTH.

Being a member of St. Andrew's Church, I feel it my duty in my own humble way to thank Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls for the large, handsome gift given by her, wiping off every vestige of debt from said church:—

Madam, I trust you will not think me bold
The veil of worth a little to unfold.
Quite unassuming, plaudits you disdain
No praise expressed in ostentatious strain,
Poets, as a rule, are always wide awake,
Of generous acts they strict observance take;
Though dim my sight, it fetters not my thought,
Your liberal hand inspires me to take note.

It is not our prerogative to know
Why God on some abundant wealth bestow
Utter unworthy of His gifts or care,
And still he crowns them with abundant share;
Their gold trimmed soul can't comprehend His will,
He gave for good, with them it tends to ill;
He lends them riches for a proper use,
Their miser-soul but holds them for abuse;
Their glittering pile seems but their frequent boast,
Both day and night their thoughts by them engrossed,
They shun the hungry, spurn off the distressed,
And clasp their wealth to their unfeeling breast.
They worship gold, to wealth a menial slave,
Forgetting Him whom them much riches gave;
They grasp their horde till their overflowing purse,
Instead of blessing, seems a gnawing curse;
Their hands are closed to charitable need,
Their hearts are cold to every thing but greed,
Wealth's alluring trammels around their soul entwine
Until they hourly worship at its shrine.

Not so with you, for you possess the whole;
God unto you the better part has given
Along with wealth, a feeling, generous soul,
Charity and love, the richest gifts of heaven.
Meek, unassuming, quite reserved your ways,
Sounds no self trumpet with your acts of love,
Declining gently every form of praise,
Your aim not earth, but praises from above.
You are well worthy of such blessings sent,
On earth such beings seldom do we find,
Ready to share out blessings to them lent
With liberal hand and generous heart combined.
Riches were blessed when God with bounteous hand
Bestowed his wealth abundantly on you,
Whose nature feels, and heaven trimmed soul expand,
Prompting your actions and benevolence true.
No selfish aim moves nor controls your soul,
Your every act unbiased spontaneous flows,
With pitying eye and loving heart you feel
For those oppressed, and mitigate their woes.
One gift, so generous, public thanks does claim,
Suffering humanity owns your angel hand,
The well, the sick, will venerate your name
Long as the Nicholls Hospital does stand.
Gifts, like your nature, liberal, free and broad,
Your place of worship you did not forget;
Your heaven sent wealth showered on the house of God,
Act magnanimous, wiped off all its debt.
Not public only, but your private gift,
Soothes numerous hearts, unbounded good achieves,
The embarrassed, unfortunate, downcast lifts
The hungry, sorrowing, and distressed relieves.

Madam, your name shines as the noonday sun,
Your deeds of love fall like the evening dew,
Your wealth, well used, you lasting praise have won,
Receiver blessed, and twofold blessings you.

Your name is chiseled deep in hearts to dwell
Lettered in love, to shine through time unmarred,
These living monuments your worth shall tell
When you have gone to reap your rich reward.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Debate Resumed Touching the Teaching of French in Public Schools.

TORONTO, March 12.—In the Local House Mr. Awrey, in resuming the debate upon Mr. Craig's motion regarding the teaching of French in public schools, regretted that so dangerous an element as this should have been introduced into our politics. Mr. Meredith had asserted that he expected to derive no political capital from the position he had taken, but perhaps he had utilized this as a last chance to bring his party into place and power. In the past 16 years he had been sitting in the chamber, and if there be a wrong, if it was a wrong that the French and German schools should be treated with consideration, then Mr. Meredith had been culpably negligent of his duty in the past. Mr. Awrey proceeded to demonstrate how the French and English grammars in the public schools in question were being superseded by the English grammar. Continuing, Mr. Awrey said: "The member from South Durham made a charge the other day that the catechism was used as one of the text books in the school of L'Orignal. I had doubts then and I believe that honorable gentlemen on this side of the House had doubts as to whether the informations he had received was correct. I therefore took the trouble to find out if it was correct and I hold in my hands a telegram from the chairman of the school board of L'Orignal, which reads:

Catechism used twice a week, fifteen minutes each time, not as text book, simply religious instruction, under regulations. [Applause.]

Mr. E. F. Clarke followed Mr. Awrey. The direction, the control and the regulation to educational matters he believed to be the most important duty and the most sacred trust committed by the people to those who represented them. He would place himself on record against and protest against any change or innovation that might impair the usefulness or mar the efficiency of these educational institutions. He had not the privilege of attending school on this side of the Atlantic, and was therefore perhaps not as thoroughly acquainted with the curriculum and methods of instruction as were those Canadian-born; but he trusted that this disability would not make him less anxious for the prosperity and efficiency of our public schools.

He regretted exceedingly that all the children of Ontario of all creeds and of all nationalities were not educated at the same schools. The system under which our children are being educated did not in his judgment confer the best possible means of encouraging that harmony so essential to the progress of our institutions and so necessary to the welfare of our country. Reference had been made to the school system of our neighbors to the south and their liberality in permitting the teaching of a foreign language in those schools. But the instruction generally imparted in those schools was under special circumstances and was imparted as a special subject. He believed that one of the prime factors in the prosperity of the institutions to the south of us was the determination of the people of the United States that the language of their schools should be the English language and that the children attending those schools should be taught and educated in the English language. Another reason was that they had refused to grant money to aid or endow sectarian schools.

Mr. Balfour, as a representative of a constituency partly English partly French, said he had heard no word of complaint. He therefore thought it ill-became gentlemen on the floor of the House to bring up a question of which they had no practical knowledge. He wanted to know how French children could be instructed without the medium of the French language. In Essex, children learn only the French language in their homes and their parents send them to school to learn English. But how could they learn English without a thorough knowledge of their own tongue? Such a thing would not be expected of an English child learning French.

The French children in the county of which he was speaking were all acquiring a knowledge of English. Mr. Balfour regretted that the only member on the Opposition side who had any experience of a French-Canadian constituency was absent from his place. He believed there was a good deal more of politics behind the attack than any desire to make this an English-speaking province. He hoped that the French-Canadians who were going southward to the United States would rather come to Ontario and we should be glad to welcome them.

Mr. H. E. Clarke said he learned for the first time that there are schools not only in Russell and Prescott, but also in Essex and Simcoe, and perhaps some other northern counties where French was and is now taught to the exclusion of English. The Hon. Mr. Ross had misrepresented the gentlemen of the Opposition when he charged them with making an attack upon the French-Canadian race. If there were any attack it was rather upon the hon. gentleman's administration.

Mr. Clarke asked: "Have we a number of our common schools run by the Separate School party? There was no getting over the fact that the Protestants support the public schools. But," asked he, "do we not permit the existence of the Catholic Separate Schools, which none will deny were detrimental to the public school system?" When further encroachments were made they should not be tolerated.

Mr. Murray next took part in the discussion and referred to a charge made from the pulpit that the Roman Catholic Church was assisting French Catholics in Quebec to purchase farms owned by Protestants, and also that the church aided French Catholics to settle and purchase lands in Renfrew. "I will give," said Mr. Murray, "$100 to the person who can prove that any Frenchman was assisted with money or means to buy a piece of property in the County of Renfrew."

Mr. Davis continued the debate, which was adjourned at 6 p.m.

In the evening the mover, Mr. Craig, continued the discussion. Mr. Hess followed and gave his views from a German standpoint. In this Province he believed that a larger German than French element existed. Though a German by birth he was a British subject and the Frenchman who came to Ontario would have to be a British subject also. "I am," he said, "surprised that the French are preferred before us. Are they better looking than we are? Are they much nicer than we are?" [Laughter.]

Mr. Pacaud following made his first speech this session.

The Commissioner of Public Works was next on his feet. He gave various reasons to show that this question had not been brought up on a previous occasion by gentlemen opposite on account of political reasons.

The discussion was continued by Mr. French and Mr. Smith (East York). The motion was at length passed and the House adjourned at 11 p.m.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

'TIS A STRANGE STORY.

TWICE INSANE AND FINAL RECOVERY WITH LOSS OF MEMORY.

A Californian Who Lost His Reason Forgets on Recovery That He Was Married, and Fails to Recognize the Girl He Loved—Beginning Life Over Again.

Maurice Long was a popular young rancher in Kern county in 1878. He was then about 28 years of age, and possessed a herd of cattle and about five thousand acres of land. A young lady, the daughter of a wealthy merchant in Bakersfield, was one day led to the altar by the young gentleman and returned with him to his ranch as Mrs. Long.

The young couple were as happy as married people in the books are alleged to be, and everything looked bright for the future of their cozy home in the foothills. Life, always charming to the young, was particularly rosy tinted to Mr. and Mrs. Long. Suddenly a dark pall was spread over the life of Maurice, for the young wife sickened and died. The remains now lie in the Bakersfield cemetery by the side of the mother she lost in her early childhood.

GRIEF AND A SECOND MARRIAGE.

Life lost all its hope to Mr. Long when his beautiful wife was taken. He could not endure the loneliness of his ranch life, and, finding a purchaser, sold everything, determined to leave California and cut himself loose from all the tender memories of his young manhood. Remaining for a brief period at the house of his father-in-law, he shortly went to the home of his parents, in the Santa Clara valley, near San Jose. Unable to shake off his grief, he sank finally into a melancholy, from which his friends feared he would never recover. By persistent efforts and the care of a judicious physician, the young man was partially restored, but the condition of his mind was still uncertain. At times the unsteadiness of his reason manifested itself in foolish imbecility. Apparently he recovered, however, and went to Chico and located in that little city, opening a feed and sale stable. Business prospered, and encouraging reports came to the Santa Clara home in the occasional letters received by the parents.

Finally one came announcing his marriage to a young lady of that city. Scarcely a year had passed since the death of his wife on the Kern county ranch, and, although his friends were surprised at the announcement, remembering his fondness for her and his grief at her decease, they strangely enough regarded the second marriage as a further evidence of restored reason. Six months more passed, during which all reports and a single visit satisfied the anxious friends that Mr. Long was in perfect mental and physical health. One day a painful telegram from his wife announcing the sudden wreck of their son's reason was received by old Mr. Long at San Jose. Going in answer to the message to Chico, the terrible truth of the calamity forced itself upon him, for his son was a raving maniac.

With a heavy heart the father conveyed Maurice Long to Stockton and placed him in the insane hospital. The examining physician pronounced him hopelessly insane. The young wife returned to her parents. A few months later she gave birth to a child. When she had grown strong she visited her husband at the asylum in the vain hope of a sign of recognition or an evidence of affection. A brother remained at Chico conducting the business. Visits were made from time to time by the friends of the unfortunate patient, but they always returned more saddened than ever at his condition.

HE DIDN'T KNOW HIS WIFE.

Two years were passed in Stockton, when the joyful intelligence was received by old Mr. Long that his son seemed in a fair way to recover. The news was almost too good to believe. Careful nursing for six weeks followed, and the physician sent word that the wife and friends might visit him, but with this statement came the startling intelligence that Maurice Long had absolutely forgotten all events that had transpired since the sale of his ranch after the burial of his wife at Bakersfield. Thinking her presence would restore her to his memory, the faithful little mother at Chico went to the hospital, carrying with her the boy, now nearly two years of age. The reader can imagine her terrible grief when she saw before her the face of her husband and beheld in it all the evidence of restored intellect, but no recognition of his spouse. Vainly she recalled the events of their courtship and marriage, and despairingly she held before him the chubby faced baby. The poor man hung his head in despair, unable to remember anything that she sought to bring to his attention.

The death of her husband in his imbecility would have been easy to bear in comparison with the terrific fact which here confronted her. Almost wild with grief she returned to her home in Chico. Six weeks longer the poor man stayed at Stockton, gradually gaining strength. The little woman came no more to see him. The father, the brother and the physician by degrees convinced him of the truth of the story of his marriage and the birth of his son. When he was released he repaired to Chico and accepted the situation as a truth established in his mind by testimony but not experience. He took his wife and child, and selling his business removed to Goleta. Association with the woman who bore his name and the child who called him papa entwined his affection around them. These strange events occurred seven years ago. The couple have resided on their pretty little ranch at Goleta nearly that length of time. To all appearances the man and wife are one. They never refer to their terrible sorrow, but each strives to forget the awful past and live in the present. It is a strange story. The neighbors know nothing of the circumstances. The gentleman who gives this information was a resident of Chico at the time referred to and familiar with all the harrowing details, having learned them directly from a brother of the hero of the story.—Los Angeles Tribune.

Did He Help Matters?

It was Sunday morning and the congregation, as usual, were enthralled by the Rev. D. J. Burrell's eloquence. As good public speakers will, the divine frequently changed his tone from the oratorical to the conversational. During one of the conversational periods of his sermon he said easily and naturally:

"I noticed in this morning's paper"——

Then, suddenly stopping, as if he had committed a great indiscretion in allowing the congregation to believe that he had read the Sunday papers, and meanwhile blushing like a school girl, he continued:

"I read this morning in yesterday's paper"——

And critical observers say that it was fully five minutes before the blushes left the preacher's cheeks. He is always careful now, whenever referring to the Sunday paper from the pulpit, not to mention it incidentally, but in the most sweeping terms of disapproval.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Testimony has been given before the grand jury at Russellville, Ky., that a farmer recently had an old ox he was driving stick fast in the mud, whereupon he skinned the animal alive, and, taking the hide, left the poor brute to die in lingering agony.

To Unearth the Temple of Apollo.

Professor Charles Eliot Norton, of Harvard college, has been visiting New York on an odd mission. He desires the rich men of that city to contribute $75,000 to equip an expedition to excavate the site of the ancient temple of Apollo at Delphi. The Greek government has given permission to the American school at Athens to undertake the work, and all now needed are the funds necessary to employ labor and organize an expedition.—Detroit Free Press.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

NOTICE TO CONSERVATIVES.

A meeting of the Young Men's Conservative club will be held at the club rooms, over Mr. Stethem's store, at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening. All Conservatives, especially young men, are invited to be present and should make a point of attending, as business of importance will come before the meeting.

Skaters and Curlers Attention.

A Board of Trade.

A petition was circulated to-day, and freely signed by business and professional men, asking the Mayor to call a public meeting to organize a Board of Trade for the town.

Great Rush.

The public are taking advantage of the bargains at the stock taking sale of Elliott & Tierney's. Goods all new and fresh. Don't pay long prices elsewhere when you can buy Groceries so cheap at the Palace Grocery.

Building and Savings.

The Peterborough Building and Savings Society held its regular monthly meeting last night in the office of the President, Mr. Thos. Cahill. The shares and monthly premiums were promptly paid by the members.

The Deputation Gone.

The deputation of Councillors left for Toronto and Hamilton this morning on the C. P. R. The members who have gone are Messrs Davidson, Cahill, Rutherford, Baptie and E. H. D. Hall. They will probably remain in Toronto until to-morrow morning and then go to Hamilton Wednesday morning.

Who is to Blame?

There were some complaints made by members at the School Board last evening that they did not receive their notices of Board meetings sometimes until after the night of meeting, although the Secretary posted them in plenty of time to reach them. One of the members remarked that the Postmaster should look after this matter.

SHAVED to the bone! A mere skeleton left of profit on Teas at M. R. KIDD'S. d35tf

The Local Branch.

A meeting of the local branch of the Irish National League will be held this evening in the Murray-st. school for the purpose of making final arrangements for their concert and lecture on the 18th of March. From the programme which has been promised and the talent which will contribute to the concert, this will be a treat, while the lecture by Mr. J. J. Curran, M.P., of Montreal, will be an attraction in itself sufficient to fill the Opera House.

A Small Disturbance.

A little excitement broke the usual peace and quitness of our streets this morning at the corner of Water and Hunter-sts. The gang of men who were leaving for the shanties were having a farewell "smile" or two with their friends, and a couple of them became rather quarrelsome and proceeded to right their wrongs with the aid of their fists. Chief Roszel and Constable Adams noticed the disturbance and bore down on the crowd, but the fighters had taken quick leave and no arrests were made.

Amusing and Pathetic.

Notwithstanding that this is the Lenten season there was a good audience at the Opera House to witness the presentation of Gillette's melo-drama "Held by the Enemy." The play is a strong one, distinctly American, and illustrates incidents and fighting down south during the abolition war. The plot is laid in a southern city occupied by the United States forces during the war. The company was a strong one and every character on the caste was excellently taken and the audience time and time again showed their appreciation by applause and curtain calls.

A Very Close Call.

There was a very close call to another conflagration in Ashburnham last night at the residence of Mr. J. J. Rooney, Mark-st. Mr. and Mrs. Rooney had been absent from home during the afternoon and Mr. Rooney returned to the house first and after lighting the lamp came over to town to the Business College leaving the lamp burning on the table. Sometime afterwards when Mrs. Rooney arrived home she found the table entirely destroyed by fire and the flames were fast spreading to the wainscoting of the room. The fire was extinguished without further damage, but had the fire been unnoticed for a few minutes longer the house would most assuredly have been destroyed. It is supposed that the match with which the lamp was lit must have dropped among some papers and started the blaze.

THE TOWN BEING MOVED

ANOTHER IMMENSE AUDIENCE AT THE EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

People Convinced by the Hundred—A Sermon by Mr. Crossley on Blunders—Mistaken Views of God.

The evangelists and the clergymen who sat on the platform last evening faced another immense audience.

In making the announcements Rev. Mr. Pearson said a purse containing a sum of money and a railway ticket had been found the evening before. If it was not claimed by the owner the money would be given to the evangelistic fund and the ticket would be used to give the most delicate looking clergyman in town a trip—though that was saying nothing in his favor.

NOT BLUE MONDAY.

MR. HUNTER said that some people looked blue on Monday, but, although they had had a heavy week, they could not feel blue after the grand meeting on the previous evening. If he did not live right, he said, he could not say so much to them. If he did not pray as much in an hour as some of them did in a month he would not urge them so much to pray. He urged them to have faith and to pray. He read a Psalm and commented upon it as he read.

Mr. Crossley sang a solo "Almost There."

THE REQUESTS.

The requests for prayer were for a father and two brothers, for a wandering brother, for the conversion of brothers and sisters, for a father who had not attended the services and for a young lady who was at the opera, for an only son, an invalid, that he might be spared, for a wayward brother, for a father and son, for a father, from a person for himself, from a wife for her husband who had not been at a place of worship for eight years, for a father, for an eldest son, from a husband for his wife, for four young men going down the drunkard's road.

AID GIVEN BY NEWSPAPERS.

MR. HUNTER said he had received a letter from a young convert in Detroit who had seen reports in the papers and was pleased to see the work being done here. He thanked the W.C.T.U. for remembering them in their meeting.

MR. CROSSLEY said that one way to extend the work was to send papers containing reports of the meetings to friends. They had never been in a place where the papers had given more extended or more correct reports. By sending his brother papers with the reports from Ottawa his brother had been led to the Lord.

BLUNDERS.

MR. CROSSLEY took his text from Psalm ix., 10. "They that know thy name shall put their trust in thee." There was always some reason why people did not trust in the Lord. The reason always was a blunder. The first blunder mentioned was that some had a wrong idea of faith. There was nothing mysterious about faith. His faith was similar to a child's faith in its parents. Faith was a natural gift from God, just as the eye was. It was the eye of the soul. They got faith in God by getting to know Him. They got acquainted with God by inquiring of Him, in the Bible or from others, or by personal interview in prayer. When they thought of the Lord and his power they could not doubt Him and would trust Him. Another blunder was as to the sin of unbelief. The greatest insult they could offer a man was to doubt him. If they did not trust in the Lord they did not trust Him and disbelieved Him. Everyone who was not living in the Lord was in effect saying to Him "You're a liar" with every breath they drew. If they would think of God they would comprehend his power and trust Him. Another blunder people made was as to the power of God's grace. They said "I couldn't live a Christian." They were thinking of themselves instead of the great I Am. "My grace is sufficient for you," the Lord said. Another blunder on that line was a fear that they would bring disgrace upon God's cause. If those who had that fear would come to God there would be no fear of them doing so, for those who disgraced His cause did not fear doing so. They should think of the power of the Lord and trust Him. Another blunder was as to the character of God Himself. They should not think of God as an abstraction, but as a person. But they said they could not see Him. Neither could they see him (the speaker), for if he died and was gone they could still see as much as they did now. So they had evidence of the personality of God in their own hearts and minds. Others had a harsh view of God. They said they could not live a Christian. If so God must be a hard God. But He was not. He was a loving Lord and Saviour. Others thought of Him as heathens thought of God—as a God who would punish them and from whom Jesus tried to save them. That was erroneous. Jesus did not die to appease God. God shed his blood to satisfy justice. "God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son." Some made the Father different from Jesus. The Saviour before the throne was not pleading with God to spare. There was only one God and the Father's feelings were the same as His Son's. "God is love." "He that hath see Me hath seen the Father." He could form no correct conception of God or the Holy Spirit except as he saw them in Jesus. Jesus still loved them, and lived to be loved by them. He urged all to know Jesus and to come to Him.

After praying and singing Mr. Hunter exhorted the audience and many stood up asking for prayers on their behalf.

The meeting—or first meeting—was concluded with prayer by Rev. A. C. Wilson.

Nearly the whole congregation remained for the after meeting, and about a hundred came out to the penitent seats.

A second after meeting or enquiry meeting was held.

Mr. Morrison, Mayor of Trenton, and Mr. Grass, of the same town, were here to-day enquiring into Peterborough's water power system to obtain information for use at Trenton.

The Seductive Game of Poker.

They play "draw" poker in town, so it is said, occasionally for five cents ante, and to those who are familiar with the game this item from Kansas City will be of interest:—"The largest game of stud poker ever played took place in the Midland hotel last night. The game was between Bemer J. Schwartz, a well known jeweler, and John Davis, a stockman and former member of the city government. The ante was raised from 25 cents to $1,000. Schwartz lost $22,000 on a pair of nines and $10,000 on a pair of trays. After several hours of play Davis held his opponent's checks for $62,500. Then luck turned, and Schwartz quit the game only $6,000 behind."

ON THE ICE.

A Close Game at Belleville—The Point Game.

Two rinks of local curlers went to Belleville yesterday afternoon to play the return match with the Bellevillians. The rinks from here were composed of John McClelland, Geo. Edmison, E. A. Bradburn and Judge Weller, skip; J. H. Burnham, T. P. Attrill, W. H. Budden, Dr. Boucher, skip. The game was a close one, but the Peterborough men came out best by one shot. The score was as follows:—

Belleville	No. 1 Rink.	Peterborough
W. H. Biggar, skip..19		Judge Weller, s'p 10
	No. 2 Rink.
Col. Lazier, skip.....11		Dr. Boucher, s'p ... 21
Total.........30		Total..........31

Majority for Peterborough, 1 shot.

The curlers speak most highly of the reception and treatment they received at the hands of the Belleville stane hurlers, who used them right royally. The visit will be long remembered.

THE PRESIDENTS' MEDAL.

The point game to be played by the members of the local club for the President's and Vice-President's medal was commenced on the ice at the rink last night. The ice was in fine condition, and as a consequence the scoring was much better than in the point game for the Governor-General's medal some time ago. There were about twenty members who tried their skill last night and the remainder of the club will play to-night, and the entire score will be published complete when the competition is finished. There was a tie for the highest score last night, Messrs. Geo. Walker and W. G. Ferguson each scoring seventeen points.

One rink of junior curlers came down from Lindsay to play a friendly game with a local junior rink and the game is in progress at the rink this afternoon.

Off for the North.

The Event of the Week.

If the weather does not moderate too much the grandest carnival that the town has ever witnessed will come off at the rink on Friday night. The firemen are leaving nothing undone to make the affair a success and they are just the ones who know how to manage it. The band will be in attendance in full force and valuable prizes are offered for costumes, and a medal will also be competed for by fancy skaters. Be sure and attend for it will be worth seeing.

Gone to the States.

Mrs. Lennox (nee Mrs. Parkinson), who is well known in town one way and another, and her husband, left Peterborough and Canada on Saturday last, and the population of the city of Cleveland has probably been increased by an addition of two in consequence of their leaving here, as that was their destination. With all her domestic troubles Mrs. Lennox wanted it generally and thoroughly understood that she has gone without leaving a single solitary debt behind her, no matter what else she may have left. A Thrilling Drama.

Of Chas. L. Andrews' "Michael Strogoff" company, which will be in the Opera House here this evening, and which was in Belleville on Friday last, the Intelligencer says:—"This play was produced at the Opera House last night to a fair audience. It was well presented, dramatically and spectacularly. Mr. Wm. Fredericks as Michael Strogoff takes marked prominence in the dramatic production. He is an actor of merit, and the scenes of his experiences as the Czar's courier were pleasing to the audience. The two correspondents created much merriment. The parts of Nadia, Marfa and Sangarre are also well played. The scenery is good and the costuming and displays are bright and pleasing to the eye. It is thrilling from beginning to end, and at times excites the warmest sympathy and applause. The juggler Nelton gave a performance between the third and fourth acts that captivated the audience. He is without doubt the cleverest that has been in this city." 1d60

A FALSE REPORT.—To the Editor of the Review. SIR,—Rumors has reached my ears that it has been currently reported in this as well as other neighborhoods, that my boy's leg (which was broken in the early part of this season), is some three inches shorter than the other; also that it had to be broken a second time, having been badly set, &c.,—which rumor is entirely untrue, and I am happy to state that the little fellow is now about as well as ever, and a great deal better than we at one time expected he would be. I am satisfied that Dr. Moffat has done all he could, or all that any other doctor could do in the case. I think it my duty to give this rumor an unqualified denial. BARTHOLMEW HAYES.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A DISCUSSION AROUSED BY THE AWARDING OF A TENDER.

Mr. Stratton's Seat on the Board—Communications—Two Appointments Made—The Increase of Salaries not Considered—A Deputation for Lindsay.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening principally for the purpose of considering the increase of salaries asked for by a large number the staff of teachers, but none of the applicants are any nearer their increase than before the meeting. A few minutes past eight o'clock the following gentlemen were present:—Messrs Dumble, Hill, Denne, Peter Hamilton, Hughes, Wrighton, Weir, English, Burnham, O'Meara and McWilliams. Mayor Stevenson, Chairman, presided.

COMMUNICATIONS.

After the reading of the minutes the following communications were read:—

From Secretary Marling stating that the High School grant had been made by the government of $676.12.

From John Corkery, Secretary of the Separate School Board, notifying the Board that John O'Meara had been re-appointed High School Trustee.

From J. G. Macdonald, Town Clerk, stating that James Kendry and Peter Hamilton had been appointed High School Trustees.

The fees and attendance for the month of February were read as published in the REVIEW last week.

Accounts were read from the Gas Company for $6.75, from the REVIEW Company for $15.97 and for Sailsbury Bros. for $12.40.

FINANCES.

Dr. BURNHAM, Chairman, read the report of the Finance Committee as follows:—

To the Chairman and Gentlemen of the Board of Education.

The Finance Committee recommend the payment of W. H. Moore's account, also that Robertson's (Times) account be paid when certified to by the chairman of the Board as the work was said to have been ordered by him. The committee cannot recommend the payment of the account of the Menzies estate as it was not ordered by the proper committee.

G. BURNHAM,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

APPOINTMENTS AND INCREASES.

Mr. DUMBLE then presented the report of the Committee on Appointments which read thusly:—

To the Chairman and Gentlemen of the Board of Education:

The Committee on Appointments beg to report that they recommend that Miss Sim be appointed to the room recently taught by Miss Errett, at a salary of $250 per annum, to be computed from the 13th day of March, 1889.

That Miss Rutherford be appointed to the room now taught by Miss Sim, at a salary of $225 per annum, to be computed from the 13th of March, 1889.

The Committee report that Miss Sim receives her promotion on the ground of seniority in the services of the Board.

Your Committee further report that they are unable at present to deal with the question of salaries and ask leave to report at the next regular meeting of the Board.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

The Chairman of the School Supervision Committee, Mr. McWilliams, read the report of that committee in reference to the awarding of the tenders for school supplies. The different supplies were divided among Messrs. Lee & Thompson, Sailsbury Bros. and J. R. Stratton, each of these firms being given the contract for such articles as were offered at the lowest figure in their tenders.

MR. STRATTON'S TENDER.

When it was moved that the report be adopted Mr. Dumble remarked that the Board would have to declare Mr. Stratton's seat vacant if he was awarded a tender.

Quite a discussion arose among the members over the matter, several of them stating that Mr. Stratton had told them that he intended to resign his seat, but they said that he was probably not aware of the meeting as it was a special one and he was out of town.

Others thought that the fact that Mr. Stratton sent in his tender was sufficient to show that he did not intend to hold his seat, and Mr. Dumble moved to notify the Council that his seat was vacant. However, it was finally decided to adopt the report and not notify the Council until Mr. Stratton was heard from.

THE HEATING SYSTEM

Mr. DUMBLE said as the Board would have to consider what system of heating they would put into the new institute and as there was some talk of the Smead & Dowd system he thought it would be wise, before going into a large expense of that kind, for some of the members to inspect their system. He therefore moved to the effect that Messrs. Burnham, Wrighton, Denne, Dumble, Stevenson and Thos. Rutherford, be a committee to go to Lindsay and inspect the system of heating in the Collegiate Institute there. The motion was carried and the Board adjourned.

DIED.

CALVERT.—At Ashburnham, on Tuesday morning, the 12th March, 1889, JANE, wife of Mr. John Calvert, aged 53 years.

A FUNNY WORLD.

This world is very funny,
For no matter how much money
Man is earning he will spend it, and be hard up all the time;
To his utmost he is straining
To catch up, without attaining,
Till he makes his life a burden when it should be bliss sublime.

He who earns a thousand merely
Thinks two thousand yearly
Would be just the figure to make happiness complete;
But his income when it doubles
Only multiplies his troubles,
For his outgo then increasing makes his both ends worse to meet.

It is run in debt and borrow,
Flush today and broke to-morrow;
Financiering every which way to postpone the day of doom;
Spending money ere he makes it,
And then wondering what takes it,
Till he, giving up the riddle, looks for rest within the tomb.

Oh, this world is very funny
To the average man whose money
Doesn't quite pay for the dancing that he does before he should;
And he kills himself by trying
Just a little higher flying
Than is suited to his pocket and his own eternal good.

—St. Paul News.

To Foretell the Weather.

Says a weather observer: "When you wish to know what the weather is going to be, go out and select the smallest cloud you see. Keep your eye on it, and if it decreases and disappears it shows a state of the air that is sure to be followed by fine weather; but if it increases, take your overcoat with you if you're going away from home, for falling weather is not far off."—New York Home Journal.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND
QUEENS WA

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate—cracked at that. Consider $20,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of sèvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $3,500 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

"The—anks," replied Tommy, accepting the words and not understanding the spirit. "I hope I shall always"——

"Be a credit to them," ended Urquhart with perfect gravity. "My dear lad, you've only to go on as you've begun, to find yourself hobnobbing with Lord Wolseley and the commander-in-chief in next to no time."

In the midst of the roar of laughter Beautiful Jim, none too gently, hustled his precious young charge out to the cab which was awaiting him at the anteroom door.

"Get in, you young ass," he muttered, "before you do any more mischief."

But the last of the Earles, on whom the keen night breeze began to tell instantly, was too much occupied in steadying himself to catch the words which his host only spoke under his breath.

"Good night, old chap," he called out, airily, when he had reached the comfortable haven of the back seat—"had a devilish good time. Urquhart's a blazing good fellow; only wish I'd gone into his regiment"——

But then the speech was cut short by the cabman starting off his old horse, and as a matter of course pitching Tommy violently backward. Beautiful Jim wheeled round with a disgusted exclamation, and found himself face to face with Col. Urquhart and Marcus Orford, who had said good night and were going to walk home together.

"Good night, Beresford," said Urquhart. "I suppose I ought to feel immensely flattered, but I must say I'm very glad you are going to have the licking of that young gentleman into shape instead of any of us."

"That young cub, you mean, colonel?" broke out Beautiful Jim, who had but little patience with shortcomings of that kind, and was thinking, too, what she would say.

Col. Urquhart, however, only laughed, and with another "good night," passed on.

CHAPTER X.

TOMMY EATS HUMBLE PIE.

Happily for the credit of the Earles in general, and the last of the race in particular, the household at the Deanery was habitually an early one, and if no entertainment was afoat, the family were in the habit of disappearing at half past 10 o'clock.

Therefore, when Tommy had pulled himself together, paid the cabman and straightened his somewhat unmanageable person and his decidedly refractory arms and legs, which somehow wouldn't keep in their proper places, he gave a pull at the bell.

The door was opened, not by the staid and respectable family butler, by a young footman, who knew that the young gentleman had been dining at the Infantry Barracks, and was perhaps sympathetic, knowing what singular effects night air sometimes has upon a person who has come out of a hot and noisy room.

Any way, he shut the door and immediately lighted a candle, with a remark that "the family have retired for the night, sir, all but the dean, who I expect every minute."

Now, this was enough to send Tommy off to his room as fast as his unsteady legs could climb the stairs; for, although he had felt perfectly equal to chaffing one of the keenest witted men in the service, in the person of Col. Urquhart, he did not feel equal, after a twenty minutes' ride in a jolting, springless cab over the villainously quaint cobble stones which paved the streets of Blankhampton, making him feel as if he had eaten ten times too much dinner, and as if, when he got settled in the Blankshire regiment, he should have something not perhaps altogether to his liking to say to the president of the mess committee about the quality of the wines, to encountering the very reverend the dean of Blankhampton; in fact, he had more than a suspicion that that gentleman would tell him in blunt, outspoken words that he was drunk!

Not that he was drunk, mind you! He pulled up short on the first landing, and glared at himself in a big square of looking glass which was set against the wall, as if his other self in the glass had charged him with being drunk, and he meant to knock him down for the insult! So there for a minute he and his reflection stood, with one white face staring at another, with hair rumpled on end like a sulphur crested cockatoo, and with candlestick held with elegant negligence on one side, so that the hot wax ran down in a stream upon the handsome Axminster carpet beneath.

"D—d bad wine that," he muttered. "I believe it's got into my head, or upset my digestion, or something;" and then he heard a quick, firm footstep on the flag of the portico, followed by the rattle of the key in the door.

Oh no, he was not at all drunk! He blew out his candle and crept off to his room, only lurching once or twice against the wall on the way—that, of course, was because he could not see. Anyway, he gained his room in safety, and sat down upon the first chair he could find to recover his breath. It happened to be an easy chair, and his breath took a long time to recover; and, somehow, he dropped off to sleep, and slept like a top until the daylight was streaming into the room, and the bells high up in the great tower of the parish were ringing for a saint's day celebration.

Thus Tommy got uncommonly well over the episode of the dinner at the mess of his new regiment. But he thought he ought to go up and call, so that if he had in the faintest degree upset his commanding officer that was to be, he would be able to set it straight, and not start, as it were, with a black mark against his name.

HOW ENGLISH DIED.

OLD "TEX" BENDER TELLS A YARN OUT OF HIS EXPERIENCES.

The Quiet Stranger Who Won the Respect of the Cowboys—Nothing Ever Learned of His Past—The Bullet Intended for Another Went Through His Heart.

The Palmer house had two guests who attracted no little attention from their appearance. They wore the regulation broad brimmed hat, their hair was long, and about their waist was the belt that, when on their native heath, carried a small arsenal. These strangers were two genuine scouts from the plains and had seen ranch service. One of them was "Tex" Bender, a scout who had been one of Col. Drum's chief aids in the chase for Colorow, the Ute chief. Bender was found in a talkative mood, and the drift of conversation turned upon instances of people, of whom nothing was known more than, perhaps, a nickname, losing their lives and leaving no chance for friends or kindred ever knowing what had become of them.

"These cases are more common than one would think," the scout said, "and many of them make the saddest kind of a story."

Upon being urged to spin a yarn, Bender related the following incident:

HE WAS A TREASURE.

"Scouting," he said, "has been more of a pastime with me than anything else. My main interest on the plains is cattle raising, and the story I shall tell is one that occurred on a ranch. One day a young fellow came into our camp looking for a job. His nationality was so clearly marked that at his first appearance he was greeted with the rough but hearty salutation of 'Hello, English!' He was English without any doubt. He said he had been tramping for a long time, had been to any number of camps, but had found them all full, and he wanted to go to work badly. Well, we needed another hand just then, so we took him, though it was with rather an idea that he was something of a tenderfoot. In this we soon found ourselves mistaken. It was a mildness and evident gentleness of character that had given the impression. English had been on the plains long enough to know his business, but the roughness, the bravado that so many acquire had passed him by without a mark. The days were few before we found we had a treasure—at least he was such to the fellows who were always willing some one else should do what they ought to do, and English was so good natured, so willing, that at first I am afraid he was imposed upon dreadfully, but before long he sort of crept into our hearts, and we felt most as though it was wicked to take advantage of his good nature.

"Our camp was pretty tough, and we didn't ordinarily stop much on account of things being wicked, but we let up on English just the same. You see, he had done every boy in camp more or less favors. When one fellow was sick English did all his share of the work and his own, too, and then tended the sick chap nights, staying awake to give him his dope regularly. There was hardly one of us that didn't owe English money. He always said he had no use for it, and said it, too, with a sadness that made a fellow feel there was a bitter heartache behind all his make believe cheerfulness. At first the boys used to guy poor English, and ask him questions about his home and all that kind of stuff, and I have seen the tears start in his eyes as he turned away and left the crowd. English certainly had a history, and it was undoubtedly a sad one. He got so he would seldom sit in the cabin with us, but would go away by himself, not in any morose spirit, but he always seemed afraid the boys would speak to him of things he did not care to hear. I said awhile ago that we were pretty tough; I guess we were no worse than most of the fellows out there, but we did play cards to beat anything.

THEY'D DONE ENOUGH SHOOTING.

"One night—and you can bet I shall never forget it—there was a game going on. One fellow had been losing right along for several days and had got pretty sore. This night his luck was as bad, or worse than it had been, and he lost all his money, and, in fact, about everything he had, and his anger got the upper hand of him. One fellow seemed to have been more lucky that night than all the rest of us, and very naturally the fellow who had lost felt particularly bitter toward this chap, and in a moment of rage he said the thing that never—among us fellows—fails to bring out a gun. He said the winner had cheated. Knowing full well himself the result of such a charge, his pistol was out as soon as the words, and in a blind rage he fired. Close as was his intended victim, his anger unsteadied his arm and he failed to hit him. His position was such that he faced the door of the cabin. This door, unevenly hung, would, when opened, swing to of its own accord, and in the excitement of the moment no one had noticed the door open and close, but before a word could be spoken there came to us the sound of a fall and a groan.

"Two at least of those who sat there in a kind of awe stricken wonderment, as the smoke circled in clouds around the room, heard that noise. They jumped to their feet and passed outside. The rest of us were too much excited to notice anything except the combatants: both had their guns out now and had jumped for shelter, each eager to pepper the other, but before another shot could be fired an occurrence took place that made us instantly forget our excitement of a moment before. The two boys who had gone out returned. As they pushed open the door it could be seen they were carrying some burden. In a moment they were in the room, and one of them said, in a voice sad and solemn: 'Boys, I guess you have done shooting enough for one night. Do you see what you have done?' They laid the form they were bearing gently down upon the floor and we all rushed forward to see who it was. It was poor English. He had been sitting all alone while we were carousing and had just attempted to enter when a bullet, intended for another, went through his heart. English was dead, and all we knew of him was the nickname we had ourselves given him. He had never told us of his friends, and we could only bury him and put a slab at the head of his grave, on which was scrawled as best we could the one word "English." Perhaps his friends or relatives are still waiting for him to return. They will never see him, nor will hundreds of other friends see those they are hoping and expecting to see. They lie in lonely graves on the open plains, unmarked except by nicknames."—Chicago Herald.

He who has grown weary of remaining at home often goes forth and suddenly returns, inasmuch as he discovers he is nothing better for being abroad.—Lucretius.

About Thermometers.

Thermometers are liable to inaccuracies even when most carefully constructed. The freezing point is liable to be temporarily depressed or elevated, a temporary fall occurring after the thermometer has been subjected to great heat and a temporary elevation after it has been repeatedly cooled. There is also a permanent elevation, which may amount to two degrees, and which is caused by the atmospheric pressure on the bulb; therefore, a thermometer tube after being filled should be allowed to remain for two or three years before graduation.—New York World.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused those to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot, I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S COLUMN.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap, but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

BRADFORD GOODS in stripes and checks at 10c. a yard, fresh goods, new colors.

Those wishing to have their dresses made up can have them done on the premises if necessary by our dressmaker, Miss Mercier, who has given up her own business to take charge of this department.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.—They will gladden your eyes, perhaps cheer your hearts and touch your pocket book. Gently have you noticed the progress in the art of making them so natural. They cheat you into touching or smelling to test their reality.

OH! OLGA, BE MY BALM!

A WOODSTOCK DOCTOR WHO SAID HE WAS LIKE A SPONGE.

Miss Niemier of Neustadt Squeezes Him $1500 Worth—A Spicy Breach of Promise Trial at Walkerton.

WALKERTON, March 12.—The spring session of the High Court of Justice for the County of Bruce opened here to-day before Mr. Justice Street. Mr. King of Berlin has charge of the Crown business, on which however he won't get fat, as there are only four cases, but one of which is of any consequence. There are 13 civil cases, several of which were disposed of to-day and none of which are out of the ordinary run excepting a breach of promise suit between a young lady named Miss Olga Niemier, daughter of Dr. Niemier of Neustadt, and Dr. Charles Karn of Woodstock.

Miss Niemier is rather a good looking young girl of 18 and has hitherto been a student at the Walkerton High School. Dr. Karn admitted his intention of marrying her, but he changed his mind when another girl got after him. He married the other girl and then pleaded that Miss Niemier did not grow big enough to suit his æsthetic taste.

As a means of enabling the jury to fix the damages, Dr. Karn's love letters to the young lady were read in Court to the great amusement of the crowd. They are daisies. Here are a few extracts:

MY DEAR OLGA: I received your sweet, sweet little letter on Thursday evening and was more than usually struck with its goodness and purity. My sweet, kind, generous Olga, I can't help thinking that, like a sponge, I am good at absorbing but very poor at giving anything out, but when you see me again you must squeeze me and, like the sponge with its moisture, so I with the sweetness you have given me, squeeze me and you will get it all back.

I got just a lovely Christmas card, my dear Olga. You must have extra good taste to pick out such a beautiful card. The color means love, the wishes were love, the roses mean love, the forget-me-nots mean true love, the lily-of-the-valley indicates a return of friendship. My darling Olga, I will always keep the card and [illegible] it as a love offering.

My own darling Olga, I love you more and more every time I hear from you. There is no room in my heart for any other lady and never will be.

When I decided to go to Neustadt I little expected to be all broken up in small pieces, but in that respect was agreeably surprised. I have wandered in society a good deal and was never before able to draw any distinction between my lady friends, but at last I have found the lady of my dreams. As some author puts it, "there is balm in Gilead," there is a physician there. Oh! Olga, be my balm. You will never have cause to regret it. Here is five lines of poetry:

How dreary and lone
The world would appear,
If women were none;
It would be like a fair
With neither fun nor business there.

You are the very light of my life and no matter where I go your sweet and loving nature seems to follow me like the spirit of a dream, loving, loving, loving.

Beecher says that when there is love in the heart there are rainbows in the eyes which cover every black cloud with gorgeous hues. * * Common as light is, love and its familiar voice wearies not ever.

I met a golden haired boy and a golden haired maid on the train, and they were as spooney as spooney could be. I like a little of that kind of thing myself, but I like it strictly private.

Where thy shadow falls,
Beauty sits and music calls,
Where thy form and favor come,
All good creatures have their home.

Like the lily-of-the-valley if you live at all it must be in an atmosphere congenial to your nature on which you can shed the sweetness of your nature on all.

You send a kiss by letter,
Like other fruit, to me,
It sweeter tastes and better
Fresh gathered from the tree.

I appreciate the kiss the more, for I know if it were possible you would help me to gather the fruit. Dearest Olga, I have been trying for about five minutes to express a thought: how much and how dearly I love you, but words seem to be meaningless symbols in expressing such depths of thought and feeling. * * *

Dear Olga, although I am not pretty I try to be good, and earnestly each day ask God to make me better. Dear Olga, my heart is yours with the same burning, ardent love which I have always cherished for you since our acquaintance. * * * We had a patient in the Hospital to-day from Carlsruhe complaining of [illegible] of the œsophagus. * *

[illegible] evangelist, is getting along [illegible] that over 100 were converted at the [illegible] meeting.

[illegible] the storms are long,
[illegible] a cheerful song,
When the rude winds rock the tree,
Will you closer cling to me?

Never before have I been able to so thoroughly appreciate the worthlessness of words in expressing the deep regret one has at parting with the one he loves above all others. Although the parting was a simple kiss and a good-bye, still my heart is left with you. It is yours, my dear, and yours alone forever.

When you get back to Walkerton don't study too hard. The kiss you sent me was very nice, although it was indirect, but when I think of the direct one I got while in Neustadt I can't help saying:

You sent a kiss by letter,
Like other fruit, to me,
It sweeter tastes and better
Fresh gathered from the tree.

Notwithstanding the eloquence of Mr. Blackstock on behalf of Dr. Karn, the jury gave a verdict of $1500 for the young lady.

SCOTT ACT REPEAL.

WOODSTOCK, March 12.—The Woodstock Town Council is at present in a sadly demoralized condition as one of the disastrous results of the St. George accident. At the regular meeting last night there were seven vacant chairs. It is impossible to get a quorum together, but necessary business is transacted and will be ratified in the future. The session last night was the shortest and dullest on record, the surviving members apparently not yet having recovered from the shock.

The nomination to fill the vacant seats is announced for next Monday. It is not likely an election will be demanded.

The petition for the repeal of the Scott Act in the County of Oxford was deposited in the registry office to-day. It is claimed by the repealers to contain about 4000 signatures, while only 3000 are necessary. A committee from each township is to examine the petition on behalf of the anti-repealers, and there is some talk of publishing the whole list.

THE MONEY OF THE LEAGUE.

A FRESH REPORTER FROM CORK GETS INTO TROUBLE.

LONDON, March 12.—The Parnell Commission resumed its sitting to-day. An accountant testified to having examined the books of the Hibernian Bank, but was unable to trace the persons to whom the money or checks were paid, or whence the checks came. Between November, 1879, and September, 1882, the League received £261,200, and paid out £261,276. The bank refused to allow witness to examine its lodgment slips. The League paid to the Ladies' League £12,306, and to the Relief Fund £2025, and disbursed £10,000 in the defence of prisoners.

Witness further testified that he had examined the League's books. The total receipts in 1883 amounted to £11,069, of which America sent £1000 and Australia and New Zealand £8000. In 1884 the receipts were £11,506, in 1885 £18,000, and in 1886 £17,615. The National League's total receipts amounted to £100,613.

Sir Henry James, counsel for The Times, applied for an order for the examination of Mr. Parnell's private account with the National Bank.

Mr. Parnell gave assent to such an examination.

Mr. Coffee, a reporter from Cork, testified that he had made a statement to a policeman who promised him that he should be paid beyond his greatest expectations. Witness declared that that statement was absolutely false. This evidence created a sensation. Coffee said he purposely made the statement he gave to the policeman sensational, because he knew it would take. He received £115 from The Times.

He Proved Them Forgeries.

BRUSSELS, March 12.—In a trial of a will suit here to-day the English handwriting expert Netherclift caused a sensation by stating he had proved to Mr. Parnell the Pigott letters were forgeries.

One of Many.

LONDON, March 12.—Henry Campbell, M.P., the private secretary of Mr. Parnell, has brought suit for libel against The London Times. The trial will probably take place in May. The suit is founded partly on the opening speech by Attorney-General Webster in the case of O'Donnell v. Walter and partly on a leading editorial in The Times of July 7 last. This suit is the first of a series to be brought against The Times.

Adopted the Plan.

LONDON, March 12.—Right Hon. Charles Villiers, the eldest member of the House of Commons, has, in spite of his 87 years and his politics, adopted the Plan of Campaign. He lives in a house at Chelsea, owned by Earl Cadogan, and as the old mansion stands in the way of certain street improvements, His Lordship wants to pull it down. A notice of eviction has been served upon Villiers, and he declines to recognize it in any way. The old chap has taken to his bed, and says he will remain there until his noble landlord shall consent to take a more reasonable view of his rights.

A Gladstonian Elected.

LONDON, March 12.—The election in the Barnsley division of Yorkshire, to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the retirement of Mr. Kenny (Liberal), resulted in the return of Lord Compton (Gladstonian), who received 6332 votes, against 3781 for his opponent, Mr. Wentworth (Conservative). At the last election Kenny received 5425 and Wentworth 2917.

The National Defences.

A RANK SWINDLE.

How a Middlesex Farmer Was Let in for $440—The "Red Lion" Discounted.

AVON, March 12.—A swindle that leaves the "Red Lion" a long way behind happened near this place not long ago. On Jan. 23 an elegantly dressed young couple, handsome and gay, drove up to a wealthy farmer's residence accompanied by a young man whom he introduced as Rev. B. L. Simes. The young man told the farmer that he was on his road to Ingersoll to be married, but just a short distance from here they met the minister, and noticing your beautiful place the bride remarked that she would rather be married out there than go into Ingersoll, and if he would allow them to be united in marriage in his house and be provided with a wedding dinner he would be well rewarded.

The farmer, being an accommodating man, readily consented and preparations soon began. A groomsman and bridesmaid were furnished from the good man's family and the marriage ceremony performed by the man of much grace, who gave the blushing bride a certificate, but before doing so he asked the obliging host to sign as a witness, which of course was done. A jollier party never sat down to a wedding dinner than they, in fact, everybody enjoyed a rare treat. They stayed until about 4 o'clock, when the groom handed the farmer $40 in gold to compensate him for his trouble and took his departure, accompanied by his new wife and the minister.

Everything passed off lovely for about a week, when a collector presented a $440 note due on Feb. 1. The farmer was greatly surprised and it was some time before he could think what note it could be. However, it came to his memory that he had a wedding at his house a while ago, and now he had to foot up to the tune of $440. There is no doubt but this whole affair was a deep-laid plot, and had been some time in maturing. The young married couple and the minister are away on a visit, and it is not likely they will return very soon.

H. Lamb, as collector of revenue.

Game Cocks Confiscated.

HAMILTON, March 12.—On Feb. 16 a raid was made on a barn owned by Mrs. E. Taylor, 374 Hughson-street north, suspecting that a cock-fight was being held there. The constables did not arrive in time to capture the sports, they having escaped over a fence, but they captured eleven game cocks and a lot of paraphernalia that were to be used in the battle. The police have since retained possession of the chickens. At the police court this morning Mrs. Taylor was charged with allowing a cock-pit on her premises. She admitted that the pit was there, but claimed that she had no knowledge of it until the police made the raid. The magistrate fined her $2. He confiscated the eleven game cocks, and ordered that they be sold.

It is quite likely that we shall go to Rochester and thence to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore. We expect to be from home about ten days."

HOURS OF SPEECHMAKING

THE DEBATE ON THE BUDGET CONTINUED IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Cook's Bill to Amend the Civil Service Act—The Advance Guard of the Boodle Brigade in the Lobby.

OTTAWA, March 12.—In the House yesterday Mr. Cook introduced a bill to amend the Civil Service Act. Mr. Cook said his bill was for the purpose of giving Canadians the preference in civil service appointments and that foreigners, "even though they came from the British Islands," shall take a back seat. "This bill," said Mr. Cook, "will prevent anyone from getting into the civil service who has not lived in Canada at least five years."

Sir John Thompson sent up a bill amending the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, providing that where a judge from a court below who had been appointed to a place on the bench of the Supreme Court and who had heard any action in the court below that was on appeal in the Supreme Court, then four judges would constitute a quorum for hearing the case. There was also a provision for appeals on assessment from British Columbia.

The debate on the Budget was opened by Dr. John Ferguson of Welland. He said that he knew the Americans and their institutions well and while he had the greatest admiration for their progressiveness yet he would not admit that they were the only nation on earth which had been visited with prosperity. Canada had advanced marvellously during the past two decades and she was advancing still. If the Canadians would join hand in hand and be true to themselves within the life of the average middleaged men we would see this country expanded into one of the finest lands on earth. "It might not be as populous, but it certainly would be as rich and as prosperous as any of them."

Mr. Colter of Haldimand, made his first speech in Parliament in answer to Dr. Ferguson. Mr. Colter's address was delivered with effect. He was accorded the earnest ear of his party and a great many of the Government benches. Mr. Colter followed the arguments of Sir Richard Cartwright and other Liberal leaders in favor of the freest trade with the United States.

Mr. Landry of New Brunswick spoke at length, dwelling on the advancement of Canada.

Mr. Perry of Prince Edward Island said that just as soon as the sun would rise and set to-morrow there would be a change of Government within a very short time. "It cannot come any too soon, either," he remarked.

Mr. Daly of Manitoba talked Canada forever for over half an hour.

Mr. Campbell of Kent made a lively attack on the alleged extravagance of the Government, and he said the proposal to add $71,000 of taxes annually to the burdens of the people by increasing the salaries of the judges was the most diabolical measure that the Minister of Justice ever submitted to this Parliament.

Mr. Wood of Westmoreland moved the adjournment of the debate.

The House adjourned at midnight.

THE BOODLE BRIGADE.

OTTAWA, March 12.—The advance guard of Jack Keenan's brigade of boodlers, who are coming over to buy up the Canadian Parliament against Dr. Weldon's surrender of Crooks Bill, arrived in Ottawa to-night from the west. He at once proceeded to the Parliament Buildings and readily gained admission to the Speaker's gallery. He is a handsome looking man of about 32, and shortly after his arrival in the gallery was joined by an elderly, gray-haired gentleman. I recognized in the younger man a person who was not unknown in the Toronto bucket shops a few years ago, but for the present I will not name him.

I learned on worthy authority that these two workers will quietly and calmly survey the situation, and if they think there is any possibility of defeating Dr. Weldon's bill by the use of money they will inform Keenan, who is now in New York. It is not likely that they would put up money except there was a dead certainty of defeating the bill, as far as its retroactive clauses are concerned at least.

I afterward learned that the two men, the younger and the elder, arrived by different routes, one of them coming from New York via Ogdensburg and the other from Chicago via Detroit and Toronto. They will probably be surprised to learn that one of Commissioner Sherwood's men is already "shadowing" them, but such is a fact.

THE ART EXHIBITION.

Opening of the Royal Canadian Academy's Annual Show.

OTTAWA, March 12.—Lord and Lady Stanley of Preston and a number of prominent Canadians were present at the opening of the annual exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts at the national gallery here this evening. Among those present were Sir Charles and Lady Tupper, Lady Macdonald, Sir James Grant and Hon. G. W. Allan.

Mr. L. R. O'Brien of Toronto, the president of the Academy, made an address of welcome to Their Excellencies, in reply to which Lord Stanley said he hoped that those who were connected with the management of the Academy would endeavor to encourage its members to attain to that due study and recognition of artistic principles that lead to artistic fame. He could not sit down without saying that he hoped the walls of this academy would soon be filled with the best works of Canadian artists marked by a distinct Canadian type. In this country they had landscapes which would tempt the pencil of any artist. Surely with such materials before them he had no doubt they would in time be able to furnish their academy with a collection that would be worthy of the proud place which they all hoped to see their Dominion attain among the nations of the world.

A vote of thanks to the Government for the use of the national gallery for the exhibition of the academy was moved by Senator Allan. Sir Charles Tupper, who seconded the motion, said he thought the Government was doing no more than its duty in giving its countenance and aid to this academy. The time had come when the condition of a country was measured by its art, literature and science. When a country had reached the development that Canada had the time had come when there must be progress in art, literature and science. There was no more appropriate occasion than this, he said in conclusion, to repeat the last words which the Princess Louise had said to him on leaving England. She had asked him to say to all Canadians that she still continued to have a deep interest in Canada and Canadians, and to remember her in the kindest and warmest terms to her friends in Canada. [Applause.]

The collection of oil and water colors which the Governor-General and Lady Stanley inspected afterward included pictures by these artists of Montreal: W. Raphael, R. Harris, W. Brimner, O. R. Jacobi, A. T. Taylor.

Among the Toronto exhibitors are: L. R. O'Brien in oil, water colors, etchings, statuary, etc.; J. T. Ralph, J. K. Lawson, J. C. Forbes, W. A. Sherwood, G. A. Reid, Hamilton McCarthy, (in statuary), Strickland and Symons, M. Matthews, Seymour Penson and others.

A BOARD OF TRADE.

A practical movement has been made towards organizing or re-organizing a Board of Trade in Peterborough. It is true that such an institution formerly existed here, and that at its head were energetic and prominent men. But other places that have had a similar experience are moving to have their Boards of Trade again established.

There are many matters with which a Board of Trade can deal with advantage. The business of Peterborough has grown largely, and with the large commercial and manufacturing trade carried on here it would be surprising if there was nothing regarding which business men could take united action for their common good and for the benefit of the town.

A correspondent who discussed this question a short time ago in the Review instanced several matters that could and should be dealt with by a Board of Trade, among them being better train arrangements and market day tickets at reduced fares for people coming here to do business, and another an endeavor to secure more of the trade of the northern townships for the town. As matters stand at present trade that would naturally find its way to Peterborough is forced in another direction on account of better travelling accommodation.

Other matters would naturally come up, and the Board could give the Town Council material aid in securing additional industries for the town and in other ways. In Port Hope, where considerable has been done towards securing new industries, the negotiations were conducted by a Citizens Committee, composed of members of the Council and other citizens. In forming this committee the Port Hope Council recognized the value of the aid of citizens who were not councillors, and a Board of Trade would be in an even better position to render assistance.

The names signed to the requisition asking the Mayor to call a public meeting to organize a Board show that the desirability of having such an organization is recognized. The value of the organization, of course, depends largely on its membership, and merchants, manufacturers, professional men, mechanics, and all interested in the advancement of the town, should make a point of giving their assistance in furthering this object.

ORGANIZE!

Under the above heading the Empire says there is good ground for the belief that Mr. Mowat intends to spring an election upon the Province before the full term of the Legislature has expired. The Review expressed that belief a couple of months ago, and occurrences since then have tended to confirm that opinion. The chief organ has more than once called upon the members of that party to attend to having the names of all who would favor that party placed upon the collectors' roll so that they would appear on the voters' list, and this is advice that the Conservatives should follow. Whether the election takes place this year or next, it is almost certain that the voting will be upon the lists made up from the rolls of this year. In an adjoining county a circular has been issued calling upon the Liberals to attend to this matter at once, and why would this be done if an election was not to take place? Organize and be prepared is timely and good advice for the opponents of Mr. Mowat's tricky and extravagant Government to adopt and act upon.

In the article referred to the Empire says:—"It behooves our friends, therefore, to set to work in every part of the province and be ready for the enemy. At the moment when it is least expected the election will suddenly be announced. That event must find every Conservative in Ontario ready to deal a blow at a Government guilty of the most wicked misuse of the power granted it and the grossest deception of the people. Every vestige of confidence in the honesty of the Mowat Government has departed, and its end is near. A plan to catch the electorate unawares is evidently afoot, and such urgent meetings as that mentioned elsewhere as being called by the Grits in the riding of East York is a proof of this. Let no one be deceived by assertions that the present Legislature's existence will not be curtailed. We warn our friends everywhere that the intention is to try and catch the people napping, and the utmost vigilance and activity must be shown from this time onward. Organize!"

The Plate Glass trade has become an important feature in Canada. No business house would now dream of having the old sheet glass windows. Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. McCausland & Son, Toronto, supplys by far the largest quantity in Canada.

TORONTO TOPICS.

An Alleged Bucket Shop Raided and Eight Inmates Arrested.

Toronto, March 13.—Acting on the authority of Police Magistrate Denison, Staff Inspector Archibold and a posse of detectives and policemen yesterday morning visited the office of Joseph Priestman, the King-street broker, and arrested all the occupants. The names as registered at police headquarters are these:

Joseph Priestman, broker; Francis J. Spears, telegraph operator; Charles Priestman, clerk; J. C. Miller alias Millichamp, commission merchant; Thomas Galbraith, reporter; George Barret Foster, clerk; Walter Armour, William McBroom, insurance agent.

The Police Magistrate fixed bail at two sureties of $100 each, which was promptly forthcoming. In addition to making the arrests, the Inspector seized the entire office outfit, consisting of telegraphic apparatus, telephone, forms for making and annulling contracts, etc. Inspector Archibold says the case is a good one and will come up under the Abbott Act. Mr. Galbraith, commercial editor of The Globe, who went there for quotations for his regular market report, is not a bit tickled over the joke of being arrested. Mr. E. S. Cox, who was just going upstairs when the detectives with their prisoners were coming down, thought he had a lucky escape, and the general public will watch the proceedings with particular interest to see if the case will end in as complete a fiasco as the previous experience of Inspector Archibold with the bucket shop business.

Arbitrations seem to be the order of the day. The municipal authorities have half a dozen in hand and now the Ontario Government's Department of Education takes a hand in one. This is one between the department and the various large publishing houses with a view to fixing upon a definite price for school books so that for some years to come this important branch of the department will be managed satisfactorily, alike to the Government and the publishers. Every night the arbitrators meet at the Educational Department and will continue sitting nightly as far as possible, till their labors are finished.

The north platform at the Union Station was thronged last night as the C.P.R. emigrant trains for Manitoba and the Northwest pulled out sharp at 11 o'clock. The monster excursion was composed of nine freight and two passenger trains, containing 120 cars, 14 sleepers and 512 passengers, principally from the western part of Ontario and west of Toronto. It is expected that a still larger number will leave next Tuesday night. The passengers are all residents of Ontario and bound mostly for distant points.

A morning paper says that inner political circles were agitated yesterday by the rumor that Hon. A. M. Ross was about to resign the Provincial Treasurership. It was stated that on account of impaired hearing and a weariness of public life Mr. Ross would retire from the cabinet. He was to re-enter private life, and as soon as the Huron registrarship was vacant he would be presented with the office.

Before the Police Magistrate yesterday John Kelly, Thomas Sheehan and Timothy Sheehan were charged with assaulting and robbing Alonzo H. Nixon in the saloon corner of King and Princess-streets. Kelly was dismissed and called as a witness; Thomas Sheehan, an old offender, was sent to Penitentiary for three years, and Timothy was acquitted.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THE TWO HEADED GIRL.

Bill Nye Shows How Hard It Is to Be One.

Mr. Riley and I played in St. Louis against Millie Christine, the two headed nightingale. She is touring over the country this season accompanied by herself. A man who owns a lunch counter in Illinois is a hopeless lunatic because he could not decide whether to charge her for one meal or two. Her success has certainly been most remarkable. Starting out as she did, under the most adverse circumstances, not knowing for two or three years whether to regard herself as an anomaly or twins, she has a wonderfully placid career. Now she is shown wherever the English language is spoken. She is of African descent and as black as the deuce of spades. I say the deuce because the ace of spades is very rarely black, as I am informed; also because in her case a comparison with the two spot would be more appropriate anyway.

What I like about Mlle. Christine more especially is her harmonious disposition. Had she been otherwise, it would have been fatal to her success. A two headed girl relies very much on the friendly feeling existing between her two sets of heads for her popularity. Should eyether head fall out with the other, nyether would succeed. So it will not do for one to be jealous of the success of the other. When one head sings soprano and is encored, and if the other head gets hot and wants to quit, it worries the management and breaks up the show. No two headed girl can succeed when the relations are strained. Supposing that the soprano desired to eat onions for supper in order to improve her voice, of course the alto has a right, owning a half interest in the same stomach, to object, provided that the nut brown flavor of onions is distasteful to her; and yet these two people get along together, as they have for years, without any bickerings at all and still under the same management.

Supposing again that the soprano is sleepy after a prolonged matinee and evening performance, answering repeated encores; she therefore desires to go to sleep at once, while the alto, who has had no encores to answer, would like to have the gas burning and read "Robert Elsmere."

One can readily see that in an ordinary musical combination this would break up the show in five minutes, but it is not so with the two headed nightingale.

The two headed nightingale dresses alike. For receptions she wears a pink foulard silk with a limited train to it. Revers are sewn on the side and draped over panels of wash goods. The train is supported by folds of wiggin and connects with all points east, west, north and south. A large cameo made to resemble a fried egg, depends from a delicate chain about the neck. The dress is worn decollete. I asked the alto what her opinion was of this style of dress as a feature of the approaching administration. She said, of course it could be made more or less of a feature, according to the taste and good judgment of the wearer, but she did not favor it as an extremist. She said that where the whole company could be regarded as ladies and gentlemen, there could be no objection to the custom. Those who were a little doubtful about themselves and afraid they lacked some of the essential elements necessary to civilization, could avoid all trouble by remaining at home. This is not her exact language, for I have edited it a little myself in order to give it that polish which characterizes all my work.

Miss Christine says that whether the new administration encourages the decollete dress at Washington or introduces a fur collar and yarn mittens, she will still cling to the old custom. She says that if the English lady with two yards of throat can saw off two or three dollars' worth of goods from the top of her dress with impunity, the hardy American girl who drives a reaper and husks corn in our rough climate ought to be able to put in a few weeks at Washington in full dress. I have always said that a true lady will not seek to escape entirely through the top of her costume, but a pleasant sweep of undulating neck and round, well molded arms adds to to the general beauty of the scene from an artistic standpoint. Those who go into a sculptor's studio half afraid that they will be raided by the police, would naturally denounce the decollete dress, and they are right about it, too. They know their own hearts pretty well and are evidently afraid that the authorities will also find out about it.—Bill Nye in New York World.

A Waning Festival.

St. Valentine's day, like other holiday and amusement days in America, appears to be on the decline, and it receives less and less attention from the public as the years go by. There was a time, and not very long ago, when the day was hailed as a harbinger of good feeling, the interchange of soft and tender sentiments between lovers and friends, and pleasant reminiscences generally. Its coming was looked forward to with interest. But now a vast majority of people never think of the day unless attracted to it by some of the unsightly caricatures seen in the shop windows on the public streets.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Young Men at the Top.

Quite a noticeable feature connected with the settlement of Dakota is the number of young men between the ages of 21 and 35 making up her population. They predominate, whether on the farm, in the trades, professions and business undertakings, or in political and official management of territorial and local affairs, and give to every enterprise that push and ambitious effort which has made a national reputation for the people.—Harper's Magazine.

True Blue Endorsation.

At the regular meeting held in the True Blues' Hall last evening a resolution was moved and unanimously carried endorsing the action of the Grand Orange Lodge at Campbellford and of the mass meeting held in the Pavilion, Toronto, condemning the Quebec Legislature in the grant to the Order of Jesuits.

At the Opera House.

"Michael Strogoff" was put on the boards at the Opera House last evening to a good audience. The play, as is known, is a good and the company producing it last night was a strong one on the whole, but the fact that the scenery could not be placed on the stage here detracted a great deal from the successful presentation of the drama, as the scenery is one of the strong features. However the audience was pleased with the performance.

On the Ice.

Making Final Arrangements.

A meeting of the local branch of the Irish National League took place in the Murray-st. school evening, for the purpose of making final arrangements for the concert and lecture on the 18th of March. The President, Mr. Thos. Cahill, being absent, the vice-president, Mr. G. J. Leonard, presided. The secretary had communicated with those who had been expected to contribute to the programme of the concert and had received favorable replies. The other minor details and arrangements were then completed and that the event will be a coming success is about assured, as the concert programme is an excellent one and the speaker of the evening, Mr. J. J. Curran, M.P., is an eloquent and interesting speaker.

Peterborough's Request.

The councillors who left yesterday morning for Toronto to interview the Government succeeded in getting the audience with the Attorney-General. The Globe gave the result of their mission as follows:—"A deputation from Peterborough, composed of the following, waited on the Attorney-General after the House rose at 6 o'clock:—T. Cahill, R. S. Davidson, W. Langford, A. Rutherford, E. H. D. Hall and J. D. Baptie. They asked the Government to so amend the Act consolidating the debt of the town in 1881 that the Council would be placed in a position to borrow $60,000 for school purposes. The Attorney-General regretted that the Government could not comply with the request made, the only way to give Peterborough the privilege asked for being through a private bill." The deputation is in Hamilton to-day to inspect the new market building there. Mr. E. H. D. Hall did not go to Hamilton but returned home last night.

A FIGHT BEFORE BREAKFAST.

A Father and Son vs. Husband and Wife.

A little of backwoods life was ventilated in the Police Court this morning, when an assault case from Galway was laid before the Police Magistrate for judgement. There were quite a number of the Galway residents in the court to hear the trial. Wm. Reynard charged Arthur Dewdney, senior, and his son Arthur with having committed an assault upon himself and his wife on the morning of Wednesday, 6th March. The elder Dewdney was a weak looking individual who looked as though he had been on a sick bed for some time, as he said he had, while the son was a strapping six-footer who had the appearance of one who had nothing to fear from other mortals as far as bodily harm was concerned.

THE ASSAULT.

Wm. Reynard, the complainant, told his story first. He had been working for the Dewdney's but had had a quarrel with the elder about his work and had quit work the day before the assault. He said the two Dewdneys came to the house before breakfast on Wednesday morning and the son came in first without knocking. The father followed and invited Reynard out into the yard to fight his son Arthur. Reynard refused to go whereupon, he alleged, the two Dewdneys attacked him, the elder hitting him across the head with a mop handle. Reynard's wife then came to the rescue with a long boot and Dewdney senior turned on her and knocked her down while the son amused himself with the husband.

Mrs. Reynard corroborated her husband's story in every particular.

THE ACCUSED'S STORY.

Arthur Dewdney, senior, then told his side of the story, and from his language and the manner in which he gave his evidence, it was evident that he was above the average backwoodsmen as regards general information and education. He pleaded his own case and did it eloquently too. He said that Reynard had been hired to work in the woods by him at $16 a month or more if he remained and gave satisfaction. He told of the quarrel with Reynard in the woods about his work and said the latter would have been discharged long ago only he had drawn his wages ahead. From his evidence it appeared that Reynard had used some very ill-chosen English towards him and his son, and had vaunted of what he could do with either of them in the fighting line. On Wednesday evening last Reynard was to have come up to their house for a settlement of his wages, but, not coming, he and his son had gone down to Reynard's house. His boy was a little riled at the things that Reynard had been saying about him, and invited the complainant out into the yard to settle it. Reynard refused and then the fight ensued in which the four were concerned—Reynard and his wife and Dewdney and his son. The father said he did not hit the woman, but when she came at him with a heavy long boot, he pushed her away and sent her sprawling on the floor.

THE JUDGMENT.

The Magistrate, while he admitted that perhaps Reynard had not been a good workman and had used bad and insulting language in speaking of the Dewdneys, said still he must look only at the assault in question, when it appeared that the two Dewdney's went to Reynard's with the intention of quarreling. He said it was from such quarrels as this that terrible crimes resulted, and he would have to find them guilty of assault. He fined them $3 and costs ($5.65) each.

Mr. G. M. Roger appeared for the complainant.

"Faith vs. Formalism."

The above is the subject on which Rev. J. D. Cayley will speak in St. John's Church this evening. The lecturer proposes to briefly consider a few religious usages and customs as practised by different bodies of men to-day, with a view to distinguishing what is merely human containing seeds of death, from what, on the other hand, is living and Divine. Many who are unable to be present earlier may by coming at 8.30 hear the address which promises to be deeply interesting. Rev. Mr. Cayley will not be in the church himself until this time, as he will only reach town by the 7.50 train.

THE TWO EVANGELISTS

STILL ATTRACTING IMMENSE AUDIENCES AT GEORGE-ST.

Many Turned away last Evening—Addresses by both of the Rev. Gentlemen—The Belleville Excursion.

Again scores and scores were turned away from the George-st. Church last night, standing room even being at a very low discount. There was a grand array of divines upon the platform, the Methodist ministers from the district having been called to a district meeting by Rev. Mr. Pearson. Besides the local ministers Rev. Messrs. McAmmond, of Fenelon Falls, Parker, of Kinmount, Burns, of Millbrook, McCamus, of Fraserville, Greatrix, of Cavan, and Johnson, of Lakefield, were on the platform.

THURSDAY NIGHT.

After the opening programme of singing and prayer had been gone through with, Rev. Mr. Hunter rose to give his usual short address and read the evening lesson. After telling the people not to think or talk of the evangelists or the meetings, but to allow their thoughts to centre on God, he went on to speak of the meeting on Thursday night. He said that they expected fully two hundred people from Belleville, and that they would have the experiences of these converts from the mayor of that city down to he didn't know what kind of a man. He said, of course, the Belleville people would have to be given seats in the church, and with the usual congregation the church would be far too small and they therefore intended to ask all the children under twelve years of age to remain at home on Thursday evening, and perhaps that they would ask all their elder friends over sixty not to come out on that night, although they were always delighted to see both the young and old at every meeting. He then pointed out and spoke of five important "d's". The first was death and the second the dance. Speaking of the latter and card playing, the rev. gentleman said, "Go and ask Mrs. Hunter if you can play cards in her home and see how soon she will put you out. I would just as leave play cards here on this table as in my own home." He next told his audience they should guard against dirt in the house and wives should try to make their homes as cheerful as possible. The fourth "d" was

DRINK.

He said he would like to go into some of of their cellars and see what was there. Some of them perhaps had wine on the table but, he said, God help the mother who sets wine before her boy, not knowing what the result may be. Some said they didn't believe in the Scott Act, but he believed in anything at all that would help to do away with this great curse of our country. He wouldn't buy groceries from a man who sold liquor, for they didn't know when, if they sent their boy to the store, that grocer might take him around and give him liquor. His last "d" was the devil. Mr. Hunter then read as the lesson the fifth chapter of Luke commenting, as usual, freely upon the verses, during the course of which he said too many men were fishing near the shore. They should launch out into the deep. They had to fish different ways and with different bait to catch different kinds of fish and so it was when fishing for men. If they wanted to catch a mud cat they would have to go down in the mud, and so on for every different kind of men. Some of the old men might say, "I don't like your ways," and perhaps these very same men in their way never saved a soul in their life. They needed a little fire sometimes to scare some people, and he said he didn't care how they got a man to Christ as long as they got him there. They required more tact if they were going to catch men. Talent was all right, but there was a difference. Talent was knowledge, tact was skill; talent convinced, tact converted.

Rev. Mr. Crossley then sang a beautiful solo, entitled "Papa, what will you take for me?"

PRAY FOR THEM.

The special requests were then the object of silent prayer. They were for a lady in Toronto, a friend in town, for a brother who did not attend the meetings, for three sons and daughters, for a father and mother, for two young men—one in town and one not—for a brother, for another brother, for a young man who is indifferent, for a husband, for a father, for three sons and daughters, for an uncle and an aunt, for six brothers and for a brother.

THE TEXT OF HIS CONVERSION.

After the brief and earnest prayers for those special requests had been offered Rev. Mr. Crossley rose to deliver his song sermon. On coming forward he said:—"I shall never forget the text of this evening, for it was this text that brought me to conviction and ultimately to Christ. I did not ever forget it nor will any of you if through it you are saved this evening. If you are saved and go to Heaven you will never forget it and if you should not listen to it and go for eternity to hell you will never forget it." The words were:—

"Not saved."—Jeremiah viii, 20.

The rev. gentleman then eloquently and with feeling and earnestness pointed the unsaved to their duty, showed them their opportunities, and urged them to seek salvation. Throughout his sermon Rev. Mr. Crossley dropped in several hymns which besides being appropriate were sung with great expression and feeling.

At the close of the address the invitation to rise extended to those who felt they were Christians or were desirous of starting on the way was responded to by a large number.

The major part of the congregation remained to the after meeting.

NOTES.

The Belleville excursion will come and return the same evening.

On Sunday night the professed converts numbered seventy-five and on Monday night eighty-five.

A good meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the Mark-st. Church, Ashburnham, and was largely attended.

The subject for to-night's meeting is "Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost."

Brevities.

—Grand weather.

—There were no arrests last night.

—The roads are in a pretty bad state.

—The Court of Chancery opens here on Friday next.

—The first locomotive crossed Hunter-st. to-day on the Dickson spur.

—The True Blues will hold a grand Ball in their hall on Friday evening, March 15th.

—Carters, hackmen, livery and eating-house keepers should not delay longer in taking out their licenses.

—The Magistrate remarked this morning to the Galway parties at the Police Court that it would have been better if they had taken their dispute to a local magistrate instead of coming down here.

—The meeting of the Board of Trade of Belleville to discuss the best scheme for inducing manufacturers to that city did not result in any method being adopted. A committee was appointed to consider a scheme and report.

FROM CENTREVILLE

An Interesting Public Meeting of the Literary Society.

Correspondence of the Review.

THERE was an unusually large attendance at the entertainment given in the Agricultural Hall on the evening of Tuesday March 5th, by the Literary Society. Mr. Thomas Donaldson presided. An instrumental solo was given by Miss Lightfoot, a song by Mr. Steers, of Fraserville, a recitation by Miss Bessie Fair, a reading by Mr. Bell, a duet by the Misses Fair, a solo by Miss Edie Deyell and a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson that pleased the audience well. An interesting debate was held on the subject, "Resolved, that Married Life is Preferable to Single Life." Mr. Robert Brown led on the affirmative side and Mr. D. Deyell on the negative. The decision was in favor of the negative by a couple of points. A dialogue, "Cucumber Hill Debating Club," was well received. This was one of the most successful meetings of the Society.

The next meeting will be held on the evening of Tuesday, March 19th, when a challenge debate will take place between Bensford and Centreville on the question, "Resolved, that Nature tends more to the formation of character than Education." Dr. Ough, of Millbrook, has been invited to take the chair, and the programme will be an unusually attractive one. The proceeds will go to the Agricultural Society and a large attendance is looked for.

FROM ENNISMORE.

An Interesting Review of the Weather During February.

Correspondence of the Review.

OF all our winter months February is always considered the severest. This year it fully came up to the mark. It came in cold and stormy, continuing so with very few exceptions, although the snow fall was not extra heavy. We had some rattling gales, drifting the roads badly, the worst being on the night of the 21st, when a regular sou-wester set in a little after sundown, tearing up and blowing the snow in all directions, whirling away fences and causing houses to tremble to their very foundations and some narrow escapes from fire. Although there were several more they were of considerable less velocity. In summing up the cold we will first give below zero at sunrise, on the 1st at 6 degrees, the 3rd at zero, the 6th at 15 degrees, the 7th at 8 degrees, the 13th at 17 degrees, the 14th at 7 degrees, the 15th at 6 degrees, the 20th at 2 degrees, the 21st at 2 degrees, the 23rd at 12 degrees, the 24th at 14 degrees and the 25th at 14 degrees, and at sundown we had the following:—The 3rd at 4 degrees below, the 6 at 12 degrees, the 21 at zero, the 23rd at 2 degrees, the 24th at 4 degrees. According to my reckoning 17 degrees has been the coldest during February, but taking the 6th at morning, noon and night it exceeds the 13th by several degrees. It moderated during the day and at sundown stood at zero. The morning of the 17th was the warmest, being 36 at sunrise, leaving the temperature of the month at 11 degrees. Rain fell on one day, the 16th, but only to the depth of 15-100 of an inch. Snow fell on 12 days to the depth of 18 inches. Auroral light were seen only once, on the night of the 20th. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely:—North-west 12 days, north 1 day, south-east 3 days, east 2 days, south 4 days, south-west 2 days, north-east 1 day and west 2 days.

SMITH TOWNSHIP.

An Obituary Notice of an old Resident and a Poetical Tribute.

Correspondence of the Review.

ON the first of March one of Smith's few remaining first settlers passed away in the person of Jessie Inglies, relict of the late James Swinton, who came to this country from Etrick, Brigend, Scotland, in 1831, when there was no village where Peterborough now stands. There were no mills, stores or doctors here in those days, and Mr. Swinton had not even oxen, but carried his wheat on his back over the path to Cobourg to get it ground. Through all their hardships, such as only the first settlers knew, they made a home in Smith, where they resided during the remainder of their lives. Mr. Swinton died twelve years ago, aged 74 years. Mrs. Swinton was in her 81st year when she died. The following poetical tribute to her memory is from the pen of her daughter, Mrs. E. Pollock:—

On the first day of March,
 While friends around did weep,
She camly passed away,
 In Jesus fell asleep.

As wife she frugal was,
 As mother ever kind,
As neighbor none had cause
 A fault with with her to find.

But now she's lying low,
 Close by the Little Lake,
Next 'mong you who will go?
 Death tell's not whom he'll take

But be ye ready all
 While here on earth ye roam,
That when death on you calls
 Heaven may be your home

A Christean character she bore,
Her God and Saviour did adore;
On earth she lived a life of faith,
She loved her Saviour, feared not death.

She read the Bible every day,
And made the word of God her stay;
'Twas there she found the grace Divine
Which made her say, "His will is mine."

She often thought about the day
When she from earth would pass away,
And when it came, in heart could sing,
"Grave, where's thy victory? Death, thy sting?"

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

Experimental Work for Farmers.

The members of the Experimental Union are endeavoring to introduce a system of practical experiments, in which they solicit the co-operation of the farming community. The object is to inaugurate such experimental work as will be valuable to every farmer in the province.

These experiments are intended to be such as can be carried out by almost every farmer, with but little trouble or expense. The following are the experiments chosen for this year:—

1 A continuation of the experiments of 1888 on the same plots, without further application of fertilizers.

2. A test of superphosphate, dried blood, farm yard manure, and no manure with oats.

3. A comparison of the different systems of raising fodder corn.

The first is only to be undertaken by those who experimented with fertilizers in 1888; the second is to ascertain the value of some of our quick-acting and best known fertilizers. This experiment will prove especially valuable to small farms, grain and truck farms.

The third, the shortage of pasture and increased use of supplemental crops impresses upon them the need of the best methods of raising fodder for summer and winter use. With this object in view the experiment with corn was planned.

Other experiments are being arranged in stock feeding, dairying, horticulture and bee-keeping by different committees.

They solicit the help of farmers in this work, and ask them to apply to Mr. C. A. Zavitz, secretary of experiments, O. A. C., Guelph, for further information. The means being limited, those who apply first will be supplied with experimental material.

CHINA HALL

CHINA GLASS AND QUEENS W

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $34,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of Sèvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $6,000 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $3,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for as little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

so he went up to the infantry barracks and asked for Mr. Beresford, who was, he found, in his own room, whither he went in search of him.

Beautiful Jim was lying in a big chair with a novel and a pipe, enjoying the first half hour of rest he had had that day. He looked up and laughed as Tommy entered.

"Hallo, youngster, is that you? How are you?" he remarked, speaking in a more friendly and civil tone than his feelings would have indicated had they been on the surface.

Tommy sat himself down on the edge of the cot and informed Beautiful Jim, with a man about town air, that he felt "a bit chippy."

"And I don't wonder at it," returned the other, curtly. "You made a regular splash here last night."

It might have been the accent of rebuke in Beresford's tone, I know not, but certain it is that Tommy turned brazen all at once.

"That's a good thing," he remarked, airily. "I never like putting myself forward, but anything's better than mediocrity;" and with that he got up and shook himself out as it were, swaggering to the glass above the fireplace, and standing there just in front of Beautiful Jim's disgusted nose, preening himself as you may see a peacock preening his feathers in the sun.

It is safe to say that at that moment he fairly stunk in Beautiful Jim's nostrils.

"It's all very fine, youngster," he said, in a tone which he tried hard to make fairly civil; "but the sort of splash you made last night won't do any good in the regiment—not any good, but a good deal of harm. Why, —— it, mediocrity will stand you in good stead long after that kind of splash has sent you to the devil."

Tommy turned round with an innocent face.

"What did I do?" he asked. "I didn't stand on the table, did I?"

"Worse than that," returned Jim.

"I didn't call any one a —— cad, did I?"

"No; but you might have got over that in time if you had owned that your head wouldn't stand liquor."

"Then what did I do?" Tommy was beginning to get alarmed, and showed it. "I didn't shy the knives about, or anything of that sort, surely?"

Beautiful Jim burst out laughing. "Look here, young 'un," he remarked. "You've got a very fair notion of your own qualities, your position, your appearance, your—your everything. You're the last of the Earles"——

"D——n the Earles," put in Tommy, who had no sort of respect for his position as the last of a proud race, though he liked others to have, none better.

"With all my heart," said Jim. "It will do you no good in the Blankshire regiment ever to remember it again. But you're a youngster, a new idea, a scrap, a wart, as yet—and for you to give your opinion among field officers on subjects of which you are totally ignorant, and about which your opinion has not been even asked, is not the way to become a popular officer when you join. And then to back it all by trying to chaff Urquhart of the Black Horse, who's got the levelest head and the clearest judgment and the keenest wit and the most stinging tongue of any man in the British army, take it from one end to the other; Urquhart, who's the coolest, pluckiest beggar that ever lived—for a scrap like you to try and best him with your tongue—why, it's just ludicrous, and it won't do, Tommy, and the sooner you make up your mind to that the better."

It must be owned that Tommy's brave and brazen front had given place to utter dismay and consternation long before Beautiful Jim had come to an end of his remarks. His smooth young jaw fell to the length of a fiddle, and he looked in truth the picture of abject misery.

"What an ass I must have been!" he ejaculated.

"Well, you were," returned Jim, with delighted candor.

"And what a consummate fool the fellows must have thought me," he went on, never being above blaming himself when he found himself fairly cornered.

"They did," said Jim, promptly.

"And as for Col. Urquhart"— he continued, in a tone of despair so intense that Beautiful Jim relented somewhat and took pity on him.

"Oh, well, as to that," he said, in a tone of judicious deliberation, "as to that, I don't know that it matters very much what Urquhart thinks. Of course he's a devilish clever chap, and one it's best to keep on the right side of; but at the same time, Urquhart ain't your chief, and if he felt inclined to forget the fact, we should very soon make him remember it. It ain't so much what Urquhart 'll think of your cheeking him, as what our fellows 'll think of your cheeking Urquhart. D' you see?"

Tommy did see and was comforted on that point; but he was still terribly distressed in mind at what he had done.

"I don't know what I can do," he repeated, for about the twentieth time. "Oh, I think I'll send in my papers at once. I won't join at all."

"You young duffer!" laughed Beautiful Jim, "what rot you talk! Why, man alive, if you're going to sneak away from every mistake you make by making a clear bolt of it, how do you ever intend to make a decent soldier, or anything else?"

"But what must I do?"

"Live it down, of course. You'll get chaffed about it forever, but you must make up your mind to bear it; and, after all, there was not another man at the table, not even including 'old Jane' himself, who would have dared to do it!"

"'Jane?'" repeated Tommy, taking a rather [illegible] tone—"and who is 'Jane'?"

"I see. Well, do you think I'd better just go away and come to join as if nothing had happened?"

To be Continued.

CANINE BLUE BLOOD.

A DOG FANCIER TALKS ABOUT THE DIFFERENT BREEDS.

High Priced Animals for Pets—Actresses and Women of Wealth the Greatest Patrons—Pugs Not So Stupid as They Look. The Best Burglar Alarm.

There is a little one story and a half brown frame house in Beethoven place on the North Side which has been honored with visits from Mrs. Langtry, Aimee, Lillian Russell, Kate Castleton and many lesser lights of the stage; where fashionable turnouts with fair occupants hailing from the "avenues" frequently call, and where it is a common thing for the postman to drop perfumed notes signed by members of the "exclusive four hundred."

The house is occupied by Mr. Gus Berg. But he, personally, is not the attraction to Dearborn and Prairie avenues and the theatrical stars. It is his stock in trade that is the lodestone. This stock consists of pug dogs, spitz dogs, terriers, King Charles spaniels and all the other breeds of dogs on which women are prone to lavish affection and care, and the visitor upon his entrance to the cottage is immediately surrounded by a scrambling, tumbling and barking crowd of the good natured little brutes.

A FRIEND TO THE DOGS.

"I started out," said Mr. Berg, "to raise and keep all kinds of dogs, from mastiffs down to poodles; but the big dogs used to fight among themselves and chew up the little ones for recreation. So I gave up all my shepherds, fox terriers, bull dogs and the other bigger breeds, and confined the stock to the little fellows you see—and a happy family they make. Where do I find my trade? O, among transients, mostly with the theatrical people; in the city, among the best people we have." Mr. Berg, with the true fancier's volubility, entered into a long disquisition concerning dogs, in the course of which he expressed the opinion that much opprobrium was undeservedly cast upon the pug, which is generally considered to possess about as much intelligence as a stoughton bottle.

"Fact is," Mr. Berg said, "a pug is not such a fool as he is painted, and has his fair share of brains. Almost any dog will be a fool if no pains are taken to instruct him. Pugs can learn when an effort is made to teach them, but many women appear to think the only purpose for which the pug was created was to furnish something to be sentimental over and to tow around at the end of a string. I know a good many instances of pugs showing unusual intelligence. Actresses almost always buy pugs. They are fashionable dogs, and on account of their size are easily carried around the country.

"A peculiar thing in connection with a pug occurred on Dearborn avenue recently. A well known lady who lives there had given her pug a lobster claw for a plaything. Shortly afterward the pug gave birth to five puppies. Four of them were perfect, but the fifth had a malformation of the left fore foot which resembled a lobster claw. Another Dearborn avenue lady nursed a paralyzed pug for two months and refused to allow him to be chloroformed. Then, when the beast finally died, she carried him to a cemetery and buried him. I like dogs, but it strikes me there is such a thing as carrying sentimentality concerning them a little too far."

DO ANYTHING BUT SPEAK.

"What do you consider the most intelligent dog?"

"A shepherd, by all odds. Shepherd dogs can do about everything but speak, and they are uniformly of a kindly disposition. John L. Lincoln, Jr., of No. 207 Rush street, has a magnificent kennel of shepherds, about a dozen in all. It is one of the finest kennels in the west, and the owner takes a great deal of pride in his animals. Mr. Henry J. Cobb, of 182 Rush street, also has two or three fine shepherds. Greyhounds look nice, but they have little intelligence and are simply nice pieces of furniture and good for nothing except to train for coursing. St. Bernards will take rank with the shepherds, but they are so big and clumsy that they are undesirable animals for the city. 'Jim' Boutilleaux owned one for a time, but, as he always had to take the dog with him wherever he went, the animal became an incumbrance. If he shut him up and went away the dog would chew up the door or jump through the window in order to get out and follow his master. Once 'Jim' inadvertently closed the dog in a barber shop and had forgotten him until he was reminded of the error by hearing a crash of glass, and turned in time to see the animal come through the window carrying the sash with him. He finally sold him to a Milwaukee man for $300. Albert C. Huston, at No. 3,873 Cottage Grove avenue, owns one of the finest St. Bernards in the city, and Phil Reitz, a wholesale butcher of Lake View, owns an imported pair that he values at $500.

"Then the German mastiff is an intelligent dog, and several fine specimens of the breed are owned here. Empress, the property of Mr. Anderson, of Booth's oyster house, is one of the finest bred animals in the west. Mr. Anderson purchased her in Boston. Sam Kittson, of No. 257 Dearborn avenue, has a fine mastiff, and Florsheim, the jeweler, possesses a valuable pair which he imported. The German mastiff is graceful and quick in his movements, and in that respect is preferable to the English hound, which is heavy and slow.

"Throwing aside the fashionable fad for pugs, and considering the thing in every light, it seems to me that a King Charles spaniel is about the best and handsomest dog for a household pet. Yet they are scarce. There are not, to my knowledge, a dozen of them in Chicago. Marshall Field has one; so also has W. F. Goste, of the City of Paris; but just at present I do not call to mind any other owners of these animals. Perhaps the principal reason for their scarcity lies in the price. A good King Charles costs from $150 to $300."

As a parting bit of information Mr. Berg said people who were afraid of burglars should buy small dogs. "Small dogs are noisy, and there isn't a burglar alive but would prefer to have a house protected with all the patent devices in existence to having one small dog domiciled therein."—Chicago Tribune.

Hans Kittleson, a farmer living near Wanaka, Minn., had a balky team attached to a load of hay. He built a fire under the team to start them. The flames consumed the hay, horses, sleigh and all.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Houses, Medium Class Houses and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap, but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

BRADFORD GOODS in stripes and checks at 10c. a yard, fresh goods, new colors.

Those wishing to have their dresses made up can have them done on the premises if necessary by our dressmaker, Miss Mercier, who has given up her own business to take charge of this department.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.—They will gladden your eyes, perhaps cheer your hearts and touch your pocket book. Gently have you noticed the progress in the art of making them so natural. They cheat you into touching or smelling to test their reality.

Lilacs, Tulips, Roses, Lilies of the Valley to be worn in profusion on Millinery this season. Case after case of Black and Colored Straw Hats, Bonnets, Trimmings, etc., have arrived, in fact nearly all the Spring Millinery is now opened out ready for inspection.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION

MEETING OF THE ORANGE GRAND LODGE IN HAMILTON.

Resolutions Passed Denouncing the Grant to the Jesuits—The Bucket Shop Case at Toronto.

HAMILTON, March 13.—The Grand Lodge of Ontario West resumed at 9.15 o'clock this morning with Grand Master R. W. Bro. W. W. Fitzgerald in the chair. An address of welcome was read from the Hamilton District and Wentworth County Orangemen. An address from the Ladies Protestant Association was also read. It asked that the association be given the privilege of organizing ladies' lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Ontario West. A committee consisting of Messrs. Thomas Keyes, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of British America; Ald. John McMillan, D.M. of Toronto, and W. H. Scott, W.M. of Toronto, was appointed to consider the address from the ladies.

The report of the Credential Committee was presented and adopted. The auditors presented their report, congratulating the Grand Lodge upon the progress made during the year, and certifying to the correctness of the Treasurer's report. The Committee on Correspondence, to which was referred the Grand Master's and the Grand Secretary's reports, presented their report, which was taken up clause by clause and a number of clauses were adopted. The reports of the Committees on Petitions and Appeals, Suspensions and Expulsions and on Finance were presented and adopted.

This evening a sermon was preached by Rev. Perry, the Grand Chaplain, and the Grand Lodge met after the service.

The old officers were re-elected.

A series of strong resolutions was unanimously passed condemning the grant to the Jesuits and calling upon the representatives of Ontario in the Dominion Parliament to exercise all means in their power for its disallowance and to support any measure introduced to that end, irrespective of party affiliations.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Rev. "Move-on" Wilson Vindicated—The Bucket Shop Case.

TORONTO, March 14.—The case of Rev. W. F. Wilson, who was convicted by Police Magistrate Denison last summer of disorderly conduct, is ended after much airing in the courts. Yesterday Mr. Wilson's appeal from the conviction came before Judges McDougall and Morgan. City Solicitor Biggar referred to the disagreement of the jury last session, and as Jarvis, the policeman who arrested Mr. Wilson, had been dismissed from the force, and as no one doubted the excellence of Mr. Wilson's character he thought the quickest way to settle the matter was the best. Their Honors accordingly quashed the conviction, but without costs.

An unusually large number of failures in Ontario and Quebec was reported yesterday.

There was a crowd at the Police Court yesterday to hear the charge under the Abbott Act against Joseph Priestman, Charles Priestman, J. C. Millichamp, Francis J. Spear, Walter Armour, Thomas Galbraith, George B. Foster and William McBroom. Joseph Priestman was arraigned on two charges; first, of keeping a common gaming house for the purpose of making lucre at 71 Yonge-street, and, secondly, with having made a fraudulent transaction to deliver 100 bushels of wheat, which there was no intention of delivering. He pleaded not guilty, and both charges were enlarged until next Monday. The other defendants were then arraigned on the charge that on March 12, with intent to make profit they did enter into a non-bona fide transaction, to wit, the delivery of 1000 bushels of wheat, and also with being frequenters of a common gaming house. McBroom explained that he had never been in Priestman's office before. He went there to collect a note for the Equitable Insurance Company and was there just as the raid was being made. Inspector Archabold was willing to let the case against Mr. McBroom drop, as he had no evidence that he was a frequenter of the place. McBroom was accordingly discharged. The defendants were then bailed, the hearing to take place on Monday.

MANITOBA MATTERS.

WINNIPEG, March 13.—In all probability Hatfield, now on trial for wife murder at Holland last Christmas, will swing. The evidence is pretty strong against him, one of the witnesses being his own boy. Hatfield and his wife quarrelled over his sister-in-law, with whom he was intimate, and he admitted to neighbors having killed his wife.

A case of attempted incendiarism in Roberts' tobacco store will be investigated to-morrow. The companies have cancelled several policies in the neighborhood.

The bodies of a large number of valuable dogs missing during the winter have been found, they having been snared and killed for their skins.

Two trappers named Finlayson starved to death near Deer Lake, north of Prince Albert, having lost their way.

The wife of James Moore, who while supposed to be in Orillia was really living with a man in St. Paul, refused to return home with her husband, but allowed him to take back her child.

Chester Glass of Winnipeg has been admitted to the Minnesota Bar.

CHICAGO, March 13.—In the presence of General Worthy Foreman Wheal and District Master Workman Mrs. Rogers, Worthy Foreman Linholm, of District Assembly 24, Knights of Labor, was yesterday forcibly ejected from a meeting of Walters' Local Assembly 7475. Mr. Wheal and Mrs. Rogers were then told by the irate waiters to "get out." The two retired, after suspending the Assembly, which now proposes to secede permanently and join T. V. Barry's Brotherhood of United Labor.

AN OVATION TO PARNELL.

THE IRISH LEADER GREETED BY AN IMMENSE THRONG.

John Morley's Characteristic Speech—Mr. Parnell's Arraignment of the Government.

LONDON, March 13.—St. James' Hall was crowded this evening with people anxious to hear Mr. Parnell's speech. Mr. Morley presided. The committee in charge were yesterday compelled to suspend the issue of tickets for the meeting.

The hall was handsomely decorated with flags and mottoes. Among the inscriptions were: "Freedom for England and Ireland." "No Coercion, No Forgery, No Slander." "Humanity, Union, Justice, Peace, Liberty."

On shamrock-entwined flagstaffs was a picture representing Britannia with her left arm encircling Erin's waist and an angel overhead bearing the motto, "Peace and Good-Will towards All Men."

Among the prominent men present were Messrs. A. J. Mundella, Shaw-Lefevre, H. H. Fowler, James Stansfeld, H. H. Asquith, W. B. Rowland, Arnold Morley and many Parnellite members of Parliament.

In opening the meeting Chairman John Morley said he could not refuse when asked to preside, because the meeting was of such a remarkable character. He felt that if his presence would be of the slightest use he was bound to attend. [Cheers.] He said he never saw so great a meeting as this nor one on behalf of a nobler cause. "I bear a message," said Mr. Morley, "from the great chief, who despite his years would have attended this meeting had he not been entreated to spare himself. [Cheers.] He would not spare himself of his own free will because he sees the time rapidly, almost momentarily, approaching when we shall continually and deliberately, step by step but surely, unfalteringly and unflinchingly get to the bottom of these Irish proceedings. [Cheers.] The resolutions which our committee have framed express the deliberate judgment, deep feeling and stern, resolute, deliberate purpose of a great party which has not yet taken up a cause without carrying it through. [Cheers.] It may be that the Tories will carry Home Rule. [Laughter.] I do not want to understand Mr. Parnell's presence to-night as binding him and his friends and countrymen to our party. It is a case of alliance rather than of fusion. Mr. Parnell's first duty is to Ireland. He has no right to think of our parties except in relation to Ireland. [Cheers.] But I look forward to the day when, still remaining first an Irish leader and statesman, Mr. Parnell will be able to partake and draw a united Ireland to partake in the great fabric of the free government of the Empire of which we are striving to make Ireland an integral, incorporated, united, reconciled and equal member." [Cheers.]

Mr. Morley reminded his hearers that the whole matter rested with the nation and that a triumph depended upon each one's making himself a centre for right ideas. "If we do this," he declared, "the time is not distant when we shall see the false image with a front of Tory brass and feet of Dissentient clay trampled in the dust under the feet of the honest citizens of England, Scotland and Ireland." [Loud cheers.]

Mr. Parnell was unable to speak for several minutes owing to volleys of cheers, the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," etc. When quiet was restored he said:

I cannot attempt to describe my gratification and delight at the reception given me. Such evenings will do more for the union than twenty centuries of the firm government—[laughter]—of Salisbury and Balfour. I am sure my countrymen throughout the world will be equally honored with me by your reception of their cause. I prefer to draw lessons from passing events. This great meeting is assembled to protest against the petty and malignant meanness of Mr. Balfour's government in Ireland. The chairman expressed hope that I would be a privy councillor. On that point I must be pardoned for saying nothing, but it is legitimate to enquire whether there is not something rotten in a system of government which compels the ostracism from the affairs of your empire of 86 of the 103 Irish members. That is one of the first results of seven centuries of firm government, much firmer than we are ever likely to see again—[cheers]—a government under which it was only necessary to get up forged letters against a man and not to prove them to enable the Lord-Lieutenant to have him beheaded. Fortunately they cannot do such things now-a-days.

What then has been one of the results of that system? That we Irish members from the very necessity of our position are unable to take that share in the duties of government which is one of the natural and justifiable hopes of all men entering Parliament. If we violated the pledges upon which alone we obtained the trust of our constituencies, namely, that we should refuse to accept place or office for ourselves or others from any English Government as long as the just rights of Ireland were not conceded, were we so base and mean we should fail to find a single constituency to re-elect us. Well, then, is it not a matter for inquiry why Mr. Balfour cannot govern Ireland two years without imprisoning 24 Irish members of Parliament as common felons for offences unknown to our law in England, mainly for speaking and writing in the newspapers? [Cries of "Shame."]

We now come to another question. I will not enter into the details of the charges and allegations made by The Times, but speaking generally I want to know why, if the charges and allegations had any foundation, the Government of the country did not take them up themselves and investigate them to their source by the machinery at their command and if they wanted special machinery why did not they construct it with the power at their command? They had all the machinery in Ireland they required for the detection of crime, especially constructed for them by Parliament. If they wanted extra power they could have obtained it.

When were these charges first started? When was the command first given to the forger and perjurer to obtain or invent evidence which would result in putting us on trial on criminal charges, the punishment for which was penal servitude for life? It was at the very moment when Lord Carnarvon was inviting us to confer with him on the future government of Ireland as to a new constitution—for these were his words in opening the conversation—which was to be given to Ireland, establishing her Parliament. That was one of the reasons why this business of unearthing crime was left to amateurs—[laughter]—and a pretty mess they made of it.

Places for the Boys.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The President to-day sent the following nominations to the Senate: Eugene Schuyler, of New York, to be Assistant Secretary of State; Walker Blaine of Maine, to be Examiner of Claims for the Department of State; and Cyrus Bussy of New York City, to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

The President to-day signed the commissions of Messrs. Palmer, Washburn and Swift as Ministers to Spain, Switzerland and Japan respectively, and that of Mr. Tichenor as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC.

Surveys Made for a Line From Niagara Falls to Buffalo.

BUFFALO, March 13.—After many months' consideration of the matter, it is now quite probable that the Canadian Pacific will extend its tracks from Niagara Falls, Ont., and come into Buffalo by way of Tonawanda, using either the Lackawanna or the Lehigh Valley tracks to get down town. For some weeks surveys have been in progress. The surveys are from the overhead crossing of the Lackawanna and the New York Central beyond North Buffalo Junction, to below Niagara Falls. Instead of following the New York Central tracks to Tonawanda, the new line will run around the bend in the river, and a station will be placed near the Bedell ferry. This change will greatly accommodate the immense lumber interests which already have extended nearly three miles south of Tonawanda Creek, and which, it is believed, are destined to connect Buffalo with Tonawanda. Below Tonawanda the Canadian Pacific will run parallel with the New York Central and between it and the river. The crossing to Canada below Niagara Falls has not been decided upon, and this part of the plan is believed to be a blind, as it is thought the real intention of the projectors is to bridge the river much farther up the stream. A company will be incorporated with a capital stock of about $300,000, and the line will then either be sold or permanently leased to the Canadian Pacific.

TERRIFIC BOILER EXPLOSION.

Many Persons Scalded and Seriously Injured—A Child Killed.

READING, Pa., March 13.—A nest of three boilers at the St. Nicholas Colliery near Mahanoy City exploded at 11 o'clock this morning with terrific effect. One of the boilers was blown 500 yards, another was hurled through a blacksmith shop and the other was torn into fragments. The boiler house and blacksmith shop were wrecked. Mrs. Louisa Hoffman with her child in her arms was passing at the time. A fragment of iron broke her hip and killed the child. James Delaney, a driver passing with his team, had his skull fractured. Michael Warren, a lad of 13 on the same wagon, had his thigh broken and leg crushed. Edward Seltzer, a painter at work on the breaker, had his skull crushed. Patrick Warner and Edward Watts were terribly injured by flying pieces of iron. Others were scalded and injured.

The Case for The Times Closed.

LONDON, March 13.—At the sitting of the Parnell Commission to-day, Mr. Soames, solicitor for The Times, testified that he had found that the police of Cork believed Coffee, the Cork reporter, who testified yesterday that a statement he had made to a policeman was absolutely false. Coffee signed the statement in witness' office, and said he would testify that it was true. Coffee had not received the full sum to which he was entitled. Witnesses for The Times received from 10s to £3 3s daily.

On cross-examination by Mr. Biggar, Mr. Soames testified that he sent Kirby to America to see Sheridan, who asked £20,000 to come to London and testify for The Times. Witness on receipt of this information immediately recalled Kirby.

Levy, formerly a member of the Fenian Supreme Council, testified as to his experience as a member of that body. On cross-examination he admitted he had been imprisoned for a year for embezzling his employer's money. [Laughter.]

Attorney-General Webster then announced that the case for The Times was finished.

At the request of Sir Charles Russell, Justice Hannen ordered the release from prison of William O'Brien and Timothy Harrington, whom it is necessary for Sir Charles to consult, on condition that they abstained from agitation during their liberty.

Prior to the adjournment Sir Charles Russell asked the court whether it was prepared to express judgment regarding the question of an interim report on the forged letters.

Presiding Justice Hannen said: "We are not prepared to give an answer limiting our freedom of action. The extraordinary circumstances attending the withdrawal of the letters speak for themselves. No report can enhance or diminish their effect. But we have not yet come to a decision as regards the making of a report."

The commission then adjourned until April 2.

The Weavers' Struggle.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 13.—The third day of the big struggle between manufacturers and weavers shows the situation to be practically unchanged and there are no indications of yielding on either side. About 1000 looms are running but many of the factories have abandoned all attempts to work their weaving departments. It looks as if the spinners would soon be out of employment as there is now yarn enough on hand to furnish a supply for some time to come.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Advices from Hayti received to-day show that hostilities between Legitime and Hyppolite are still in progress. Legitime's warship Dessalines arrived off Gonaives recently and was fired upon by two forts. On Feb. 26 a report was current that the Dessalines had been struck by three shots and that she had foundered off St. Marc. The southern army burned the town of Grand Saline and committed many outrages on the females.

A Row in a Life Insurance Co.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The annual meeting of the policy holders of the Mutual Benefit Life Association of America was held here to-day and Policy holder Anthony Comstock and a score of other policy holders raised the biggest kind of a row. They assert that the management of the company is corrupt and that its funds have been misappropriated.

Fatal Colliery Explosion.

LONDON, March 13.—A terrible explosion occurred in the Brynmally colliery at Wrexham to-day, resulting in a great loss of life. Eleven dead bodies have been taken from the pit and three miners have been rescued.

DEATH OF THE BIRD BILL.

MR. BROWN'S MEASURE SLAUGHTERED IN COMMITTEE.

The Member for Lambton Accuses the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company of Making False Returns.

OTTAWA, March 14.—The main feature of yesterday's session of the House was the slaughter in committee of the whole of Mr. Brown's bird bill. The House made very short work of it by going into committee and sitting for about ten minutes. There was little or no discussion. Col. Tisdale moved that the committee rise, and this was carried by a vote of 67 to 60. It is not probable that Mr. Brown will attempt to "re-committee" the bill again this session. This is the course he pursued the last time the committee arose without reporting the bill.

In the House yesterday Mr. Lister moved for copies of correspondence between the Manufacturers' Insurance Company and the Superintendent of Insurance respecting the list of stockholders of said company in accordance with the statute in that behalf. Mr. Lister said he knew very little about the Manufacturers' Life, but he believed that the statutory returns made to the Superintendent of Insurance were not correct in many particulars.

Sir John Macdonald, President of the company, told the House that the gentlemen who composed the Board of Directors of the Manufacturers' Life were among the most wealthy and substantial in the country. When he made this statement he did not include himself. "My standing," said Sir John, "is political and not financial." He had nothing to shield in the company's affairs, and he promised that the papers would be brought down at once. "I am anxious," continued the Premier, "that if there is anything wrong that the fullest investigation should be made." The motion then passed.

The House had an extended sitting in committee on Mr. Kirkpatrick's reciprocal wrecking bill, and the bill now stands for a third reading. The bill since its introduction has been before a special committee and has been very much remodelled. The Committee of the Whole, after a long discussion, decided to adopt the amendment of the special committee and the bill will be reprinted to enable the members to understand it thoroughly.

Mr. Barron got his answer yesterday about Horse Island in Georgian Bay. Sir John Macdonald said that the island which contained 15,000 acres had been sold to a Mr. Conmee for $2000. The island contained a great deal of timber. It was sold under the provisions of the Manitoulin treaty of 1861. It is said that the purchaser had a great profit on his investment.

The House adjourned at midnight.

MINISTERS' EXPENSES.

A Lively Time in the Public Accounts Committee—Militia Clothing.

OTTAWA, March 13.—There was a field day in the Public Accounts Committee this morning. Seven members of the Cabinet were present to defend the various items which appear in the Auditor-General's report for their personal expenses when traveling. The Minister of Militia's expenses were the subject of a lively criticism from the Liberal members of the committee. His trip to British Columbia last summer cost $800. Auditor-General McDougall told the committee that he never asked a minister for vouchers or the details of their expenses when on Government business. He took it for granted that they only drew their actual expenditure.

Mr. Mulock called up the matter of supplying clothing to the militia of the Dominion. A great bundle of contracts and vouchers from the Department were placed on the table. Mr. Mulock questioned Col. Walker Powell, Adjutant-General, at length on the quality of clothing supplied the volunteers. Col. Powell said that while the clothing furnished by the Canadian manufacturers was not nearly as good as the English article, yet it was yearly becoming better. The Colonel said the principal trouble was in the dye. It appears that a great many complaints have been made against the quality of the clothing supplied and the Queen's Own of Toronto have ordered new uniforms from England. Mr. Mulock and his friends are evidently attempting to show that the supply of militia clothing in Canada is held by a monopoly and that in consequence the volunteers of the different regiments are the sufferers. The Minister of Militia maintains that the volunteers now are as well uniformed as to durability as when the goods came from England. More evidence is to be taken to-morrow.

The special committee to whom was referred Herman Cook's bill to compel railway companies to land their passengers in all cases on a platform and to call down the stations, baggage smasher this morning decided not to report the bill. The Minister of Justice set his seal of disapproval to the measure.

The bill of Mr. Bain relating to the supply of skim milk to cheese and butter factories was also before the committee but no decision was arrived at.

Mr. Smith, M.P., president of the Canadian Clydesdale Association left for Toronto to-night to attend the annual fair of the association in the Queen City.

To-day the Speaker of the Senate entertained at luncheon the president and members of the Royal Canadian Academy of Art, at present in Ottawa, and the president and secretary and the officers of the Art Association of Ottawa.

R. has instructed conductors to guard against the spread of this disease by persons getting aboard the trains from infected districts.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

AN INTERESTING MEETING HELD AT LAKEFIELD.

The Central Institute Proceedings—Land Plaster as a Fertilizer—Agricultural Education—Farm Implements—Fruit Raising.

A meeting of the West Riding Farmers' Institute was held at Lakefield on Wednesday, Mr. D. Kennedy, President, in the chair. The attendance at the morning session was small.

THE CENTRAL INSTITUTE.

The PRESIDENT gave an outline of the meeting of the Central Institute at Toronto. He was more than pleased with the meeting, each speaker knowing what he was talking about. Prof. Shaw in a paper read at the Institute had recommended the holding of picnics in connection with the Institutes. Acting on this recommendation Mr. Garbutt and himself had arranged for a picnic to be held by the five Institutes of this section at Rice Lake next summer. Prof. Shaw had recommended the appointment of a Director of Institutes for the Province, who would take charge of the arrangements for meetings and speakers, but this was laid over until next year. He favored the appointment of such an officer. They had been asked to have the question of market tolls brought up, but although they got it on the paper they did not get it before the meeting. It had been suggested that a petition on the matter be forwarded to Toronto. The statute labor question was discussed, and a suggestion made to divide the townships into divisions and appoint commissioners, but no action was taken. An excellent paper on agricultural education was read, and the idea was enforced that if they wished to keep the boys on the farm they must give them an agricultural education, and that the rudiments should be taught in the public schools. On this subject, again, no action was taken. Another suggestion that all public school teachers should spend a term at the Agricultural College was not adopted. The majority seemed to favor a law not permitting a load over two tons on the road without wide tires.

Mr. G. W. MANN said he had a four inch waggon and it gave great satisfaction.

The PRESIDENT said he had one three and a half inches wide and it was satisfactory. The difficulty was with small stones on the roads, but the stones should not be on the roads. There was a discussion on county council reform, and while there was a feeling opposed to the excessive number of members of the councils, there was no desire to abolish the councils. The question of combines was referred to the committee on legislation, and a resolution that while party politics should be excluded, the Institutes should be free to discuss economic questions, was carried. The question of an agricultural hall was laid over, and a motion asking the Government to withdraw the grant to the Provincial exhibition was carried. It was decided to discuss only questions of legislation at the Central Institute. A good suggestion made was that every farmer should keep some bees. He kept them for eleven winters outside, and afterwards had fixed a shelter, but he lost them by frost. What they wanted was a hive in which they could keep them outside. There was a great deal of honey going to waste in this county because they had no bees to gather it.

Mr. MCKIBBIN said bees should be kept in the winter in moderate warmth and where there was no noise. In the summer he turned up the hive and picked out the moth grub. He always handled them freely, though carefully, and was not stung by them.

SPECIAL FERTILIZING.

Rev. D. J. BENNETT read a paper on "Gypsum as a Fertilizer." He had lived in Nova Scotia, where there was plenty of gypsum. It was known under different names, the farmer knowing it as land plaster. Lime had been used as a fertilizer from all ages, because it was plentiful. It existed in different forms, in various places, as in chalk in Great Britain. It had been found in later years that lime existed in a better form, in phosphate of lime. There was an immense drain upon the land in the phosphate of lime used in the formation of bone of the animals and of milk. An attempt had been made to put back the phosphate of lime in ground bones, but it was slow, and now they had superphosphate of lime. Lime existed in the lime stone with carbonic acid. In gypsum it existed with suphuric acid, and its claims in this form as a fertilizer had been overlooked. There was a great deal in the way manure was applied. The mode of applying lime to the soil was according to the purpose. Gypsum did not enter largely into the plant. Gypsum, instead of setting the ammonia free, gathered it and held it for the plant. If lime were sown on a field seeded with clover, they would expect it to be taken up by the plant. Gypsum, however, would gather the ammonia for the plant and supply the sulphuric acid. Gypsum seemed to be good for all kinds of lands. Manufactured gypsum was shipped largely south to be used for growing corn, and a couple of spoonsful of it was placed in each hill. He believed that the benefit of superphosphate was largely derived from the gypsum it contained. Lime was used for the sulphuric and phosphoric it contained, and if his view was correct farmers were unwise in buying a barrel of superphosphates for the gypsum it contained. By scattering gypsum on the manure in the stables the ammonia would be retained.

An interesting discussion followed in which the President, Messrs. Bennett, McKibbin, Galvin and others took part, and an adjournment took place for dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The meeting resumed in the afternoon, the attendance being much larger.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

Mr. J. COYLE BROWN spoke on the kind of education that ought to be given to the sons and daughters of farmers. They should receive the most extensive education that could be given them, so that they could carry on farming to the greatest advantage, and so that they could exercise that influence on the government that their numbers entitled them to. Reading and geography they should study, but grammar very little. As it was generally taught grammar was comparatively useless. Composition should occupy an important place, and they should have an outline of history. Arithmetic was important, as also was drawing. The outlines of the subject of agriculture should be taught, and he was glad that a book on the subject was to be introduced into the public schools. Botany, geology and entomology should be taught, and the last was important, as it was estimated that $150,000,000 was lost in a year in the United States through the depredations of insects. Geology remotely bore upon the farmers' calling. If they were to teach all the subjects now on the school curriculum, and the other subjects in addition, they would require a large amount of time. If children went to school until they were sixteen, without having them do any work, the probability was that they would be unfitted for any calling requiring manual labor. Yet if they took them from school earlier they would not have a good education. He proposed that all rural schools from April to October should be opened at 8 o'clock for the larger pupils and closed at 11 o'clock, and opened at 2 for the smaller children and dismissed at 5 o'clock. As it was the larger boys was kept too long at manual labor during the summer, but under his plan he would do as much work in the afternoon as he should do and probably as much as if he were at work all day. Besides by this plan at seventeen he would have a good education and would have a taste for farming or manual labor. The effect on the little ones would also be beneficial. Teaching was a wearing occupation; teaching the few and governing the many was the difficulty. By the plan he proposed the teacher's time would be altogether employed in teaching, and so far as imparting knowledge was concerned it would be an advantage to the teachers and the community.

In answer to a question, Mr. Brown said that the subject of agriculture would be introduced into the high schools, so that all teachers could obtain an outline of theoretic farming.

Mr. GALVIN asked how the heat would effect the little ones going to school in the middle of the day?

Mr. BROWN said that they would be in the sun anyway.

Mr. G. W. Mann, Dr. Fraser, Mr. Galvin and others spoke favourably of the idea.

Mr. J. A. DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Mr. H. C. GARBUTT.—That this meeting having heard Mr. Brown's proposal of the division of the school day into two parts—the morning for the elder pupils and the afternoon to the smaller pupils—is of the opinion that the proposal, if it can be practically applied, would tend to give farmers' sons and daughters an education both of head and hand and at the same time preserve a love for farm life.

The motion was adopted, three voting against it.

FERTILIZERS.

Rev. Mr. BENNETT, by request, repeated his paper on gypsum, and in doing so exhibited specimens of different kinds of lime.

EXPENSIVE IMPLEMENTS.

Mr. J. A. DAVIDSON read a paper "Expensive Implements." He was of the opinion that farmers were inclined to buy too many implements an were too anxious to get the best. It was better to rub along with old implements while they could be used, and to keep out of debt and difficulty.

Rev. Mr. BENNETT said that by discarding a poor implement and getting a better money might be saved.

The PRESIDENT said that was true, but were they always sure the new implement was better than the old one?

Mr. DAVIDSON said that frequently rivalry led farmers to purchase.

The PRESIDENT believed farmers lost more by not taking proper care and by improperly using implements than by trying to get the best.

FRUIT RAISING.

Mr. G. J. GALVIN read a paper on "Fruit Culture." He said this subject had not received proper attention in this country. He dwelt upon the necessity for farmers to keep an intelligent outlook. Fruit trees had been planted on the farm he occupied fifty-three years ago, and seven still survived. He recommend the Duchess of Oldenburg, the St. Lawrence, the Colvert and Ben Davis. The Wagner was the best winter variety, but it required rich soil. He believed it was better for farmers to confine themselves to a few hardy varities. The Colvert apple he believed to be the most profitable. Fruit was a luxury in a great many farm homes. That should not be, as fruit was wholesome, especially for children. The Colvert would thrive on any soil. As much as $500 an acre had been made from fruit of this kind.

Mr. J. GARBUTT believed the Yellow Bellflower was an equally hardy apple.

Mr. J. C. BROWN said the Rhode Island Greening was not adapted to this country. He referred to other varieties, and impressed the importance of keeping the apples properly. He thought 21 feet apart too close for the trees.

Mr. GALVIN said if he were planting again he would plant them 25 feet apart. It was better to have trees the branches of which turned down.

Mr. I. GARBUTT said he had planted Northern Spys. It took them twenty years to mature and they then only bore a few years. He favored the Snow.

Mr. GALVIN said that by cultivating the ground he got the best results.

Mr. I. BAPTIE said orchards required great care. Northern Spys could be made to bear earlier by grafting. Anyone who wished to grow fruit should be able to graft.

Mr. BROWN said the land should be thoroughly underdrained before the trees were planted.

Mr. MCKIBBIN said many trees died in the second year because the ground was not cultivated around them.

Mr. BROWN said that light surface cultivation was better for trees and other things than watering.

THANKS.

On motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, the thanks of the meeting were tendered to Messrs. Bennett, Brown, Galvin and others who read papers and to the representatives of the press.

The Institute then adjourned to meet at Peterborough on March 29th.

Not only the design of the building is vastly improved, but the goods displayed in the windows are more inviting when plate glass is used. BUFFALO BILL AS A SWELL.

His Experience in a Clawhammer Worse Than Fighting Indians.

I met Buffalo Bill last night at the corner. He was entertaining a crowd of jolly fellows by relating his experiences in the wild east. It was not exactly the east, either, but it was east to him. He told of being with Sheridan during the war. On his return he was invited to visit the general at Chicago. He was in the Garden City two or three days as the general's guest, and was asked to attend a society ball. It became whispered around that Gen. Sheridan and his scout were to be present, and society was delighted with the idea of meeting the terror of the west.

On the afternoon preceding the society event Mike Sheridan asked Buffalo Bill if he had brought his full dress suit with him. This staggered the man of the plains, and he said he guessed he couldn't attend the ball. The general's brother rented an evening suit from a furnishing house, and Buffalo Bill got into it and started for the ball. "I was never in such a sweat in my life," said William, as The Herald man hid his note book and assumed an intelligent look; "I would rather have plunged into forty Indian battles than to have entered that ball room. I felt uncomfortable, but I went in with the general's brother. I was introduced to about one hundred ladies and the same number of gentlemen. My pants—or rather the pants which Mike Sheridan had rented for me—were terribly tight, as were also my gloves, which came through the same channel. I did not know which garment would break first, but fortunately neither did. I had one dance, and this was at the solicitation of a lady who was desirous of dancing with a cowboy. I got on the floor with her, and the music started. I was waiting for some one to call off, but there was no call, as I had been accustomed to. I never had such a dreadful time. After I got through with the dance I started for the door, and put in the rest of the night at the nearest saloon, where I had a racket with the settler. I had changed my clothes, you know, and had neglected to change the contents of my pockets. I hadn't a cent, and the barkeeper or, as I called him then, the settler, saw me there in full dress and asked me what I would have. I told him whisky, and then he kicked because I did not offer to pay him for it. Mike came in shortly afterward and fixed it with the barman. Before this I was on my good behavior, as the general had told me that he wanted to show people that his scout was a gentleman. That was all I wanted with full dress evening balls, and I was myself again when I disrobed of those rented clothes."—Omaha Herald.

Mistakes of Parisian Experts.

The annals of the Hotel Drouot abound in stories of queer mistakes made by so called experts, writes Theodore Child. How one mistook the title of a picture, "Salvator Mundi," for the name of a "Venetian painter, rival of Salvator Rosa;" how another attributed to Velasquez, who died in 1660, a portrait of Louis XV, who was born in 1710; how another offered a picture of a woman washing dishes as a "Portrait of Rubens' Wife," by himself, and volunteered the explanation, that "as everybody knew, Rubens married his cook." The men who are at the head of their profession are incapable of such gross ignorance as this; nevertheless, even experts of the highest grades are fallible. Thus quite recently an eminent Parisian dealer offered without hesitation 30,000 francs for an antique Persian mosque lamp, fabricated a few years ago at Vaugirard by the famous Brocart; and still more recently the most eminent expert in Paris asked in a sale the modest sum of 100 francs for a hawthorn pot, which, to his astonishment, sold for 4,600 francs, and afterward went to England, where it was resold to a New York collector for $2,000.—New York Star.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

More may be Heard of It.

Mr. Robt. Wainwright, shortly after one o'clock to-day, handled Mr. John Kincaid rather roughly, so much so that the latter gentleman had to consult a doctor. The blows, which were all on the one side, Mr. Kincaid never raising his hand, arose out of some wordy dispute between the two gentlemen while they were engaged in conversation in front of Mr. Wainwright's butcher shop.

To-morrow Night.

The weather prospects are now favorable for the grand carnival to-morrow night and there is no reason why success should not attend the firemen's efforts. They have spared nothing that will add to the attractions of the affair and all skaters should get a costume ready and enjoy an evening on the ice before it is gone. The fancy skating competition will be a splendid exhibition and all should see it. 1d63

It was her first appearance before an Ottawa audience and those who heard her were well pleased."

The Winnipeg Free Press of Saturday last also speaks of Mrs. J. H. Billington, (nee Miss Hattie Johnston) who is well known here as an accomplished musician. It says:—"Winnipeg has received a new addition to the musical talent of the city in the person of Mrs. Billington, a well known organist and pianist of Peterborough, Ont. During the past six or seven years this lady has presided at the organs of the leading churches of Peterborough and for a year and a half previous to leaving for Winnipeg was in charge of the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in that city." In another column appears the report of an entertainment in the Manitoba capital in which is found the following:—"One of the principal features of the entertainment was the finished manner in which Mrs. Billington presided at the piano. The solos and marches by this lady captivated the audience and her accompaniments were well given."

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN

REV. MR. CROSSLEY TELLS WHAT IT IS.

Those who Fear They have Committed the Sin—The Ten Virgins—Objects of Prayer—Notes.

The opening hymn in George-st. last night was announced by Rev. Mr. Hunter to another large audience, that filled the edifice, body and gallery, to its fullest.

After the opening prayers and announcements, Rev. Mr. Crossley and Miss Nettie Wrighton sang a very beautiful solo "While the days are going by," in a most expressive and touching manner.

THE TEN VIRGINS.

MR. HUNTER, after a reference to to-night's meeting, read the evening lesson from the 25th chapter of Matthew—the parable of the ten virgins. Commenting throughout the rev. gentlemen said there were a good many wise and a good many foolish people nowadays. There were many of them going around with only the lamp of profession, without the oil of salvation. He warned such people against bringing disgrace on the cause of God and said his prayer had always been "Oh, God, never allow me to bring disgrace upon the cause of Jesus Christ." He would rather die that night where he stood than do this or stand in the way of sinners. There were so many of them sleeping. They should move out into the gulf stream of God's grace and be working, for he didn't know what they would find to do when they went to Heaven. There were three things they all should do and these were see that their soul was saved, insure their lives and make their will. "The door was shut." This had always been to him one of the most awful passages in Scripture, for if the door was shut what swarthy arm of hell could open it. He told his audience to watch their opportunities and to watch for the coming of the Bridegroom. They should let their light shine so that others might see it, and he said fathers and mothers were good lamp-lighters and should be kindling the fire in the hearts of the people and their children. There were different kinds of light. The red light on the railways was the signal of danger and they should hang the red lamp of danger before the door of every saloon in Peterborough and write the word "Beware" across every bar.

Rev. Mr. Crossley by special request sang in his expressive manner "The Handwriting on the Wall," remarking before doing so that he thought he would sing this song one evening in each week after this as it seemed to be such a favorite.

OBJECTS OF PRAYER.

The first request for prayer was from a mother who had been a follower of Christ for fifty years for prayer for her eldest son now in an inebriate asylum through the effects of strong drink, that when liberated he might be preserved from that terrible habit, the love of liquor. This was a very special request. The others were for a cousin and a young friend, for a brother and brother-in-law, for a young brother, for a friend "who, if converted, would have great influence in bringing souls to Christ," for a father, for a son, for a poor drunkard. Rev. P. Clifton Parker offered a brief and earnest prayer for these requests as the audience sat with bowed heads.

THE UNPARDONABLE SIN.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY said the subject for that evening was an important one—"Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost" or the unpardonable sin. His text was from the revised edition of the New Testament:—

"But whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness but is guilty of an eternal sin." Mark iii., 29.

The rev. gentleman said it was very important to know what this sin was. There were many in the insane asylum who had been driven there because they thought they had committed the unpardonable sin. There was many a one who had taken his or her life because they had thought they had committed this sin, who had no more committed it than he or any one of the audience. Many others might be driven to despair and suicide because they thought they had committed this sin and therefore it was important that all should know what the sin was. What was it? Some said it was such and such a sin, and others that it was some other particular sin, but if they would just think they could remember some person who had been converted and had been guilty of such and such or that particular sin. Others said that the sin was unknown and Col. Robert Ingersol had made this the ground of a charge against Christ—that He had made a sin unpardonable without telling people what that sin was and so leaving them in such a position that they might in ignorance commit it. He was surprised that so much difficulty had been made out of it. They here in the very next line. "They said He hath an unclean spirit." Thus the sin was attributing the works done by Christ by the power of the Lord to having been done by the power of the devil. This was the sin of blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. A person had to be in a certain state of mind, his spiritual preception must be dead, before this sin could be committed. It was not so much the act as the state of the mind. None of them could commit that sin as they could not think it. This state was again and again described in the Bible. Persons guilty of this sin could be converted but they would not be as they were in that utter past feeling state. He then spoke to two classes (1) those who were afraid they had committed this sin when they had not and (2) those who had no anxiety whether they had committed this sin or not and yet had occasion to fear lest they might commit it. To the first he said they had only to ask themselves if they had a desire to be saved then, if so that was evidence that they had not committed it and if they had the fear of having committed it that also was sufficient evidence that they had not committed it. To the second class he spoke most earnestly warning them against resisting the spirit as every time they refused to accept salvation they were so much nearer the state of past feeling, the merging into which state might be imperceptible.

TOLD WHAT THE SIN WAS

After earnest exhortation by Rev. Mr. Hunter a large number stood up asking for prayers and signifying their intention of starting a new life.

Almost the entire congregation remained to the after meeting.

THE DEPUTATIONS DOINGS.

The School Grant—The Hamilton Market and What is Proposed Here.

Councillors Davidson and Rutherford were the only two of the civic deputation that left on Tuesday morning last for Toronto and Hamilton who have returned home. Councillor E. H. D. Hall did not go to Hamilton but returned here Tuesday night after the Attorney-General had been interviewed. Councillors Cahill, Baptie and Langford did not return last night but went on to London on private business.

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The result of the request presented to the Attorney-General was published yesterday, and was substantially correct. The Attorney-General stated that it would be impossible to grant the power asked without a private bill to that effect having being brought into the Legislature with the usual twenty-one days' notice, but that he would be quite favorable to complying with the request if it came in the regular way. The deputation also waited upon the Minister of Education, Mr. Geo. W. Ross, with reference to the threatened withdrawal of our Collegiate Institute grant, and the Minister assured them that they had nothing to fear as the grant would not be withdrawn.

THE HAMILTON MARKET.

Yesterday morning then the five councillors took the train for Hamilton to inspect the market building there with a view to getting pointers to be used in the improvements in the market accommodation here. Mayor Doran, of the Ambitious City, took the deputation in charge and assisted by Chief McKinnon, showed the councillors all the points of interest in the city, including the market building, the fire halls, the court house, etc. The Mayor's hospitality and attention will cause the Peterborough fathers to remember their visit for a long day in the future. Of course the market building was the object of chief attention and inspection. The building is, of course, much larger and on a more extensive scale than would be thought for Peterborough at present. It is one story high and measures 60x200 feet, and is in the style of an arcade, running from street to street. There is a wide verandah running around the building and the building is principally taken up with the stalls of green grocers, butchers, etc. The revenue from the building is large, bringing in between four and five thousand dollars a year, and it is expected that the building, which cost about $20,000, will pay for itself in five years. There is no inside accommodation for farmers' wives, but a stand or table runs around the building a short distance from the verandah and the space on these tables are rented to hucksters at say fifty cents or a dollar a month. This fee goes to the market clerk. The deputation were of the opinion that the most advisable way in which the accommodation here could be increased would be by building a south wing to the present building. This would give considerable more accommodation, and the space that the new wing would occupy could be gained by removing the hay market from the square altogether, as it really has no connection with the market. The deputation were exceedingly well pleased with what they saw and speak most highly of their hospitable treatment by Hamilton's Mayor and Chief. A report of the visit will probably be presented to the Council at the next meeting.

Regular Meetings of the Village Council and School Board.

Correspondence of the Review.

COUNCIL MEETING.—There was very little business for the attention of our local legislators at their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening. All the members were in their places. Reeve Casement in the chair. The minutes of the last regular and two special meetings were were read and on motion confirmed. The Finance Committe recommended the payment of the following accounts and on motion the Reeve's order was ordered to issue for the same:—

Thos. Hendren, chairs for Council room	$ 1 50
G. A. Milner, printing and advt	13 70
	$15 40

Coun. Henderson, Chairman of the Building Committee, read a report with reference to the new Town Hall, which was on motion received. Mr. J. H. Davis attended and drew the attention of the Council to the unequal rating in the Livery License By-law, which made him pay $10.00 for three horses, while the by-law only called for that amount from a person keeping six horses. On motion of Coun. Nelson, seconded by Coun. Henderson, the matter was referred to the General Committee with power to instruct the clerk to draw up a new by-law if found necessary. The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

SCHOOL BOARD.—The regular meeting of the School Board was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening. Present: Messrs. Thos. Gordon, chairman, R. Q. Dench, W. M. Graham and W. White. The Minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The Secretary read Head Master's report for February, from which it appeared that the total number on the school roll was 267, and the average attendance 235. The report also suggested that maps and other requisities be provided for the different departments. The report was on motion of Mr. White, seconded by Mr. Graham, received, and the furnishings asked for ordered to be provided by the Chairman and the Supervision Committee. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—Thos. Hendren, furniture, $5.00; Dr. Bell, $5.00. On motion of Mr. White, seconded by Mr. Dench,—The report of the Supervision Committee, as read at the last regular meeting, was received and adopted.

FAITH VS. FORMALISM.

RELATION OF THE INWARD SPIRIT TO OUTWARD FORM OF WORSHIP.

Rev. T. B. Cayley in St. John's Church—Characteristics of Worship in the Bible. The Revival in the Church of England—A Reminiscence of St. John's in By-gone Days.

Last night's service in St. John's was still more largely attended than on the previous Wednesday evening. Rev. G. Warren and a number of other friends from St. Luke's Church were among the congregation.

After the service, at precisely 8 30 p. m., Rev. J. D. Cayley began his lecture on "Faith vs. Formalism." He founded his remarks on St. John 4, 24. The worship of God and other acts of religion, he said, should be composed of two parts, the inward spirit and the outward form. We often saw an inclination among men to separate these two parts. Some unduly exalted the outward form without reference to the inward spirit. Others, revolting from this, tried to strike a balance by going to the opposite extreme and attempting to have a worship which should be simply and solely spiritual. But they could not do this. Their worship might only consist of a prayer and a hymn, but these were forms. An Almighty God had shown in other ways His will that there should be a close and a constant union between the inward and the outward. He had made man of an inward spirit joined to an outward body. He had given us Sacraments or "outward and visible signs," closely connected with "an inward and spiritual grace." And in the person of Jesus Christ He had joined in indissoluble union God who is Spirit and unseen with man who is visible, material. And so, when the outward and the inward were likewise joined together in worship, let man not vainly try to put them asunder; but let us make the outward form in every case the natural and direct expression of the inward spirit, otherwise living forms would degenerate into formalism. Spirituality must always be of the first importance in worship, and forms were only of secondary importance deriving life from the spirit. But "secondary importance" did not at all mean "no importance." Almighty God had directly signified His will in this matter. He considered outward forms so important that He prescribed every little detail of Jewish worship, we might well study those Divine directions, not with the idea that they were binding on us, but that we might learn what was the Divine will.

Again, we had the worship of Heaven described to us in the Bible. Men should seek that God's will should be now done on earth in the matter of worship, as it was done in Heaven. And what was worship as done in Heaven? It was congregational—"and every creature heard I saying," &c., Rev. 5 13. It was responsive—"one cried unto another and said holy, holy, holy," Isaiah vi. 3. It was musical—their voice was "as the voice of many waters," Rev xix 6. It was reverent—they "fell before the throne on their faces and worshiped God," Rev vii, 11. And thus altogether it was a beautiful service, just as now we are bidden to worship God "in the beauty of holiness." These were all distinct characteristics of worship, as performed now in the Church of England. Every individual was expected to take his part in the services. If he was a man of living faith he would take that part earnestly, heartily, reverently; but if his faith became cold his part would necessarily become empty and formal—that, however, would be his own fault.

The speaker then went on to say that while a reverent, hearty congregational worship was the peculiar glory of the Church of England, Churchmen should make no disparaging criticism on the worship of other religious bodies. Let them think what their own worship was only forty years ago. Throughout the Church it was then careless, slovenly, uncongregational. Why he (Mr. Cayley) could himself look back to a Sunday when as a young man he officiated in Peterborough Church—the vision of that Church and that service came before him now, and it was anything but an inspiring vision. He saw the old square pews (like sheep pens) with other cumbersome furniture; and that was nothing to the dry formal service. Men sat bolt upright through all the prayers—they were ashamed to be seen kneeling before God in those days. Sweeping changes had been made all through the Church since then. Some people called these changes "innovations." Notice how these happy innovations came about. First took place the "Evangelical Revival" in which Simeon, Wesley and others were leaders. This great revival of the spiritual part of worship came naturally first, and it was fittingly followed by a second revival touching forms, ceremonies and Church organization. Men into whose spirits God had breathed life read their Bibles in a new light, and discovered in them truths in regard to the church, the sacraments and public worship which had been passed over before. And so this new life and these new-found principles began to find natural expression in the Church. Careless and slovenly customs gave way to habits of decency, order, reverence. The Prayer Book continued the same, but it began to be used in a more intelligent, devotional and reverent spirit. The outward letter was warmed by the new life. Such was, in brief, the character of the great revival which, though beginning 30 years ago, was only now making itself felt in the church in Canada. Even now people were strongly prejudiced against every change which had been made. But these prejudices were fast giving way. It was being more and more clearly seen that it was a revival of living faith expressing itself in fitting forms in strict accord with the spirit of the Bible. After explaining two or three customs which had lately come into use the lecturer concluded by calling on his hearers to be on their guard individually lest the forms which they were privileged to use become in their hands empty Formalism as worthless as it was empty.

Rev. Mr. Cayley was the guest of Mr. A. P. Poussette until this evening, when he left for Toronto. He will be followed next week by Rev. R. J. Moore and the week after by Rev. J. P. Lewis, Rector of Grace Church, Toronto.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $34,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of seivres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Pallissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $1,500 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

or soothe i so. Why"—but there he turned his head as some one knocked at the door. "Come in," he roared, and then the door opened, and the officer commanding the regiment, that is, Col. Barnes, entered.

He entered with a cordial, "Oh, Beresford, I wanted you to"—when his eyes fell on young Tommy, and he broke off with something very nearly approaching to a glare.

Tommy got off his coat and said, "Good morning, sir," in his most modest tones—and mind you, when Tommy was modest he looked as if the proverbial butter would not melt in his mouth.

"Oh! good morning, good morning," returned the colonel, in a series of snorts, and in a tone which conveyed to Tommy that, if anything, Beresford had understated rather than overstated the enormity of his offence.

He felt that his time was come, that if he did not speak then he would be, as it were, socially damned in the Blankshire regiment forever; but it was not without an immense effort that he broke the ice within which Col. Barnes had frozen himself. He looked at the big, fierce, red faced, burly man, with his haughty red nose and his long, bristling mustache, each end of which was waxed—soaped, if the truth be told—to a formidable spike, and his heart, yes, even his brazen heart, failed him! Still he felt that delay was dangerous, and at last he spoke! And if only his sister Nancy could have heard the last of the proud race of Earles eating humble pie with that shrinking air, she would have declared that her dear boy's degradation could go no further and sink no lower.

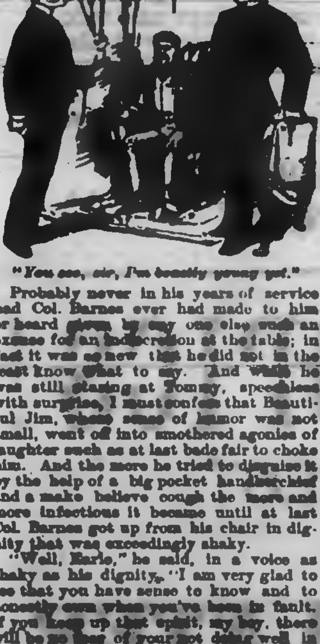
"If you please, sir," he began, "I am afraid"—and then he stopped short, awed into silence by the astonished stare with which the colonel was regarding him.

"Well?" said the colonel in a loud voice; it was a very big "well," and Tommy felt more shaking about the legs, and if the truth be told more inclined to cry than he had felt for many and many a year.

However, he had to go on. "Well, sir," he said very humbly. "I—I'm afraid I made an awful ass of myself last night."

"H'm!" remarked the colonel dryly; "and when did you make that discovery?"

"Well, sir," returned Tommy apologetically, "Beresford here tells me I was awfully drunk; and—and—I'm sure I did not drink much, sir, but," a happy inspiration suddenly occurring to him, "you see, sir, I'm beastly young yet and my head gets knocked over in next to no time."



"You see, sir, I'm beastly young yet."

Probably never in his years of service had Col. Barnes ever had made to him or heard given by any one else such an excuse for an indiscretion at the table; in fact it was so new that he did not in the least know what to say. And while he was still staring at Tommy, speechless with surprise, I must confess that Beautiful Jim, whose sense of humor was not small, went off into smothered agonies of laughter such as at last bade fair to choke him. And the more he tried to disguise it by the help of a big pocket handkerchief and a make believe cough the more and more infectious it became until at last Col. Barnes got up from his chair in dignity that was exceedingly shaky.

"Well, Earle," he said, in a voice as shaky as his dignity, "I am very glad to see that you have sense to know and to honestly own when you've been in fault. If you keep up that spirit, my boy, there will be no fear of your not doing well in the Blankshire regiment. We will say no more about it. Beresford—I'll—look—in"—probably the chief had meant to say "again," but before he had finished speaking his laughter had got beyond his control, and his only way of hiding from the offender that he was laughing himself, or that he had taken notice of the agonies that Beautiful Jim was suffering, was by edging off toward the door, and getting himself out of the room without the delay of a moment. As a matter of fact, he simply could not have uttered the last word without going off into roars of laughter, even to have saved his life. And Col. Barnes had a very proper idea of the dignity of his rank and position, and the due effect of both upon his junior officers.

Beautiful Jim, relieved from the necessity of hiding his laughter, simply laid back in his chair and laughed weakly until the tears stood in his eyes, and his sides ached so that he could scarcely breathe.

"I can't see what you find to laugh at," said Tommy, blandly.

"Tommy—Tommy—you'll be the death of me," Jim gasped.

"Can't see why. As for the colonel," Tommy remarked, "I believe he's gone off to have a fit of apoplexy."

"I shouldn't at all wonder," declared the other in a feeble voice. "I know if he'd stayed five minutes longer in this room I should have had one for certain. 'You see, sir, I'm beastly young, and my head gets knocked over in next to no time.' Tommy, can't you see the joke of it?"

To be Continued.

THE CHARLESTON MURDER.

Popular Indignation Intense—The Assassin's Story.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 13.—The murder of Captain Dawson was the most brutal and atrocious ever committed in Charleston. The popular indignation is intense, and the people would lynch the murderer if they could get him out of jail. Dr. McDow, Capt. Dawson's assassin, was called upon last night in jail and asked to explain the circumstances of the tragedy. He said: "Capt. Dawson entered my office, used abusive language and knocked me down with his cane. I got up, and he was about to strike me again when I shot him."

Dr. McDow then went on to stay that Capt. Dawson was not killed instantly, that he remained alive for a half to three quarters of an hour, during which time McDow remained in the room with the man whose life was fast ebbing away, making up his mind what to do, but there is the strongest proof that McDow remained in the room at least an hour after the death of Capt. Dawson, planning how he might dispose of the body. The mould was observed to be freshly turned up and to a depth which was only limited by a quantity of bricks and other materials impassable to the spade or whatever instrument was used in the attempt to dig a grave. The closet door was found nailed last night, although it had evidently formerly been laid up against the opening into the closet.

It is therefore almost absolutely certain that the assassin endeavored during his long occupancy of the room with the murdered man to dig his grave and thus forever bury all proof of his crime with his victim. Dr. McDow, after finding his efforts futile, determined to set up the plea of self-defence, and went out and delivered himself to the police.

THE GOLD FEVER.

Conflicting Reports From the Lower California Fields.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—It is said the mining excitement in Lower California is a fraudulent scheme, deliberately planned by real estate men of Southern California, who are anxious to put new bottom in their boom. An Eastern gentleman, who has been several months in that country, says that no bona fide discovery of gold has been made, although much prospecting has been done and that this is the most brazen of all frauds Southern California has perpetrated. On the other hand, favorable reports continue to come from sources that could not be influenced by such a villainous scheme. Dr. Garcia DeLeon of San Diego, who explored Lower California for the Mexican Government two years ago, says the Peninsula is exceedingly rich not only in gold but also in other valuable minerals.

The Situation Threatening.

CHICAGO, March 13.—A special from Los Angeles to The Daily News says: Great excitement exists in the Lower California gold mining camps, and thousands of desperate gold hunters are breathing vengeance against the international company of English capitalists, whose agents lay claim to the mines and are trying to shut out Americans and others. It became known yesterday that the company had sent to San Francisco for 5000 Chinamen to work the mines, and last night the American and Mexican miners held a mass meeting and determined not to submit to the coming of coolies. They also framed a petition to the American Congress asking protection. The situation looks threatening, and a battle between the independent miners and the English company's men is looked for. Blood will certainly be shed if the company insist on bringing coolies to the camp.

The Situation in Panama.

PANAMA, March 13.—Following fast on the floods on the other side comes the stoppage of work on the canal. It is true that on some sections work has been partially resumed, but on the whole little work is in progress. This stoppage of active operations has been a severe blow to many, and while merchants are reshipping their merchandise and closing their stores in Colon, all mechanics and laborers who can leave are doing so. There is much destitution and suffering along the line of the canal and the sooner these unemployed succeed in leaving here the better it will be for them. The canal is certainly in a critical situation. An excellent idea of the change now taking place in canal management can be obtained from the fact that out of 800 men formerly employed by the Canal Company, not by contractors, only 140 are now on the books, and out of 28 doctors formerly on the Canal Company's roll, 16 have been discharged. As already announced, the Chilian Government is paying the passage of all Chilians who are desirous of returning home. Now it has been determined to take a step further, and the corners of the streets in Panama are plastered with handbills offering free conveyance to Chili for 1000 citizens of the United States or Europeans, who are engineers or laborers. This step is evidently taken in view of the proposed railroad construction or the possibility of an outbreak in consequence of the recent developments on the southeast coast.

Pennsylvania Train Robbers.

PITTSBURG, March 13.—A gang of robbers boarded a freight train near Shousetown, on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad, last evening and beat Brakeman Cleary into insensibility. They were driven off by the other trainmen before they secured any booty. A special train was telegraphed for and a posse under Lieut. Booker of this city left for the scene. Nine of the men were surrounded near Phillipsburg and captured. They were heavily armed and carried revolvers and knives. The party was brought to this city at 2 o'clock this morning and lodged in jail. An organized gang is believed to exist along the Pittsburg and Lake Erie road, as the company has been annoyed by persistent freight car robberies for six months. Brakeman Cleary may die.

Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, March 14.—The woman Annie Russell, who took poison through grief on discovering that the man to whom she had been married had another wife living, is still in the City Hospital. She is a great sufferer, and Dr. Beemer says her condition is serious. It is an extremely bad case, and her recovery now is very doubtful.

A deputation of five members of the Peterboro Council visited this city yesterday and were shown through the market buildings, weigh house and market stalls by Mayor Doran. The Peterboro Council is thinking of building a new market hall, and the deputation came here to get pointers.

Detective Campbell and yesterday arrested David Graham on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences. Graham is suspected of other offences. He has been in the hands of the police before.

Yesterday morning about 3 o'clock Mrs. Scott, wife of Samuel Scott, corner of Victoria-avenue and Robert-street, had occasion to go for a doctor. She left the door open and during her absence a sneak thief entered and carried away $2.50 in cash from the till.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

THE PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE HOLD A HOT SESSION.

A Bill Introduced in the House to Compel Telegraph and Telephone Wires to be Put Underground.

OTTAWA, March 15.—The Senate yesterday continued its discussion of Hon. John Macdonald's trade resolution and the House took up the adjourned debate on the Budget. The speakers in the House were Mr. Wood (Westmoreland), Bechard, Gigault, Amyot, Sproule and McMillan of Huron. Mr. Cockburn moved the adjournment of the debate, which will not be continued until Tuesday, when by arrangement it will be closed.

Only one bill was introduced yesterday, by Mr. Perley of Ottawa, to provide for the compulsory placing of all telephone, telegraph and electric light wires underground, the bill to go into effect on Jan. 1 next. The bill applies to the whole of Canada.

The House adjourned at 12.25 this morning.

There was a three hours' session of the Public Accounts Committee yesterday morning, at which there was a good deal of lively talk. It is asserted by the Liberal members that the clothing supplied the volunteers by Canadian manufacturers is of an inferior quality and that it could be purchased more cheaply in England and a far better article supplied.

The contracts for militia clothing are not awarded by public competition but are practically awarded between three or four firms: One at Halifax, two at Montreal and one at Hamilton. Senator W. E. Sandford's Hamilton company was paid $50,000 last year for militia clothing, James O'Brien of Montreal $19,000, and Doull & Miller of Halifax $19,000. Mr. Mulock got the committee to pass a motion summoning Senator Sandford to appear. The House when it met endorsed the resolution and it was sent over to the Senate.

Another matter discussed was the case of Henry Smyth, M.P., of Chatham, Ont., who holds a roving commission from the Agricultural Department as an immigration agent. Mr. Campbell, the present member for Kent, in which Chatham is situated, wanted to make a statement to the committee that Mr. Smyth had drawn money from the Department for services that he had never performed and for expenses which he had never incurred, in fact the charge was one of fraud. Mr. Campbell is not a member of the Public Accounts Committee, and Mr. Somerville wanted to have him examined. This, however, the Conservative members would not agree to unless Mr. Smyth was present to cross-examine Mr. Campbell. There was a great deal of lively talk as to whether Mr. Campbell would be allowed to make his statement. Mr. Foster, Mr. Bowell and Mr. Costigan energetically opposed any statement until Mr. Smyth had been notified of the charges. The latter will therefore be summoned to appear at the next meeting.

Mr. Davis called attention to a large payment made to an informer by the Customs Department and asked how the money was paid to the informer. In this case $8188 appeared in the Auditor-General's report as having been paid to S. W. McMichael of Toronto, financial inspector of Ontario customs ports, as his share of a seizure. There was also a similar sum of $8188 entered as having been paid to the informer. The Auditor-General says that both sums were paid over to the officer who made the seizure. He was supposed to hand over half to the informer. Mr. Davies pointed out that it was quite possible the seizing officers might receive the benefit of the whole sum.

Mr. Brown has decided not to attempt to "re-committee" his bird bill.

Two applications for divorce have been before the Senate committee. In the case in which Mr. G. W. Lowry of Huntley, Ont., applies for separation from his wife on the ground of adultery, the application will be favorably reported.

The Wand case, in which Arthur Wand of Montreal applies for divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery, was up yesterday. The respondent was not represented. The petitioner and several witnesses were examined. The committee framed a report which will be presented to the Senate to-day. The charge of infidelity was conclusively proved.

Col. O'Brien, M.P., says positively that he will not withdraw his anti Jesuit amendment to go into supply.

The condition of Hon. J. H. Pope does not improve.

Hon. Edward and Lady Alice Stanley gave an elaborate "At Home" at the Racquet Court last evening. There was a large invitation list.

The lobbies are full of Canadian Pacific Railway magnates. General Manager Van Horne leads the party. The company's bill comes up in the Railway Committee to-day and a big time is expected.

Whipped by White Caps.

BALTIMORE, March 15.—White Caps whipped James Hatton, a prominent colored politician, at Purgotongue, Va., a few days ago. Hatton was left unconscious and is badly used up.

Seeking a Subsidy.

WARKWORTH, March 15.—A meeting of the ratepayers of the township of Percy was held here Wednesday evening for the purpose of appointing delegates to wait on the Dominion and Ontario Governments to urge that a subsidy be granted the Cobourg and Northumberland Railway. J. Humphreys, A. M. Hamilton, Dr. Richards, F. B. Carlaw and Allan Spiers were appointed to wait on the Dominion Government, and W. Beasley, P. Gallagher and C. A. Mallory to wait on the Ontario Government.

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

A LIVELY DEBATE IN THE LOCAL LEGISLATURE.

Mr. Meredith Attacks the Present System of Appointing License Commissioners — Hon. A. S. Hardy Replies at Length

TORONTO, March 15.—In the Legislature yesterday Mr. Meredith, the Leader of the Opposition, moved this amendment to a motion to go into Committee of Supply:

That all words in the motion after the word "that" be omitted and the following substituted therefor: The present mode of administering the license laws through the Board of Commissioners and Inspectors appointed by the Government of the day has resulted in a partisan administration of the law; has subjected those engaged in the liquor traffic to undue influence by and in the interest of the dominant party in this province; has led in many cases to the tyrannical exercise of the powers of the commissioners and inspectors, and in others to the lax enforcement of the law and the condoning for partisan purposes of offences against its provisions; has unduly and unfairly interfered with the freedom of exercising their franchise by those engaged in the liquor traffic and is otherwise mischievous in its purpose and operation; and while declaring its firm intention and purpose to be not to relax or impair the efficiency of the other provisions of the law, and particularly those limiting the number of licenses to be granted—this House is of opinion that it is essential to the honest, non-partizan and faithful execution of the liquor license laws that the present mode of appointing boards of commissioners should be abrogated and provision be made for placing the appointment of commissioners in the hands of a body more removed from the influence of partizanship and more directly responsible to and under the control of the people.

Mr. Meredith said. "The attention of the public has of late been specially directed by the public press to the administration of the license system under the existing law, and it has been deemed a matter of some surprise having regard to the very serious charges made reflecting upon the administration of the law in the Capital of the Province of Ontario, that no steps have been taken towards making an investigation into the truth of the charges which are now the subject of public discussion. There are to be found in the experience of every one the proof that to some extent that state of things which was referred to by the newspaper writings exists throughout the Province."

Mr. Meredith then referred to the Crooks Act, the main feature of which was to limit the licenses and take away from the municipalities the power they before possessed in the license system. It was said by hon. gentlemen opposite that they made the change in the law not with any view to political aggrandisement, but had taken that position practically at the request of the temperance party in the country and that they had reluctantly assumed it. This, he said, had not been borne out by the facts. Continuing, Mr. Meredith said:

"I want to call the attention of the House to the position the leader of the Government took when that measure was introduced in answer to the objections made from this side of the House. The hon. gentleman made a declaration that the commissioners should not be appointed from his political friends. He pledged the House that the appointments should be made from both political parties. That they should not be appointed from his side of the House only, but that there should be a member in every case of the Conservative party also appointed. To some extent he carried out that pledge, but scarcely had a year or two passed when the hon. gentleman violated the understanding under the pretence, for it was a pretence, that he could not properly administer that law if a Conservative were admitted, and that he could not administer those laws except by friends of the party. Throughout this Province not only had hon. gentlemen used this license system for election purposes, but also at other times to advance the interests of their party. It had also placed under their control the enormous liquor traffic of this country."

Mr. Meredith, continuing, said he would be able to demonstrate, not from mere statements of his own nor from charges made in the newspaper press, that the effect of this legislation had been to make those engaged in such traffic and who were of a different political persuasion cross over to the Liberal party because they knew it was to the interests of their trade that the liquor dealers should be supported by the Reform party. He read from the evidence of J. M. Lettridge at considerable length to substantiate this position.

In the interests of the temperance party, said the speaker, in the interests of truth and purity, I say that this power of prostituting the present license system to the subserviency of party should be removed from the hands of the party now in power. Then instead of having this particular party and that particular party appointed by the government of the day, we would have the question of the proper administration of the license law handled in accordance with the views of the people in each and every locality. Then in large centres and where we have such cities as we have in Ontario to-day we are prepared to go further and to say that this question should be left in the hands of the people direct, with the full belief and confidence that the law would be administered in accordance with the principles of what is right and proper.

Hon. A. S. Hardy rose to reply. He explained that from 1877 up till one year ago he personally was responsible for the administration of the law, and during the last year it had been under the supervision of the Provincial Treasurer, so that the Premier was personally irresponsible, and he (Mr. Hardy), being more familiar with the administration, would take upon himself the responsibility of replying to the charges made.

Mr. Hardy said that as he saw the license administration it was one of a very superior kind, and no scheme had yet been submitted which would be better in design or better in execution than the one now in force. In fact, said he, the charges preferred by honorable gentlemen opposite are not charges of detail but charges of merely occasional discrepancies which would exist under any other regime and would crop up here and there under any law which might be in force.

Said Mr. Hardy: "The charges as made by the honorable leader of the Opposition are weak, thin, poor and meagre in detail. We as representing the Government have been charged with being partisan in the appointment of license commissioners. Now, when the Dominion Government, the friends of the honorable leader of the Opposition, by an over-reach of power undertook to administer the license laws did they, notwithstanding what has been said, appoint non-partisan boards? No, they did not not. They appointed Conservatives. They didn't appoint a single Reformer that I know of."

Opposition cries: "Oh yes!" Oh yes!"

Mr. Hardy: "Give me a name will you. [Applause.] I defy you to give me a single name of a Reformer who was appointed on the Board! You cannot do it!"

Opposition cries: "Go on, go on!"

Mr. Hardy: "You come here with these charges, and now you are not able to give me a single name!"

Mr. Clancy (Kent): "Thomas C. McNabb of Chatham, a Reformer, was appointed to the Dominion Board."

Mr. Hardy: "That is only one name, give me more. Go on and give me more. Let us have the names of more, but remember, I shall look carefully into this man McNabb's history and see if he was really a Reformer."

Mr. Hardy further continued in an attack on the Dominion Government's mode of dealing with the licenses while they possessed [illegible] state of the liquor traffic before the enactment of the Crooks Act was referred to, and compared with the condition resultant on the existing laws. Statistics were quoted to show that Reform hotel keepers were greatly in the minority in all places.

He would not continue the argument further now, but would rest it unless the debate was continued on the other side. He would just say, however, that the present mode of the appointment of commissioners was less objectionable than their election by local bodies, in which cases it was well-known hotel men would combine to elect their men. It was acknowledged that the temperance legislation of this House was in advance of all legislation on the license question in the world, with the exception of the Nova Scotia law.

Mr. Hardy concluded: "Under these circumstances in the interests of temperance and morality it is not desirable again to revert to the old system, which the resolution of my hon. friend seeks." [Applause.]

After recess the debate was continued by Mr. H. E. Clarke, Mr. Gibson of Huron, Dr. Willoughby, Hon. A. M. Ross who produced a statement signed by 143 Toronto hotelkeepers denying The World's charges of license boodling and the existence of a License Guarantee Fund, Mr. Ostrom, Mr. Waters, Mr. Whitney, Mr. G. B. Smith, Mr. Preston, Mr. Murray and Mr. Bishop. Mr. Wylie moved the adjournment of the debate.

In accordance with a resolution moved by the Attorney-General yesterday, morning sessions will be commenced next Tuesday and will be continued for the remainder of the session.

Mr. Ley's bill to amend the Municipal Act was considered in the Municipal Committee yesterday. Mr. H. E. Clarke's bill was agreed to, the clause taxing local improvements on a basis of property valuations instead of by a frontage rate, being eliminated.

After some discussion consideration of the clause in Mr. Leys' bill relating to the city's liability for the use of the county jail and court-house was adjourned until to-day.

These bills were read a third time: Respecting the Ontario and Sault Ste. Marie Water, Light and Power Company and the town of Sault Ste. Marie; for the better protection of insectivorous and other birds; respecting the consolidation of the debenture debt of the city of Toronto.

Mr. Clarke moved that the above bill be discharged and referred back to committee, where it was passed.

ANOTHER TASCOTT.

This Time He Turns Up at Nanaimo and Is Evidently Insane.

VICTORIA, B.C., March 14.—A man answering the description of W. B. Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell of Chicago, was arrested at Nanaimo Wednesday afternoon and lodged in jail. He gave the name of Charles Palmer. He arrived on the noon train and his suspicious actions drew the attention of the officers, who quietly watched him and effected his arrest. It is said Palmer, as he calls himself, boarded the train at Gold Stream, three miles from Victoria and jumped off the cars before the train stopped at Nanaimo. He engaged a boatman immediately to row him to Gibrola Island, telling the latter he was hunted and wished to escape from his pursuers. Rain coming on, the voyage was not made. Palmer then offered a livery man $20 to drive him out of town as far as he could. While preparing to leave he was arrested. Should it turn out to be Tascott he is evidently insane. When arrested he gave his occupation as compositor. A charge of vagrancy was entered against him and he will come up for examination Saturday.

FRENCH AFFAIRS.

A Heated Debate in the Chamber—Three Duels Imminent.

PARIS, March 15.—The Bank of France authorities deny the report of the resignation of the governor and one of the directors of the bank. They also discredit the rumor of the resignation of two other directors.

La Paris says the Minister of Finance has appointed two experts to ascertain the exact position of the Comptoir d'Escompte.

In the Chamber of Deputies M. Arene amid noisy interruption from the Right read the report of the committee appointed to consider the charges against Laguerre, Laisant and Turquet. The report favored the prosecution of the accused deputies.

M. Sevaistre declared the proposal showed the imbecility of its authors. For this remark Sevaistre was severely censured by the President of the Chamber.

M. Laguerre then spoke. He averred that his party intended to prosecute its campaign peacefully and legally. He would not appeal to the Chamber, whose verdict was immaterial, but to the country which supported the Patriotic League. He denied that the league was a secret society. The real conspirators were those who rebelled against universal suffrage. This clique had seized the Government, but universal suffrage would have the last word. Persecution and violence would only hasten the hour when the country, disgusted and indignant, would repeal the Chamber. [Applause from the Right.] The report of the committee maintained that the Patriotic League was a secret society. Referring to the fact that Gen. Boulanger recently dined with the Duchesse Duzes, he expressed surprise that men calling themselves Republicans should form a part of the Pretorian Guard of the Faubourg St. Germain.

Gen. Boulanger rose, and crossing his arms regarded the majority defiantly. An uproar ensued, during which M. Thiesse was censured for apostrophising the President.

The debate was clotured, 318 to 214. The Chamber then, 334 to 227, authorized the Government to prosecute the accused deputies. The sitting was then adjourned.

As a result of the heated debate duels are imminent between MM. Anene and Provost Delaunay, Barieau and De Cassagnac, Pichon and Laguerre. In the course of his speech Laguerre was called to order on account of his violent language and the fact was inscribed on the official record.

Not so Poor as He Seemed.

ST. LOUIS, March 15.—Friday George C. Hayden, aged 75, died at a cheap boarding house here. He was supposed to be very poor. The public administrator in examining Hayden's trunk found a note enclosing a safe deposit key. It also contained the name of B. C. Payne of Winslow, Maine. The administrator found in Hayden's box at the safe deposit vault over $60,000 in cash, stocks and bonds. Hayden is supposed to have relatives in Maine. He lived here nearly 40 years.

WINDSOR, March 15.—Magistrate Bartlett yesterday morning continued the case against Mrs. Tremble for one week. She is charged with bringing stolen property into Canada, and was arrested at the instigation of a clerk who saw her steal some goods in Newcomb, Endicotte & Co.'s, Detroit, and followed her to Windsor before he could make up his mind to have her arrested.

NEWS OF THE DOMINION.

A TORONTO FIRM MULCTED BY THE CUSTOMS AUTHORITIES.

Death at a Wedding—Evildoers at Montreal —A Dundas Man's Probably Fatal Fall—Down by the Sea.

TORONTO, March 15.—In the police court yesterday morning George Kerr, the well known barrister, was fined $3 and costs for assault on James Paterson, a retired merchant and ex-President of the Board of Trade. The trouble arose from a dispute as to the whereabouts of Paterson's will, which he claimed to have left with Kerr as lawyer. A case of insulting language preferred by Kerr against Paterson was dismissed. Both are prominent trustees of the Metropolitan Methodist Church.

Contractor John Shields and Captain Sylvester Neelon appeared before the Civic Executive Committee yesterday to press the claims of the St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway Company for a bonus or subsidy from the Dominion Government. The following motion was passed: "That the Council be requested to pass a petition asking the Dominion Government to grant the subsidy, and that a committee consisting of His Worship the Mayor, Chairman of the Executive, and Ald. Denison, Davies and Vokes, wait upon the Government and impress on it the great advantage to the commercial interests of Toronto likely to accrue on the completion of that section of the road between St. Catharines and Toronto.

It is reported that Gillespie, Ansley & Martin, wholesale furriers, have had a difficulty with the custom authorities, which has resulted in the firm being mulcted to the tune of $3000. Both the members of the firm and the authorities refuse to talk.

It is recorded against the name of Edward White, 626½ Yonge-street, arrested last night, that he attempted to steal a dog, the property of Wm. Flynn. According to the latter's story Flynn's dog was walking soberly behind its owner in Yonge-street when the prisoner came along and grabbed it. He refused to give it up and was run in.

The admirers of the heavy horse from all parts of the Province assembled at the Toronto Drill Shed yesterday to witness the Clydes' contest for honors. It was the third annual spring show of the Clydesdale Horse Association of Canada. Both morning and afternoon the spacious building was crowded with spectators, who seemed to take great interest in the big horses as they were led about, their manes decorated with various colored ribbons. The show on a whole was certainly the best yet held by the Association and the animals did credit to the country. Mr. Beith of Bowmanville was a prominent exhibitor, his stock being a fine lot. The interest taken in the first-class that came before the judges, that of Canadian bred Clydesdale stallions, showed that the agriculturists of the Dominion are aware of the necessity of securing good, serviceable home-bred animals. In this class first prize was awarded to William Gregg's Glenlee, bred by the exhibitor at Claremont. Glenlee also secured the sweepstake prize. In the next class, that of Canadian Clydesdale stallions, foaled subsequent to Jan. 1, 1888, John Bell's L'Amaroux secured first prize, the only other entry being Alex. Doherty's Merry Boy.

A Government caucus was held in room 16 at the Legislative buildings yesterday. The chief subject was that of opening the railway question. It was decided that colonization railways would receive encouragement, notably those which would open up the northwestern part of the Province.

It is understood that they announced their intention of granting aid to the following proposed railways:

$3000 per mile for fifty miles of road from Port Arthur to Sand Lake, amounting in all to $150,000 to that district.

$3000 per mile for 28 miles, from a point on Manitoulin Island, to connect with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

$3000 for 50 miles on a railroad beginning east of Palmer Rapids and terminating 20 miles east of Westport.

It is not at all improbable but the Government will also consider before the House rises the advisability of granting aid to the Nipissing and James' Bay railway, although it is believed they did not announce this as yet. The Government are fully alive to the representations made that the newly-settled districts of the Province are entitled to assistance in the line of railway development.

Probably Fatal Fall.

HAMILTON, March 15.—Mr. Robt. Woods, who was an oldtime resident of Dundas and for years foreman of the Dundas foundry, fell from a hay mow and received injuries from which he will probably die. The unfortunate gentleman, who is now engaged in farming near Copetown, was preparing to feed the stock and by some means fell through the mow. When picked up it was ascertained that his injuries were of a very serious nature. Drs. Ross and Malloch were soon in attendance, and it was discovered that either his ribs or the cartilage connecting with his spine had been fractured. He is paralyzed in the lower limbs from the effect of the accident and it is feared that he will not recover.

Montreal Malefactors.

MONTREAL, March 15.—In the Court of Queen's Bench yesterday among the true bills returned by the grand jury were: Marie Girard, Eva Peltier and J. Persanne, perjury; Andre Mainville, rape; J. A. Coutlie, E. Rooney and L. S. Chafer, obtaining money under false pretences; Nap. Laroque, forgery of signatures to application for liquor licenses. No bill was returned in the case of Wm. Dinceda, charged by Feodor Boss with obtaining money under false pretences. The trial of John Benson for the murder of his wife was continued yesterday, the evidence being unfavorable to Benson.

Death at a Wedding.

WYOMING, Ont., March 15.—While a wedding was taking place Wednesday evening at the residence of John Paul, second line of Plympton, Mrs. McLintock, wife of Rev. Mr. McLintock of Mandaumin Presbyterian Church, went into one of the bedrooms to lay aside her wraps. A few moments later she was found lying on the floor dead. The cause of her death was apoplexy. She leaves four sons and five daughters.

Expansion of British Trade With Canada.

LONDON, March 15.—A meeting of the Anticosti Company has been convened for voluntary liquidation, as F. W. Stockwell is unable to provide the purchase price. The directors expect that the property when sold as a result of the winding up, will more than suffice to pay the debts and expenses, and repay the shareholders the full amount of their subscription.

British trade expanded last month both in exports to and imports from Canada. The former increased £[illegible], or equal to five per cent.; the latter £[illegible],665, or equal to twelve per cent.

A Fatal Accident.

AGINCOURT, March 15.—While James Kennedy, an aged resident of this place, was driving a team of horses assisting to move a building on the premises of S. J. Patterson, he missed his footing and before the building could be stopped it had been drawn over his body injuring him fatally. He was taken to his home but expired a few minutes afterwards. An inquest was thought unnecessary.

IMMIGRATION.

During the first few years after confederation the Dominion expenditure on immigration was comparatively small, the expenditure under that head and including quarantine ranging about $60,000 to $70,000. After 1873 the expenditure went up rapidly, the Reform Government under Mr. Mackenzie having inaugurated the system of assisted passages, and in 1875-76 the expenses amounted to $365,000. Moreover, the Mackenzie Government made an arrangement with the Provinces which bound the Dominion to the system for years after. The present Government has been reducing the expenditure under this head. As the outlays on immigration and quarantine were not given separately in the accounts previous to 1877, a comparison with the years previous to that cannot be strictly correct as regards immigration, but last year the expenditure was about $65,000 less than in 1877, and on the combined services of immigration and quarantine it was over $72,000 less than in 1875 76. The Government, however, has found itself in a position to make larger reductions, having been previously bound by the arrangement of its predecessors, and the estimated expenditure for the present year is $132,000 less that the expenditure of 1877. The estimates for 1889 show a still further decrease of $21,254, or, compared with 1877, a reduction of $214,000.

The assisted passages have been entirely done away with, and this has enabled the Government to make these large reductions in the expenditure.

If, however, all expenditure under the head of immigration were abolished, Canada would be at a great disadvantage as compared with other countries in endeavoring to increase its population. This Dominion has thousands of acres of arable land awaiting the energies of the husbandman to extract from it the riches it contains, and so long as these lands are unoccupied they will not benefit the country. Other countries with unsettled lands are endeavoring to attract the European emigrants to their shores, and if Canada wishes to have her lands taken up and tilled her Government must make the emigrants acquainted with the opportunities afforded here for enterprising husbandmen and willing workers to make homes for themselves.

The Government directs its attention to having the vacant lands settled, and does not encourage the immigration of mechanics, as it has been found that the supply of mechanics has been equal to the demand.

THE Winnipeg Free Press, a Liberal paper, furnishes the following information regarding the prices of wheat in Manitoba and Dakota:—

"Last Saturday as Land Commissioner Hamilton and W. W. Watson were returning from the south they made enquiries about the price of wheat at points in Dakota and Manitoba along the line of railway. They found in every case that the price paid in Manitoba was higher than that which obtained in Dakota. For instance, at Gretna in the province $1.00 per bushel was being paid, while at Neche, Dak., two miles to the south, the price was only 93 cents, and at Bathgate, a few miles further south, 95 cents was the ruling price. Thus the highest price in Dakota compared with the price at Gretna shows an advantage of 5 cents a bushel in favor of Manitoba."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

DAIRYING IN NORMANDY.

FRENCH AND CANADIAN BUTTER MAKING COMPARED.

Butter Merchants Bring Uniformity out of Variety—The "Normandy System"—Not Advised for Canada.

LETTER X.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act and published by permission of the author.

If my farmer friends will take a lump of butter fresh from the churn, work it over well—a little too thoroughly—and, without adding any salt serve it at table, when from two days to a week old, they will have a very fair impression of what sort of butter is eaten on most of the London tables. The average Canadian, or American, visitor to London will find the butter so "flat" and "tasteless" that he will make a practice, for a time at least, of sprinkling upon it a little salt. When he returns here he will tell what excellent butter he ate in London. If my readers were to visit Normandy, in France, where a large proportion of butter eaten by Londoners is made, they would find that the intrinsic quality of this butter is not better, on the average, apparently, than the butter ordinarily made on Canadian farms. Yet, when the butter made on this side of the water, which fresh from the churn would be pronounced excellent in London, when it has been worked, salted all it will bear, has stood the test of package, transportation and marketing, and has at last found its way to England, it would be utterly denied a place on a London table.

There is a teaching on the very surface of all this. For one market at least—and that one the market of the British metropolis—butter is the better liked the nearer it is to the churn, and the freer it is from salt.

It may be an open question whether Canada will find it possible or profitable, under the severe conditions of competition, to cater to the London taste. Yet a study of the butter question would have been incomplete without an inquiry into the methods of existing supply. Normandy was the district which naturally would be chosen for such inquiry.

The system in Normandy is peculiar. In the market towns there is one market day in each week. The market days of adjoining towns are two days apart. Market towns are near enough together to allow most of the farmers to reach two or three markets each week. Churning days and market days are the same. Everything is planned to do the churning in the early morning, and the butter is then brought to market not only fresh from the churn, but absolutely unsalted, and only somewhat imperfectly worked. It goes without saying that every means are taken to keep the butter cool.

There are a considerable number of butter merchants who attend each of the different markets. Thus it happens that the same set of producers meets the same set of buyers, two or three times a week, though only once a week at any one town. The system results in an extensive trade, lively markets, and stiff competition.

It is a novel experience, a visit to one of these Normandy market towns on market day. The early morning trains bring in the many buyers, and the one horse carts bring in the country people with their newly churned butter in baskets, tubs or pails usually well wrapped up in damp cloths. Traders by the score open up stalls in the open squares or the wide streets, each supplying his own special line. The peasant leaves with these traders a fair share of the gold which the buyer pays him for his butter.

Each butter merchant is provided with a number of large baskets and wrapping cloths, a weighing scale, also a table or desk, a cash box, and a book of tables for rapid calculation. It is astonishing to note the rapidity with which the buyer receives, weighs, prices and pays for the butter, and throws it into the huge baskets, ranged side by side, to be filled with the different grades of quality.

The mystery of the apparent instantaneous estimate of value of butter, or pricing of it is explained when one learns that each merchant has one or more buyers moving about the market among the peasants, examining and bargaining for the butter and scratching on the butter itself the price per pound agreed upon. The butter is therefore practically sold before it is brought to the merchant or his receiving clerk, who has only to weigh it and pay the price agreed upon. Some of the larger merchants are assisted by one or more clerks, to record the sales and pay for the butter, and all are kept busy for two or three hours until the butter is all sold and bought. It is a scene of business activity that inspires a feeling of admiration of the business qualities of those engaged. The receiver deftly turns the butter out on the scale, tosses the empty basket and cloth back to its peasant owner, weighs the lump, calls out the number of pounds—"Vight six a vight quartre sous" (24 lbs, at 12 pence)—and calls for the next. The clerk must needs be lively in his movements to glance at his reckoning tables, make an entry of the purchase, count out the amount in gold silver and coppers, and be ready for the next weighing—"Cinquante à vight trois sous."

I could not quite understand by what rule the butter was assorted in the different baskets. Generally, it seemed to be done according to price; but watching closely, I noted some exceptions not easily accounted for. It may either have been a mistake on the part of the receiver, or it may have been a difference in judgment between the buyer (who fixed the price) and the receiver who weighed and assorted the butter.

Again, neither the prices paid nor the assorting of the lots as received accorded with my ideas of quality. In my humble judgment the butter was graded on a different standard from our ideas of butter quality, and on a lower level than that upon which our finest qualities are judged. I observed a buyer toss one lot of butter which was possessed of a fine tinge of color into a basket containing butter of a dull, dead color. In explanation he told me that "color" did not count—they judged only by the "odeur" (odor.)

The fact that the butter was to be artificially colored was doubtless one reason why so little was made of color. Yet, the natural color or appearance of butter ought to be taken into account, as being, in itself one indication of quality. The use of the term "gilt-edge" by Americans applied to the very finest quality of butter, is a just appreciation of the importance of color or tinge, or blush, as an indication of intrinsic quality.

I noticed, however, that consistency, or solidity, was taken into account practically in the estimate of value; for one buyer, with his hand, squeezed out a heavy proportion of water, and fixed a low price, giving the valid reason that he was "buying butter, not water." The occasional tasting of butter by buyers proved that flavor also appeared in some degree to be considered, as, of course, it should be.

The quality of the butter, as a whole, in my mind did not average very high. While few of the samples, were exceptionally fine, some of them were exceedingly poor—sometimes flat and flavorless, other times with a positively objectionable flavor. Some of the butter appeared already to be overworked and dull colored, and I saw samples of this description thrown in with better samples, having a rich color.

The baskets in which the butter was thrown were about two feet high, about 18 inches across the top and 15 inches across the bottom. I give these approximate dimensions from memory. Two large and heavy canvas sheets were provided for each basket. They were first wrung out in cold water, laid in the baskets in a way to line the inside of the basket and to surround the butter and cover its top surface—thus affording a complete wrap for the butter.

On a summer's day the butter when received by the buyers is on the warm side; but hard or soft it is unceremoniously plumped, one piece on another, into the baskets. The baskets are packed full to heaping ten inches or more above the top, and the ends of the cloths are then brought over to cover the butter completely. Straw is laid over the top, on the cloth, and the whole tied down. The baskets are marked to indicate the quality or grade, then addressed, loaded immediately on carts, taken to the railway station, and shipped to the headquarters of the butter merchant, or, in other words, to the packing or blending house, which is reached within three or four hours by rail.

In warm weather every precaution is taken to keep the butter cool as possible. Even after the baskets are loaded into the wagons pailfuls of water are thrown over the top, to be soaked up by the heavy cloths. In one place which I visited the wagons sent to the station to receive the butter were provided with high canvas covers—what on the western prairies would be called "schooners."

When the butter reaches the town to which it is sent there are wagons in waiting, and it is at once hauled to the blending house. What is there done with it is more or less a secret kept from the general public. We all know, however, that there it is colored, worked over, packed, graded and in a few hours made ready for shipment, and ready, in a most enticing form, for market. We know, too, that little or no salt is added, but that artificial refrigeration is provided, and, possibly, artificial preservatives may be added to the butter. In fact, it is "doctored." The last market I visited was at Carenton, near Isigny. Merchants having headquarters at Valognes early in the afternoon were at home with their morning's buying. The following day the butter would be all prepared for the London market and shipped by railway to the port of Cherbourg. Leaving Cherbourg in the evening, I found myself the following morning at Southampton, England. There were very few passengers, and the freight appeared to be little else than agricultural products, the bulk of which was Normandy butter, done up in tasteful boxes and buckets, as one sees it in the London market, uniform in appearance and attractive; so unlike the all-sorted mixtures I saw purchased in the Normandy markets, that one could hardly believe it was really and truly one and the same thing!

While we have much to learn from the enterprise of the French butter merchants, I was not much impressed with the Normandy system as a whole, nor, indeed, with the butter with which it deals. A year or two ago the French dairymen were reputed to be in advance of all competitors in the English market. Now the Danes are placing themselves ahead; and in Denmark this blending system is growing out of favor.

As to the intrinsic quality of Normandy butter, it is not what, because of its reputation in the London market, it is popularly supposed to be. The quality as it comes from the churn, and is sold to the butter merchants, is not better than the average quality of Canadian butter at the same stage of existence. Yet the one is the noted Normandy butter much in favor in the London market, and the other is the notorious Canadian "axle grease" which takes second place to margarine! The great difference is in the system of preparing for and placing in the market, and in the length of time which places it on the consumer's table.

To the consumer the quality of Normandy butter appears to be very uniform. A dealer asserted that there was little or no difference between the receipts of August 31st and those of December 31st. But, while one great merit of Normandy butter is its uniformity, yet as it is bought in the market fresh from the churn, it is of all grades of quality, of all shades of color, all flavors, all degrees of solidity. What might be its lack of uniformity if the butter makers had the whole care of it all through—working, coloring, packing—if there were no system of putting it on the market?

What saves the Normandy butter is the fact that it is taken from the peasant directly from the churn, as it were, and falls into the hands of shrewd, skilful business men. By them it is assorted according to quality, handled with all necessary precautions against changes in temperature, it is well worked over, neatly packed, and sent quickly to market to go into immediate consumption. In a word, it is most skilfully "fixed up," and marketed in a businesslike manner.

Aside from the merit of uniformity, however, Normandy butter possesses no other striking quality of merit over other butter. It has a certain quality that almost any butter would have, treated skilfully to present a pleasing appearance, and consumed fresh—before any defects develop. Being high-colored and being fresh, it takes well in a market like London, where butter is preferrred mild and absolutely free from salt. Its quality is rather of a negative than a positive character. It has usually, at least, one positive fault—that of being overworked. In intrinsic quality I do not think it equal to Danish butter. Nor is it equal to samples of English butter which I have seen alongside of it, and which were not second to Danish. I have tasted the Normandy butter in the shops then, notwithstanding its short age, it had acquired the sharp taste which characterizes butter when it begins to go "off." It is not subjected to the test which Danish butter has to undergo, and it is doubtful if it would stand such test.

Let me, in parenthesis, add that it is due to the French dairyman to say that the butter which I have been describing is not the finest butter made in France. The finest of his butter is sent to the Paris market. I was assured of this fact by a butter merchant in Normandy. Prof. Long, of England, says very truly: "He sends to us his second quality, and for this we pay a very good price, and consider it superior, especially if it is well displayed by the retailer and labeled Brittany or Normandy."

I feel confident that I speak correctly in saying that much of that which we now call "axle-grease" when it is first taken from the churn is equal to the butter I saw in Normandy fresh from the churn; and that if our butter could be handled like the Normandy butter and as quickly marketed and consumed, it would deserve and obtain as good a reputation. If this be true, ought we to adopt the Normandy system?

The conditions of a successful working of that system are very difficult to meet in Canada. The Normandy system involves:

1. That the make of butter in a given district be of sufficient quantity to warrant the holding of at least two accessible markets each week, and to encourage the necessary competition among buyers.

2. That a system be adopted by butter dealers; and that the butter producers adapt their methods of work to that system. The buyers must possess enough enterprise to find a market and supply it. The butter makers must do the churning immediately previous to marketing to ensure that the butter be delivered in a fresh condition.

The Normandy system would appear to be adapted to the handling of fresh, unsalted or light-salted butter, intended for immediate consumption, rather than for butter to be packed for long keeping.

The first condition is a difficult one, from the fact that where such a system is most needed the bad condition of the butter industry has sometimes caused a largely diminished production. A good authority in my own township (in the Eastern Townships—somewhat butter-famous) tells me that fifteen years ago there were three cows to one to-day. The inauguration, however, of a successful system, would doubtless lead to an increase of cows and of production. Again, we are at a disadvantage in the fact that our competitors working this system are but one night's sea-distance from a foreign market, while we are ten days.

I have given the details of the Normandy system not because I think it practicable to adopt it, but that it may possibly suggest some modification of the system suited to our peculiar conditions.

With our present transportation facilities the Normandy system, or any modification of it, even if it could be adopted here, would be suitable only for the supply of our own local markets. Whether we may some time compete with the Normandy peasants in the London market depends on various contingencies, the main ones of which are improved continental and ocean transport facilities, and our practical application of the wonderfully effective principles of refrigeration. In other words, our success will depend largely upon the measure of our intelligence and enterprise.

Obituary.

In another column appears the death notice of Mrs. Lane, wife of Mr. Matthew Lane, of Brooklyn. Mr. Lane was a well known resident of Peterborough some twenty years ago and will be remembered by the older residents of the town. He was here for a short time about a years ago Mrs. Lane (nee Miss Doherty,) was also from this vicinity. Mr. Lane will have the sympathy of friends here in his bereavement.

The Night Draws Near.

To-night is the night for which every one has been waiting. It will be the night of the grand Firemen's Carnival, and every person who skates should get their costumes ready and be on hand, for this will undoubtedly be about the last chance for a good skate that will be had. The music will be the best, the prizes are first-class and there will be a fancy skating competition which will alone be worth the price of admission. Come one, come all.

Ability Recognized.

We see by recent Denver papers that the Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, has been appointed Warden of St. John's College, Denver, an institution in connection with the Church of England there. We are sure his many friends will be glad to learn that his abilities are recognized in that far distant place by his being offered this responsible position. We believe, however, that the appointment is only temporary, and that at the end of the college term in June, Mr. Bradshaw will return. His health is much improved by his residence in Denver.

The Winner of the Medal.

The point competition for the President's and Vice-President's medal by the members of the curling club was finished yesterday evening. The first of the curlers, about twenty in number, it will be remembered, played on Tuesday last and out of this number Messrs. W. G. Ferguson and Geo. Walker came out the with a top score of 17 points. Yesterday afternoon the remainder of the club tried their skill, but none of their scores were threatening to the top score of 17 except Mr. W. H. Budden's. This gentleman at one time was expected to win the medal and came very near tieing the score, but missed his last shot and was left out with a score of 16. Then last evening Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Walker played off their tie with the result that Mr. Walker captured the President's medal for this year. The contest on the whole was interesting and the ice was in fair condition.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

The Court of Chancery sittings opened here at one o'clock to day before Mr. Justice Robertson. The list of cases only comprises three actions—Fisher vs. Fisher, Kent vs. File, and Fitzgerald vs. Midland Railway Co.

There were several members of the bar who were interested in the cases were present from a distance. Among them were G. T. Blackstock, G. B. Watson and Walter Cassels, of Toronto; and Mr. W. H. Biggar, of Bell & Biggar Belleville.

FISHER vs. FISHER.—This was the first action called and was one in which the plaintiff, Luke A. C. Fisher, claims to set aside a deed dated 1874 from the Rev. Mark Burnham to the defendant, Jane E. Fisher, of lot 191, Driscoll-st., in the village of Ashburnham, or to have the said lot partitioned or sold and the produce money divided in such proportion as their interests may appear. This claim is entered on the alleged ground that the plaintiff's uncle, Hugh Fisher, paid a part of the purchase money to the Rev. Mark Burnham and that the said lot was divised by the said Hugh Fisher to the plaintiff. In defence it is set up that the defendant's father, the late Wm. Fisher, the purchaser, paid the greater portion of the purchase money and that any money paid by her uncle, Hugh Fisher, was paid by way of advancement as he stood in loco parentis to her, hence she claims the said lot as the sole-heir-at-law of her father. E. B. Edwards and J. W. Bennet for the plaintiff, G. T. Blackstock (Toronto) and W. A. Stratton, for defendant.

An Epidemic Prevalent.

There is an epidemic which is very prevalent among horses in these parts just at present. It is known as influenza and is a form of epizotic. Several cases of this disease have proved fatal and the owners of horses should be very careful to guard against fatal results by having the diseased animal treated upon the first appearance of the symptoms. Dr. Crevier, V. S., remarked to-day that if taken in its early stage this disease could easily be handled, but if allowed to develop it would in all probability prove fatal.

Mr. Powderly Cannot Come.

Must disappointment is felt, says an Ottawa despatch, over the announcement that Mr. Powderly, the great Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, will not be able pay his expected visit to Canada. Several times lately he has had an attack of hemorrhage of the stomach after speaking in public, and he has therefore been compelled to give up his proposed trip through this country. He writes Mr. Elliott that he may come later, if he can do so without a recurrence of his present trouble.

Ladies Addressed by a Lady.

A meeting of the local branch of the Women's Auxiliary Missionary Society was held in the Bible class room of the George-st. church yesterday afternoon, when there was a large turnout of ladies. Mrs. Dr. Williams, of Toronto, President of the Central Branch of the Auxiliary Missionary Society, was present and addressed the meeting relative to the missionary work of the Society and her remarks, which were instructive and interesting, were listened to with keen interest and appreciation by the ladies present, and will undoubtedly give a new impetus to the missionary work among the ladies here.

Curran, Q.C., M.P., whose eloquence is heard with pleasure in the House of Commons and on the platform, will deliver a lecture on "Ireland and Her Cause." Familiar with his subject and an orator of high powers, this lecture will be a rare treat that all interested in Ireland or who admire finished oratory should not fail to hear.

THE TOWN ATTRACTED

THE GEORGE-ST. CHURCH BESIEGED BY THOUSANDS.

The Belleville Visitors—Addresses by Rev. John Learoyd and Others—The Converted Mayor's Letter—The Experiences of a Converted Railway Man, a Commercial Traveller, a Merchant, a Government Official, Two Grey-Haired Converts and a Hero of Batoche—A Grand Meeting.

There were two separate and distinct crowds at George-st. church last night, one composed of those who were at the church long before seven o'clock and who were fortunate enough to get inside the doors, and the other consisting of those disappointed individuals who arrived at the church after seven o'clock and were obliged to leave without even seeing the inside of the porch. There must have been fully two thousand souls inside of the four walls of the sacred edifice and nearly half as many more must have been turned away from the door on account of the crush. Many of these who, though early in the ordinary sense of the word and under ordinary circumstances, were compelled to remain on the outside of the church were persons who had driven in from the country and the outlying villages, and needless to say, their disappointment was great, but they had no one to blame, not even themselves. A number of the front seats had been reserved for the expected Belleville friends.

THE SPECIAL REQUESTS.

On the platform, besides the two evangelists, were the following local divines:—Rev. Messrs. Pearson, Shorey, Wilson, Torrance and Parker. While the immense audience was awaiting the arrival of the Belleville people a number of hymns were sung, Rev. Mr. Crossley singing a solo "My Ain Country." Rev. Mr. Hunter solicited the prayers of all the Christians present for a number of special requests for prayers. These requests were as follows:—For a brother-in-law and sister-in-law, who were members of the church but had lately been led to believe there was no harm in dancing and were having a dancing party that night; for a neighbor and his wife; for a brother and his wife; for a family; for two young women who were under deep conviction; for a young shopmate; for two young men; for two brothers; for a sister and her husband; for two young men; for a sick woman; from a mother for her son; for a brother in Boston; for an unconverted brother; for a father and for a husband. Then a number of very special request were read afterwards. One for a brother in Toronto, another for a friend dying of consumption, another for a father, mother and sister, and still another from a lady who for 50 years had been a follower of Jesus and was now on her death-bed, asking the prayers of Christians for her three unconverted sons.

THE BELLEVILLE CONVERTS.

It was just about eight o'clock when the Belleville contingent arrived at the church and were ushered into the seats that had been reserved for them. There were about one hundred and twenty-five in the party, among whom were Rev. John Learoyd, of the Bridge-st. Methodist church, Belleville, Mr. Wm. Johnson, superintendent of the Sunday school of the same church, and Mr. C. P. Holton, the leader of the ladies' Bible class also of the Bridge-st. church. The majority of the Bellevillians were persons who had been converted at the meetings of the evangelists' in the Bay City just a year ago now. As the visitors took their seats the choir sang the hymn "I've been redeemed" and the audience joined most heartily in the singing. Then the immense gathering united in one grand voice in singing "Praise God from whom all Blessings Flow."

SINGING AND ADDRESSES.

After dropping a word of welcome to his Belleville friends Rev. Mr. Hunter read part of the twelth chapter of Romans, commenting briefly thereon.

Rev. Mr. Crossley and Miss Nellie Wrighton then sang "The Song of Trust" in a beautiful manner.

Rev. Mr. CROSSLEY then made a short address in which he referred to the change a man experienced when he found salvation and briefly dealt with the question "Is life worth living," saying that from the standpoint of the moralist, the rich man or the infidel it was not, but from the standpoint of a Christian it was indeed. He urged all unsaved to come and live this life that was worth living.

THE BELLEVILLE DIVINE.

Rev. JOHN LEAROYD, the pastor of the church in which the evangelistic services were held in Belleville, was the first one of the visitors whom Rev. Mr. Hunter called upon.

The Belleville divine said he had not come to Peterborough to speak, but rather to spend a night with the evangelists and with the Peterborough brethren, but he could tell them Messrs. Crossley and Hunter had accomplished a very blessed work for God in Belleville. He had been a Methodist ever since he was born, and his father had been a Methodist preacher before him and he believed his grandfather had also been a staunch Methodist, and he had seen or been associated with a great many revivals, but he had never seen a grander revival attended with so lasting and stable results as that of a year ago in Belleville. They had taken in 400 new members into his church after the services, besides those who had gone to other churches. He was glad to say the work of God had not ceased in Belleville yet, but in all the meetings they had in connection with the church they had conversions that were the outcome of the evangelistic services a year ago. He hoped that they would experience a similar blessing in Peterborough.

THE CONVERTED MAYOR.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER said he would then call upon a gentleman who was the superintendent of one of the largest Sunday schools in Ontario—Mr. Wm. Johnson. Mr. Hunter said that they had expected the Mayor of Belleville, but Mr. Johnson would read a letter explaining his absence.

Mr. WM. JOHNSON then rose from his seat on the platform and read the letter from Belleville's converted Mayor, which was worded thusly:—

My Dear Crossley and Hunter:—

I had made every arrangement to be present with you this evening, but at the last moment a matter has arisen that requires my personal assistance, connected with city business, that prevents my leaving here. I assure you that I regret this disappointment, but my official duty must in this instance stand paramount to my individual pleasure, even in this church matter.

It will be a year ago on the first day of this month when I heard the voice of Jesus say—

Come unto me and rest,
Lay down thou weary one lay down
Thy head upon my breast.
I went to Jesus as I was
Weary and worn and sad,
I found in Him a resting place
And he has made me glad.

In the year I have been "led beside still waters" and I am endeavoring to live as a weak and lowly follower of my blessed Master.

I pray that the work in Peterborough will be abundantly blessed and that hundreds may be added to the church of God.

Yours in faith,
WELLINGTON JEFFERS DIAMOND.

After reading this self-speaking letter Mr. Johnston spoke briefly. He said they had been told to bring some sinners with them when they came and they had done so, for they had great faith in these meetings. He felt that what had been accomplished during these first two weeks in Peterborough would be as nothing compared to what would be done during the remaining weeks of the services.

SOME OF THE WORK.

Rev. Mr. Hunter then called upon Mr. C. P. Holton, the teacher of one hundred and thirty-five young ladies.

Mr. HOLTON after a few opening remarks thanked God that he was able to be present to tell of the lasting character of the revival in Belleville. He felt particularly gratified as the teacher of a Bible class that the evangelists had been sent to Belleville. For out of the 148 young ladies in his class 83 had professed a change of heart and out of these 83 there were still 69 who stood solid in the work, leaving only 14 who were doubtful and he felt hopeful of some of these.

BELLEVILLE CONVERTS' TESTIMONY.

Rev. Mr. HUNTER then called upon several of the Belleville converts to give their testimony.

Mr. SARGENT, a railroad man, who said he was converted on the 19th of March a year ago, was the first to be called upon. He told of his conversion in one of the evangelistic meetings in Belleville and urged all the unsaved to come to Jesus and experience the joy he felt.

At the close of his remarks Rev. Mr. Hunter offered a brief prayer for the salvation of the railroad men.

Mr. ALFRED VERMILYEA, a merchant of Belleville, gave the next testimony. He said he had not come to Peterborough to speak but to receive a new spiritual baptism. He told in a touching manner the story of his conversion. He had been a moralist and had attended the revival meetings and been slightly impressed. His wife had urged him to seek salvation but he held back, but finally through the instrumentality of his wife he had experienced the glorious change.

A CHILD'S DEATHBED.

Mr. Carscallen, a commercial traveller, gave the audience the story of his conversion, which was also a very pathetic one. He had been an infidel and said his little ten-year old girl had shown him the way of salvation. He told a touching story of the little one's death four years ago, and how when asked if she was afraid to die she had replied, "I am not afraid to die, why should I be?" The words of his dying child had taken a hold on him, and he said he had heard them ringing in his ears during the past four years time and time again. He had gone to the evangelistic services and had been deeply convicted, but it was not until a year ago the 19th of this month when driving from Belleville to a certain village that he offered up his first prayer to God. He had started praying as he drove along, and continued all that night, and the next day in the bar room of an hotel he had felt the great and happy change. He had returned home rejoicing and had since established a family altar in his home and was engaged in the mission work.

TWO GREY-HAIRED CONVERTS.

Mr. CHAS. WILKINS, who is Fishery Inspector of the Belleville district, and who is an old gentleman who has passed his three-score years and ten and an Episcopalian, next told of his conversion at the meetings in Belleville. He had attended the meetings out of curiosity and had gone forward and was now happy in the love of God. He wanted to see every grey-haired man in the town come to Jesus.

Mr. WM. ALFORD, another old gentleman with snowy white beard and hair, told in a few words of his conversion and the peace he was enjoying.

Mr. H. KETCHESON, whom Mr. Hunter called the Government official, and who is mail clerk on the Midland between here and Belleville, in a few words told of his conversion and urged all to come and experience this happiness.

Mr. ROBERT GORDON, a young man from Mr. Johnson's Sunday School, testified to his conversion.

A BATOCHE HERO.

Mr. ED. HOWARD, who was introduced by Mr. Hunter as one of the Batoche heroes, was the last to give his testimony and it was an interesting one. He told the audience how when they were going into action at Batoche, the first boom of the cannon had sent a thrill through him, and he had thought, "Well, I'm not a Christian, but this is no time to think of that, but if I am spared I will serve Thee." This was the promise he had given God just before the battle, and he had intended to do so, but when they returned they got a glorious reception and he had been carried of by the boys to be "bowled up," and he had never kept his promise to God, although he had often thought of it, until the services in Belleville a year ago. He said he thought any man was a coward who waited until his death bed or until he was face to face with death to be converted. He told of his conversion at the meetings. He had gone one night and heard Mr. Hunter and that had brought back his promise made at Batoche "If I am spared I will serve Thee." He went to another meeting and Mr. Crossley spoke, but he did not like that gentleman. However, he went a second and third time, but on both occasions Mr. Crossley preached and he was dissatisfied. However he went again and Mr. Crossley's sermon on "Rest" had affected him and he went home and prayed and had experienced the change of heart.

After these testimonies a short after meeting was held and many came forward for prayer.

After the meeting the Bellevillians were taken to the Sunday school room where tables had been prepared and a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the visitors returned to their train and left for home shortly after eleven o'clock, having enjoyed the meeting immensely.

NOTES.

Mr. Phil Harrison, of the Intelligencer, and Mr. H. McDiarmid, representing the Ontario, came up with the excursion and reported the services for their papers.

The meeting in the Baptist Church yesterday afternoon was well attended.

The singing was excellent last night and some of the Bellevillians were remarking so.

To-night will be the last meeting that will be held in the George-st. Church for two weeks, as during the next two weeks the services will be held in St. Paul's.

The spread the ladies of the church had prepared was an excellent one and was done ample justice by the visitors

CHINA HALL

CHINA GLASS AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of sevres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $5,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Pallissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

FRIDAY, MARCH 15 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER!

"No, I can't," said Tommy, tartly. "You told me to patch it up if I could, and I have patched it up, and even now you aren't satisfied. I don't know what you want, nor what you would be at!"

"Then I can't enlighten you, my son," Jim declared, "and, as I live, I am due at the office! Ta, ta, old chap. See you later in the day, I dare say," and Beautiful Jim jammed his cap upon his head and rushed off, buckling on his sword as he went.

CHAPTER XI.

PROGRESS UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

As soon as he was free to get out of the barracks that afternoon Beautiful Jim betook himself off to the bazar, which was open for the last day. He found a great crowd there, for it was market day, and nearly all the country people had contrived to go to it for an hour or so before they went home.

The ladies were all very busy; for, in spite of a week's good sale, there was still a large quantity of things to be disposed of, and they were taking almost any price they could get for them so as to effect a clearance. Miss Earle was especially busy, her pleasant winning manner and fair, bright face bringing her many and many a customer who otherwise would not have cared to spend a farthing.

Beautiful Jim, however, suffered by this popularity, for he could not manage to get a word with her, or hardly one. He knew that she and Tommy were going home on the Monday morning, and he knew, too, that he could not hope by any chance to get even a two days' leave on this side of the 1st of September.

So Beautiful Jim, despite the gay and giddy throng of which he made one, was as nearly miserable as he could be while he had still the privilege of watching his divinity.

"I sha'n't see you after today, Miss Earle," he said, disconsolately, when at last she had ten minutes to spare, and he had the felicity of taking her off to the refreshment chalet for a cup of tea.

"Why not?"

"Because I'm on duty to-morrow, and I can't get any of the other fellows to do it for me," he returned, mournfully.

"Oh!" she cried in dismay, "and Mrs. Trafford is having a tea after the parish."

"Yes, I know," said he wretchedly. Then after a moment he exclaimed in a brighter tone: "There's one fellow I haven't asked, so there's just a chance yet for me."

"Then I shall not say good-by today," said Miss Earle, with decision. "I hate saying good-by. Don't you?"

"It depends," said Jim, guardedly. "It depends a good deal on the other person. Now, if I was saying good-by to you," he said, in a desperate tone—and just as Miss Earle was beginning to show the prettiest of danger signals in her cheeks and a droop in her sweet eyes, some—some—idiot, Jim said to himself, savagely, came clumsily along and knocked a heavy tea tray against her arm, making her shriek out in unmistakable pain.

"Now, then! Where are you going?" Jim thundered, looking daggers at the luckless individual.

After many apologies and regrets the poor wretch went away forgiven; and then, just as Jim was going to be tender and lover like over the poor arm, a great stream of people came in, among whom were two of the Leslie girls and Tommy Earle.

It is to be hoped that the recording angel does not put down all the naughty words that rise in the heart and never pass the lips; if he does, he must have had a busy ten minutes that Saturday afternoon, for Beautiful Jim's unspoken thoughts were—well, far from saintly.

Thus reminded of her duties, Nancy Earle went back to her post, and never another chance did Jim have of uttering the words which, if she would only hear and heed, would have made him the happiest man in Blankhampton that day! But for all that he hung about Lady Margaret's chalet with the persistence and fidelity of a dog, and once or twice, when Nancy sallied forth to dispose, by the unlawful and sinful means of raffling, of some rather large article of upholstery which hung on hand, he was privileged in being allowed to carry that same, to stand by while she enlarged on the beauties of soft cushions which nobody wanted to buy, and descanted on the merits of banner screens which were a mockery and an abomination.

"I may come and see you when I am in town?" he asked.

"Oh! yes, Mr. Beresford, we shall be delighted if you do," she replied heartily.

"Ah! I shall not be able to get leave until well on in September, or perhaps even October, and you won't be in town then," he said, in dejection and gloom. "You're sure not to be in town, then."

"I am not so sure," she said. "True, we always go to the country for several months and intend to stay all the winter—only, somehow, my father likes our house in town better than our country place, and we generally find ourselves home again in Hans place early in October. We may stay in the country longer this year, because Stuart may care to bring friends for the shooting. I suppose my father would like to be there if he did—only he does hate the country so. The country people bore him, and he says the house is a draught trap. And then he likes his paper at breakfast time, and he likes his club and his whist and all that. Oh, I dare say you will find us at home if you happen to be in town in October, or even at the end of September."

"It's a tremendous time from this to September," said Jim, feeling a little mollified by her information.

"Yes," said Miss Earle—"it is a sofa cushion, worked by the Duchess of Blankshire; only sixty chances at a shilling each, and I only want three to make up the number."

Beautiful Jim stood still and cursed at fate, the cushion and its noble maker the duchess, at the inquisitive person who desired to see it, at everything, in short, excepting Miss Nancy Earle.

Collision on the Grand Trunk.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., March 15.—Two miles west of Battle Creek a collision occurred last night on the Grand Trunk Railway. A freight train of 20 loaded cars and caboose struck a light engine, turning it around and carrying it twelve rods, where it rolled down an embankment. Engineer Powell of the freight stood at his post, but the engineer and fireman of the light engine saved their lives by jumping. Their engine is a complete wreck. Three cars loaded with shelled corn are scattered along the track. The wreck occurred on a heavy grade. Engineer Oatley of the light engine misread his orders. A tramp stealing a ride was badly hurt.

The Weavers' Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 15.—The number of weavers on strike yesterday was larger than on Wednesday. The shut-down of the King Phillip and American linen mills has added 2000 to the number of idle operatives. Over 4000 strikers attended a mass meeting in the park yesterday and manifested the same enthusiasm as at the beginning. The manufacturers insist that there is nothing to arbitrate and before a conference can be arranged the strikers must return to work. Most of the mills will lay off to-day. The big struggle is expected to come next week when there will be no wages coming.

Harrison Receives the Diplomats.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—At noon yesterday the President formally received the members of the diplomatic corps. The members of the corps assembled at the Department of State, where they were presented to Secretary Blaine by Assistant Secretary Adee. Proceeding to the White House the diplomats, who were attired in their resplendent court dresses, were introduced to the President by the Secretary of State. All of the legations were represented.

The Reading Iron Works Failure.

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—At a meeting of creditors of the Reading Iron Works the committee in appraisement reported the liabilities $1,875,955 and the assets at $315,787 above liabilities.

Commodity Tariffs Abolished.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Executive Committee of the trunk lines has resolved to have no more commodity tariffs, that is, cut rates, and to abolish those in existence. In future, however, it is provided that commodity tariffs may exist by mutual agreements.

Kingston News.

KINGSTON, March 15.—In the fall of 1887 the steamer Southampton, owned by Captain S. Fraser, became waterlogged in Lake Huron. The tug Storm King went to the rescue and towed her to port. The owners of the tug have put in a salvage claim for $9000, claiming that the tug ran a great risk in effecting the rescue. Captain Fraser values the service at $200, hence the suit. The case is now being tried in the Maritime Court here before Judge Price.

The young man named Hodge, formerly of Prescott, who was arrested Wednesday charged with seduction, appeared before the magistrate yesterday morning. The girl, Eliza Clark, was in an adjoining room. Her brother testified that she would be 16 years of age in May next and that she did not keep late hours. As far as he knew she bore a good character. The case was adjourned till next Wednesday, and Hodge was admitted to bail in $800.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLVILLE, March 15.—The final game for the medal offered by Mr. Thomas Ritchie for play amongst the colts of the curling club was won yesterday morning by Joseph Ward, who defeated Thos. Thompson by 13 to 6.

J. Ross Robertson, D.G.M., G.L.C., lectured here Wednesday night in Masonic Hall before a large audience of the craft, by whom he was afterwards entertained.

The excursion to Peterboro yesterday was largely attended.

The Paris Bourse.

PARIS, March 15.—The bourse closed with prices above the lowest figures of the day, but the market was unsteady. Comptoir d'Escompte shares closed at 375f. and Societe des Metaux shares at 112f. 50c.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $675.00 for a good house and lot, I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

TURNBULL'S COLUMN.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap, but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

BRADFORD GOODS in stripes and checks at 10c. a yard, fresh goods, new colors.

Those wishing to have their dresses made up can have them done on the premises if necessary by our dressmaker, Miss Mercier, who has given up her own business to take charge of this department.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.—They will gladden your eyes, perhaps cheer your hearts and touch your pocket book. Gently have you noticed the progress in the art of making them so natural. They cheat you into touching or smelling to test their reality.

Lilacs, Tulips, Roses, Lillies of the Valley to be worn in profusion on Millinery this season. Case after case of Black and Colored Straw Hats, Bonnets, Trimmings, etc., have arrived, in fact nearly all the Spring Millinery is now opened out ready for inspection.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

PROROGATION BEFORE EASTER NO LONGER PROBABLE.

Considerable Progress Made With Government Measures and Private Bills Yesterday—In the Railway Committee.

OTTAWA, March 15.—The probability of prorogation before Easter seems to be growing less. With a view to pushing through the Government business, Sir John Macdonald moved this afternoon that for the rest of the session Government business should take precedence on Wednesday, which would leave only one day in the week, Monday, for business promoted by private members. Sir John said he believed the members wished to get away before Easter, and to do this three things would be required of them—short speeches, long sittings and the manifestation of an earnest desire to return as early as possible to their homes. He intimated that the ministry didn't care much whether the prorogation was before or after Easter, though he thought the members generally would be inconvenienced by having to come back.

An objection was taken by Mr. Laurier that with only one day a week available justice could not be done to the business outlined on the order paper, which contains now upwards of seventy notices of motion.

In deference to the opposition manifested Sir John then amended the resolution so as to give one more Wednesday for private business.

Considerable progress was made to-day with Government bills. Discussion on the amendment to the act respecting certificates to masters and mates of ships brought out the fact that in the law of the past a coasting trade certificate holding good for all ports in Canada allowed the master or mate holding it to navigate his vessel all the way round the Maritime Provinces to British Columbia, while hitherto it was unlawful to sail on such a certificate to the island of St. Pierre-Miquelon or the West India Islands. The act is now amended so as to include all ports in these places and all ports on the east coast of America.

The bill making provision for the winding-up if desired of other than insolvent companies got its second reading after some little discussion. This constituted the afternoon's business.

The evening in the House was devoted to private bills. The following were read a third time and passed:

To ratify an exchange of land between the Ontario and Quebec Railway Company and the Land Security Company—Mr. Small.

Respecting the Kingston and Pembroke Railway Company—Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Amending the act incorporating the Winnipeg and North Pacific Railway Company—Mr. Bergin.

Respecting the Berlin and Canada Pacific Junction Railway Company—Mr. Bowman.

Respecting the Bay of Quinte Bridge Company—Mr. Corby.

In committee Hon. John Costigan's resolution respecting proposed changes in the law governing the inspection and culling of timber was fully criticised by lumbermen of both sides of politics—Messrs. Cook, White, Edwards and Perley, the last named claiming to voice the general sentiment in objecting to any act of this kind subjecting the lumbermen to a regulation fee when there was no probability of their requiring the services of the inspectors provided for. Sir John Macdonald at length had the resolution passed on the promise that an opportunity for full discussion would be afforded when the bill founded upon it was being introduced.

Mr. Haggart's bill respecting the Civil service then came up for second reading. It deals mainly with postoffice departmental matters. There was quite a discussion about the proposition to increase the salary of the Toronto postmaster to $4000, the same as that of the postmaster at Montreal.

The bill having been read a second time and passed through committee the House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

The Deadly Knitting Needle.

CALUMET, Mich., March 15.—Ten days ago Ambrose Dubois sat on his wife's knitting needle which punctured his person four inches and broke off. Inflammation set in and he died yesterday.

Belleville Wife Beaters.

BELLEVILLE, March 16.—James McCarthy Thursday night beat his wife so seriously that the woman was unable to appear against him yesterday. He was remanded till Monday.

William alias "Spot" Conners was arrested yesterday for beating his wife.

The ice on the river is beginning to give way.

The City Solicitor has gone to Ottawa to look after the harbor bill.

A Triple Hanging.

ARKADELPHIA, Ark., March 15.—Willie Green, Anderson Mitchell and Daniel Jones, all colored, were hanged to-day for the murder of a negro preacher named Arthur Horton.

Chicago 10, All America 3.

LONDON, March 15.—The Chicago and America teams played a game to-day at Bristol, which was won by the Chicago's by 10 to 3.

Hockey at the Capital.

OTTAWA, March 15.—A return match was played this afternoon between the Government House and the Parliamentary Hockey teams. The match was a good one and resulted in favor of the members by two goals to one. Capt. Wise acted as referee and the teams were as follows:

Parliamentary:—Messrs. E. C. Grant, H. A. Ward, M. P., Senator Power, G. L. Dickinson, M. P., Fisher, M. P., and Barron, M. P.

Government House:—Capt. Bagot, Capt. McMahon, Hon. E. Stanley, Hon. A. Stanley, Hon. V. Stanley and Mr. A. Wise.

It has been finally decided that the final tie in the cup series of the American Football Association shall be played in Newark on or before the second Saturday in April. The opponents will be the Caledonians of Newark and the Rovers of Fall River, the present champions.

A GLADSTONIAN VICTORY.

DEFEAT OF THE CONSERVATIVES IN KENNINGTON.

Mr. Beaufoy's Majority in the Parliamentary Contest Yesterday 630, a Gain of 1000 Over the Last Election

LONDON, March 15.—An election was held in the Kennington division of Lambeth to-day to fill the parliamentary seat made vacant by the resignation of R. G. Davis (Con.) The election resulted in a victory for Mr. Beaufoy, the Gladstonian candidate, who polled 4069 votes against 3439 for Mr. Hope the Conservative nominee.

At the last election Davis, the retiring member, received 3222 votes and Beaufoy 2792.

To-day's election was hotly contested, both parties straining every nerve to achieve success.

Unpleasantly Significant.

LONDON, March 16.—The Standard (Unionist) referring to the result of the Kennington election says: "No sensible Unionist will pretend to minimize the seriousness of this misfortune. All the explanations in the world will not deprive the figures of their unpleasant significance."

Anderson's Course Approved.

LONDON, March 15.—In the House of Commons to-day Home Secretary Matthews was questioned regarding the actions of Anderson, an official of the Home Office, who permitted Le Caron the informer to look over the whole of the latter's past correspondence with the Home Office authorities prior to appearing as a witness before the Parnell Commission and to select such letters as he thought would be of service to The Times.

Mr. Matthews said that at the time he knew nothing of the course taken by Anderson and consequently had not given it his sanction, but now considered that Anderson had acted properly.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt gave notice that he would submit a motion regarding Anderson's conduct when the police vote is discussed Monday.

Another Tumble in French Shares.

PARIS, March 15.—The Bourse closed very dull to-day. Comptoir d'Escompte shares, which opened at 300f. Monday and reached 435f. Wednesday, reacted to-day to 315 f. on renewed rumors that the Bank of France advances were not sufficient to overcome existing difficulties. Other credit shares were freely offered, notably Credit Lyonnais and Banque de Paris. Rentes fell 25c., Societe des Metaux, quoted Wednesday at 127, declined to 91.25 Rio Tintos, which were 330 Wednesday, are now quoted at 91.

Decline in London Markets.

LONDON, March 15.—On the Stock Exchange to-day American railroad securities declined on large continental sales, closing flat. The Milwaukee dividend disappointed the exchanges.

The London copper market is nervous. The price advanced Tuesday to £56, reacted and closed to-day at £51.

The Patriotic League.

PARIS, March 15.—The police to-day searched the houses of many members of the Patriotic League. Persons against whom damaging evidence is found will not be arrested, but will be summoned to appear before a magistrate for examination.

German Artillery Estimates

BERLIN, March 15.—The Reichstag to-day discussed the supplementary estimate for the increase and reorganization of the artillery. Count Von Schellendorf referred to France's superiority in the horsing of batteries and said that other countries made much larger expenditures for military purposes than Germany did.

All Quiet in the Gold Fields.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 15.—Lower California is quiet. Gov. Torres has plenty of troops to preserve order. The Conservative organs insist that Mexico will lose lower California. The Government says this is untrue. Rich copper and silver mines have been discovered on the Ramirez-Varela concession in the State of Guerrero.

Gen. Diaz de Vega of El Nacional newspaper has been released after eight months' imprisonment and paying a fine of $1000.

THE C. P. R.'S BILL.

More Time Required by the Government for its Consideration.

OTTAWA, March 15.—A big phalanx of railway lawyers and railway men invaded the meeting of the Railway Committee this morning in expectation that the Canadian Pacific Railway's bill would be considered. Sir Hector Langevin at once announced that the Government desired more time to study the measure, which is attracting a great deal of attention, and it was decided to make it the first order for Thursday next.

The bill to incorporate the Saskatchewan Railway and Mining Company was reported after being amended here and there. The road will run from Dunmore on the Canadian Pacific Railway northerly to a crossing of the South Saskatchewan River at or near Drowning Ford, thence across the Red Deer River near its mouth, thence by the best route to a crossing of the South Saskatchewan River at or near Saskatoon. The capital stock is $4,000,000.

Mr. Daly's bill to incorporate the Northern Pacific and Manitoba Railway and Mr. Macdowall's bill incorporating the Ontario, Manitoba and Western Railroad were also reported.

When the committee had dwindled down to half-a-dozen members a bulk bill respecting an agreement between the Kingston and Pembroke and Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec Railway Companies was sent up. Mr. Edgar objected to measures passing through which had never received any proper consideration. He said there was altogether too much of this class of legislation. The bill was then handed over to a sub-committee of gentlemen who always watch closely the bills before the Railway Committee.

Notes From The Gazette.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

A Well-Known Ottawa Merchant Arrested—His Statement.

OTTAWA, March 15.—W. E. Brown, boot and shoe merchant of Rideau street, was arrested this afternoon by Detective Carpenter of Montreal and Detective Montgomery of this city, the charge being that he, while in insolvent circumstances, did by gift or conveyance transfer goods to Altha Ann Baker of Wales, in the County of Stormont, to the amount of $20,000. Another count of the warrant recites that he (Brown), with the intent to defraud, did unlawfully conceal $20,000 worth of goods, etc. The warrant was issued at the instance of Samuel & Son, boot and shoe men of Montreal.

Mr. Brown is a defeated candidate for the mayoralty. He says the charges are false from beginning to end and threatens to make Samuel & Son pay for his arrest.

Mr. Brown assigned this morning. His liabilities are supposed to be heavy.

IN A GAMBLING HOUSE.

A Lot of Jewelry Belonging to a Toronto Firm Found in Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 15.—Chief Detective Cullen yesterday evening obtained a search warrant from Judge Dugas representing that he had a well-founded suspicion that certain jewelry claimed by a Toronto firm was in Andy Maloney's place at 33½ Craig-street. Their traveler, named Reinholtz, came to the city during Carnival week and fell in with gamblers. As his ready money soon came to an end he staked the jewelry, which was all sacrificed to the fickle goddess.

The officers pried open the safe and within it found $500 worth of jewelry, a part of the goods they were after. Thence they went to a disreputable house in the West End. There they found two traveler's trunks filled with jewelry worth approximately $1500. The goods were identified by the owners and will be held until Maloney is heard from as to his title to them. Reinholtz can nowhere be found and is said to have gone west.

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

MR. MEREDITH'S AMENDMENT DEFEATED BY 20 MAJORITY.

The Vote Divides on Strictly Party Lines After Another Day of Debate—The Government's Railway Policy.

TORONTO, March 16.—Mr. Meredith's amendment to the motion that the House go into supply was lost by a majority of 20 yesterday. The House did not divide until nearly midnight. Then when the Opposition Leader's amendment was lost the House went into supply.

Nothing new of importance was brought out in the debate on the license question. In fact the discussion as compared with that of Thursday was rather tame. The speakers were Mr. Wylie, Mr. McLaughlin, Mr. Metcalf, Mr. Awrey, Mr. Clancy, Mr. Wood (Brant), Mr. Fell, Mr. Wood (Hastings), Mr. Garson, Mr. Rorke, Mr. E. F. Clarke and Mr. Ingram. This is the division list:

YEAS.—Blyth, Clancy, Clarke, E. F. (Toronto), Clarke, H. E. (Toronto), Craig, Creighton, Hammell, Hudson, Ingram, Kerns, Lees, Meacham, Meredith, Monk, Morgan, Preston, Rorke, Smith (Frontenac), Stewart, Tooley, Whitney, Willoughby, Wood (Hastings)—22.

NAYS.—Adam, Armstrong, Awrey, Balfour, Ballantyne, Bishop, Blezard, [illegible], Caldwell, Chisholm, Clarke (Well.), Dack, Davis, Dryden, Ferguson, Field, Fraser, Freeman, Garson, Gibson (Ham.), Gibson (Hur.), Gilmour, Graham, Guthrie, Harcourt, Hardy, Lyon, McAndrew, McKay, McMahon, Mack, Mowat, Murray, Pacaud, Phelps, Rayside, Ross (Hur.), Ross (Mid.), Smith (York), Snider, Sprague, Waters, Wood (Brant)—42.

When the House went into Supply last night Mr. Meredith asked if any change was proposed in the railway policy of the Government. Mr. Mowat replied that their policy had been embodied in resolutions presented by the Hon. A. M. Ross, which were as follows:

That, by section 4, cap. 22, 44th Victoria, it was provided that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council might, subject to the terms and conditions therein contained, grant a bonus, subsidy or annual payment to any company then, or that might thereafter be, incorporated, not in excess of $2000 per mile, in aid of the construction of a line of railway extending from a point in the District of Muskoka, as far north as Gravenhurst, to Sault Ste. Marie, the total mileage not to exceed three hundred miles; but no company has taken advantage of the said provision, and it is desirable to repeal the said section 4, cap. 22, 44 Victoria, in order that the said [illegible] may be available for the construction of the railways hereinafter mentioned.

That, subject to the conditions hereinafter mentioned, there shall be granted out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund to the undermentioned railway companies, for the construction of the portions of railway, hereinafter mentioned, as follows, that is to say:

The Ontario & Rainy River Railway, from the town of Port Arthur to the town of Fort William, and thence westerly in the direction of Sand Lake, not exceeding in the whole fifty miles, a cash subsidy of $3000 per mile.

The Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Company, from the Village of Little Current to a point on the Canadian Pacific railway, in the township of Nairn, a distance not exceeding twenty-eight miles, a cash subsidy of $3200 per mile.

The Parry Sound Colonization Railway Company, from the Town of Parry Sound to Burk's Falls, on the line of the Northern Pacific Junction railway, a distance of about forty miles, a cash subsidy of $3000 per mile.

The Nipissing and James' Bay Railway, from North Bay towards Lake Temiscamingue, a distance not exceeding fifty miles, a cash subsidy of $3000.

The Brockville and Westport Railway Company, from the point where the said railway will intersect the Canadian Pacific railway, in the Township of Oso, to Palmer's Rapids, in the Township of Raglan, a distance of about fifty-five miles, a cash subsidy of $2000 per mile.

In lieu of the cash subsidy, as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may at his option direct that payment shall be made annually to the said railways for a period of forty years, semi-annual payments of sixty-nine dollars and ninety-six cents per mile.

That the Parry Sound Colonization Railway, the Ontario and Rainy River Railway, the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway, the Nipissing and James' Bay Railway, the Brockville and Westport Railway, shall be considered to be colonization railways.

That inasmuch as the construction of colonization railways will promote the settlement and increase the value of certain unsettled lands of the Province; and inasmuch as it is desirable that a portion of the said lands should be set apart and sold for the purpose of forming a fund to recoup the Province in respect of moneys expended in aiding railways; a tract of land is, therefore, set apart for the purpose of being sold, and the proceeds thereof applied to form the fund aforesaid, that is to say, a tract of land at least ten miles in width on each side of the present projected lines of railways to which aid is granted as aforesaid, or on each side of the lines of the said railways as the same may be hereafter finally located and established.

That the said lands so set apart shall be sold at such price not less than two dollars per acre, and on such terms and conditions otherwise as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time determine.

That the moneys arising from the sale of the lands so set apart shall constitute a fund to be called "The Railway Subsidy Fund," and a separate account of the same shall be kept by the Treasurer of the Province.

That the Railway Subsidy Fund shall be applied as follows:

The cost and expenses of the collection of the said fund shall form and be the first charge thereon.

The remainder of the said fund shall be applied in or towards payment of the moneys by any Act of this session granted, or which may hereafter be granted in aid of railways.

That all pine trees upon the said lands shall be reserved from sale, and the proceeds of the sale of the said trees shall form no part of the said railway subsidy fund.

That in case, after the said lands are placed in the market, the Commissioner of Crown Lands reports in writing that any particular portion or portions of the lands so set apart, is or are not worth two dollars per acre, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to reduce the said price, and the same may thereafter be sold at such reduced rate.

That notwithstanding anything herein contained, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may dispose, by way of free grant, or of any of the lands so set apart as aforesaid, for the right of way of any railway or for railway stations, workshops or any lands necessarily required for constructing or working any railway or any other lands required for public purposes, and of which the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may deem it to be in the public interest to make free grants.

A Y.M.C.A. YOUNG MAN.

Hasty Departure from Woodstock of J. A. Gould and the Alleged Cause.

WOODSTOCK, March 15.—A sensation of no small proportions was created here to-day by the rumor that J. A. Gould had left town in haste. Gould came from London last spring to assist in the organization of a Y.M.C.A. in town. He has been for 25 years engaged in this work in the United States.

Shortly after this Gould was engaged by Mr. J. White to manage his drug store. Yesterday morning he informed his employer that he wanted to leave town at once to attend to some business in Denver. Col. Mr. J. S. Cole, Provincial Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., arrived in town yesterday and [illegible] this fact with the disappearance of the gentleman named. It is said that Mr. Gould's character will not bear investigation, that he is guilty of an unmentionable iniquity and that this is not the first time he has been compelled to make a hasty departure.

Gould was one of the most stylish and sweet-toned gentlemen that has ever been met in this town and could pray, preach and sing to perfection. His financial relations are said to be all right.

THE LIQUOR LAWS.

The charges made by Mr. Meredith in the resolution he moved in the Legislature regarding the appointments under the Liquor License Act are true, and if any evidence further than the knowledge generally possessed by the people was required to prove them, the evidence was furnished by Mr. Meredith and others during the debate. Whatever may have been the intention of the Mowat Government in taking the administration of the liquor laws into its own hands, it has been evident from the way it has administered them that the political advantage of the Liberal party is the object it keeps in view.

In regard to the enforcement of the Scott Act Mr. Meredith read the letter of Mr. Manning, the chief officer of the Scott Act bureau, in which he stated that a gentleman of influence informed him that a more rigid enforcement of the act would be "highly injurious to the Mowat Government" and referred to the "difficulty of pleasing all parties." And Dr. Willoughby, the member for East Northumberland, cited cases where hotel keepers were promised immunity if they would vote for the Liberal candidate and were coerced by visits of License Inspectors into voting against their political convictions. It is plain to anyone who is not wilfully blind that the law has been used by the Mowat Government to secure votes for its party, and it is more or less enforced as suits the exigencies of the leading spirits of the party.

The sworn evidence quoted by Mr. Meredith showed that under the Crooks Act men were forced to support the Liberal candidates under pressure. In Hamilton a brewer, who had been a Conservative, but who, as he said in court, "went where his interests were," canvassed the hotel keepers in the interest of the Liberal candidates. But he did not go alone. The License Inspector went with him. Here is a case where a License Inspector, in company with a dealer who was influenced to change his political allegiance, went the rounds to influence hotel keepers to vote for the Government candidate. The Inspector had the advantage of the hotel keepers, and the Government was in a position, through its officers, to exercise influence upon those who were dependent upon them for licenses. Political support is the price asked, in addition to the legal fees, for the privilege of selling liquor. Does any fair-minded man approve of such methods of administering the laws of this country?

Mr. Gibson, the Liberal member for South Huron, adopted the same line of defence as the Ministers, and said that in his constituency the hotel keepers were nearly all Conservative, but he naively added that in spite of that they had all voted for him! If they were nearly all Conservatives why did they not vote for the candidate of that party instead of for the candidate of the opposite party? Mr. Gibson said they had not been coerced, but how could he be sure? Does he think that both the candidates in Hamilton were aware that the Inspector was using the influence of his position on their behalf? Nor is it always necessary for the Inspector to appear in the matter when those engaged in the trade are informed that it is to their interest to support the Liberal party.

Mr. Meredith's motion concisely stated the position by stating that the present mode of administering the liquor license laws through the Board of Commissioners and Inspectors appointed by the Government of the day has resulted in a partisan administration of the law; has subjected those engaged in the liquor traffic to undue influence by and in the interest of the dominant party in this Province; has led in many cases to the tyrannical exercise of the powers of the commissioners and inspectors, and in others to the lax enforcement of the law and the condoning for partisan purposes of offences against its provisions; has unduly and unfairly interfered with the freedom of exercising their franchise by those engaged in the liquor traffic, and is otherwise mischievous in its purpose and operation.

The reform proposed was to place the power of appointing the commissioners in the hands of a body more removed from the influence of partisanship and more directly under the control of the people. The facts educed call for such a reform.

The Port Hope Guide says an effort is to be made to have tallow placed on the free list and it says it would cause "farmers, butchers and others to get a less price for their tallow." So protection is of benefit to farmers after all?

The Carters Wrathy.

John Fawcett was summoned to the Police Court this morning on a charge of doing teaming without a license. The information was laid by Chief Roszel at the instance of several of the town carters who thought Mr. Fawcett was injuring their business, contrary to law. It was shown that Mr. Fawcett had been hired by the day when he did teaming and as the by-law does not require a teamster who hires by the day to take out a license the case was dismissed. Several of the carters are a little wrathy at the way the case ended and at the town by-law, and there was some talk of appealing the case.

CAMPBELLFORD CULLINGS.

A Methuen Horse that Swallowed a Snake—Orange Blossoms.

In the Stomach of a Horse.—A peculiar case is reported to us from the township of Methuen, County of Peterborough. Our informant, Mr. W. H. Cassiday, says that a farmer named James Thompson, who resides in that part of the country, had a horse that became sick and was in such distressing pain that he was about to end its misery with a rifle ball. Fearing the trouble might have arisen from bots or some other cause of that nature, Mr. Thompson administered several doses of a strong medicine, which seemed to alleviate the suffering, but to his great surprise he discovered that soon afterwards the animal had passed a yellow-bellied snake nine inches in length. The reptile was dead, but was evidently alive before the medicine was administered, and was the cause of the intense pain. It is possible that the horse while drinking swallowed the snake when it was small, and that it lodged in the stomach and thrived until the medicine was given, which killed it, and it afterwards passed out of the stomach with the food.

Orange Blossoms.—A pleasing ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. James Bloggett, Seymour west, on Thursday last, when his only daughter, Louisa, was given in marriage to Mr. Saunders Free, son of Mr. Abraham Free. The bridesmaids were Miss Martin, of Stirling, and Miss Stevenson, of Peterborough. The groomsmen were Mr. Casement, of Lakefield, and Mr. C. Agget, of Percy. Over seventy guests witnessed the ceremony and as soon as the congratulations were given they had an opportunity of viewing the many valuable presents which filled a large table provided for their reception. The guests were invited to a sumptuous repast got up in the good old fashioned English style that gladdened the hearts of all. The bride was handsomely attired and went through the ceremony with the grace of a queen, and the bridesmaids did their parts worthy of the groomsmen who assisted them. The party did not break up until morning, when the young couple took their departure (with the usual rice and old shoe ceremony) for the early morning train to spend their honeymoon viewing the sights between here and Washington.—Herald.

His Name Against Him.

The Hon. Daniel Dougherty entertained a few friends at dinner in this city, and for three hours charmed them with his fund of anecdote. Three brighter hours never passed, from all I have been told. "My name has always been against me," he said, as he turned the conversation to himself. "A few years ago I was invited to be one of a party of prominent people who made an inspection of the state penitentiary of Pennsylvania. In going through one of the corridors an attendant had occasion, not knowing who I was, to call out the name Dan Dougherty, and in the twinkle of an eye three of the hardest looking criminals I ever saw popped their heads out and answered 'Here.'" Mr. Dougherty's guests roared at this story, for he had told it as it can never be made to appear in type. They had hardly recovered from holding their hands on their sides when he added: "There has been a Dan Dougherty hung in Pennsylvania every year since I can remember." The plates fairly danced on the table.—Chicago Mail.

Players' Marriages.

Players generally marry in their own profession. This occurs not only among stock actors but among stars. The drama cannot boast of matrimonial felicity even in the moderate degree enjoyed by other classes, but there are a few instances of an exceptional character, among which Garrick stands prominent. Macready married a young actress who played Virginia with him, and their union was as favorable as his irascible temper would permit.

The Chanfrans were a united couple, and yet both were professional players and acted together with much success. Edwin Forrest married a young actress named Catherine Sinclair, daughter of a public singer of some note in London. It may be remembered that after she had beaten her faithless husband in the divorce case she went on the stage, but did not reach success in the drama. Tom Hamblin married Miss Medina, who was an accomplished writer of farces and small dramatic pieces.

Edwin Booth's first wife, though not a star, was an excellent actress; his second was the daughter of a theatrical manager. His brother, Junius Brutus Booth, married an actress, and I might refer to other illustrations of this peculiar fact. It is very reasonable that these alliances should take place, as the parties are constantly thrown into each other's society, and at the same time excluded from that of outside circles.

Star players of good repute may enter first class society, but the number thus admitted is small. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, and also Macready, Booth, Frederick Paulding and Henry Irving may be mentioned among the small list of favored names. Hence the profession is, to a large degree, shut up to itself for society, and intermarriages follow as a natural result. One instance is the marriage of Marie Wainwright, who is the wife of Louis James, but retains her maiden name because it is identified with her early success.—Rochester Democrat.

The Drama in St. Paul.

"In the sketch of the dramatic history of St. Paul published in The Pioneer Press," said Charles D. Elfelt, "I see that no illusion was made to the really first regular dramatic performance in the city. That was in the autumn of 1851—you see that was very far back—and the company was that of Languish & Atwater. I rented them the hall over my store, corner of Exchange and Third streets. That hall was 25x75 feet, and had been named Mazourka hall by William G. Le Duc, then one of the editors of The Daily Minnesotian. I think that Sims Reeves, the once famous tenor singer, performed with the company during their engagement in St. Paul. The place was crowded every night. The hall was used for the United States court and for various society meetings. The building is standing yet. That was the first theatre St. Paul had. Soon after the soldiers at Fort Snelling hired the old court house, and played 'The Lady of Lyons' there. O'Malley, who played Pauline, was one night disclosed to the audience during the play, while other actors were playing their parts, sitting with his legs propped up on a table, smoking a pipe and waiting for his turn to come. All the scenery had tumbled down, and O'Malley wasn't exactly prepared for the exposure."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The Light Fantastic Toe.

The Prentice Boys held a successful ball in the Orange Hall last night. The music was excellent and a most enjoyable time was spent, the graceful mazes being threaded until the small hours of the morning. The True Blues also held a social hop in their hall and here also a good time was enjoyed.

Chosen Friends Enjoy Themselves.

A private social entertainment was enjoyed last evening by the members of the Peterborough Court of Order of Chosen Friends. After the court business had been disposed of a pleasant hour or two was spent, during which a vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. VanEvery, Dr. Goldsmith gave a reading, Dr. Scott sang and Mr. R. R. Hall read.

Stricken down in the Street.

Last night about ten o'clock Mr. George Britton was taken suddenly ill on George-st., just in front of Elliott & Tierney's, and fell to the sidewalk. He was carried into the store and after some considerable time was able to be taken home. Mr. Britton is not subject to such attacks, this being the first time he was ever stricken down in this manner.

Pure Lard.

Bulletin No. 7 from the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department gives the result of the analysis of samples of lard obtained in different parts of the country. Of the sixty samples of United States lard analysed only one appeared to be genuine. The chief adulterant was cotton seed oil, and with some of the samples it was doubtful whether any lard was present. Among the samples of Canadian lard was one manufactured by Mr. George Matthews, of Peterborough. It was found to contain a percentage of 99.98 of fat, had no coloration and was genuine lard without any adulteration.

Filling Orders From Dakota.

Commercial Union, it seems, is not necessary as a means of encouraging trade with the people of the States. Good value will bring orders, every time. A customer is sure to remember good service and repeat his orders. This morning T. Dolan & Co., the well know clothiers of this town, received an order from St. Thomas, Dakota, for three suits of clothes, accompanied by a draft for the amount. This shows not only confidence on the part of customers in goods and workmanship but in the financial integerty of the firm. Other orders will follow, as people will invariably buy in the best market.

If Music be the Food of Love.

Don't miss the grand concert on Monday evening, March 18th, in the Opera House, as you will hear the celebrated soprano Miss Waltz at her best in "Judicabit," and in "Because of Thee," by Barthold Tours. Also Mrs. W. J. Morrow, a graduate of the New England Conservatory, of Boston, in a piano solo arranged by herself entitled "Arabesques from Erin." There will also be vocal solos by Mr. Thos. Dunn and Mr M. Tierney, and a duet, "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit" (Graben Hoffmann) by Miss Waltz and Mr. Dunn. Mr. Miller's orchestra will be present. The concert will be an excellent one and will be followed by Mr. Curran's lecture.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

Fisher vs. Fisher Dismissed—The Fitzgerald-G. T. R. Case.

At the Court of Chancery yesterday afternoon the case of Fisher vs. Fisher, published yesterday, occupied a good part of the afternoon. His Lordship gave judgment dismissing the action against the defendants. T. G. Blackstock (Toronto), and W. A. Stratton for the defendant; E. B. Edwards and J. W. Bennet for the plaintiff.

KEMPT v. FIFE ET AL.—Judgment was delivered dismissing this action, which was brought against Messrs. Robert Fife, Thos. Kempt and Robert Burgess to recover certain lands in the Township of Dummer, forming a portion of the estate of the late Kenneth Kempt. The plaintiff abandoned his claim to the lands and it is understood an amicable arrangement has been arrived at between the parties interested. W. H. Moore for the plaintiff; Hall & Hayes, for the defendants.

FITZGERALD VS. THE MIDLAND RAILWAY CO.—This was the next case brought on. It is an action brought by Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald against the Grand Trunk and Midland Railways for injury done to his property at the corner of Smith and Benson-sts. by the construction of the Chemong Lake railway. Mr. Fitzgerald claims that the high embankment which the railway company built along his property has greatly depreciated the value of the said lots by preventing access to them. The railway company, on the other hand, hold that the property has not been damaged but rather benefitted by the embankment, as Mr. Fitzgerald can fill in the low portion of his lot even with their embankment and then he will have a good level piece of land. Damages were not placed at any figure, and, in event of the plaintiff getting judgment, the question of damages will be settled by arbitration. This morning the Court proceeded to the site of the property and inspected the situation. Walter Cassels, Q.C., (Toronto) and W. H. Biggar (Belleville) for the defendants; E. B. Edwards and R. M. Dennistoun for the plaintiff.

The argument in this case is proceeding and will be concluded this afternoon.

A Board of Trade.

It is now probable that in the near future Peterborough will have a new organization in the form of a Board of Trade. A largely signed petition has been presented to Mayor Stevenson asking His Worship to call a public meeting for the discussion of the formation of the Board, and the Mayor will call the meeting for Thursday night next in the Council Chamber.

Wilfred and a Pair of Boots.

Constable Adams landed James Wilfred in the cells about three o'clock this afternoon where he will remain until Monday morning when he will be tried on a charge of having stolen a pair of boots. Wilfred, it is said, stole a pair of boots from Mr. Wiley, of Bridgenorth, this morning and on his way to town he sold them. The man to whom he sold the boots hearing they were stolen brought them to the police station and Wiley soon followed them by invitation of the constable.

In India.

A Calcutta paper just to hand, says the Port Hope Times, contains an extended account of the naval manœuvres of the British fleet stationed at Calcutta. The experiments were under the superintendence of Lt. N. G. von Hugel, R. E., the officer in charge of the submarine defences of Calcutta. Lt. Hugel is a son of Baron von Hugel, of Port Hope, formerly President of the Midland Railway company. The experiments were made in the presence of a large company of ladies and gentlemen, including the Viceroy and Marchioness of Lansdowne.

A Rare Wit.

The following story is told of John P. Curran, the celebrated lawyer who lived in the beginning of this century. Possibly no country has produced a more eloquent or powerful pleader at the bar, as the following story will show:—A poor man is charged with robbing a nobleman. At the trial the victim positively identifies the thief, saying that though the robbery occurred at night the moon was bright enough for him to see the face of his assailant. The driver and footman both gave similar testimony. Curran addressed the court. "I hold my client is not guilty," he said. "He was at his home seven miles from the scene of the robbery at the time of its occurrence. I can't prove an alibi, for a wife cannot testify for her husband and his child is not old enough to know the import of an oath, but I will introduce the only witness the the prosecution has depended upon, the moon." The almanacs are called for. Several of the red bound pamphlets are brought in. The Judge took one, and turning to the date of the robbery, which occurred at eleven o'clock at night, found no moon arose that night! The prisoner is acquitted. He talked to Curran afterwards complaining that he charged too much for the defence. In reply he said, "I only charged you £13 for the defence, while it cost me £12 to have those almanacs printed." J. J. Curran, who addresses the audience in the Opera House on Monday night, is a worthy descendant of the above celebrity, being the most powerful orator in the Dominion on Ireland and her cause. Don't miss the lecture.

THE LAST OF THE SEASON.

The Firemen's Carnival—Those in Costume and the Prize Winners.

There was a fair attendance at the firemen's carnival last night, and the cause of the turnout not being as large as the arrangements and attractions warranted is easily discerned. The mild weather of the last five days led many who would have masqueraded to give up the idea of preparing a costume as the chances for good ice seemed very small, and there were other attractions last evening which tendered to diminish the number of spectators. However, the ice was in very good condition and the costumes were first-class. The rink had been very artistically and tastefully decorated with flags, streamers and bunting and never looked better. The brigade band was present in full force and gave some of its best selections, which in itself was well worth the price of admission to those who can appreciate good music. The skaters enjoyed themselves and the spectators apparently found plenty to amuse them among the motley throng on the steel runners.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Burnham, Mrs. J. B. Stratton and Mr. A. H. Stratton viewed the gay masqueraders with the eye of judgment from the comfortable stand that had been erected for the judges and their selection of prize winners was follows:—

BEST DRESSED GENTLEMAN.—Wm. Hendren, Captain of Toboggan.

BEST COMIC COSTUME (gentlemen)—Ed. Roy, tailor.

BEST DRESSED BOY.—Robt. Pratt, Indian Chief "Little Bear."

BEST DRESSED LADY.—Miss Minnie Hay, Daughter of the Regiment.

BEST COMIC COSTUME (lady).—Miss M Daly, old woman.

BEST DRESSED GIRL.—Eva Strain, Red, White and Blue.

The prize winners were undoubtedly deservedly selected. Ed. Roy's tailor was an original get up and Robert Pratt's "Indian Chief" was another good character, his togging being complete and the Indian relics with which he was adorned were well worth inspection. They were curios of the late Robt. Smith, but were purchased at the sale yesterday by Mr. H. W. Kent.

THOSE IN COSTUME.

The list of costumes is incomplete, as all the masqueraders failed to hand in their cards at the door. The list as far as could be secured was as follows:—

LADIES.

Miss M. Daly	Old Woman
Miss R. C. Allen	Young Widow
Miss Florence Hall	Little Red Ridinghood
Miss M. F. Thomson	Chinese Lady
Eva Strain	Red, White and Blue
Ida Cooke	Waiting Maid

GENTLEMEN.

William Hendron	Captain of Toboggan
C. Postlette	Clown
Robt. Pratt	Indian Chief Little Bear
G. C. Hodge	Hamlet
C. McMartin	Claim Jumper
A. McMartin	Highland Boy
D. J. Dessntel	Highland Chief
Keher Dolan	Snowshoer
Hugh Cochrane	Woodsawer
T. Lush	Good Luck
Fred Nesbitt	Prince Arthur
Harry Faint	Schoolboy
F. McKibbon	Camper

Frank Gordon	9-hour Mechanic
F. H. Irwin	Romeo
W. Chamberlain	Mike Struckoff
Wm. Logan	Dutchman
Archie Mooney	Fireman

THE RACES.

After the prizes had been awarded the ice was cleared for the races. The first was a barrel-race, in which there were three entries. It was a hot contest and was won by Jos. Dormer, although Fred McKibbon finished first but by mistake did not right his barrel after going through it the last time and so lost first place.

The three mile race had six entries—J. Connal, W. Logan, G. Parker, W. Hendron, J. H. Smith and J. Shevelin. The whole half dozen started off at their greatest speed and it was evident from the first that they would not all finish the forty-eight laps. Before the first mile was finished there were only two of the contestants left on the ice—Logan and Shevelin. These two skated an even race until about the end of the second mile when Logan played out and dropped out. Shevelin did not seem to loose his speed at all and was given the race.

God Save the Queen was played shortly after ten and the rink was soon deserted, and the last carnival of this season was ended.

NOTES.

The skating season is now nearing a close.

The members of the brigade were present in uniform.

The two nine-hour mechanics were from the Wm. Hamilton works.

Chief Rutherford and a couple of the the brigade were "ice-managers" for the races.

For the next few years we will sell goods away below other houses, so you can always rely on buying goods cheaper from us than elsewhere. Watch for our Saturday bargains and be sure to call.

Came to Peterborough for It.

Mr. Patrick Nairn, of Lindsay, who has the contract for the building of the Government building in that town, was here yesterday. While in town Mr. Nairn signed a contract with Jas. R. Noble & Co., of Water-st., to do all the plumbing throughout the entire buildings. He was also compelled to come to Peterborough in order to procure the hardwood flooring for the buildings, and was successful in securing the lumber required from Mr. T. G. Hazlitt.

Bad not Rest Well.

John Connors, an old man, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Roszel for refusing to leave W. J. Morrow's grocery store where he was making himself obnoxious. At the Police Court this morning Jack was highly indignant because he had been arrested and threatened to sue for damages from Mr. Morrow. No information had been laid against the old man and after giving him a warning not to turn up in court again the Magistrate told him he could go. Jack was thankful and remarked "I am seventy-six years old and last night was the worst one I think I ever spent."

MAXIMS FOR BUSINESS

MR. CROSSLEY ADDRESSES BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN.

Nine Do Nots that Should be Observed —Religion Should be Taken into Business and Recreations.

There was the usual large audience at the George-st. Church last evening. The clergymen on the platform, in addition to the evangelists, were Rev. Messrs. Torrance, Pearson, Huff (Smith), Wilson, Davis, Parker, Shorey, Burns (Millbrook), and Adam, (South Cavan).

Rev. Mr. Burns led in the opening prayer and Mr. Crossley sang "The Model Church."

Mr. PEARSON, in making the announcements, said that the past two weeks had been the two most glorious weeks he had ever known. He mentioned that a man in town recently got a letter inclosing $5 from some unknown person in Winnipeg. It was probably conscience money from some convert at the Hunter and Crossley meetings.

GREAT MEETINGS.

Mr. HUNTER advised all to attend their own churches on Sunday. They had had two great weeks and they expected two greater weeks in St. Paul's. In St. Andrew's he believed they would have a still greater time, and the work would still further increase when they went to the Episcopalian Church, and he did not know what proportions it would reach when they went to the Roman Catholic Church. He referred to a lady worker who was talking a previous evening about the perseverance of the saints, and asked the workers to let the saints alone and talk to the sinners. He then read from the 6th chapter of Daniel and commented upon it.

Mr. Crossley sang "The Two Lives," and Mr. Hunter read a number of requests for prayer from various persons for parents, husbands, other relations and friends and one for a Sunday school class of ten boys.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

Mr. CROSSLEY then addressed especially the business and professional men. He chose as his text Mathew xxii., 21:—"Render unto Ceasar the things the things that are Ceasar's, and unto God the things that are God's." He said that all present had a business or a profession. He pitied men who had nothing to do—"gentlemen at large." He asked business men not merge their manhood into their business, like the man whose tombstone said he "was born a man and died a grocer," for it would militate against their success. They should be men. His second maxim was not to confound the inconsistencies of professing Christians with Christianity. Why were there bogus bills? Because there were genuine bills. And it was so with professing Christians, but it was Christianity that showed their inconsistency. Nothing was inconsistent with an infidel. The third maxim was "Don't separate Christianity from honesty," and the fourth, "Do not confound common honesty with Christianity." They could render the things that were Ceasar's unto Ceasar and be honest with men, but they must also render unto God the things that are God's. They owed God trust, devotion and homage, and should not wrong Him out of it. It was a greater wrong to rob God of what they owed Him than to rob men. The fifth maxim, "Do not allow the inconsistencies and hypocrisy of professing Christians to keep you from becoming a Christian." There were pettifogging lawyers, quack doctors, till-robbing clerks and dishonest servants, but that did not prevent other honest men following the same professions. There were hypocritical professing Christians, but there were honest and pious Christians, and they should be as they wanted others to be. He asked them to have charity, because some men whose hearts were right had wrong conceptions. Sixth maxim, "Don't separate business from Christianity." There were three departments in life, business, culture and recreation, and Christianity was not a fourth department, but was the life of the three. They should take their religion into their business, studies and recreations, and it would add a dignity to life here and would add a blessedness to it. Seventh maxim, "Don't think you cannot be a Christian man and attend to business." That would be a slander on business and professional men who were Christians, and was an outrage on Christianity. Yet they would not say that they were not honest and they should not say then that they could not be Christians. Of course they could not engage in a dishonest or unchristian profession, and be a Christian, but he wanted them, if any were in such a business, to drop it. By taking Christianity into their business, they would find godliness profitable in all things. Next maxim. "Don't build your hopes on the future while you neglect to avail yourselves of the present opportunities." There was no promise of salvation for to-morrow to the one who neglected to-day. They did not dream of dying unprepared, but Satan had led them on and would still lead them on if they did not see the folly of their course. He closed by urging them to accept salvation.

After singing and prayer the public meeting was closed, but as has become customary the greater part of the audience remained to the second meeting.

Those who came forward as penitents numbered nearly a hundred.

Mr. Parker, organist of St. Paul's, presided at the organ during the evening.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

The Magistrate and Cash.

There was a familiar face owned by a weather-beaten individual before Magistrate Dumble this morning. "Jimmy Cash, 'what are you doing here?" asked the Magistrate when he noticed James on the prisoners' bench. "Well, I was full again and was run in." The Magistrate gave Jimmy a few words of warning and discharged him, as he said he was going to work at once. "I'll tell you, Mr. Dumble," remarked James, "it's those fellows around town that get me drunk. They can walk on the streets and the police never touch them, but I can't come in for one night but what I'm run in. You should have some of these fellows arrested." The Magistrate promised Jimmy to have these fellows punished if he would point them out and James left with a "Thank you, sir."

Brevities.

—This is spring.

—There was a fair market this morning.

—A telephone has been placed in the store of Messrs. Lee & Thompson.

—The quiet that has prevailed in police circles was broken last night and two arrests were made, the first now in nearly two weeks.

—The two prisoners, Patterson and Calver, who escaped from the Cobourg gaol last week, were recaptured. They each received an additional six months for their fun.

—Port Hope has sold $60,000 of town and harbor debentures bearing 4½ per cent. interest, to take the place of 8 per cent. debentures. The Port Hope papers say the loan has been a successful one, but do not give the price received.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
GLASS
AND QUEENS W

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,100 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $34,100 as the market value of a set of 12 pieces of selvers china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $2,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,500 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for as little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

CUSTOMERS.

Our customers and well wishers will accept our hearty thanks for their liberal support during the past year. We begin our fourth year's business in Peterborough very much encouraged. Notwithstanding dull times, bankrupt stocks, an increase of business houses, etc., we have from the first year to the present increased our business. The past year has been a large increase over other years. How can we account for this? We have not been "blowing our own horn" or in any way trying to "bait" our customers, but this we have done, bought our Goods right, kept proper styles and sold at right prices. We have watched our customers' interests. This spring we expect to do even still better for you and our only anxiety is that you see our stock.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER!

"Look here," he said, brusquely. "Need you hawk that thing about any longer? I hate to hear you wasting blandishments over these people. I'll take the remaining chances."

"Oh! that is sweet and lovely of you," Miss Earle said. "Two shillings, please. I do hope you'll get it, for I'm real tired with trailing about trying to get rid of it."

"If I get it," grumbled Jim, "I shall take it back to barracks and burn it."

"But why?"

"Just to revenge myself on the duchess for making such a hideous thing," he answered.

However, he did not win it, for after a long and tiresome process the raffle was conducted in much solemn state up in a corner, the dean himself holding the bag; and the cushion fell to Miss Earle herself. She took it with very doubtful satisfaction.

"Mr. Beresford," she said, suddenly, as if a really brilliant idea had struck her, "you've been as good as gold helping me to get rid of it—I'll give it to you."

"To me!" cried Jim.

"Yes; it will help to brighten your rooms. Will you accept it?"

"Miss Earle," he said, "I will keep it forever."

"Then," said she, with a pretty laugh, "I think I will take it back and find you something prettier for a keepsake; for if you have such a thing as that in remembrance of me, it will not be very long before you say, or at least think, 'What a hideous thing that is. Why did I buy it? Oh! a girl gave it to me. Yes, young Earle's sister; it was at a bazar at Blankhampton.' And then you'll only remember the girl by the cushion, and you'll get to associate me with the cushion, and"——

"I will keep it," Jim declared, stoutly, keeping the uncomely cushion fast under his arm. "You gave it me—it is exquisite. I would not part with it for the world."

Miss Earle laughed again, and just then Lady Margaret beckoned to her. "Nancy, my dear, Aileen has had to go home. She has given in at last, poor child."

"Oh! poor Aileen," cried Nancy.

"Is Miss Adair faint? Can I do anything for her, Lady Margaret?" Jim asked, in great concern.

"No. She is over tired, that is all; thank you so much, though. This long week has been too much for her," Lady Margaret replied. "She has gone to lie down, but I hope she will be able to come down for supper."

For each evening there was supper at the Deanery for the workers at Lady Margaret's stall, and for such of those helpers as came from a distance.

"Oh! I do hope so," Nancy exclaimed. She was very fond of the beautiful Aileen.

"Meantime," Lady Margaret went on, "she told me to ask if you would finish off the raffle for this," holding out a child's little velvet pelisse, handsomely trimmed with lace.

"Oh, of course," Nancy answered, readily.

Beautiful Jim would fain have raised the objection that Nancy was almost as worn out by her labors as Miss Adair; but Nancy saw what was coming, and checked him by an imperative pat on the arm.

"That's good of you," exclaimed the dean's wife gratefully. "Then see here, dear. There are thirty-five shilling chances, and Aileen had already got seventeen taken up. Here is the bag with the names and the money. It will leave you eighteen still to get."

Beautiful Jim fairly groaned within himself—eighteen shillings to be wheedled out of eighteen unwilling pockets—eighteen men or women to captivate by all the pretty persuasions and graces which he wanted to keep so badly for himself—eighteen—oh! it was too cruel not to give her a moment's rest, and he would like to have burned the thing.

"Very well," Nancy answered. How ready and willing she was, worn out and weary though she might be, to take up the burden again and keep working still! "Here, Mr. Beresford, will you carry it for me?"

"With pleasure," returned Jim, not very truthfully, it must be owned; "and after this you too will knock off work, won't you?"

"Oh, yes, it will be time," answered Lady Margaret for her. "And, Nancy, be sure you tell the people how it happens to be so expensive. It is made of the best of velvet, the lace is very good, and the linings are silk. In fact, there is no profit on it whatever, for Mrs. Bateman made it for me for nothing."

"I'll tell them," said Nancy, and she started away at once on her mission.

But beautiful Jim could not stand any more of it.

"Miss Earle," he said, "please don't hawk that thing about any more, will you? I'll buy the chances remaining."

"But, Mr. Beresford," she said, "you don't need a little child's pelisse."

"No; but I'd like to buy the other chances if you've no objection," he returned, meekly.

"But what can you want with it?" she said.

"I don't want it, of course," he said. "Who would?" he asked, eyeing the little garment with huge contempt. "But I don't like to see you killing yourself over the thing—and—and—please do let me have the rest of the chances!"

"But eighteen chances—and, if you get it, what will you do with it?" she asked.

"Oh! give it to some one or other," he replied—"anything, so that you don't go about any more, wasting yourself on such a crew as this," moving his head impatiently from side to side so as to indicate the crowd gathered in the street of the Swiss village.

So Nancy Earle gave way and allowed him to fill up the eighteen places on her card with his initials; and then he drew her away from the glare of the lamps until he found a cosy and retired seat under a wide spreading tree.

HOW HE RAN THE CORNER.

Canned Goods Burgess of Mimico in Quod at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, March 15.—For the past week Detectives Devine and Phillips have been working on a grand larceny case which involves the neat little sum of $37,000 in hard cash. Yesterday the detectives located the man they had been looking for on Delavan-avenue. Specials Lyons and Dickerson arrested him. He was taken to No. 5 Police Station and locked up on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. He gave his name as Wm. Burgess, a dealer in canned goods and his residence as Mimico, a small village near Toronto. Last night he was brought to police headquarters and locked up in the "freezer."

There are at least a dozen Canadian firms or their representatives here who have been fleeced out of various sums of money by Burgess. Some time ago the prisoner, who is a middle-aged man with a farmer-like appearance but as the detectives say "as smart as chain lightning," conceived the idea of making a corner in the canned goods market. He succeeded so well that he bought $37,000 worth and then seeing that he would not be able to hold his goods for his price and being closely pressed by his creditors he skipped out to Buffalo with about $15,000 of the money and deposited $10,000 in the Third National and $2700 in the Bank of Buffalo of this city. His creditors got track of his whereabouts and in order not to criminate himself in the laws of the Canadian province he jumped over to Clifton, Ont., on Monday and made a general assignment. Then he came back to Buffalo and finding that several of the Toronto detectives were in the city looking for him, he hastily drew the money out of the Buffalo banks and has succeeded in hiding it from the clutch of the officers.

The complainant's name as given on the report this morning, was Edgerton Decow of the Ontario Cannery Company, one of Burgess' largest creditors. Among the other firms represented in the city are Samuel, Benjamin & Co., Adam Hope & Co. of Hamilton. Officer Joseph Gates of the Ontario detective force, Attorneys Arnoldi, Waddell and others representing the various firms are also in the city.

The case is a peculiar one and the detectives say they do not think Burgess can be criminally prosecuted, and it will result in a civil action. Burgess is willing to go back and settle the case, and several of the creditors have signified their willingness to take a percentage of their losses.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Missing Man's Body Found in the Lake—A Reward of $200 Offered.

TORONTO, March 16.—A reward of $200 is offered for information of Seymour Porter, who mysteriously disappeared on New Year's day, whether he be dead or alive.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Gilbert Fletcher of the Fletcher Manufacturing Company, which occurred on Dec. 26, was solved yesterday morning, by the finding of the body of the unfortunate man on the lake shore about a mile west of the Humber. It is supposed Mr. Fletcher wandered down to the bay, where he was drowned, the strong current forcing the body out into the lake. The deceased leaves a widow and two children.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Packers' Association was held at The Canadian Grocer office yesterday. The greater part of the day was spent in an informal discussion on matters relating to the trade. The following officers were elected: President, W. Boulter; Vice-President, B. R. Nelles; Secretary-Treasurer, J. B. McLean. Executive Committee—W. A. Ferguson, S. Fenton, W. P. Innes.

Coroner Duncan at 4 p.m. to-day will open an inquest into the death of James Bracken, the G.T.R. fireman scalded at Allandale, and who died of his injuries on the night of March 14.

The difference between Gillespie, Ansley and Martin, and the customs authorities, reported yesterday, was one of interpretation and there was no attempt to defraud the Government.

The picture of the unfortunate girl Ann Diamond of Belleville, who suicided some time ago in Rochester, figures in the rogues' gallery attached to the Toronto Police Department. She was sent to the Mercer for six months one year ago for stealing a quantity of jewelry from Mrs. Morrison, Huron-street, Detective Davis effecting the arrest.

Current Capital Chat.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Mr. Small, M.P., to-day received a telegram from Ald. Roaf asking that the date of the appearance of the Toronto deputation before the Railway Committee in reference to the City bill re burying telegraph and telephone wires be delayed until the return of the Toronto aldermen now in the United States. Sir Hector Langevin agreed that the bill be made the second order for Thursday next. Tuesday next had been set as the date in a former conference between Sir Hector and Mr. Small.

Lieut.-Col. Thos. Bacon, secretary of the Dominion Rifle Association, has been appointed commandant of the Wimbledon team for 1889 and Captain Hood of the Fifth Royal Scots second in command, or adjutant. Captain Hood is one of the foremost riflemen in Canada and has time and again figured in the sixty from whom the Wimbledon twenty are chosen. The commandant has all his life devoted himself to the promotion of rifle shooting, and has been a most efficient secretary to the association. The command of the team is a prize always eagerly sought after and this year was no exception to the rule. Amongst the names prominently mentioned were those of Col. Denison, M.P., and Col Gravel.

Windsor Jottings.

WINDSOR, March 15.—The Canadian Pacific Railroad is pushing operations with all speed to complete their new road to Windsor. A large gang of men are cutting trees and getting the right of way ready in the neighborhood. Operations have also been commenced for a low bridge about a mile and a half from the town on McDougall-avenue.

Magistrate Bartlett this morning sentenced Willie Frederick, a chronic runaway, to the Ontario Reformatory for Boys at Penetang for a period not to exceed five years.

John Montague, until recently a member of the crooked colony in Windsor, is under arrest in Chicago. He has made a confession implicating some of his Windsor friends who have purchased sealskin cloaks, etc., from him. He was arrested in Detroit about a year ago for having stolen property.

A 14-Year-old Murderer.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Patrick Meehan, aged 14, to-day fatally stabbed Christian Weiss, aged 21, a fellow employe in a butcher shop. Weiss directed the boy to clean up the shop. The boy took offence at the way the order was given, picked up a butcher's knife and drove it to the hilt into Weiss' breast below the heart.

Truro (N. S.) to Have a Street Railway.

HALIFAX, March 16.—A company has been formed to operate a street railway in the town of Truro with a capital of $50,000 and power to increase to $100,000.

Penetang's Park.

PENETANG, March 15.—The bylaw for $5000 to purchase a waterside park alongside the Penetang Lakeside Hotel Company's grounds was carried to-day by 50 majority.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this and business and making the Americans so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap, but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

BRADFORD GOODS in stripes and checks at 10c. a yard, fresh goods, new colors.

Those wishing to have their dresses made up can have them done on the premises if necessary by our dressmaker, Miss Mercier, who has given up her own business to take charge of this department.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.—They will gladden your eyes, perhaps cheer your hearts and touch your pocket book. Gently have you noticed the progress in the art of making them so natural. They cheat you into touching or smelling to test their reality.

Lilacs, Tulips, Roses, Lillies of the Valley to be worn in profusion on Millinery this season. Case after case of Black and Colored Straw Hats, Bonnets, Trimmings, etc., have arrived, in fact nearly all the Spring Millinery is now opened out ready for inspection.

A VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY

BENSON ACQUITTED OF THE MURDER OF HIS WIFE.

It is Said a Son of the Prince of Wales is Soon to Make an Extended Tour of Canada—Andy Maloney Arrested.

MONTREAL, March 16.—The trial of Benson for the murder of his wife, Bridget Doyle, was concluded to-day, when the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The Star to-night says: "It is stated that Sir George Stephen will be accompanied on his return by a son of the Prince of Wales, who will make an extended tour of Canada and the United States."

Andy Maloney was arrested to-day on his arrival in town from Hot Springs. He is charged with the larceny of $14,000 worth of jewelry. Bail was refused and the case fixed for Monday afternoon. Reinholtz, who it is alleged lost the goods in Maloney's gambling house, was a traveler for P. W. Ellis & Co. of Toronto.

Her Brief Dream is O'er.

MONTREAL, March 17.—About three weeks ago the 21-year-old daughter of Mr. Stewart, a wealthy man who resides in one of the suburbs of New York, eloped with her father's coachman, who was exceedingly handsome. The two had carried on furtive flirtations unknown to the young lady's parents and one morning the latter woke up to find their daughter had left the house and that the coachman had also taken flight. Pinkerton detectives were engaged on the case, assiduously worked on it and were successful Friday in locating the pair living together in the little village of Bord a Plouffe. The runaway couple were surprised to be discovered in such an out-of-the-way place but the young lady voluntarily offered to return home with the officer. She was repentant and regretted the step which has caused her parents so much trouble. After saying farewell to the coachman she came to Montreal in charge of the detective and took the first train for home. The man was not proceeded against.

The Negro Exodus From North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N.C., March 17.—The negro exodus from this State is about to take the form of colonization of negroes in Arkansas. The negroes are holding mass meetings almost nightly. Negro orators and preachers of this section are especially active in the matter and issued a circular yesterday calling a meeting to organize the North Carolina Emigration Association for the purpose of securing organized action toward colonizing all the negroes in the State of Arkansas, where they are offered lands for a trifle. The circulars say that the white people don't want them here and they have determined to go. It is complained that the election law, school law, and other laws passed by the last General Assembly were passed to crush them out. They propose to colonize on unoccupied lands in Arkansas and follow agriculture.

Jersey City Officials Indicted.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., March 17.—The grand jury yesterday presented indictments against fourteen members of the Board of Freeholders and four members of the Board of Public Works. The charges in the case of the Freeholders were gross mismanagement of county affairs, wasting public money and general dereliction amounting to misdemeanor. In the case of the Board of Public Works the accused were similarly charged, and in addition it was alleged that they had shown favoritism in giving out contracts, awarding them to persons other than the lowest bidders.

The Last of the Buried Miners Rescued.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., March 17.—Peter Nearchalsky, after 50 hours' imprisonment in the Black Diamond colliery, was hoisted to the surface at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His appearance was the signal for cheers from thousands of throats, which were heard for miles. He had given up all hopes when his rescuers reached the breast in which he was imprisoned. Strange to say his injuries, aside from nervous prostration, are not serious.

Evarts to Get the English Mission.

NEW YORK, March 17.—A well-known banker of this city, a friend of Senator Sherman and of Senator Evarts, who returned from Washington yesterday, said the President would nominate Senator Evarts for the English mission immediately after the assembling of the Senate to-morrow. This gentleman says he knows from the very highest source that this is a fact; that the President has already offered the place to Senator Evarts and that Senator Evarts has accepted it.

He Speculated in Stocks.

BOSTON, March 17.—Edgar Swan, teller of the City National Bank of Lynn, was locked up yesterday in default of $30,000 bail. He is a self-confessed defaulter, in what amount is not known, the officials declining to make any statement beyond the announcement that the net loss to the bank will be $35,000. Speculation in stocks is the cause of Swan's ruin.

Flagman Hannigan Acquitted.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., March 17.—Flagman Hannigan, charged with being responsible for the fatal collision of excursion trains at Mud Run station, was acquitted yesterday afternoon. The jury was out only half an hour. Engineer Major's case will come up for trial Monday.

Insane Over Spiritualism.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 17.—Charles Naujack, an attendant at the City Hospital, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head with a horse pistol. He stood in front of a mirror and aimed the pistol. He was believed to be insane over spiritualism.

No Export Duty on Iron Ore For Sweden.

STOCKHOLM, March 17.—The first chamber of the Diet has rejected the bill for the imposition of an export duty on iron ore. The bill had before been rejected by the second chamber.

LATEST LONDON GOSSIP.

THE GLADSTONIAN VICTORY IN KENNINGTON.

Lord Randolph Churchill Continues to Puzzle Politicians and Plain People as Well—Spontaneous Enthusiasm.

LONDON, March 17.—By-elections are supposed to turn on questions of high policy, and they are discussed as if they did. There is immense exultation on one side, and depression on the other. Home Rule stock goes up or down as respectable gentlemen labelled Liberal or Tory get a few hundred more or less votes in suburban districts. A scoundrel like Pigott or a scamp like Gent Davis may do more for the Irish cause at a given moment than Mr. Gladstone or Mr. Parnell. Kennington, beyond doubt, will influence general opinion, whether it expresses general opinion or not. To use a phrase current on these occasions, it is a blow to the Government; The Daily News says a death-blow, but this Government has already received at least a dozen death-blows from that journal, and yet it miraculously and maliciously survives them all, and may even survive this.

Serious Tories do not pretend, as The Standard says, to minimize the importance of this defeat. All the explanations in the world will not deprive figures of their significance. Such explanations as that and other journals of like faith now give are of the usual kind. The Tories have not lost votes; there has been no changing from side to side; Mr. Beresford Hope polls more votes than did Gent Davis; Mr. Beaufoy's increased support came from what is called the reserve vote. Mr. Beresford Hope is a nephew to Lord Salisbury and a cousin to Mr. Balfour. Whether these kinships helped or harmed him seems uncertain. Mr. Beaufoy is a local man and employs a great number of Kennington workmen; the head of a firm of distillers, yet he had the support of the temperance party. Mr. Gladstone, when he sat for Greenwich, was junior colleague to a gin distiller.

But enough of details. It is sufficient to say that the Gladstonian victory in Kennington is a victory won by a far greater majority than the most sanguine hoped, and will give fresh vigor and volume to the Liberal cry for dissolution and fresh stiffness to the Tory resolve not to dissolve.

Randy the Sphinx.

LONDON, March 16.—Lord Randolph Churchill's attitude continues to puzzle the politicians, and puzzles plain people still more. His civilities to Mr. Stanhope on the Army questions were not, it appears, meant to go beyond Mr. Stanhope. Toward the Admiralty, and especially toward Lord George Hamilton, he is as implacable as ever. His letter to Sir Edward Reed has in it that note of personal as well as political antagonism which Lord Randolph seldom takes the trouble to conceal where it exists. "Such an exposure and confession," writes he, "of utter incompetence would insure prompt dismissal and probably professional ruin if Lord George were a private person." The exposure and confession are, of course, in Lord Randolph's mind, to be found in Lord George's speech on Admiralty affairs.

This morning appears another letter from Lord Randolph, explaining that he is not against all schemes for strengthening the navy, but against all bad schemes. This will not give much comfort to the Government.

$5000 Worth of Enthusiasm.

LONDON, March 17.—The Tory papers have got hold of a confidential circular sent out by the organisers of the National Protest against coercion. If you believe them, the spontaneous enthusiasm of Wednesday at St. James' Hall cost $5000. It was surely cheap at the money, but only a quarter of that sum has been collected, and the other three-quarters are urgently wanted. Hence the confidential circular.

The Albert Hall Ice Carnival.

LONDON, March 17.—The ice carnival at Albert Hall has the attraction of novelty, and brought together an enormous crowd to see the Duchess of Teck open it. It is a big bazaar, and not much else, but a dozen American ladies are helping their English friends in the selling, and people go to stare, as usual, at the English and Americans alike.

Paris Financial News.

PARIS, March 17.—With the exception of the transactions in rentes and foreign securities the Bourse yesterday was dull, being engaged in the settlement. Final transactions were made at 225 francs for Comptoir d'Escompte shares and 80 francs for Societe des Metaux shares. The directors of the principal financial houses of Paris met at the Ministry of Finance Friday night and again last night. It is reported they decided that the Comptoir d'Escompte should be placed in liquidation and reconstructed. It is said that 20,000 shares in the proposed new bank are already subscribed for. The employes of the Comptoir d'Escompte have been invited to withdraw their deposits in that bank, which from motives of delicacy they have hitherto left intact.

It was learned later that no decision was reached at the meeting in regard to the liquidation and reconstruction of the Comptoir d'Escompte. It is believed a further 20,000,000 francs will be necessary to save the Comptoir d'Escompte from judicial liquidation.

There was an exciting scene in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday. M. Laguerre of the Patriotic League made a speech attacking M. Constans, the Minister of the Interior, whom he accused of having engaged in doubtful transactions while acting as president of a financial concern in Lyons in 1882, and ended by calling him a fraudulent minister. The speech created a tumult in the Chamber and the Speaker formally censured M. Laguerre for his utterances.

M. Constans made an indignant denial of the charges and retorted upon M. Laguerre by saying that nobody quite knew where that gentleman's fortune came from. The matter was then dropped.

The Soir asserts that the Government has warned certain wealthy foreigners residing in France, who are known to have assisted Gen. Boulanger in a financial way, that they will be expelled the country unless they stop supplying him with funds.

The Bank of France will advance 20,000,000 francs to uphold the Comptoir d'Escompte provided another 20,000,000 francs is subscribed, of which 16,000,000 has already been promised.

France's Trade.

PARIS, March 17.—The French Board of Trade returns for February show an increase of 21,454,000 francs in imports and a decrease of 11,330,000 francs in exports compared with those of February, 1888.

A Stupendous Coal Syndicate.

LONDON, March 17.—A coal syndicate representing £100,000,000 proposes to purchase all the collieries of Cumberland, Yorkshire, Lancashire, Northumberland and Durham. The proprietors of the mines will meet soon at Manchester to consider the syndicate's stupendous proposal.

Scranton's Peril.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 17.—Eight chambers in the 14-foot vein and those directly above it in the rock vein of the Central Colliery Company have caved in and the crush is still in progress. The damage that may ensue cannot be determined as the cave-in is almost in the very center of the Hyde Park section of the city.

NOTES OF THE DEEP.

High Tide on the New Jersey Coast—Marine Disasters.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 17.—It has been many years since the tide has been as high here as it was yesterday. The water was away up among the cottages and the meadows were overflowed. The storm which has prevailed on the coast caused the high water and for a few hours Atlantic City was cut off from the world westward of it by the flooding of the railroad tracks which cross the meadows. The trains on the Camden and Atlantic Railroad tried to cross early in the morning but failed. The water was so high that the fires were extinguished, and with what steam they had the trains were compelled to return. Only slight damage has thus far been done in the city. The cellars of a number of cottages and the basements of several large houses were flooded but the foundations remain intact. About noon the floods receded and trains began to run again.

Collapse of a Life-Saving Station.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 17.—While the life-saving station at Far Rockaway was being taken on scows from Rockaway to Long Beach on Friday, a heavy gale washed it ashore, and yesterday morning the force of the waves caused it to collapse. Loss $10,000. The gale played havoc with the summer pavilions, a tug was stranded and 100 feet of the beach was washed away.

Many Days Overdue.

BEAUFORT, N. C., March 17.—Fears are entertained for the safety of the schooners Ennity R. Dyer, bound for New York, and George Taulane, bound for Baltimore. Both are overdue many days. For 60 hours past a northeast gale has prevailed.

Found Watery Graves.

NORFOLK, Va., March 17.—Captain W. T. Bernard of the Philadelphia tug Argus has found the wreck of the Portland (Me.) bark E. L. Pettengill, Captain C. C. White. She lies in Chesapeake Bay between the tail of the Horseshoe and Cape Henry in five fathoms of water in the track of vessels going out of and entering the capes. There is no trace of the crew and there can be but little doubt that the thirteen men who formed it have found watery graves.

Wrecks Off Samoa.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The steamer Zealandia reports that on Feb. 14 during a heavy gale the American barkentine Constitution struck a reef in Apia harbor, Samoa, and sank. A boat from the United States man-of-war Nipsic saved the Constitution's crew. She was owned by Nicholas Bischard of San Francisco and was freighted with a general cargo. The schooners Matanla, owned by Rugi & Co., and Tamasese were also wrecked. From other points on the island similar disasters to small crafts are reported.

Wreck of an Unknown Bark.

FORTRESS MONROE, Va., March 17.—The quarantine steamer Woodworth reports a bark sunk in the lower bay 10 miles out, in six fathoms of water.

At the German Capital.

BERLIN, March 17.—In addition to the new income tax which is said to be the subject of dissension between Bismarck and his colleagues, Minister von Goessler disagrees with the Chancellor on the question of the state granting financial support to the clergy. The subject of discord between Minister von Schlos and Bismarck is the currency question. The former advocates a gold currency while the latter favors bi-metallism.

At the last meeting of the Provincial Council of Danzic, members of the council reproached the brother of Minister von Puttkamer for the wholesale expulsion of Poles which the minister had ordered. Herr von Puttkamer, defending his brother the minister, said the latter deplored the consequences of the expulsion on economic grounds, but he was overruled by Bismarck, who considered political interests of greater importance.

In receiving the Central Committee of the United Trades Guilds yesterday, Emperor William declared the sole object of his European tour had been to maintain peace, the only means by which trade could prosper. He believed he had ensured this result for years to come.

The Samoan conference is not expected to present formidable difficulties.

The Hatfield Murder Trial.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—The medical testimony in the Hatfield murder trial yesterday supported the theory that Mrs. Hatfield died from suffocation after falling against the house. Counsel for the defence had not finished addressing the jury when the court rose.

McGarigle, the Chicago boodler, leaves shortly for Toronto. He speaks of the Weldon Extradition Bill in contemptuous terms and says it would not affect his case.

Cordial Reception of the Pilgrims.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The Catholic News has received this cablegram from Rome: "The pilgrims will be received by the Pope Monday. Yesterday morning the leader of the pilgrims, Very Rev. Charles A. Vissani, O. S. F., was received by Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary of State. The Vatican authorities gave him a cordial welcome and expressed themselves pleased at the visit of the Americans."

The Prohibition Defeat in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N.H., March 17.—Complete returns from all but one place show that all the constitutional amendments are adopted except the prohibitory amendment and that striking the word "Protestant" from the bill of rights. The vote on the latter was: Yes, 27,969; no, 20,880—not the required two-thirds in its favor. The prohibitory amendment was defeated by a vote of 25,273 yeas to 30,774 nays.

Patriotic League Plots Revealed.

PARIS, March 17.—The police have made further searches of the residences of members of the Patriotic League. It is reported they have seized papers showing that a plan had been matured for a descent by members of the league upon the Palais Bourbon where the sessions of the legislative chambers are held and the Elysee, the residence of the president.

Mahdists Defeated with Heavy Loss.

CAIRO, March 17.—A messenger who has arrived at Wady-Halfa reports that a battle between the followers of Senoussi and the Mahdists has taken place at Sinan, to the southwest of Bara, and that the former were victorious. Both sides suffered heavy losses. Among the killed were two Mahdist chiefs.

The Weavers' Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 17.—The first week of the weavers' strike closes without any appreciable change in the situation and the question now settles down to one of endurance.

Frey Wins the Pool Championship.

BROOKLYN, March 16.—Albert Frey won the pool championship of the United States to-night in Brooklyn, defeating James Malone in the final game 300 to 267.

A Raise for This Firm's Puddlers.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., March 17.—The iron puddlers employed by Ellis & Lessig, who are paid according to the price received for iron by the firm, will receive a raise of 25 cents per ton for puddling hereafter. This is the first advance in puddlers' wages in the Schuylkill valley for several years.

TOPICS FROM THE CAPITAL

WHAT THE RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS ARE ASKING.

One Probable Outcome of Mrs. Bell's Suit Against Sir Charles Tupper—The Command of the Wimbledon Team.

OTTAWA, March 17.—Sir Charles Tupper leaves for Montreal this afternoon. He will be in Toronto on April 5 to be examined in connection with the arbitration between the Canadian Pacific and the Government. It is altogether likely that Sir Charles will visit the Maritime Provinces before returning to England.

Messrs. Edgar and Purdom, representing the railway mail clerks of Western Ontario, waited upon Postmaster-General Haggart yesterday with a view to securing an improvement in their financial position in the service. They point out that their work is more trying and their hours much more irregular than those of clerks in city post offices, and they ask that their pay be put on an equality with the latter. They would like to be put upon the same basis as the city clerks, and have their mileage allowance done away with. In case this is not done they want their superannuation based not upon their salaries alone but upon salaries and allowances combined. They also ask that the amount deducted monthly from their pay for superannuation fund purposes may be so placed as to form an annuity fund for their widows.

Mr. Bell, husband of the woman whose suit against Sir Charles Tupper ended on Friday night in an intimation from Judge McMahon that she had rendered herself liable to indictment for blackmail and perjury, has for years been employed as sessional messenger in the Commons. He was a witness in the case and was included in the Judge's remarks about the perjury. In consequence of his connection with the case it is understood that Bell's services in the Commons will be dispensed with.

Tenders for corporation advertising were to have been considered at a meeting of the Civic Printing Committee yesterday afternoon, but the aldermen were surprised to find that none had been received. There was no explanation save an unofficial one that the newspapers had combined to send no tenders. The aldermen proved equal to the occasion and in pursuance of their previous determination that for the future they would advertise in only one in place of all four city papers, they recommended to Council that the advertising be given to The Citizen, and that where insertion in two papers was called for by law Le Canada should be given the second choice. Of the committee of eight one favored dividing the spoils equally amongst the four, but the seven agreed that the course agreed upon as above was the one best calculated to draw tenders next year.

Another chapter in the Brown failure episode was enacted to-day, when rumors were in wide circulation that he had jumped his bail and left for parts unknown. The police were quite agitated over the matter. It was learned however, from Mr. Wm. Finlay, who is Mr. Brown's bookkeeper and also one of his bondsmen, that that gentleman had merely gone to Metcalfe, a village not far distant, where his brother-in-law resides, and would return in ample time to appear in court on Friday next, when the criminal charge against him comes up on remand. Mr. Brown told an interviewer yesterday that he had no desire to avoid trial.

Sydney Smith, jr., chief clerk of the Post Office Department here, left for Toronto this evening on receipt of intelligence that his father, Hon. Sydney Smith, was in a dying condition, there being no hope of his recovery.

There has been no little "kicking" done by some of the military men in the House about the appointment of Lieut.-Col. Bacon to the command of the Wimbledon team. The choice is left to the chairman of the council, and in that capacity Lieut.-Col. Ouimet, Speaker of the Commons, made the choice. The objection is not to Col. Bacon personally, but is on the score that Ottawa has too frequently secured this plum, this making the third time in six years that Ottawa has got the command. Last year the command went to Montreal, and the adjutancy to Ottawa. This year the same two cities get the positions, but in reversed order. The kick comes mainly from the Maritime Provinces. Apart from the matter of territorial representation Col. Bacon's appointment is generally lauded as a handsome compliment to a lifelong friend of rifle shooting. It is interesting to note that there are six Ottawa men in the first twenty riflemen eligible for this year's team. There are three Toronto men: Tom Mitchell, R. McVittie and F. W. Curzon, all of the Grenadiers. Other Ontario men in the twenty are Capt. McMicking, 44th, Niagara Falls; Sergt. J. Rolston, 20th B.N.; Paymaster N. S. Russell, 45th; Lieut. J. A. Wilson, 33rd; Lieut. Conboy, 30th; and Staff-Sergt. Ogg, Guelph Field Battery. Staff-Sergt. Ashall, Queen's Own, is sixth on the list of waiting men and will in all likelihood have a chance to go, as several of the first twenty always decline to go.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT.

The Association's Views Presented to Ministers by the Deputation.

OTTAWA, March 16.—A deputation from the Canadian Copyright Association, consisting of J. Ross Robertson, Dan. A. Rose and J. A. Taylor, had an interview to-day with Sir John Thompson and Hon. Mr. Carling, Mr. Lowe, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, also being present, concerning the bill now before the House. They submitted to the Government that it was of vital importance that provision should be made in the bill that registration of any work by the author to secure exclusive copyright should be made at Ottawa prior to or simultaneously with the publication of his work elsewhere. That further liberty should be given to all publishers to register works prior to publication, but should the authors also register prior to publication elsewhere, then only the authors' registration would be valid. They claimed that unless such was done the proposed bill would be useless, as otherwise our market would be flooded with American reprints during the three months allowed to publish.

Attention was also called to Chancellor Boyd's decision given last week, by which English editions of Canadian copyright books cannot be imported into Canada, and it was stated that as the law now stands it is offensive to the English publisher and also to the Canadian consumer who wishes a superior edition to the Canadian, so they propose that sec. 6 of our present act be struck out with the exception of the last lines which will then allow importation. Sir John Thompson stated to the deputation that it was the Government's intention to meet as far as possible the wishes of the deputation. In the afternoon the deputation again met Mr. Lowe, when the matter was further discussed.

It is expected the bill will receive its second reading this week.

Incendiary Fires.

WINCHESTER, Va., March 17.—A number of recent attempts of incendiaries culminated early yesterday morning in the destruction by fire of three storehouses, one dwelling house and two stables. Three separate fires were kindled at different times. An attempt was made to fire the building occupied by the United States Express Company. Much excitement prevails in the community over the action of the fire bugs.

The Legend from Hayti.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The steamer Caroline Miller from Cape Haytien brings news of a decisive victory by Hippolyte over Legitime's forces on March 7, at La Coline. Hippolyte was on the field in person.

The popular hostility against syndicates is growing. In the House of Commons W. H. Smith, the Government leader, while refusing to interfere with the salt syndicate, declared that such syndicates worked their own cure, and [illegible] mately to reduce the price of [illegible] value of which they temporarily raised.

THE REPEAL CAMPAIGN

OPENING MEETING OF THE FRIENDS OF THE SCOTT ACT.

Two Meetings—The Farmers Addressed Rev. Messrs. Burns and Pearson tell the Voters why they Should Support the Act.

The first meetings of the Scott Act repeal campaign were held on Saturday. In the afternoon the Opera House held a good sized audience composed almost entirely of men from the country and a good deal of interest was manifested. Dr. Fife occupied the chair and Rev. Messrs. Burns, of Millbrook, and M. L. Pearson, of the George-st. Church, addressed the meeting. At the close a resolution was passed pledging those present to use their utmost endeavors to defeat the repeal.

The Evening Meeting.

In the evening at eight o'clock another mass meeting was held and another fair audience turned out, but this time it was principally townspeople who were present.

Dr. FIFE again occupied the chair and after speaking briefly on the question called upon the first speaker, Rev. Mr. Burns.

Rev. Mr. BURNS spoke of the liquor question in a rather general manner. Referring to the repeal of the Scott Act he said he did not believe that all the noble men and women who worked and so gallantly carried the act three years ago were now lacking the same enthusiasm, but he believed that it only required the match to be applied to rekindle the flame. He was glad their opponents had been given a cordial and pressing invitation to be on the platform to discuss the question and he spoke of the meetings in former times when he had met King Dodds and other speakers on the platform, and said that it was only the money that these men were after and when the contest was over they had all left the sinking ship. Their opponents should have been at the meeting, and he asked if there was not a man among those who had signed the repeal petition in Peterborough who had the courage of his convictions and would come up and say a word against the prisoner at the bar. Must it, he asked, all be done by sailing round the course and

WORKING IN THE DARK.

They hardly knew what to say as their opponents had not presented their case. All they knew was that a petition had been presented to the Government and that in compliance with that petition a vote would be taken on the repeal of the Act on the 4th of April. He spoke of those who signed the petition and told of a case where one of his church members had signed the petition being told that it was "for the Scott Act." He believed there were many names of the same stamp on these petitions. There were three phases of the liquor question—free trade in liquor, high licenses and prohibition. He passed over the first two and coming down to prohibition he spoke at more length, saying that prohibition, pure and simple, was the platform upon which he stood. He said they had applied for prohibition and were given the Dunkin Act as a step towards it. They applied a second time and were given the Scott Act, and Alexander Mackenzie had told them when they put the majority of the counties under the Scott Act then they would know that the country was ready for prohibition and they would give it. They went to work under this direction and had the Scott Act carried in various counties, and they were bound to impress the Government with the fact that the people have the reins of government, and they ought to stand up in their Christian manhood and say we must send men to Parliament who do not favor prohibition. (Applause.) They would never get this until they made prohibition their politics and threw aside Conservatism and stubborn Gritism. The Scott Act was the best thing to work with in this line and they should hold what they had. He asked them if they believed that if they allowed the repeal that it would be a step in advance? No! If the people of Peterborough allowed the repeal they were surely taking a step backward, but if they held the Act they would do their duty, and he wanted to impress upon them that every man and woman should do their duty. He held that the county was as ripe for prohibition as it ever had been for any new law. In concluding he dwelt on the moral aspect of the question, which he said was the strongest and the one he felt that the churches would rally on. He wanted them to vote as they prayed and said he could never vote for a license law, as he would then be a party to the cursed traffic. He hoped they would go and vote on the 4th of April as their Christian principles would lead them to. If the man did not know how to vote he should ask his wife, and if he hadn't a wife he should ask the girl he would like to be his wife, and if he had not such a girl then "God help him."

THE GEORGE ST. PASTOR.

Rev. Mr. PEARSON was next called upon to address the audience and was greeted with applause. The rev. gentleman after referring to the invitation that had been extended to the opponents of the Scott Act to be present and discuss the question, and the absence of any of the thousands who had signed the petition for the repeal, said there were no reasons given in the petition for the repeal, and he asked why those who wanted the repeal had not come before the public and informed them why the Act should be repealed. This, he thought, should have great weight with those who did not know how they would vote. In politics each party advanced their arguments and the electors sat as the jury, and it should be so in this case. He had stated in the afternoon that he did not believe there were twelve dives or shebeens where liquor was now sold that would not be licensed under the Crooks Act, and he had also stated that the men who circulated the petition for the repeal had in some counties, and he had been informed in this county also, been given ten cents for every name signed, and this accounted for the names of many good men being on the petition, as in the case Mr. Burns had referred to. This question was not a Protestant, a Catholic, a Conservative or a Grit one. He spoke of the Township of Ennismore where under a Catholic priest not a drop of liquor was allowed to be sold, and he asked if it would not be a shame to send the taverns back into Ennismore. The churches had all spoken in favor of prohibition and Parliament had voted unanimously for a resolution favoring it and who was against it? The members of the Licensed Victuallers Association had, in a confidential circular sent out asking for money to support the Scott Act fight, argued but one reason why the Act should be repealed, and that was because it interferred with the interests of their trade. The rev. gentleman said if the repeal vote had never been asked for until the merchants had asked for it, there would never have been a vote. If it had been left to the farmers there would never have been a repeal asked for. The men who went around with the petition were paid, not by the farmers, merchants or churches, but by the men who were engaged in the liquor traffic, and the whole agitation had been brought about by those engaged in the trade. It was a fight of selfishness against charity, and of the homes and the church againt against the liquor traffic. There were no reasons that could be advanced to prove the Act had been a failure. Some said that because there was more liquor sold now than before it came into force. He defied them to substantiate or prove that statement by the printed records. They knew very well that men were not making as much money and many of them would have been out of the business only they hoped the Act would be repealed. He defied them to prove that there had been more drunkenness. He was also told that under the Scott Act there was a great deal of perjury in our courts, but he held that the liquor men were themselves the cause of this perjury. The Scott Act had not been a failure but had not been enforced. He said there was no law more easily enforced and he pointed out the reason of the non-enforcement—the Government was not favorable to it, the inspectors were interfered with, the commissioners were interfered with and they had to contest with the antipathy of the members of of the Government who would not come out on the matter for fear they might alienate the liquor vote. Mr. Pearson said he believed that the one political party that came out first with total prohibition as the chief plank of its platform would sweep the country and he did not think it would be long before there would be a third party. The Scott Act had not done all they would like it to, but it had done a great deal. He referred to the repeal in Halton county and said that he had been told by competent authority that the amount of drinking in that county since the repeal had been alarming and that the people were anxious for the Act again and will carry it if the opportunity was given them. He said even supposing there was as much or more drinking now than before the Act he would still be in favour of it as he knew he was not responsible for it. He spoke of the way the Scott Act had been enforced and referred to the rarety of convictions for a third offence. For some reason, he said, there was a undercurrent at work and there was not a straightforward and honest desire in the part of those who should have the Act enforced to do their duty, and if the Act was not enforced they should not say it had been a failure. They were asked if the Scott Act was sustained would it be enforced. He said that there were certain amendments before the Legeslature and if the Scott Act was not repealed, he had been told by high authority that they would be able to secure amendments that would render it impossible to violate the Act. In concluding he said one reason why the liquor men were so anxious to have the Act repealed this time was because they thought in three years more the ladies would have a vote, and then they knew they might just as well try to pull down the stars as to repeal the Scott Act. Other counties were going to defeat the repeal and he believed Peterborough would give a larger majority for the Act than three years ago. He requested any person to ask any question on the subject they wished and they would try to answer it.

IT HAD BEEN A FAILURE

WHOSE TO BLAME?

Mr. THOMAS HOLLAND said many were blaming the police magistrate for the Act not being enforced and he asked if the magistrate should try a man when he appeared a second time for a second offence and not for a first as had been done.

Dr. FIFE replied that the magistrate was supposed to try the case as laid before him in the information.

Rev. Mr. PEARSON read a clause of the Temperance Act bearing on the question according to which the inspector was supposed to procure a certificate of previous conviction and then it would be a second or third offence as the case might be. The magistrate was not responsible, but the fault was with the inspector or whoever laid the information.

Rev. Mr. BURNS agreed with this view.

The meeting dispersed about ten o'clock.

Other meetings will be held on Saturday night next and Sunday afternoon.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

"Hurrah for the Palace."

One would think to see the rush of people going in and out of the Palace Grocery, the loads of goods being taken away by the numerous customers, and their own delivery wagons laden with groceries to be distributed to all parts of the town, Ashburnham and Auburn, that in a very short time the supply would run out; but the public may not know that Elliot & Tierney have the largest store houses and cellars in Peterborough, filled with goods which they are selling very low before stocktaking. Successful Agitation.

It is now seems assured that during the coming summer and building season that the carpenters' day of toil will be only nine hours in length. The many meetings that were held during the winter and the agitation that has been afoot has not resulted in smoke, for on Saturday the request of the journeymen carpenters asking that the day of labor be nine hours, was signed by five master carpenters in town. The bricklayers, carpenters and corporation men will, it is expected, all be working on the nine hour system this summer, and it is just possible that other trades may drop into the long and ever increasing line of nine-hour mechanics throughout the country.

Fearful of a Freshet.

Some of the residents along the creek in the vicinity of Bethune and McDonnel-sts., were a little fearful on Saturday night lest they should experience the annual freshet, and they had some good grounds for their fears. The water rose rapidly on Saturday night and Sunday morning and the cellars of the neighboring houses and part of the street were flooded. Street Inspector Pope had a gang of men at work at Bethune and McDonnel-st. breaking up the ice and tearing up the culvert which runs along Bethune to McDonnel-st. The culvert had to be torn up, as it was blocked at several places, and the water could not get a passage through. At one place the culvert had been built aroun a telegraph pole and debris of all description had collected around the pole until the passage was entirely blocked. This was the fault of the one who built the culvert, for it surely was not a wise piece of business to have a telegraph pole standing in the centre of a passage through which water was supposed to flow. When the culvert had been cleared this allowed a free flow of water, and the water in the creek fell considerably. At the Hunter-st. bridge fears were also entertained that the water would rise a little higher than was to be desired, and at Mr. Walter Patterson's tannery yesterday a party of men was engaged clearing the ice from the creek. However, this morning no apprehension is felt, and it is not thought that there is the slightest danger of a freshet. The ice in the creek was remarkably thick, much more so than the ice taken from the lake.

IRELAND'S HISTORY.

BISHOP DOWLING RECALLS SOME OF HER ANCIENT GLORIES.

St. Patrick's Day at St. Peter's Cathedral Special Singing and an Appropriate Address by His Lordship —Why Irishmen Should be Proud of Their Country—The Patron Saint.

Yesterday was the seventeenth of March —St. Patrick's Day—the day upon which the thoughts of Irishmen in all parts of the world instinctively wander to the Emerald isle and its illustrious patron saint. Yesterday the services at St. Peter's were of a special character out of honor to the Saint. Pontifical mass was celebrated at 10.30 in the morning, His Lordship Bishop Dowling officiating.

In the evening, at vespers, a large congregation filled the cathedral. His Lordship Bishop Dowling delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The singing throughout the service was excellent. After the address two solos were sung. Miss McFadden, in good voice, sang the First Ave Maria by Henshaw Dana and Miss Annie Dunn sang O Salutaris in an exceedingly fine manner.

IRELAND'S HISTORY.

His Lordship Bishop DOWLING in opening his sermon congratulated the people on the happy manner they had celebrated the day of Ireland's patron saint and spoke a few words on behalf of a worthy charity of the church—the Ladies Aid Society. His Lordship said he would naturally be expected to make some reference to Ireland on an occasion of that kind. He supposed that if he was for three hundred and sixty-five days in the year a Catholic Bishop he should be an Irishman one day. He could thank God that he was born in Ireland and had a good Irish mother. Although his father had not left him land or money, still he had left him the Irish faith—that faith which Ireland had so readily received, so tenaciously clung to and so zealously upheld. It was remarkable how readily the isle had embraced the faith, and His Lordship then made reference to the spread of the faith, saying that wherever they saw the sign of the cross, from the Gulf of Mexico to the North Pole, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and wherever they saw the cathedral spires they beheld the monument's of the Irish faith. There were many subjects that suggested themselves on an occasion of that kind. They had the history of Ireland, and though she was now in sorrow, still they would live in hope for she was fighting a good fight. Although Ireland was at present suffering and under a shadow he felt no doubt but that as the poet said:

Erin, oh Erin, though long in the shade,
Thy star shall shine out when others shall fade.

England was rich in property, money and men. Scotland was also rich in money and men. But England had lost the faith planted by the church apostles and Scotland had also lost that faith, but they could thank God

IRELAND NEVER LOST THAT FAITH.

Though she suffered for the cross, though she lost her own soil, lost her schools, lost her legislature, yet she never lost the faith. Thus, it was, His Lordship said, that Irish Catholics should be proud of the history of their country. They could remember some bright spots in that history and, as pilgrims travel to the holy shrines, so they could go with him to four illustrious spots —Tara, Ionia, Clontarf and College Green, the religious, educational and patriotic glories of Ireland. His Lordship said he would recall some of the ancient glories of Ireland and proceeded in his eloquent style to give a running sketch of St. Patrick, from his landing on Irish soil in 43 up to the time when, after being in slavery in Ireland for seven years and escaping to Rome he entered the colleges there and in due time, receiving the holy orders, he asked to be allowed to go back to the land where he had been a slave and preach the gospel of the true God, the Saint lived to see the conversion of the island. In referring to where St. Patrick was born His Lordship said the place of his birth remained a mystery. In his own biography he had said that he was born in Britannia Majoria, but whether that referred to England or Brittany it was not known. Some said in England and some said the saint was born in Scotland, and His Lordship said that it was stated that if a Scotchman was taken when young he could be made a man of, so they would be willing to allow that St. Patrick had been born in Scotland and when young had gone to Ireland and been made a man of. His Lordship referred to the remarkable readiness with which the Irish people had received the

PREACHING OF ST. PATRICK

and said that from that time down to the reformation it had been a constant struggle to maintain its religion. He next spoke of educational glories. Some persons, with a superficial knowledge of the history, said they were an ignorant nation, but His Lordship said they had the true knowledge—the knowledge of the true God and any ignorance there was among the people could be laid down to her persecutors who banished the schools and schoolmasters and drove her young out of the country to get their education. They could lay the ignorance down to Protestant England. He then referred to the schools and colleges which were established in early days with every church and said these had shone out as bright places in the dark days of education. From the sixth to the eighth century when dire darkness pervaded in Europe and the Roman Empire went down in blood and the schools of the continent were all closed, the scholars came to Ireland and there not only received schooling but food and clothing. So the educational was another bright epoch in the history of their native land. His Lordship finally touched on the military glories of Ireland, referring to the memorable battle of Clontarf. His last reference was to College Green when in 1782 80,000 armed men made a determined effort to obtain the legislative independence of Ireland and the request was granted by George III, and that pledge was kept until 1800. His Lordship prayed that many might live to see the restoration of Ireland's parliament. When that day came, it would be another bright spot in the history of Ireland. In the meantime they should in this country practice their faith openly and manifest a spirit of charity towards those of other denominations who had not received the faith, for they should not be bigoted against those outside for they did not invent heresy but only inherited what had been invented by bad Catholics. He concluded by telling them to be true to the clergy, true to God, and God in His own due time would restore their blessed nationality.

Thirty Days for a Pair of Boots.

James Wilfred, of Ennismore, seems to unable to keep his hands off of anything that belongs to anybody else provided he is able to carry the said article. On Saturday he was arrested for stealing a pair of boots from Mr. Wiley, of Bridgenorth and then selling them on his way to town. He was brought up before Police Magistrate Dumble at five o'clock on Saturday afternoon and pleaded guilty to the larceny and was given thirty days of retirement at the stone castle on the hill.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Rev. Mr. Bell Refers to the Evangelistic Evening Service in St. John's.

At the evening service in St. John's church yesterday Rev. Mr. Davidson preached, taking his text from John ix., 35, "Dost thou believe in the son of God." In opening his discourse Rev. Mr. Davidson pointed out that the call to-day was for men to take sides, to determine their future course. Religious, moral, social and political questions all called for a decision as to which side we should be on. Young men were required to weigh carefully their acquirements and talents and determine their future course in life. It was imperative on all to decide on a definite line as early as possible and go ahead.

This applied to the high question of shall we take sides with Christianity? or sides against it? On this point he spoke with earnestness and no uncertain sound. Atheism and nothingism were more rife than ever and the cry to be answered was "Dost thou believe in the Son of God?" The answer must come from each one and it was an answer of vital importance. After reading the account of the marvelous restoration of sight to the blind man as recounted in the chapter from which the text was taken he went on to say that faith on the part of the man co-operated with the power of the Lord to remove the man's blindness. The temporal consequence to the healed was that refusing to side with the Pharasees he was turned out of the synagogue, but found the arm of the Saviour outstretched to help him. His surprise at the appearance of the Lord as mortal man was a contest between faith and reason on one side and appearances on the other.

The same question comes to us after an interval of nearly 1900 years, will we believe on the Lord and take the side of Christainity? Should the stand not be made at once on the right side? Will there yet be delay? Shall the cause of Christianity be retarded by the apathy of the people? Never mind mere doctrinal points of the question. Think of the benefits conferred by the Lord. Were there not mercy and kindness and generosity in the world as the result of Christ's first coming? And the spiritual benefits? Everything that was liberal and religious, that was ennobling. Has your faith co-operated with the Divine mercy? If not, in a spiritual sense, you have given yourself no chance. To afford the Holy Ghost an opportunity to work results in your life, come to the church and seek the true way. Will you be on His side or against Him? Will you longer put off the inevitable? Will you turn a deaf ear to the call? The only answer worth anything is to say "God, I believe, help thou my unbelief." Once saved the best thing was work. Not a grudging work, but lending a helping hand in the grandest cause to fight on the side of truth and love.

AT ST. ANDREW'S.

The Rev. Mr. Bell, of St. Andrew's church, preached yesterday morning from the text, "Speaking the Truth in Love." After showing how the teaching of the text applied to both minister and people, and how essential its practice was to the growth of Christian character, he in concluding made a practical reference which is not altogether uncalled for at the present time in Peterborough.

The rev. gentleman spoke to the following effect:—That during the past week he had been greatly pained to hear so many derogatory remarks about the evangelistic work that was going on in town. There were some people who did not believe in such things and these would criticise methods, and unguarded statements in a manner evidently not intended to be to the praise of those concerned. "Now," he said, "a certain amount of criticism is perfectly legitimate, else how can we come to know men and things, but the danger lies in the criticism overstepping the line of love There is the evil, beware of it, and if people cannot agree with what is done and bid the work God-speed, then let them let it alone, and offer no hinderance. On the other side, there were some who had the very highest estimate of the work and of those engaged in it, but who from their own standpoint were very free in judging others, not always kindly or charitably, because they could not see as they saw, and accept things as they did. Good Christian people are thus held up and pointed at as standing in the way—hinderers of the work of God. This is not Christlike—it is not speaking in love, it is wrong, and wherever indulged will work evil. Against these two extremes—snares of evil —let me earnestly warn you. Beware of them, watch faithfully lest your feet be taken and you find yourselves speaking not in love but in another spirit, and helpers of division rather than helpers of the work of God.'

THE OTHER DIVINES.

Rev. P. Clifton Parker preached to a large congregation in the George-st. Church in the morning and was in his own pulpit in the evening.

Rev. M. L. Pearson was in the pulpit and preached a good sermon to the Murray-st. Baptist congregation yesterday morning.

Rev. J. U. Wilson, of the Mark-st. Church, Ashburnham, preached in the Charlotte-st. Church last evening, and his own church was closed.

Rev. Mr. Hunter was at the Charlotte-st. church yesterday morning and his fellow evangelist preached in the Mark-st. church in Ashburnham.

On Saturday afternoon an accident occurred which happily did not result very seriously to the victim. The young man's face was cut and a little scorched, but he very luckily escaped with nothing more serious.

A excellent combination of music and oratory awaits those who attend the concert and lecture in the Opera House this evening. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock, and the numbers on the programme are all excellent, as they include the names of Miss Waltz, Mrs. W. J. Morrow, Mr. T. Dunn, and Mr. M. Tierney, and Mr. Miller's orchestra will also be present. The lecturer of the evening is Mr. J. J. Curran, Q. C., M. P., an orator of recognized ability, who is listened to with equal pleasure at the bar, on the platform and in the halls of Parliament. None should miss this opportunity of enjoying a thorough treat in harmony and eloquence. 1d

O, WHERE IS HEAVEN?

MR. CROSSLEY PREACHES ON THE HOME OF THE BLESSED.

A Great Crowd in St. Paul's Church and Hundreds Turned Away—Questions About Heaven Answered.

Last evening the evangelistic service was held for the first time in St. Paul's Presbyterian church. As soon as the doors were opened the seats began to fill up, and a quarter of an hour before the time for commencing the pews and extra chairs were filled and people were standing in numbers, while hundreds had to go away.

After the opening prayer by Rev. Mr. Torrance, Mr. Crossley sang "Calvary," and Mr. Torrance introduced the evangelists to the congregation. While the collection was being taken up the choir sang an anthem, Miss Vair singing the solo in excellent voice.

FELT AT HOME.

Mr. HUNTER said that they felt at home in a Presbyterian church. His ancestors were Presbyterians and they had worked in Presbyterian churches, and they should all feel at home. He asked all to help them. They might not agree with all that was done, but no two faces were alike and they should not expect to think alike on all things. His way was perhaps as good as theirs would be, and theirs would probably be as good as his. But by united work they would accomplish much. He then read part of Matthew v., and commenced upon it, concluding by eloquently urging all Christians to keep their lights burning and unhid.

Mr. Hunter then read four or five requests for prayer. One was for a sick lady for whom they had prayed a week before, who was trusting in in Jesus and who was dying or dead at this hour.

HEAVEN.

Mr. CROSSLEY took his text from John xiv., 12, "I go to prepare a place for you." There were two evidences that there was such a place as Heaven. One was the Bible and the other was the evidence of their consciousness. Consciousness never made a mistake, though conscience might. A second question was, Was Heaven a place or state? He answered that it was both. Why, they had the state of Heaven on earth, and by having the kingdom of Christ in their hearts they would reach the place. Should they long to leave earth and go to Heaven? It was no evidence of piety to do so, and it might arise from an absence of piety that made people to wish to leave earth. He could understand that when persons were sick, feeble or discouraged they might wish to die, but to wish to die when in health was no evidence of piety. They had a work to do here, and they should not wish to go home and shirk it. Paul said, "To live is Christ, to die is gain." It was a nobler ambition to live for Christ than to die for gain. Did Christians go right to Heaven when they died? Some people thought those who died slept in the grave. But saints as they left earth went to Heaven. Others believed that they went to an intermediate place. He did not think that, because he did not read of it in the Bible, but he believed there was an intermediate state. Where is Heaven? Some thought it would be on the earth. The idea that God would make this little earth his headquarters was ridiculous. Others believed Heaven was the centre of the systems. This was a grander idea. But the little girl's answer, "Heaven is where Jesus is," was the correct one. The preacher sang "O, where is Heaven," and proceeded with the sixth question, would the remembrance of those on earth be cherished in Heaven? He believed they would, and classed as nonsense the idea that a child would be no more than another to its mother in heaven. Would they know each other in Heaven? Yes, and everybody else. Introductions would not be necessary there, as they would be at home, one family. Everyone would have as much happiness as they could contain, but there would be as much difference in their happiness there as there was in their holiness and faithfulness here. Would any of them miss Heaven? He was awfully afraid there were some present who would not enter the pearly gates. He urged them to avert the possibility of missing Heaven by setting out for it that night. After singing another sacred song, he explained what kind of a place or state Heaven was by saying that there was no sin, pain, ache or tear there. They would never die there. There would be joy unspeakable, glory indescribable, constant activity without weariness, and music beyond what they had ever known. There was not a devil in Heaven, nor a person unfitted for it, for an unsaved person would be out of his element in Heaven and would escape from it if he got there. Jesus was there, and every child and those fitted for Heaven were there, and their loved friends were waiting for them. Shall I be there? Only those whose names were on the Lamb's book of life would reach Heaven, and he urged them to see that their names were recorded there. He concluded by singing "We Will All Meet There."

Mr. HUNTER exhorted them all to make up their minds to come to God. "Listen! listen!" he said, "while God is at your hearts." They all had friends in the promised land. He commenced singing, "I have a Father in the Promised Land," and the congregation joined him. Mr. Hunter continued his earnest exhortation, and as he pleaded with the people while their heads were bowed the scene was a solemn one.

The meeting was then closed and a number went out, but others came in and the church was still full for the after meeting.

A number went forward to the front seats as penitents and in this way—the object of the services—they continue to be very successful.

NOTES.

The services every night this week will be in St Paul's church.

Afternoon meetings will be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons in the Charlotte-st. church.

The meeting for the Sunday school children yesterday afternoon was a very interesting one and the church was crowded with Sunday school scholars of all ages and sizes who all evinced the greatest interest and gave the best attention to Messrs. Crossley and Hunter when these gentlemen were giving their addresses. The addresses were of the proper style for the children and Mr. Hunter especially seems to have a most happy power of attracting and holding the little ones.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
GLASS
AND QUEENS WARE

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $4,500 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $24,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of silvres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $3,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,000 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

CHAPTER XII.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

In spite of the pains and trouble at which Beautiful Jim had been in order to secure a quiet half hour with Nancy Earle, they were not long left undisturbed under the shadow of the wide spreading tree beneath which they had taken refuge. For hardly had they settled themselves there in comfort before little Violet Leslie, followed by the incorrigible Tommy, pushed aside the branches and invaded their retreat; and the incorrigible Tommy, it must be understood, was quite too full and overflowing with his own importance to dream for a moment of betaking himself out of the way for the convenience and pleasure of his senior officer.

And that happened to be the very last chance he had of a quiet quarter of an hour with Nancy Earle before she left Blankhampton. For no sooner did they emerge from the shelter of the branches than they were seized upon by two of the Leslie girls, who demanded in their friendliest tones what was the state of business at Lady Margaret's stall.

Now, in Beautiful Jim's opinion, as in that of many another man, the Leslie sisters were quite the most brilliant and attractive girls in the town, but, as a truthful chronicler of Blankhampton life, I must own that, at that moment, he found himself wondering what in the wide world he could ever have seen attractive about any one of them. Poor Jim! From that moment until they were summoned into the Deanery for supper, he did not get rid of them, and by that time his last chance of a quiet talk with Nancy was gone.

The Leslies did not go into the Deanery, having a little festivity of their own that night; but as they parted from Nancy at the door some suspicion of the truth dawned upon Sarah.

"Norrie," she exclaimed, as soon as they were out of ear shot, "did you notice anything unusual about Beautiful Jim to-night?"

"I thought he seemed uncommonly flat—for him, that is," returned Norah, promptly.

"It's that Miss Earle," exclaimed Sarah, "and he is as gone on her as possible. What a joke—and oh! poor old fellow, what a shame we couldn't leave them together; she's going away on Monday."

"Oh, there's the parish to-morrow," said Norah, easily.

"Oh, but he is on duty to-morrow," Sarah cried. "Young Towers told me so, because Jim wanted him to do it, and he wouldn't. He said old Jim was in an awful way about it."

"Then I think he might have taken it, nasty little wretch!' said Norah, who had but little love for Towers. "Let us snub him all we know to-morrow."

But all the snubbing in the world didn't alter the fact that Beautiful Jim had found no one willing to do his duty, or that he was eating his very heart out in barracks on Nancy Earle's last day in Blankhampton.

As for Nancy, all the sweetness and light of the place seemed to have gone out, and out of her life too, so far as that went. She sat a long time beside the open window of her bedroom that night thinking — thinking — thinking! First, how savage he had been when Violet Leslie and Stuart came under the tree—as if poor dear Stuart would ever dream that they had gone there for more than five minutes' rest from the noise and turmoil of the fair. And how, when he had espied his servant in the crowd, he had given that hideous cushion to him, and bade him take it back to barracks with great care. Then how he had sat beside her at supper, and how tender and gentle he had been, and how he had held her hand at parting and looked at her—why, positively, her cheeks were burning as she thought of it. And then another thought rose up in her mind, a thought of which, owing to her training and the traditions of her house, she felt more than half ashamed.

"If only Stuart had not chosen just that spot and just that moment to take little Violet Leslie out of the crowd—ah! how different all might have been"—and then her eyes fell upon the child's little velvet pelisse which Jim had won and left behind him.

CHAPTER XIII.

IN NEW QUARTERS.

At last the time of young Stuart Earle's first long leave was over, and he went to Blankhampton to join his regiment, when for several months his life was certainly not of the most pleasant kind, and was very different from any experience he had had before.

For one thing, he had made a bad impression at his very first appearance among them on each and all of his brother officers, from his commanding officer down to the latest joined subaltern, so that every one of them was on the look out for the smallest sign of that "cheek" which every man of them felt it was his personal and particular duty to try to eradicate. A difficult task even for the united strength of a whole regiment, for Tommy's native bounce was apparently of unlimited quantity, while in quality, as bounce, it was of the very first water.

So far as his manners in the mess room were concerned, he was in an incredibly short time what Beautiful Jim called "licked into shape," but in other ways Tommy proved himself to be simply incorrigible. For instance, he never could be brought to see that in Blankhampton society he was in any way inferior to his senior officers, and even in the palace of the lord bishop himself he made no more ado about openly chaffing Beautiful Jim, or telling an absurd tale at the major's expense, than he did of flirting desperately with little Violet Leslie, who was barely out of the school room. Indeed, before six months had gone by, Tommy had the name of being the most impudent young cub who had ever graced the Blankshire regiment or the old city of Blankhampton by his presence.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Coroner's Jury Censures the Grand Trunk—Provincial Appointments.

TORONTO, March 18.—The coroner's jury which investigated the death of James Bracken, the fireman on the Northern Railway who was scalded to death the other day, returned a verdict of accidental death, with a rider attached blaming the company for not thoroughly inspecting the engine before sending her out. No blame was attached to the engine driver.

The following appointments are officially announced: Arthur W. Coe of Madoc, in the County of Hastings, to be clerk of the Sixth Division Court of Hastings, vice Dr. Loomis, deceased; Edward D. Hand of Fenelon Falls, in the County of Victoria, to be clerk of the Second Division Court, vice George Cunningham, resigned; Homer Stille of Cornwall, in the County of Stormont, to be a bailiff of the Third Division Court; W. H. McDougall of Alliston, in the County of Simcoe, to be bailiff of the Eighth Division Court, vice F. M. Woodcock.

Letter patents have been issued incorporating the Wallaceburg Electric Light Company, the Utterson Lumber Company, the Ontario Terra Cotta Brick and Sewer Company.

Late Saturday night Inspector Stephen visited a vacant house on the northeast corner of Victoria and Richmond-streets and there seized 35 dozens of beer, which he had removed to headquarters. So far no owner has turned up for it, but the police think that had the stuff been left undisturbed an ex-hotel-keeper in the vicinity might have come in on the deal.

Ellen Witeuski is in the General Hospital and Jane Harding is at Police Headquarters with a charge of felonious wounding registered against her, of which the fair Ellen is the victim. On Saturday night Ellen paid a visit to Jane at the latter's residence, No. 119 Jarvis-street. A quarrel arose and Jane ordered her visitor out. The latter declined to go and Jane seized a kettle of boiling water and poured it over her enemy. Witeuski's condition is somewhat serious.

Peter Glenn, a farmer from Markham township, put up at the Commercial Hotel on Friday night last. Saturday morning seeing nothing of him at breakfast, the proprietor forced open the room, to find the gas escaping at a high rate of speed and Glenn insensible on the bed. The ambulance took him to the General Hospital where he is slowly progressing back to life.

A week ago yesterday "Billy" Urje, better known as "Pig's-foot Bill," from his peddling those succulent dainties, got into a dispute with a friend whose name he refuses to furnish to the police, in the course of which he was stabbed in the head. He neglected the wound until Saturday, when his condition became such as to necessitate his removal to the General Hospital.

At the General Sessions on Saturday John Martin, the expressman who stole a quantity of goods from a Front-street wholesale house, was sent to the Central Prison for two months. Thomas Hope, the seed wheat swindler, freely acknowledged his guilt and showed that he had made arrangements to recoup all those whom he had defrauded. He was allowed to go on giving bonds in the sum of $1000 to appear for sentence when called on. H. W. Simmons, found guilty on two charges of stealing from the trunks of fellow boarders, was given three years in the Penitentiary.

As Robert and William Parker were passing Fred Roberts & Co.'s jewelry store at 186 Queen-street west at 2.30 yesterday afternoon they saw a hard-looking man fumbling among the cases. They stopped to investigate, when the man disappeared. They ran around to the rear in time to see two men making off up the lane. They started in pursuit but had to give it up, afterwards reporting the matter to the Agnes-street Station. Policemen Tripp, Stewart and Martin proceeded to Mr. Robert's store immediately and were agreeably surprised to find the two men again in the place. Determined to make a haul they had returned just in time for the officers to catch them. At the station they gave their names as John and Patrick Doyle, and their address as the Model Lodging House. They have already served a term in prison for larceny. A number of gold rings and a silver watch were found on them.

Ex-Policeman Jarvis, who arrested Rev. F. W. Wilson because he would not move on, has been committed for trial, with his two brothers, on a charge of having, at Schomberg, Ont., brutally assaulted Robt. Hersey, a drover, who resides at Weston.

The Servant Girl Will Die.

ST. CATHARINES, March 17.—Emma Harrison, the servant girl who fell from a second story window while cleaning the windows at a residence where she was employed, is still at the general hospital in an insensible condition and recovery is hopeless.

The Elusive Tascott.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—There is no doubt that a few days ago Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell of Chicago, was in this vicinity. The report that Tascott was captured at Lake Winnipeg was due to the fact of some strangers being seen there. The best inquiries available indicate that the searchers for Tascott have gone to the Pacific coast.

In Brief, and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature. The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrollable circumstances have now caused these to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good value in Market Gardens and Farms.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

CONSTABLE DUNCAN EXPLAINS HIS LITTLE WHEAT DEAL.

Alleged Bucket Shop Men Held for Trial—Signor Napolitano's Damage Suit—"Move-on" Jarvis Still in Jail.

TORONTO, March 19.—Broker Joseph Priestman proposes to his fellow brokers in town that they all join hands and pockets to see if a man who does a "commission" business violates the Abbott Act. With that object in view he yesterday addressed a strong letter to all the brokers in the city. It is thought that many of the city brokers will join Mr. Priestman with a flourish and a fat purse.

Mr. Priestman was in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of keeping a gaming house at No. 71 Yonge-street, which was raided by Inspector Archibald and his men on March 9. Charles Priestman, J. C. Millichamp, Francis J. Spear, Walter Armour, Thomas Galbraith and Geo. B. Foster were arraigned for frequenting the place. Mr. Galbraith and Mr. Armour were discharged. Inspector Archibald and Policeman Duncan told of what they saw at No. 71 Yonge-street when the police visited the place. There was a blackboard on which was written quotations coming in over the "ticker." Officer Duncan had been put as a "capper" to catch Priestman, and he explained the mysteries of his dealings in the place. On a deal of 10,000 bushels of wheat in Chicago Priestman told him that he would be charged ⅛ cent commission. The witness told the Magistrate that when he bought the wheat it was not for delivery. After considerable further evidence the Magistrate committed Priestman and the other defendants for trial at the Assizes, their own bail being accepted in $200 each. Mr. Priestman was told that he must close up his place, as he would be arrested again. Mr. Priestman's telephone was ordered to be released.

On motion of Ald. Hill the City Council last night fixed Monday, Aug. 12, as the Civic Holiday for 1889.

S. Napolitano, a teacher in the Italian night school, has entered an action for $10,000 damages against 18 signers of a petition for his removal. The petition alleged that he had served several years confinement for a criminal offence in his native town. Signor Napolitano admits that while in Italy he was arrested and confined on a serious charge, but says that after one or two years in prison he was released, the true culprit having confessed the deed, and that furthermore he is now in receipt of an indemnity pension from the Italian Government as a solace for his sufferings.

Although the time for receiving applications for liquor licenses does not expire till March 31, the License Commissioners have already received 160 applications.

Ex-Constable Dick Jarvis of "move-on" notoriety and his brothers Louis and Daniel, who assaulted Robert Hershey at Weston last Thursday night, are in jail, no one coming forward to bail them out. They will appear before Judge McDougall to-morrow to answer to the charges of assault with intent to rob and assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

The Police Magistrate yesterday sent John and Patrick Doyle to the Penitentiary for three years for breaking into the jewelry store of Mr. Fred Roberts, Queen-street west, and stealing therefrom. Hugh McKay, for keeping $100 given him by his employer in mistake for $10, was sent to jail for 60 days.

The Irish Catholic Benevolent Union's annual lecture and concert in Temperance Hall last night was disturbed by juvenile partisans on the outside who, not content with hooting threw stones at the building, one of which cracked the thick front window, and another struck Inspector Stephen on the side of the head, cutting his ear severely. Several ladies in the hall fainted.

The latest sensation in Queen-street Methodist Church circles is the elopement of an ex-pillar of the sacred edifice, J. C. Munson, a man of 40 who leaves behind a wife and three children, with 19-year-old Milly Spanner.

Fire at Forest.

FOREST, March 19.—About 4 o'clock this morning H. Switzer, foreman for A. Wren & Co., who was the only occupant of his residence in Washington-street, was awakened by smoke and on attempting to arise from his bed found the floor of the upstairs apartment he occupied on fire. He made exit hastily through a window, completing his toilet on terra firma. The new fire engine was quickly on the scene and did great execution. The building was badly damaged; no insurance; contents insured for $400 in the Fire Insurance Association. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been a defective stove.

Halifax News.

HALIFAX, March 19.—Ald. David McPherson and D. A. Campbell, M.D., are candidates for the Halifax mayoralty. The civic elections take place next month. An agitation is on foot to impose civic taxation on all importations of manufactured goods brought here for the purpose of selling by auction. Hitherto these have escaped taxation and upper province firms and others have had large quantities of goods disposed of in this way.

Thos. Tellers, a colored youth, was arrested yesterday morning with a tin box containing $130 worth of half-crushed gold in his possession. Particles of stone were attached to the gold which looked as if it had been in a crusher. It is supposed Tellers stole it at some mine.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, March 19.—Several persons who gave their notes to the agents of the bull-bee oats sharpers have recovered them but others have been less fortunate.

The charge of perjury against James Phillips was dismissed yesterday.

The remains of the late E. W. Perry, who died in Toronto on Friday night, were buried here yesterday.

THEY SAT TILL MIDNIGHT.

THE LEGISLATURE BUSY CLEARING OFF THE ORDER PAPERS.

Bills That Were Advanced, Bills That Were Passed and Bills That Were Slaughtered—Three Divisions.

TORONTO, March 19.—A dull session was that at the Assembly yesterday. The proceedings in fact were purely routine. Rushing bills and considering measures in committee occupied the afternoon. These bills were read a third time:

To give representation in the Legislative Assembly to the District of Nipissing—Mr. Hardy.

Respecting oaths under the Manhood Suffrage Act—The Attorney-General.

Respecting steam threshing machines—Mr. Drury.

Respecting the City of London—Mr. Meredith.

To incorporate the Ontario Inland Marine Mutual Insurance Association—Mr. Leys.

These bills were passed in committee:

Respecting registry offices—The Attorney-General.

To amend the act respecting the study of Anatomy—Mr. McKay.

To protect the beaches and shores of the Province against depredation—Mr. Drury.

The Provincial Treasurer moved that the House go into committee to-day to consider the railway resolutions.

These Government orders were considered and passed in committee: Respecting damage to Canada by flooding in new districts—Mr. Drury; to amend the Division Courts Act—Mr. Gibson (Hamilton.)

The Provincial Secretary's bill to amend the Public Health Act was then read a second time.

The second reading of the bill to amend the Free Libraries Act was moved by the Minister of Education. Mr. Ross explained that before this bill had been brought down every free library board in the province had been notified and had approved of its provisions. Foremost amongst these is the clause providing for the organizing of evening classes for mechanics and laboring men in connection with the libraries. This is an outcome of the conference called by the Minister of Education and held in the Normal School some months ago. The bill passed.

The Provincial Treasurer introduced a bill to amend the Ontario Insurance Act.

Among the public bills considered in committee was Mr. Bishop's measure to amend the act respecting insurance companies. There was considerable discussion on the provision which proposes to enlarge the time of insurance for mutual insurance companies to four instead of three years. The measure, however passed in committee.

The following public bills were then passed in committee:

To amend the Building Societies Act—Mr. Meredith.

Respecting Arbitrations and References—Mr. Meredith.

Mr. Whitney, on moving the second reading of his bill to amend the Election Act, explained that the object of the measure was to add imprisonment to the penalty of a fine for bribery.

The Attorney-General objected to the measure on the ground that if the penalty were increased the present difficulty of securing a conviction would be increased.

The bill was voted down, 30 to 15.

The second reading of the bill respecting actions at law was moved by Mr. French. The House divided and the bill was voted down by 43 to 24.

Mr. Meredith's bill to amend the Ontario Judicature Act was also voted down by a majority of 20.

A number of other bills were dropped and the House adjourned at midnight.

A Scott Act Witness Indicted.

WHITBY, March 18.—At the assizes convened here to-day by Justice Falconbridge, the grand jury brought in a true bill for perjury against F. Withyman, a witness in a recent Scott Act trial, resulting in the conviction of J. M. Brooks of Oshawa, before Police Magistrate Grierson of that town. The liquor party are intensely interested in the result, as it will have an important influence in the contest now going on for the repeal of the Scott Act in this county.

Signs of Spring.

MOUNT FOREST, March 17.—Blue-jays, robins and dainty little bonnets have made their welcome appearance here already.

A sacred concert was given in the Roman Catholic Church to-night. A lecture by Father Burk of Arthur was on the program and was much appreciated.

CANADIAN COMPANIES ABROAD.

Chignecto Marine Railway Prospectus—Northwest Land Company.

LONDON, March 19.—The prospectus is issued of the Chignecto Marine Transport Company, with a capital of £300,000 in 15,000 seven per cent. preference shares of £20 each, and £10,000 in 5000 ordinary shares of £20 each. The company is also authorized to issue £700,000 of five per cent. mortgage debentures. Only preferred shares are now offered. Mr. Provand, M.P., is among the directors.

Sir George Warrender, chairman, has intimated his desire to retire from the board of the Canada Northwest Land Company as soon as suitable provision is made. The board recommends the election of Thomas Reynolds of London to fill Mr. Peacock Edwards' place on the board. Mr. Edwards has hitherto been managing director in Scotland. These changes are taken to indicate the intention of the board to infuse fresh life into the affairs of the company.

The Canada Company's report shows that land sales and leases decreased 854 acres, as compared with 1887. Receipts decreased £11,367. The average price, however, increased from 80½ to 90 shillings. The board expect activity in mining. The cost of management was reduced by £826.

The Standard's financial editor, commenting on the Canadian Pacific Bill now before the Dominion Parliament, says if the bond and share holders are not to sit still till they are ruined they ought to organize determined opposition to the proposals at once. It is not likely the suggestions will be acted on.

Depew on Home Rule.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Chauncey M. Depew spoke to the toast "Home Rule" at the annual dinner of the St. Patrick's Club here last night.

Natural Gas.

COLUMBUS, O., March 19.—Natural gas was struck at [illegible], 25 miles from Columbus, yesterday. The flow is at the rate of 14,000,000 cubic feet per day.

Parry Sound Colonization Railway.

PARRY SOUND, March 19.—A meeting of the directors of the Parry Sound Colonization Railway Company was held here yesterday for the purpose of securing an additional bonus to construct the line from here to Burk's Falls. The Ontario Government purpose granting $3000 a mile, and it is thought that if the Dominion Government will renew a bonus formerly granted of $3200 per mile the road can be built. With this end in view a deputation of influential business men was appointed to go to Ottawa forthwith and represent to the Government the position of affairs.

Railway Consolidation.

SIMCOE, March 19.—At the meeting of shareholders of the South Norfolk Railway and of the Georgian Bay Division of the Grand Trunk held here yesterday it was unanimously resolved to incorporate the South Norfolk extension into the Georgian Bay division under the special provision of an act of the Dominion Parliament passed at the session of 1888. All the necessary resolutions were passed and agreements unanimously approved for the consolidation.

A Sinister Gift.

VIENNA, March 18.—The Political Correspondence says the members of the Russian Imperial family have subscribed the cost of a present of several thousand American repeating rifles and a quantity of ammunition to the Prince of Montenegro. They are supposed to be intended for use against Servia in favor of Prince Karageorgevics.

Received by the Pope.

Why Crispi Retained Power.

ROME, March 18.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day Prime Minister Crispi said he had consented to remain in power because the difference which caused him to offer his resignation referred to methods, not to principles. He aimed to restore the equilibrium of the Budget by means of reforms and retrenchments.

THE OYSTER BOAT CRUELTIES.

A Captain Attempts to Bribe a Sailor to Commit Murder.

BALTIMORE, March 18.—At the trial of Captain C. T. Beachamp of the oyster boat Z. E. Beachamp for cruelties to sailors to-day, John Kavalek, a sailor on Beachamp's boat, stated the captain offered to increase his pay if he would throw two worthless hands overboard. Kavalek told how the captain beat John Steiner with a stick without provocation, and forced him to work when his foot was so sore he could not put it to the ground. He also testified that the captain struck Steiner on the mouth with an oyster. Beachamp, according to the testimony, seemed to claim the privilege of beating anyone in his employ. Kavalek said the fare consisted mainly of half spoiled beans with sometimes cabbage, meat, white potatoes and corn bread.

Mary Anderson's Illness.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—It was stated at the Stratford Hotel yesterday that Mary Anderson was somewhat better, but was as yet unable to see anyone. An attendant said that Miss Anderson was a very sick woman, but it was not true that she had become insane.

BALTIMORE, March 19.—Dr. John Van Bibber, who attended Miss Anderson during her stay here last week, denies that her mind is affected. He says Miss Anderson is in a nervous condition from overwork and insomnia and is suffering from a nervous trouble that has given her great pain. She is not suffering from any mental ailment whatever.

The Mutual Benefit Frauds.

ALBANY, N.Y., March 19.—The charges made by Anthony Comstock and other policy holders of the Mutual Benefit Life Association of America at their annual meeting held in New York, March 12, that the management of the organization is corrupt and that its funds have been misappropriated, are the subject of a report made yesterday to the Insurance Department by its examiners. They report that the bylaws have been of late continually violated by using for expenses the moneys contributed by members for the payment of death claims.

Proposed Ship Canal.

LANSING, Mich., March 18.—W. H. Morrell of New York arrived here yesterday to endeavor to induce the Legislature to grant a charter for the proposed ship canal across the upper peninsular connecting Lakes Michigan and Superior. The route selected is 37 miles long and begins at Bay au Train, about 15 miles east of Marquette. Its southern terminus will be Little Bay de Nocquet, near Gladstone. Two locks will be necessary and its projectors state that the cost will be less than the proposed canal improvements at Sault Ste. Marie. It will save to ship commerce a distance of 271 miles each way between Duluth and Chicago. Mr. Morrell says that he has an abundance of New York and Chicago capital interested and that the ship canal company will be organized within sixty days after a charter is granted.

A SIDE GLANCE AT THE JESUITS ACT IN THE HOUSE.

Col. O'Brien's Motion Likely to Come Up on Thursday—Chief Engineer Page Attacked and Defended.

OTTAWA, March 18.—The Jesuits Estates Act occupied the attention of the House for a few minutes this afternoon before the orders of the day were taken up. Mr. Laurier rose to question Col. O'Brien as to when he intended to proceed with his promised motion. The Colonel replied that it would be taken up on the very first motion to go into committee of supply after the Budget debate was finished, and he understood this would be wound up to-morrow. Wednesday not being a Government day this would bring on Col. O'Brien's motion on Thursday. Next questioning the Premier, Mr. Laurier asked if the Government would move to go into committee of supply on Thursday. They would know better later in the week, Sir John replied. Mr. Laurier then inquired if in view of the discussion expected the official papers in connection with the bill would be brought down. The Premier said they certainly would. He thought they would be ready to-morrow.

Mr. Cook's question respecting the identity of Senator Gowan and ex-Judge Gowan and the judicial pension received brought the answer that they were one and the same person. Judge Gowan had been County Judge from 1843 to 1883 and when he retired he got a pension of $1733 as allowed by Statute. He commenced to receive this before his appointment to the Senate.

Mr. Bergin, resuming his adjourned speech on the motion for the Cornwall Canal Correspondence, continued the lively attack upon Chief Engineer Page which he had commenced on Wednesday last. He asked for the appointment of a commission to investigate the several matters of complaint which he had laid before the House.

The engineer found a champion in Mr. Mulock, who said Mr. Page's professional record was of the very highest standard, not only in Canada but abroad.

Sir John Macdonald said there was no objection to bringing down the papers asked for. The Government were bound to get the best scientific help they could and he thought they were very well off in their chief engineer of canals.

An animated debate upon this resolution offered by Mr. Platt followed:

That it is expedient to remove the duty on and place upon the free list all grains and seeds which do not ripen in Canada, but which are now largely imported and sown for the production of food for cattle under the system of feeding called siloing and ensilage now largely adopted by the farmers of Canada.

Mr. Platt emphatically declared that this resolution was no part of a conspiracy against the National Policy. He aimed chiefly at the free importation of sweet corn for seeding purposes for the development of the ensilage system, found to be so profitable to the farmers.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell opposed the resolution because it was altogether impracticable, not being specific enough in its terms. If it was only seed grain for which free admission was sought, the amount of duty involved was infinitely small. He was rather inclined to believe that the agitation on this subject had been raised by politicians as a piecemeal attack upon the National Policy.

Mr. Taylor also opposed the resolution, declaring that the effect of it would be to reduce by 7½ cents the price of every bushel of coarse grain grown in the country.

Several Opposition members spoke in favor of Dr. Platt's resolution, and when the House came together after recess a staunch Conservative, Geo. Laurie, led off with a speech warmly supporting the request.

Then the Finance Minister rose with the statement that the matter was one well worth looking into and he would consult with the Minister of Customs to see what could be done about it.

In advocating that the Ministers of Finance and Customs should as promised put their heads together to devise a resolution dealing with the matter, Mr. Kirkpatrick made a warm speech in support of affording the encouragement to the farmers.

On the other side Mr. McNeill contended that the free importation of sweet corn would save to the average farmer just 40 cents a year, while it might have the effect of lessening the value of all coarse grain grown in the country.

Dr. Platt withdrew his resolution on the understanding that the Government would give attention to the matter.

The next subject before the House was introduced by Mr. Burdett, who wants a grant in aid of the Belleville Drill Shed. Hon. Mackenzie Bowell said if such aid had not been already given it was because the city had refused to make any grant, declining to follow the example of other towns and cities. For instance Brantford, which now had in an application for a drill shed grant, had itself liberally supported the institution.

This reference to Brantford brought a few words from Mr. Paterson of Brant, who was glad that the Minister of Customs had made the reference and who advocated liberal treatment of the volunteers as a class who serve their country at very great expense to themselves.

The House adjourned at 12.45 because, as Sir Hector Langevin said, it was expected that they would sit to-morrow until long past midnight in order to get through with the Budget debate.

An Admiralty Decision.

CHICAGO, March 19.—The admiralty claim of M. A. Bradley against the propeller John Pridgeon, jr., was decided yesterday by Judge Blodgett in favor of the claimant. The Pridgeon and the propeller Lelah Chamberlain collided off Sheboygan, Wis., in October, 1886. The Chamberlain sank and proved a total loss. The court held that the Pridgeon was solely at fault. The court limited the liability of the Pridgeon to $27,800. An appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court.

Sorosis' 21st Anniversary.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Sorosis yesterday celebrated its 21st anniversary and 125 delegates representing various states attended the convention and banquet. It was a representative gathering of women of intellect, culture, wealth and social standing. Addresses were made by Julia Ward Howe, Mary Wright Sewall and others. Ellen D. Clymer was installed as President.

The Big Ditch.

PARIS, March 19.—The Panama Canal Company announces that a further extension of the provisional contract has been arranged with the contractors which secures the maintenance of the works and material. The official liquidator does not despair of forming a new company.

A New U. S. Man-of-War.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Secretary Tracy was yesterday notified by Cramp Bros., contractors for the new gun boat Yorktown, that the vessel is now entirely completed.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

POUND, Wis., March 19.—The boiler in Whitney & Little's saw mill exploded yesterday, completely wrecking the structure and killing two men. Five others were badly injured.

Woodstock News.

WOODSTOCK, March 18.—The time during which the candidates nominated for St. John's and St. George's Wards might withdraw expired at noon to-day. Contrary to expectations there will be a contest in both wards. J. R. Oliver, John Pascoe and R. Melville have withdrawn from St. John's, leaving Charles Allen and Edward West to contest the seat. James Bell has withdrawn in St. George's Ward, leaving Charles Oliver, James Bigeon and S. J. Cole in the field. J. J. Hall and J. M. Grant have withdrawn as candidates for the reeveship, leaving Mr. Revell elected by acclamation.

Mr. Martin is sinking rapidly.

The Shipbuilding Strike.

BELFAST, March 19.—The strike in the shipbuilding trade here is spreading. About 1600 men are now idle.

PETER'S GRADUAL FALL

CHRIST'S DEATH TYPIFIED IN THE PASCHAL LAMB.

The Subjects of the Sermons of the Evangelists—Urgent Pleadings with the People to Yield to God—Many Accept the Invitation.

St Paul's Church was again crowded at the evangelistic service last evening. In addition to Messrs. Hunter and Crossley and the local clergyman, Rev. Mr. McKwen, of Lakefield, occupied a seat on the platform. In the opening service Messrs. Pearson and McKwen led in prayer. Mr. Crossley sang "The Rescue."

WORKERS WANTED.

Mr. HUNTER said surely there were one hundred in the church who would consecrate themselves to the work of the Lord. They needed about a hundred to help those who were working. Some of them had not spoken to a person about their souls for years, and at the judgment they would have to answer for it. Now, they wanted Christian workers to help them, and he asked them to go right into the work. He told of a man in George-st. church last week who felt he could not leave the church until converted, and as they gathered around him and prayed he was saved. Last evening that man was with another who was converted in the same way. Those who went out before the after meetings did not know the great things that were going on. Tarry around, he said, and get your souls aroused. He then read Luke xxii., and pointed out the steps of commenting on each, as follows:—Sleeping; anger; following Jesus afar off; sitting down among Christ's enemies; denying Christ; denying Him with an oath; and declaring he knew not what his accuser said. But Christ looked at Peter as the cock crew, and Peter went out and wept bitterly. No matter how far they wandered away Christ would forgive them. He concluded by asking them to remember the three looks—look out for chances to do good, look up to Jesus for aid, and look forward to the time when they would rest with Him.

Mr. Crossley sang another sacred song, "Abide with Me," and Mr. Hunter read several special requests for prayer.

THE SPRINKLED BLOOD.

Mr CROSSLEY took for his text, Exodus xii., 13, "When I see the blood I will pass over you." The preacher explained the circumstances of the visit of the angel of death to the Egyptians and how the Israelites were saved by sprinkling the lamb's blood. The blood of the lamb typified Christ. The blood in Egypt was innocent blood—the lamb was faultless, typifying the sinless Jesus. It was vicarious blood, and so was the blood of Jesus—it was shed for them. It was saving blood, so the blood of Christ saved them from the death of sin. Nothing but this blood would have saved them in Egypt, so nothing but the blood of Jesus would save them—nothing but faith in Him, though faith would produce works. The lamb's blood was sprinkled, and so Jesus' blood sprinkled now the throne of grace. It was sheltering blood, and they could obtain shelter under Jesus' blood. Strange that families could rest easy while one of the family was unsaved and liable to eternal death! They could not trust the mercy of God unless they took advantage of the way He in His mercy provided for salvation—they must take refuge behind the sprinkled blood. They intended to do that sometime, but they knew not whether they would live until to-morrow. Some acknowledged that, but said they did not "feel like it." It was stupid to act on impulses instead of on the intelligence God had given them. Let those who were hesitating come to-night. The way of salvation was illustrated in Egypt. There they were to believe that was God's method of saving them and to surrender to His directions, so they must believe in Christ and surrender their hearts in confidence to God and they would be saved. None died in Egypt who took shelter behind the lamb's blood, and those who accepted Christ would live. In Egypt the people might not have understood how the lamb's blood would save them. And what they should enquire was not how they would be saved, but as to what God had promised them. They would not question God's truthfulness, and if they yielded to the Lord they would be safe. He urged them to give themselves to the Lord.

THE HOUR'S IMPORTANCE.

After prayer and singing Mr. Hunter urged the importance of the hour by relating incidents of some who had been saved at the meetings, and some who had resisted, and who had within a short time had died suddenly. If before midnight their death knell should toll, what would become of them? If they cried to Jesus He would come down to them, all doubts would vanish and taking them in His arms He would impress the kiss of reconciliation on their cheeks. Some were trampling the blood of Jesus under their feet. What would become of them? He pleaded with them to yield to God and many stood up to manifest their desire to do so.

After prayer by Rev. Mr. Terrance, the first meeting was closed.

NOTES.

In the Opera House next Sunday afternoon a meeting will be held by the evangelists for men only.

A meeting for children only will be held in St. Paul's church on Friday afternoon next at four o'clock.

A HIGHER TENDER ACCEPTED.

How Belleville Assists its Industries—A Pointer for Peterborough.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I see by the Belleville papers that the contract for the building of the Bay of Quinte bridge superstructure has been awarded to the Brown Manufacturing Co., the price agreed upon being $36,845 00, notwithstanding the fact, as I am informed upon enquiry, that our own enterprising firm, the Central Brridge Works, had tendered to do the work for $34,166 00, a sacrifice of $2,679.00 being made in favor of the local industry. However unfair this may seem to other competitors, the award shows a laudable desire on the part of the Bridge Committee to encourage and help their own industries, and I am inclined to think our own Council might take a leaf out of the Belleville people's book and give more generous patronage to Mr. Law. Our county may not have such an extensive contract to give as that for the Bay of Quinte, but there are many places where new bridges are required, and it would only be exercising true economy, wherever a new bridge has been decided upon, to give Mr. Law the order instead of, as in many cases since the Bridge Works were established here, erecting wooden structures at which the antiquated foggies of a thousand years ago would smile very audibly.

It is the tenet of some people's belief that town and even county councils, are composed only of "old fogies." I would not cast such an aspersion upon either of our local bodies, but the vast superiority of iron bridges has so long been an established fact that it may very reasonably be asked why such meagre patronage has been accorded to our local works when wooden bridges have in many cases been built which might, with ultimate advantage, have been built of iron.

By most of our councillors the prospect of a good industry coming to the town is regarded as a glorious opportunity—not for offering generous, substantial assistance to the proposed industry, but for council oratory, in which a pretence of booming the interests of the town is made, the opportunity of gaining popularity with a view to re-election, and serving the still more important purpose of booming the individual interest of the members of the Council, and unless the chance of the latter interest being well served be reduced to a "moral," the prospect of the proposed industry is exceedingly slim.

Excuse me for troubling you in this matter. I do so, in, I believe, the "interest of the town," and I am not seeking election to anything. There is no reason why Peterborough should not become one of the most important manufacturing towns in the Dominion, but manufacturers require something more substantial than an invitation, a surfeit of "taffy," and an air castle built by our municipal wind bags. Already several important industries have been lost to the town through the refusal of assistance which might easily have been given. I do not consider it the duty of the town to locate industries and then maintain them. I merely argue that it is in the interest of the town that every good industry that is obtainable should be secured, and that whenever our Councillors have it in their power to assist their industries they should do so. To be a benefit an industry must also be a success.

Yours truly,
O. K.

"He's Fooling Thee, Beware."

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I was amused at reading the article in the Times this morning on the Scott Act. "Little or no interest is being taken in the Scott Act repeal movement." "The hotelkeepers appear to be totally indifferent." "Only keepers of dives and groggeries show any anxiety and are the only canvassers." So says the Times. Now, does the editor of the Times take its readers to be fools? He knows and many of them know that what the Rev. Mr. Pearson charged on Saturday is true. The most active agents are the hotel keepers and the wholesale liquor vendors, that they employed the men to circulate the petitions and paid them, and are the only active agents at work for repeal. Does not the editor know that the meeting held in the Music Hall yesterday professedly to make arrangements for races in this town on the 24th was a meeting secretly called and held in secret to arrange for carrying repeal? It is hard to keep such a purpose dark. Some one perhaps when he is drunk will give it away. Temperance men cannot be fooled. No one expects the repealers to meet the friends of the act in fair discussion; only underhand and dark and devious ways will they adopt. Why not publish the minutes of the meeting held yesterday in the Music Hall? It is the race on April 4th, not next May the 24th, they are anxious about.

The editor's proclamation of his hatred to dens and groggeries and his love for the practice and promotion of temperance, as well as his desire for repeal, because the Scott Act is so injurious to the cause of temperance, is too funny for anything. The hotel keepers are at work ceaselessly night and day. Temperance men must not be caught napping.

Yours truly,
WIDE-AWAKE.

The Board of Trade.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Now that a meeting has been called by his worship the Mayor, for Thursday evening next, to form a local Board of Trade, let people who have any interest in the town attend. The town is in a crisis of its career as everybody knows. Railways discriminate against us—the time of arrival of trains, at least on the G.T.R., is against local trade. There are a hundred and one things that a Council cannot attend to, but which a local Board of Trade could handle with much advantage to Peterborough. Towns half our size recognize the advantage of such a board—why should Peterborough lag behind?

Yours, etc.,
March 18th, 1889. CITIZEN.

DOURO DOINGS.

A Lecture on St. Patrick's Day by Dr. McGrath, of Peterborough.

Correspondence of the Review.

SUNDAY was a great day for Ireland in St. Joseph's, Douro. After mass Dr. McGrath, a rising young physician of Peterborough, delivered an address on "Irishmen's Devotion to Faith and Fatherland." He spoke three quarters of an hour and was listened to throughout with breathless attention. His reference to Daniel O'Connell, Father Matthew and Charles Stewart Parnell elicited a hearty burst of applause. After the lecture Mr. Moloney, Douro's popular Reeve, and Mr. Wm. Moher, one of Douro's most esteemed citizens, moved and seconded a vote thanks, which was unanimously carried amid the greatest enthusiasm by the very large and highly respectable audience. Senator Sullivan, of Kingston, says that in a thorough knowledge of his profession Dr. McGrath has no superior in Central Ontario. Those who had the pleasure of hearing him on Sunday will say that Dr. McGrath as a popular orator has no superior in the County of Peterborough.

Rathbun's Men Leave the Scott Limits—Interesting Notes from the North.

Correspondence of the Review.

SCOTT'S LIMITS.—Considerable excitement prevailed in our quiet little town when it was definitely known that the Rathbun Co. would leave and the Syndicate take possession of these valuable timber limits. Two gangs, under the Syndicate, we understand, are to enter the camps at once, and as vigorously as may be engage in getting timber on the ice before the driving season opens. The Rathbun Company's camps broke up and left for Coe Hill on Wednesday, 13 h inst.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Wm. O'Brien lost a valuable horse by drowning in Eel's Creek. The ice on the creek was rendered unsafe by the recent warm weather and Mr. O'Brien, unaware of its condition, drove on a weak portion after unloading his load of logs. One horse broke through the ice and the other fell on it in such a way as to force it beneath the ice so far that it was drowned before its head could be hauled above water.

SCHOOL MATTERS.—Mr. Murdock, late of Lindsay, has been engaged by the trustees of Hale's school section and entered on his duties on Monday morning, the 11th inst. ....Messrs. Defries are busily engaged getting timber, etc., on the ground for the new school house, No. 1, Anstruther.

CHINA HALL

CHINA
AND
QUEENS WA

Immense sums have been paid for rare specimens of antique China. Think of $5,000 being given for a china plate cracked at that. Consider $34,000 as the market value of a set of 120 pieces of seivres china. Hold in one hand a cup and saucer and in the other hand the $8,400 that the cup and saucer brought at a Parisian auction. Truly, the craze of collectors for rare specimens of Palissy ware, has given fictitious values to many an unpretentious plate and cup. When money is tight it is a comfort to think of $2,800 being paid for a hawthorn jug that would barely hold a quart of milk. These are prices that astonish, but the serious side of the question is that at China Hall you can secure full sets of China that will grace any tea table for so little money that anyone can afford the outlay. Not only China, but good substantial dinner sets fit to set out the table of an M. P. or Mayor. Come to CHINA HALL and see what money will do. You'll not have to spend the value of six first-class farms for a China Tea Set.

Furniture Plant and Stock Sold.

The plant and stock of the Lindsay & Holden furniture factory were sold this morning by auction, and were knocked down to Mr. W. J. Hall at a figure between twelve and thirteen hundred dollars. There were only three bidders, which accounts for the low figure at which the plant and stock were sold.

The Board Deputation.

The deputation which was appointed at the last meeting of the Board of Education to visit Lindsay and inspect the Smead-Dowd system of heating in use in the Collegiate Institute in that town with a view to deciding upon some system of heating for the proposed new Institute building here, left for Lindsay on the eight o'clock train this morning. The members of the Board who were on the deputation are Messrs. English, Dumble Stevenson, Burnham, Wrighton, Deane and Thos. Rutherford.

Married at Toronto.

A correspondent writes:—On Thursday evening, March 7th, a very pleasant event occurred at the residence of the Rev. T. Woolsey, being the marriage of Miss Addie A. Hunter, third daughter of Mr. Wm. Hunter, Otonabee, to Mr. J. R. Chapman, of the C.P.R., Toronto. The bride was be[illegible]ly attired in [illegible]eam colored dress [illegible] assisted by her sister Mary. The groom was supported by Mr. A. F. Banks, of Toronto, but formerly of Caithness, Scotland. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly presents from different parts. The groom is a native of the County Tyrone, Ireland, from which the happy couple received many congratulations. We also extend to Mr. and Mrs. Chapman our best wishes.

"Bobby" Burns in Court.

"Bobby" Burns, an old grey-haired man who has fought the battles here below for more than man's allotted number of years, has been boarding at the castle on the hill for several months past where he was registered as a vagrant. "Bobby" was allowed out yesterday but the gentle March winds had hardly fanned the gaoly atmosphere from off his garments when he found himself again behind the bars in the police cells. At the Police Court this morning the Magistrate inquired "Well, Burns, where do you live?" "I live where I work!" Bobby replied. "And where do you work?" asked the P.M. Bobby replied not, for he has been working at the gaol lately and was a little averse to saying so. He said he lived in Millbrook and intended to go home, and so he was allowed on condition he would be out of town before night.

THE CAUSE OF IRELAND

A MOST SUCCESSFUL GATHERING OF IRISHMEN.

The Memory of St. Patrick Honored by the Local Branch of the Irish National League—Talented [illegible]—Eloquent Lecture by Mr. J. J. Curran, M.P., of Montreal—Local Lights Speak.

Falling, as it did, on Sunday, St. Patrick's Day could not be celebrated in any marked manner by the local society of the Sons of Erin, but last night the memories of the patron saint of the Emerald Isle were awakened by the most successful and immense gathering of Irishmen, their descendants and their friends which filled the Opera House last evening. That the evening was enjoyed and that the audience was pleased it is hardly necessary to state, for the manifestations of appreciation and approbation were of such an audible character that most of Peterborough must have been aware that something of unusual merit was in progress in the Opera House. The local branch of the Irish National League, under whose auspices the concert and lecture was managed, have every reason to feel jubilant over the success which attended their efforts, and at the same time they are to be congratulated upon the high character of the programme which they presented.

THE MUSICAL TALENT.

It was a few minutes past eight o'clock when the orchestra opened the programme with a well-rendered selection. Then came a vocal solo by Miss Waltz, of Brooklyn. This lady's high reputation as a singer had proceeded her to Peterborough, and none of the encomiums that have been lavished upon her as a vocalist have been unworthily spoken. She is the possessor of a fine soprano voice of great compass and her first solo "Judicabit," by Millard, was a magnificent effort and needless to say the audience made the house ring with their applause and a prolonged demand for an encore was responded to. Next came an instrumental solo by Mrs. W. J. Morrow. This talented lady is already known to the Peterborough public and it is unnecessary to extol her musical abilities. Last night, however, the arrangement of "Irish Airs" which she played were given with an execution and a niceness of fingering which only a mistress of the key-wand could attempt and her audience were enraptured with the rendition and Mrs. Morrow had to respond to an enthusiastic encore. Then came another favorite with Peterborough audience and in fact with any music-loving audience who have heard him once—Mr. Thos. Dunn. All that it is necessary to say of this number is that Mr. Dunn was in good voice and the rest goes without saying. His solo was entitled "I am a Rover Bold," by Mendelssohn, and was well suited to his voice. He was compelled to respond to a most unanimous encore. Miss Waltz then gave another vocal solo "Because of Thee," and delighted her audience again, and they demanded an encore and received it. Mr. M. Tierney, another of Peterborough's popular and gifted vocalists, gave a solo "Killarney," and in response to a pronounced encore gave "The Irish Christening." "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit," a vocal duet by Miss Waltz and Mr. T. Dunn, was a grand piece of music and the audience went into ectasies but were denied an encore. A second rendition by the orchestra closed the concert programme. Mrs. T. Dunn was the accompanist for the evening and performed her duties most acceptably to the vocalists. The excellent instrument which was used for the accompaniments last evening was kindly loaned to the League by Mr. W. J. Crosby, and the musicians were delighted with the piano.

IRELAND'S CAUSE.

As the orchestra finished its second selection, which closed the musical part of the evening's programme, Councillor Thos. Cahill, President of the local branch of the Irish National League, came out upon the platform, followed by the speaker of the evening, Mr. J. J. Curran, M. P., of Montreal, Mayor Stevenson, M.P., Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., Mr. D. W. Dumble, P.M., Councillor Thos. Kelly and Mr. J. D. McIlmoyle. The appearance of these gentlemen was the signal for great applause.

MR. CAHILL then arose and in a few appropriate and well timed remarks thanked the audience for their kind patronage and also expressed the gratitude of the League to those ladies and gentlemen who had placed their talent at its disposal. In introducing the lecturer Mr. Cahill told an amusing story of an Irishman who was asked for a description of Daniel O'Connell. "He's a fine man," was the reply, which was repeated, but being pressed for a more detailed description of the leader the Kerry man exclaimed, "Why he's like the—the lakes of Killarney." Mr. Curran, he said, was a fine man but as he was present further description of him was unnecessary.

MR. CURRAN is a man of medium height, rather portly, has a well-shaped head covered with hair which is tinged with grey, while his features speak louder than words ever could of the generous Irish heart which beats beneath the closely buttoned and tight fitting Prince Albert coat. As a speaker Mr. Curran is earnest and eloquent and last night he carried the feelings of his audience with him and again and again the house echoed with applause. In opening he thanked the chairman for his kind introduction and said he did not pretend to be a public lecturer but had accepted the kind and hearty invitation of the League to address them on one of the greatest and noblest themes—a theme that was well worthy, not of humble talent like his, but of the greatest talent that could be brought to bear upon it—the cause of Ireland. But he could speak from his heart—the heart of a man of an Irish mother and an Irish father—for a cause which was in the thoughts of on that day of grace, 1889. St. Patrick's Day always awakened the fondest recollections, and, he said, he could not pass to his subject without a reference to that bloodless triumph of the saint over the paganism that had overspread Ireland for centuries. He then in eloquent language and poetry dilated upon Ireland's patron saint, and on her achievements in art, literature, education and poetry. He then proceeded in a connected and interesting manner to trace the constitutional history of the Irish cause from the time of the first exodus—that of the missionaries—down to the present time. He pointed out and dwelt extendedly on the three migrations that had occurred from Ireland—(1) that of the missionaries, (2) that of the chieftains and (3) that of the two million sons of Erin who fell in the abortive attempt at rebellion in 1848. These were all, he believed, providential in different ways to the Irish people. In this sketch Mr. Curran referred in eulogistic language at different times to Daniel O'Connell, and his great fight for Ireland, to Father Matthew and his temperance work, to Isaac Butt, and lastly to Charles Stuart Parnell. The mention of each of these cherished names was the signal for great applause and patriotic enthusiasm. The lecturer read a report written by Mr. A. M. Sullivan of the first appearance of Mr. Parnell as the advocate of Home Rule and followed the Irish leader from his debut through his plan of obstruction in the House of Commons, through his imprisonment down to his recent and memorable fight with and triumph over the London Times. The lecturer said he believed that without the direct interference of God's Providence Parnell could never have triumphed as he had. In concluding he asked what was their cause?

WHAT DID THEY DEMAND?

Did they ask to be dismembered or severed from the Empire to whose glorious history they had contributed on so many battle fields? No. They desired to live in the closest possible relation of brotherhood with England and Scotland, but they asked for Ireland the right to make Irish laws upon Irish soil. They asked the rights that had been granted the Dominion of Canada. They asked that Ireland's progress and prosperity be not retarded and, in fact, be not wiped out. They had no desire to break up the Empire, but wished to be allowed to develop the resources of their country and to promote the interests of the tenants and the people. And, Mr. Curran said, on this St. Patrick's Day, 1889, they could feel most hopeful for Ireland's cause, and he spoke of the change in sentiment which could be seen towards those who now pleaded the cause of Ireland. In closing, he said he had been pleased to speak to such a sympathetic people, and hoped that the time was not far distant when they would have a Parliament in College Green—a Parliament making Irish laws for Irish people. (Cheers.)

OTHER ADDRESSES.

MR. D. W. DUMBLE, when the applause which followed Mr. Curran to his seat had subsided, next arose and in a very neat and short speech spoke of Ireland's condition and of her demand for Home Rule, which he thought was just. Before resuming his seat he moved a cordial vote of thanks to the lecturer for his chaste and eloquent address.

MAYOR STEVENSON in a short speech seconded the motion of thanks. His Worship said he was most agreeably surprised with the evening he had spent with the League, and he complimented the management upon the successful manner in which the entertainment had been carried out, and also spoke flatteringly of the musical talent to which he had listened. He referred to Home Rule which he thought Ireland should have, and thought it just possible that the present Government might bring in a measure for Home Rule to take the wind out of Mr. Gladstone's sails.

MR. WM. CLUXTON next rose to support the motion and in a few remarks he said he wished to state he was in favor of Home Rule for Ireland. If there were any present who were opponents of Home Rule he would tell them to go, as he had, and take Mr. Gladstone's advice and read the history of Ireland for the last 800 years. If they did this they would soon change their opinion as he had. He also believed that Providence was guiding Ireland and he believed there would be many hundred of the audience who would live to read the reports of the parliaments in College Green (Cheers.)

MR. J. R. STRATTON, M. P. P., was next called upon. He spoke of the pleasure he felt at being present and of the support he, through his newspaper the Examiner, always gave Home Rule and also referred to his speech in the Legislature in support of the motion favoring the measure. The Home Rule was not a Roman Catholic movement, but was a measure which would have to be given to Scotland and Wales.

MR. CURRAN in responding to the vote of thanks said he would alway remember the kind reception which had been accorded him here and would never forget the flourishing town which he had seen in the afternoon. In Peterborough, also, he would not forget he had heard some of the best music given by the fairest ladies and most patriotic gentlemen he had ever listened to. He said he did not say this for flattery, for he had really been surprised at the talent he had listened to that evening.

The gathering then broke up and Mr. Curran and Mayor Stevenson took the 11.45 train for Ottawa.

A Cobourg Drunk.

Charles Johnston, of Cobourg, was found drunk a few minutes after twelve o'clock last night and was locked up. At the Police Court this morning he pleaded guilty and was allowed to go as it was his first offence.

How Strange it is

To see people starting at the head of George-st., passing all the grocery houses on the street, merely giving them the go by, and coming to a halt at the Opera House Block to secure some of W. J. Morrow's Celebrated Teas. One half the population of Peterboro' are using our new celebrated 25c. For the next few years we will sell goods away below other houses, so you can always rely on buying goods cheaper than elsewhere. Watch for our Saturday bargains and be sure to call.

A New Departure.

The awnings are going up all along George-st. and Mr. J. J. Turner, the tent and awning manufacturer, has been a busy man for the past week. He has put up a new and model awning in front of the store of Fairweather Bros. The awning is made with flap windows which when opened will allow the light to get into the store. The great fault with heavy awnings was always that they made the store too dark in the daytime.

"Hurrah for the Palace."

One would think to see the rush of people going in and out of the Palace Grocery, the loads of goods being taken away by the numerous customers, and their own delivery wagons laden with groceries to be distributed to all parts of the town, Ashburnham and Auburn, that in a very short time the supply would run out; but the public may not know that Elliot & Tierney have the largest store houses and cellars in Peterborough, filled with goods which they are selling very low before stocktaking. Call and secure the bargains. 18 lbs. bright sugar for $1. See advertisement in another column giving quotations for a few of our leading lines.

Personal.

The Rev. J. Farncomb, of Lakefield, incumbent at Lakefield, has been appointed to the rectory of Newmarket. Mr. Farncomb is an earnest minister and is popular with his congregation and the people of Lakefield, who will regret his departure, though pleased to see him appointed to the important charge at Newmarket. It is not yet known who his successor will be.

The Rev. R. J. Moore, of Toronto, who will address the meeting in St. John's to-night, will arrive in town at 7.50 o'clock to-night and will remain over for the meeting to-morrow night.

A CONSTABLE'S EYE

Is Badly Gouged by a Young Man—The Prisoner Remanded.

The quiet that has preceded the police circles was disturbed last night, and as is usually the case the calm was followed by a storm. Constable Stewart had an interesting time during the early hours of the morning and as a result of his encounter he was unable to appear at the Police Court this morning.

The constable was arresting a young man by the name of Charles Wesley, a moulder from Bowmanville who has been working for about a month past in town, when three companions who were with Wesley interfered in behalf of their comrade and in the scuffle that ensued Wesley got his finger into the officers eye and gouged him badly. However, Night Watchman Gordon was on hand and between the two the man was taken into custody, but when the nippers were being adjusted on his wrists he made a sudden break and started on the run down Simcoe-st., but unfortunately for him he ran in the wrong direction, as he turned the corner right into the arms of Constable Adams, who captured him and took him to the cells. Constable Stewart went to Dr. Clarke to have his injured eye attended to, and it cannot be stated exactly how serious the injury to the optic may prove or whether the sight will be injured. The tendons or veins behind the ball of the eye were ruptured, but whether the ball of the eye is injured or not cannot be ascertained until the inflammation is out of the organ. Owing to Constable Stewart being unable to appear the prisoner was remanded until to-morrow morning.

County Crown Attorney Wood was present and fixed the bail at $200 but the prisoner failed to give bonds.

The full particulars of the arrest and scuffle will come out in the trial to-morrow as, if the charge of drunk and disorderly is proven against Wesley, he will in all probability be charged with resisting arrest, which is a criminal offence.

A Young Men's Movement.

A meeting of the men of St. John's congregation is called for to-night to discuss "the position and work of young men in the Church." The meeting will be addressed by Rev. R. J. Moore, M.A., of Toronto, and by other speakers. Though the subject for discussion refers chiefly to young men as a class, yet all the men of the congregation are invited to be present and take part, without any regard to age. Young men do not seem to take naturally to religious work in any church, and it will be interesting to note the practical outcome of this movement at St. John's—that is, if there is any result tangible enough for a newspaper man to lay hold of.

Observance of Good Friday.

To the Members of the Church of England in the Diocese of Toronto:

BELOVED BRETHREN,—It must be regarded as a matter for devout thankfulness that the season, which, by long continued and almost universal usage has been set apart by Christians for the commemoration of the solemn events connected with the temptation, suffering, and death of Christ, and especially the transactions of the week in which His great sacrifice was completed, is being year by year, more religiously observed. Yet it is evident that there are many professing Christians, who, from want of sufficient thought, either disregard even Good Friday altogether, or, worse still, make it more or less a day of amusement.

I, therefore, venture to call the thoughtful attention of Christians proper, to this subject, and to express the hope that all who call themselves by the name of Christ will not only scrupulously abstain from all holiday making, concerts, and amusements on the day sacred to the memory of their Lord's death, but also be careful not make arrangements for entertainments to follow so closely upon Easter as to involve, by preparation or rehearsals for such entertainments, the necessity of disturbing the holy solemnity which ought to precede that festival.

Believe me, beloved Brethern,
Your faithful friend and Bishop,
ARTHUR TORONTO.

Literary Note.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson has been engaged for a number of years upon his autobiography, which will soon begin to appear in The Century. No more interesting record of a life could be laid before the American public, and Mr. Jefferson's personality is perhaps more sympathetic to the people of this country than of any actor we have had. He is the fourth in a generation of actors, and, with his children and grandchildren upon the stage, there are six generations of actors among the Jeffersons. The record which he has made of the early days of the American stage is said to be peculiarly interesting, especially the story of his travels as a boy in his father's company, when they would settle down for a season in a Western town and extemporize their own theatre. The autobiography will begin in The Century during the coming autumn, and the installments will be illustrated with a portrait gallery of distinguished actors.

TUESDAY, MARCH 19, 1889.

BEAUTIFUL JIM.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER

It must be owned that the women had a good deal to do with it—they utterly spoiled him, for they allowed him to take almost any liberties that he chose, partly because he was so young, partly because he was so actually beautiful in person, partly because he was the last of a very old and rich and eminently distinguished race.

Not a day passed, if he was not on duty, that as soon as he was free from work he did not go flying off to some feminine charmer, and he neither could nor would understand that "the fellows" objected to going to tea parties where Tommy was the central figure, to dinners where Tommy monopolized the whole of the conversation, and to dances where Tommy's audacious flirtations made him the observed of all observers.

But, though Tommy did not become very popular in his regiment, he was popular enough in the town to satisfy any ordinary craving after the approval of the many. He became after the first few weeks, the intimate friend of all classes—he was "Tommy" from one end of Blankhampton to the other.

Beautiful Jim did his best, but his influence went a very short way, for his advice was anything but palatable to the last of the Earles, and it must indeed be a very strong and firm will which can follow the most excellent advice in the world if it is unpleasant, to the exclusion of all that makes life worth having, a much stronger will than Tommy was blessed with. In truth, all Tommy's strength of purpose went in an opposite direction, that of serving his own ends and gratifying his own sense of pleasure.

"Look here, you young beggar," said Jim one day to him, being moved thereto not by any desire to do Tommy good, but by an uncomfortable feeling that she would be grieved if she could see all that went on in Blankhampton society, "if you go on like this, what do you mean to come to—hey?"

Tommy looked up with his own unabashed gaze.

"What on earth have I been doing to upset you now?" he demanded.

"Well, I saw you myself kiss no fewer than three women last night," Beautiful Jim growled. "The greater fools they to let you."

"Like to have been there yourself, eh?" remarked Tommy, flippantly.

If Beautiful Jim felt half as contemptuous as he looked at that moment he must have attained to the very furthest limits of disdain, for his ugly face seemed petrified with unutterable disgust.

"Like to have been there," he repeated. "Why, you young idiot, do you suppose there's a single woman, married or maid, in the whole of Blankhampton, that would give you so much as a look if I took the trouble to be civil to her? Bless you, child, don't flatter yourself. Why, it's because these women think you're such a baby—such a nothing—such a non-dangerous scrap of humanity—that they let you make the young show of yourself that you do. But what I want to know is, what the devil do you mean to come to?"

"Well, really, Jim," Tommy replied, with a certain "last of the Earles" haughtiness in his tone, "it seems to me you're troubling yourself in a very unnecessary way about my private affairs, and"——

But Beautiful Jim had broken into shouts of derisive laughter. "Tommy, Tommy, you'll be the death of me yet—you will, indeed," he said. "Your private affairs—why, bless me, child, the last joined sub hasn't got any private affairs except in 'applying' for leave. Private affairs, indeed! Well, it's too lovely, that—simply too lovely."

Tommy looked blandly blank. "I dare say it's very funny, Jim," he said, easily, "but where's the joke?"

"The joke? In yourself, Tommy, my child, and you can't be expected to see it."

But, after that Jim gave up trying to keep the lad from making a fool of himself with the Blankhampton women, and gained nothing whatever by the attempt he had made, except to make Tommy firmly believe from that time forward that the senior subaltern was eaten alive with jealousy of him. And if he had only known that Beautiful Jim's whole heart and mind was wrapped up in his own sister! If he had only known that to him, he—Tommy—was simply nothing but an impudent young cub whose only claim to interest, or even notice, lay in the fact he was the brother of that insignificant and not-to-be-counted creature, Nancy Earle—well, it would have helped to take down the young gentleman's idea of his own greatness and his own importance marvelously.

Unfortunately, however, Jim had not, during all those months, the ghost of a chance of furthering his position with Nancy, for almost immediately after Tommy joined the regiment Mr. Earle was seized with a somewhat severe attack of bronchitis, and by the orders of his medical advisers was on the very first opportunity ordered off to the sunny shores of the Mediterranean, there to stay until the very last east wind of our ungenial spring time should have taken its departure from his native shores.

It had been a bitter blow to him, but it was useless to fight against fate, and though he tried hard for foreign leave, he was, owing to various rumors of disturbance floating about the country at the time, unable to get it.

Just at first he was rather elated at the prospect of a change. There was a something jaunty and soldierly about marching out, colors flying, band playing, and a dozen broken hearts behind them, and for a few hours Tommy went airly round announcing that they were off to Walmsbury next week, with a "fresh fields and pastures new" air about him that was irresistibly funny to those of his brother officers who knew what manner of place Walmsbury really was.

TWENTY-SIX YEARS A P.M.

Mr. Cahill's Anniversary—Attempted Burglary at Hamilton—Accidental Death.

HAMILTON, March 18.—There were more than the usual number of members of the legal profession at the Police Court this morning, and when the Magistrate took his seat Mr. C. A. Sadlier, on behalf of the members, made a brief speech complimenting him upon having completed twenty-six years as Police Magistrate.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery, it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. 30 YEARS PAYING RENT IN PETERBOROUGH.

I frequently hear statements akin to above followed by remarks of deep regret for having missed many golden opportunities of buying whole lots at a price they would now have to pay for one foot of the same land. Buying property in Peterborough is the safest kind of a safe and profitable investment. I have at present Cheap Homes, Medium Class Homes and a few exceedingly fine residences and grounds, some of which were built for home comforts regardless of cost. Uncontrolable circumstances have now caused those to be offered for immediate sale much under value. I commence at $475.00 for a good house and lot. I can suit any reasonable buyer. I have also good values in Market Gardens and Farms

TURNBULL'S COLUMN.

DRESS GOODS. "SATEUR CLOTH," commonly called HENRIETTA. It is almost a joke the way these Goods have jumped to popularity at a single leap. but it is now at the zenith, entrenched, fortified, public favor decrees it. We are showing 36 distinct shades. We have never had the like before under 90c., the price 75c. Lift a fold, every ounce of the weight comes from good fine wool, honestly put together, by the yard stick 46 inches plump, test the dye, every shade shows as evenly as the sun on a quiet pool, and are going out like the rolling sea evenly and constantly. See them, they are on the move.

In the last week, heaps of New Dress Goods have come in. The spring gathering is at its flood. Take any sort you choose, Cottons or Woollens, Silks or Satins. Another family of Cashmeres. We show 15 colorings most of which are entirely new, 44 inches wide, price 50c.

Cast your eye to the end of our Dress Goods counter and you will find a range of French Stuffs in 20 shades. We have never had the like before under 25c., but have bought them low and are selling them close price 20c.

MATTERS IN MONTREAL.

TWO MEN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

An Iron Merchant Arrested on a Capias—Murderer McGrath's Wife Seriously Ill—The French Defaulter's Case.

MONTREAL, March 20.—Alexis Gregoire, boot and shoe manufacturer of St. Henri, assigned yesterday with $22,000 liabilities.

John Hennessy and Michael Muleahay were yesterday committed to the Court of Queen's Bench on a charge of criminal assault on a young girl named Roberts.

Frederick A. Lallamand, wholesale iron merchant, has been arrested on a capias at the instance of the Bank of Nova Scotia for $12,083 promissory notes endorsed by him. He is accused of secreting his property.

Mrs. Magrath, wife of the murderer of Holden whose plea of guilty of manslaughter was accepted yesterday, is lying in a serious condition in the general hospital from prostration. She is not yet aware of the turn of affairs in her husband's case.

John Baylis of the Provincial Police has been instructed by friends of Holton to look after his effects. Baylis has a letter from the sister of deceased in which she states that his aged mother is longing for him to return home and if he does not it will kill her. It is stated that Holden is highly connected in England, was heir to a considerable sum of money and instead of being a mere house decorator was an artist of considerable promise.

In connection with the proposed amendments to the license law this telegram was sent to the Quebec Government by the Dominion Alliance: "The Dominion Alliance protests against the granting of special licenses to fairs, races, etc., as immeasurably mischievous and demoralizing; and against the monstrous assertion that this is done in the public interest; and also against the word "knowingly" as applied to minors, removing as it does all hope of the enforcement of the provision protecting them."

Victor Emil Michon, the young French deserter, was again committed for extradition by Commissioner Dugas on a charge of appropriating to his use a bond worth 3000 francs and collecting that amount on it, the bond having been in his possession simply in trust. A writ of habeas corpus will be applied for.

MALONEY AGAIN REMANDED.

Bail Refused—What the Defence Will Try to Prove.

MONTREAL, March 19.—Detective Howie and Jeweler P. W. Ellis of Toronto arrived to-day in connection with the Maloney case. Reinholtz is stated to be in New York. Mr. Greenshields this afternoon argued that Maloney should be set free under bail, as it was not fair to hold his client under arrest simply in order to give the detectives a chance to work up a case against him. He offered any bail the court would ask.

Judge Desnoyers replied that such an outrageous act as the one of which Maloney stood accused, namely, of appropriating $14,000 worth of jewelry in the manner charged, was not one for which he could accept bail. Of course Maloney might be innocent of the crime as charged but the suspicion was against him, the goods or a large portion of them having been found in his possession. He would therefore remand him until next Friday but he would take bail on that day if nothing special turned up.

It is stated that a bill of sale of the jewelry from Mr. Ellis to Van Reinholtz, showing it was the property of the latter, will be produced. The defence also stated that Van Reinholtz was offering the jewelry all through the city and that among the articles he offered to a well-known jeweler a $600 gold watch for $300.

FROM THE PRAIRIE PROVINCE.

WINNIPEG, March 19.—Haffield, the wife murderer, was sentenced this morning to fifteen years' imprisonment for manslaughter.

Renison & Co.'s elevator at Carberry, with 12,000 bushels of wheat belonging to Adam Mackenzie of Brandon, was destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is $17,000, on which there was a light insurance.

Two Mennonites nearly killed an old lady named Mrs. Herbert, living near Gretna, yesterday during her husband's absence.

Donald McQueen of Wapella yesterday lost a little boy by drowning in a pool of water two feet deep in which he was playing.

Found in Niagara River.

NIAGARA, March 20.—Arthur J. Powell, aged 48, was found floating in the Niagara River near Olden's dock, Youngstown, on Monday. It is supposed that he fell in by accident. Powell was weak minded. In September, 1887, in Michigan while felling trees, a tree crashed upon him, severely injuring him, and his mind never fully recovered from the shock. He was married, but was not living with his wife. No one believes that he committed suicide.

Belleville Briefs.

BELLEVILLE, March 20.—A 6-year-old boy who fell into the river Monday evening was rescued by Mr. H. W. Bell, who at the peril of his own life jumped from a wall 12 feet high into a swift current 6 feet deep and saved the child.

The City Council last night passed a by-law requiring all bread to be of full weight.

There are eleven cases to be heard at the chancery sittings which will be open on Thursday.

W. H. Garrat of Trenton has prepared a charge against License Inspector Granger and an examination took place at Trenton yesterday.

The Oshawa Separate School Feud.

OSHAWA, March 19.—The controversy over the Oshawa Separate School and its funds has not abated any and formed the sole topic of conversation throughout the town to-day. Some of the Roman Catholics are now sorry they did not follow Mr. McSweeny's course five years ago. It is said that nothing will settle the quarrel between some of the members but a court of justice.

LIBERALS WANT TO TALK.

HARCOURT AND GLADSTONE OBJECT TO BEING MUZZLED.

Lord Salisbury Speaks at Watford—Exciting Scenes in the Hungarian Diet—General Cable News.

LONDON, March 19.—Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, in opposing the motion of W. H. Smith, the Government leader, to give precedence to the vote on account until it was passed, accused the Government of shirking discussion and of trying to introduce a new and surreptitious form of closure. He said the time was drawing near when the House of Commons would be simply a vestry for the registering of Government transactions. Sir William announced that he intended to challenge the conduct of the Government in placing Irish officials, paid by the public, at the service of The Times in connection with that paper's charges against the Irish members of the House. He also announced that on the vote for Attorney General Webster's salary he should ask what state services the Attorney-General had rendered during the last nine months and why any salary should be paid to him.

Mr. Gladstone denied the right of Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to calculate beforehand what time should be allowed for the discussion of the vote. He said that questions of great delicacy must be discussed. He denied the right of the Government to take away the right of the House to the time necessary for a full discussion.

Lord Salisbury Will Stick It Out.

LONDON, March 19.—In a speech at Watford this evening Lord Salisbury stated that nothing short of a vote of want of confidence would bring the Government to a premature end and that those who thought otherwise were amusing themselves with vain dreams.

Stocks Firm in London.

LONDON, March 19.—The stock exchange closed firm.

The Paris Bourse Quiet.

PARIS, March 19.—Societe des Metaux shares closed at 40f. and Rio Tintos at 279f. The Bourse closed quiet.

The U. S. Copper Market Not Affected.

NEW YORK, March 19. There was practically no interest in copper on the Metal Exchange here to-day. Cables from London and Paris indicate a quieter and easier market.

The Bank of Paris Shaken.

PARIS, March 19.—A pessimistic feeling prevails regarding the position of the credit houses, especially of the Banque de Paris, which is much discussed. It is reported that the bank is deeply involved in the copper troubles and is not expected to pay a dividend for the past year. Moreover it is stated that the directors of the concern announced at the bankers' meeting last evening that they were unable to subscribe for the relief of the Comptoir d'Escompte, having themselves lent 27,000,000 francs on copper warrants. The decline of Societe des Metaux shares is attributed to a report that the concern had definitely suspended payment and operations. Nevertheless there was a large amount of buying and re-purchasing in the copper mine market to-day, the demand for Rio Tintos being especially strong.

Defiant Deputies.
